RAF Mosquito Cuts London-Capetown Record Under Half

6,717-Mile Flight Made In 21 Hours, 29 Minutes

Capetown, May 1 —(CP)— An R.A.F. Mosquito, bomber piloted by an Australian-born war veteran today halved the speed record between London and Capetown with a total elapsed time of 21 hours, 29 minutes and 35 seconds for the 6,717-mile flight.

The previous record was 45 hours and 14 minutes.

Sqdn. Ldr. H. B. Martin of Cambridge, Eng., set the Mosquito down at Brooklyn airport here at 5:35 p.m. GMT (11:35 a.m. EDT). He had hoped to make the flight in 24 hours.

A four-engined Lincoln bomber, Aries II, also attempting to break the record, was in touch with the ground early today but air force officials said they were not worried as to its safety.

Steer Plunges Thru Manhattan, Injures Three

New York, May 1—(AP)—A 2,500-pound maverick steer plunged across midtown Manhattan in the morning rush hour today, causing injuries to three persons and incalculable amazement to thousands of others before 15 shots from policemen's revolvers reduced it to steak.

Breaking loose from a truck in 11th Avenue stockyard, the steer took off for the heart of the city. Automobiles swerved and pedestrians flattened themselves in doorways as the mavrick romped along.

Four Are Killed and 34 Injured In Train Wreck

Two Freights and A Crack Pennsylvania Railroad 'Flyer' Are Involved

Huntingdon, Pa., May 1. (AP)—Four persons were killed today in a train wreck involving two freights and a crack Pennsylvania railroad flyer. Thirty-four were injured, eight seriously.

A Pennsylvania Railroad spokesman said that the New York-St. Louis flyer, The American, jolted into rods of sheet steel protruding from the side of two gondola cars of a mostly freight train at 2.47 a.m. E.D.T.

The impact ripped a tremendous hole in the side of the fourth car of the American and damaged the engine, mail car and another coach. No cars were derailed, however.

A moment later another freight —this one moving east—ripped into the sheet steel protruding from the other side of the westbound freight and its engine and tender were derailed.

All four mail trucks of the P.R.R. were tied up in the crash the third fatal collision on the P.R.R.'s middle Pennsylvania division in three months.

Slicing, Ripping Noise

There was a slicing, ripping noise as the ends of the metal first scraped the passenger locomotive's pilot, a small car and then bit into the fourth car.

The side of the coach was torn away and passengers were hurled before emergency brakes brought the train to a halt.

Passengers, some of them asleep, had to scramble out of the way as the sharp edges of steel sliced through a row of seats.

Some women fainted. Others were knocked unconscious when they were hurled to the floor or the steel. Many were hurled from their seats.

Coroner Blair Short, of Huntingdon county, said the death toll probably would rise during the day.

Some Badly Mangled

"Some of those taken to hospital were badly mangled," he reported.

Miss Myrtes Carlo, a registered nurse from New York City, was described as the heroine of the crash.

She said there was "no plasma, no milk drips and no morphine" aboard the American. We had to give the soda fountain drinks to a doctor arrived with morphine a half-hour after the wreck."

Lights on the train were knocked out in the crash and the nurse said she and two unidentified doctor were forced to work by lantern flares.

Russian Armed Forces Called on to Maintain Fighting Preparedness

London, May 1. (AP)—Russia's minister of Armed Forces, Nikoli Bulganin, called upon the Soviet army, navy and air force today to maintain "their fighting preparedness" in an order of the day issued as millions celebrated May Day—Europe's Labor Day.

Many countries which have veered to the left since the war joined with the Russians in observing the day, holding mass rallies and parades to coincide with a show of Soviet military strength in Moscow's Red Square.

It was a legal holiday for the first time in Belgium and Norway. Workers in France also got the day off and in Russia a three-day holiday was proclaimed as Moscow set off the biggest May Day celebration there since the war.

The Russian order of the day, broadcast by Moscow radio directed that the international fraternity of the working people" be observed by the firing of a salute of 20 artillery salvoes in Moscow and a score of other cities.

"The duty of our armed forces lies in ensuring the security of the peaceful labor of our people, and the state interests of the Soviet Union," the order said. "In order to perform this task successfully, the armed forces must at all times maintain their fighting preparedness."

Bulganin succeeded Stalin as minister of the Armed Forces two months ago. Stalin signed the May Day order of the day last year.

Russian denouncing "capitalist exploitation", which in Lettist ideology has come to mean the United States, flew from north-form countries to the Balkans. In Yugoslavia, the Central Communist party issued its first May Day proclamation, in which it accused American-led "imperialists" of eliciting "provoking civil war in Greece".

In Britain, the National Council of Labor, representing the Labor Party, the Trades Union Congress and the Co-operative Union, called on workers everywhere to battle "the forces of reaction, aiming at imperialist domination and capitalist exploitation of the working people."

London postponed its May Day celebration until Sunday, when Prime Minister Attlee will speak at a public rally.

Demonstrations were banned in Greece. Stores were closed in Athens.

In Berlin, the Russians made a special distribution of vegetables and fruit as part of the May Day observance.

House Debates King's Title in Lengthy Session

Resolution Says His Title Should be King Of Canada Rather Than Current Form

By GEORGE RITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 1 —(CP)— The Commons yesterday debated the question of a possible change in the King's title as it applies to Canada and heard an official undertaking to obtain the views of other Commonwealth governments on the matter.

The undertaking came from External Affairs Minister St. Laurent who said the King's titles were out-dated by the growth of the Commonwealth countries and said he would obtain from the other governments their views on the possibility of having the title changed at the next conference of Empire countries.

The discussion arose on a resolution by Eugene Marquis (Kamouraska) which proposed that action be taken to change the title so the King would be clearly designated as "King of Canada," rather than the current form of King of the Dominions beyond the Sea."

The resolution was moved in the first full sitting devoted to private members' business this session. When the debate was concluded the motion was withdrawn by Mr. Marquis.

In a statement before the House, however, by many of the leading members in the chamber and especially from T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview).

Several other members who spoke were divided in their opinions.

Secretary of the House opening was the announcement by Agriculture Minister Gardiner of a 10-cent a pound increase in retail butter prices, effective today, and an additional increase of 5 cents a Cheddar cheese, evaporated milk and export cheese.

HOUSE DEBATES—Page 10

Sale of Eggs to Britain Upped 1¼ Cts. Dozen

Ottawa, May 1 — (CP)—Canadians found that the price ceiling had been stretched today to allow increases on butter, cheese and evaporated milk.

In a series of announcements on lifting of some dairy products subsidies in the Canadian yesterday, Agriculture Minister Gardiner also said prices of eggs sold to Britain will increase 1½ cents a dozen effective May 4. This is aimed at off-setting recent advances allowed in feed grains for poultry and the sale will be the increased price immediately.

The minister told the House that producer subsidies are being discontinued on cheese and butter and the Prices Board said it would have these immediate effects on the Canadian economy:

1. A 10-cent per pound increase in the price of creamery butter effective today.

2. An increase of about four cents a pound in the price of cheddar cheese, effective today.

3. An increase of one cent a tin on evaporated milk, effective today.

Farmer Gets Benefit

To the farmer the butter boost meant an overall increase of 15 cents a pound on that product since the increase is aimed at reducing the 8½ cent a pound subsidy. The greater margin of profit is designed to induce greater butter production.

It was thought probable that the butter price increase might presage the removal of butter rationing at the present quarterly rate if the increased return to the farmer results in larger production.

Tuna is mentioned as a likely month for abolishing the ration.

Speaking of eggs, on which there is no fixed price ceiling, Mr. Gardiner said prices under the British contract would be advanced by 1½ cents per dozen effective with eggs purchased by the Special Products Board on or after May 4 this year. An additional increase of 1½ cents a dozen will be effective on fresh eggs purchased under the British contract for export in the shell during the period November this year to January next year."

Start to Increase

A Special Products Board spokesman said later that although the contract would be paying the new export egg price of 30 cents a dozen, the 1½ farmers were authorized to immediately increase the price to 31 cents on eggs due for export to Britain.

Mr. Gardiner said the British cheese agreement had been amended to provide a price of 25 cents for first grade, 24½ cents for second grade and 24 cents for third grade cheese. Previously the British Food Ministry paid 23.3 cents a pound for the product.

The British Food Ministry also had agreed to purchase 600,000 cases of evaporated milk from farmers, Montreal, Vancouver or New Westminster. The contract will be negotiated at a price satisfactory for milk they received in 1946-47 contract period. The 600,000 case contract was fulfilled by Canada

Blast Ice Flows To Break Jam

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 1— (CP)— Explosions reverberated throughout the Falls district today as power company officials resorted to dynamiting in an effort to break-up heavy ice floes that have formed one of the worst ice jams in the Niagara River in recent years.

From Fort Erie to the Horseshoe Falls there is nothing but ice, officials reported. Another cold spell last night sent the intake of the Ontario Hydro Company is forming and adding to the seriousness of the situation.

Water is exceptionally low and is curtailing power production.

Bevin Illustrates To Critic Wisdom Of His Decision

London, May 1 — (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Bevin seized an opportunity in the House of Commons yesterday to illustrate to one of his parliamentary critics, Tom Driberg, the wisdom of a secret conference between diplomatic contact with Spain which at the same time withdrawing the British ambassador from Madrid in accordance with a United Nations decision.

After Bevin had assured Driberg that several young anti-Fascists in Spain who had supported to have been sentenced to death and not yet executed, Driberg asked the Foreign Secretary if he would keep an eye on this trial to make sure that the death sentences are not pronounced on youths who were only 18 years old.

Bevin replied: "Certainly — but it proved the wisdom of my action in withdrawing the ambassador, withdrawal of our representatives from Madrid."

Asks Underworld To Help Solve Ruthless Murder

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 1 — (CP)— Britain's underworld had a dramatic question tossed to it today: Do you know a killer will you give him up?

As public indignation mounted —and reports of a second murder in two days came from Birmingham — Scotland Yard speaked the dingy characters of the twilight crime world to help in solving the first one.

Somewhere, perhaps sweating it out in some East End hideout, perhaps walking the streets, are three men involved in the robbery and murder of an innocent bystander, Alec de Antiquis, in the afternoon of a Soho jewelry store robbery Tuesday.

"Somebody somewhere knows who committed the murder," the Yard said. "Somebody somewhere is giving shelter to these men."

Detective Superintendent Harry Tyler, "best looking taxi driver on the rank" at Scotland Yard's new street railway station was appointed yesterday under his cab which stood motionless for hours by the side of the Derby Day crowds at Epsom Downs.

Tyler was killed by three bullets fired through the car. Police seek a young airman believed to be the last passenger.

9,000 London Dockers Voted To End Strike

77 Ships In Thames River Loaded With Articles And Not Discharged

London, May 1 —(AP)— Representatives of 9,000 London dockers voted by a heavy majority today to end their 3-day sympathy strike tomorrow morning and return to work on 77 ships in the Thames River.

The dockers walked out last Monday in sympathy with Glasgow dockers who have been discharging for six weeks because they say employers were declared "redundant" and dropped from the payroll.

The London decision was taken after union officials reported that men the ministry of labor had made a great concession" by agreeing to inquire into the Glasgow dispute.

Earlier, the Glasgow strikers voted 827 to 672 to continue their walkout. Many abstained from voting and others stayed away from the meeting.

The vote was on whether to accept a compromise proposal put forward by Sydney Holland, senior whose ministry had said the London dockers' strike "threatened the trade of the country at a most critical juncture in the nation's economy."

Holland's compromise called for rehiring "redundant" Glasgow workers employed before 1939 and for "reasonable" severance payment to others while management and union consider the dispute.

The National Dock Labor Corporation, a government agency controlling the London docks, reported 11,936 at work and 3,837 idle in London today with 77 ships standing idle.

Canadian Labor Market Tightens In March, April

Manpower Survey Shows Number of Jobless Down And Vacancies Up

Ottawa, May 1 — (CP) — The labor market tightened in Canada during March and early April, the Labor Department disclosed today.

Though the period usually sees an increase in the number of workers waiting between seasonal jobs, the department in its monthly manpower survey found the number of jobless was down while work vacancies were up.

The improvement in the employment picture was centred largely in Ontario and the Pacific region. Darkest spot was the Maritimes, where unemployed registrations for April were seven to one.

Across Canada, there were 182,000 unemployed applicants registered with the National Employment Service April 10, against 210,000 March 6 and 263,000 a year previously.

At the same time, available jobs totalled 76,000, against 53,000 March.

Shortage of experienced miners, the survey said, was expected to be more acute this year than in 1946. Production in metal mines would be hindered.

Industry Short

Ready for a boom year, the construction industry was short of bricklayers, masons and plasterers.

Manufacturing employment was expanding, though unevenly. Furniture, textile and clothing were restricting full production in many industrial areas.

In the Maritimes, the report declared, there were 20,000 registered jobless against 4,000 available jobs at April 10.

The trend in job registrants was continuing, though job openings were increasing, the report said.

Local coal supply — caused by the Nova Scotia strike — displaced manufacturing in Cape Breton on an uncertain basis.

Quebec province there were 81,000 unplaced applicants against 23,000 available jobs.

Mines Develop

However, the department declared, mining developments were encouraging. "All over the province areas like a rash" and heavy orders were being placed for miners. A development year was under way.

In Ontario, the ratio of jobless to jobs was 44,000 to 39,000, and labor demand and supply were decreasing. Demand for farm labor was outstripping the supply, and experienced miners were scarce. Shortage of key men in saw mills was acute.

In Ontario manufacturing, — "slow improvement" in the way materials supply was reflected in job opportunities. However, the record was spotty.

Trailer Colony Refuses to Move

Toronto, May 1 (CP)—Ordered to move by midnight April 30 to make way for construction of a new $2,000,000 apartment block scheduled to start June 1, the 126 residents of a trailer camp on University Avenue in West-Central Toronto still were on the lot today.

The 45 families, including 29 war veterans and 31 children announced they intend to stay. They will attempt to prove that it is found for the trailer colony. Some of the families have been on the lot 11 years.

City officials denied it was a civic policy to take legal action against the tenants would have to take action themselves.

"It is hospital land," said Controller B. McCallum. "The city is not directly involved in taking any action against the trailer-ites. Hospital authorities let them have the land and gave the property the notice to vacate, as I understand it. Apparently the rental for the land were paid to the hospital. I don't see where the city comes into the picture."

Housing Lack Hits Truckers' Business as Moving Rolls Around

(By The Canadian Press)

It's moving day again but this Canadian Press survey indicates the housing shortage will put a crimp in Canada's moving business this year, as it did last spring.

Except in cases where citizens exchange dwelling places for accommodations, they're finding apartments or city apartments to purchase, summer cottages, most Canadian will be holding fast to whatever living quarters they have, the survey found.

In practically all Ontario cities, the survey revealed most people "sitting tight." Woodstock reported 10 families moving, Stratford one, Sault Ste. Marie not more than a dozen, Niagara Falls 20, Owen Sound "hardly any," Kitchener-Waterloo 50.

Kingston had its annual shuffle as married Queen's University students exchanged apartments or sub-let them for the summer. Peterborough reported that business was far below the previous year.

Guelph movers reported business brisk and said they were

Spring Planting on Many U.S. Farms Two to Four Weeks Behind Time

OVID A. MARTIN

Washington, May 1 —(AP)— May, a vital month in determining the year's crop production, has arrived today and find American farmers from two to four weeks late in their spring planting.

As a result the next three weeks will be critical in crop agriculture, department officials say, from the standpoint of future supplies and prices of food.

Price-conscious officials have been looking to a bumper farm output this year to help reduce the cost of living and halt what they say is a dangerous inflationary spiral.

But unseasonably cool, wet weather has kept thousands of farmers in a wide area from the Rocky Mountains to the East Coast out of the fields at a time when many already should be at such important crops as corn, oats, flaxseed and truck crops already planted.

One really bright spot in the current picture is the mild winter wheat crop. Seeded last fall, the crop has benefited from cold months in good shape and now is progressing toward the largest ouitrun on record.

Spring wheat crop, which annually makes up about one-fourth of total wheat production, has been somewhat less fortunate, due to delays in planting.

In the south, where weather conditions had been unusually unfavorable for a month past, the sun broke through last week and permit farmers to make much progress in planting cotton, tobacco, peanuts, and truck crops.

TOO MUCH PASTRY

Chicago, May 1 (AP)—Mabel Reynolds 22, said a man approached her at University Hospital as she was about to enter a bakery. She screamed. Four husky bakers seized Reynolds and ran to her aid.

But the "masher" fled and the bakers were unable to catch him. "Too much pastry," they explained, gasping for breath after the chase.

That the local Inter-Service Club's community swimming pool fund will be a popular project in Belleville is indicated by the response which the local Kinsmen Club received to its call for a group of volunteers to appear on their stage and radio show at the Mc-Charity Theatre on Sunday evening.

3,300 Workers In Ontario Idle Due to Disputes

(By The Canadian Press)

May Day—traditional day of labor demonstrations—was marked over—found four Ontario disputes holding a total of 3,300 workers idle.

Only one of the disputes could properly be called a strike. This was the dispute at the Moffat stove plant here where about 600 employees have been out for weeks in a dispute over a union contract. The workers are members of the United Steelworkers of America.

Biggest tie-up was at Oshawa, where 2,000 workers in the Motor corporation plant employing 2,000 have shut down after a dispute in the assembly line that handles passenger car bodies. Originally 250 workers in the body plant unit walked out in protest over an alleged speed-up plan. The company said their action was a temporary speed-up plan. The employees are members of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.).

The U.A.W. is also the union involved in a dispute which has seen 600 foundry workers at the Massey-Harris plant at Brantford idle in what the company calls a 10-days strike. The dispute began when 24 pig-iron pourers allegedly were discharged.

The fourth dispute is at Stratford plant of the Canadian Kenworth Ltd., where about 110 employees, also members of the U.A.W., struck for a stoppage in protest against failure of negotiations. A company spokesman said that machine room employees had been asking for an increase of 10 cents an hour and that when these walked out, they were left without workers in the finishing and cabinet departments.

At Oshawa, all members of the U.A.W.'s Local 222 are to meet tonight to decide further action. Unionists claimed the speed-up of production would shorten the working period during the year, and that consequently layoff supplies had been assured and that work would continue "until at least the end of the year."

NEW CONTRACT ANNOUNCED

New York, May 1.—(AP)—The United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) yesterday announced it had executed a new contract with the Bethlehem Steel Company which grants wage benefits in excess of 15 cents an hour.

Production Cost Survey Will Be Taken by Growers

In order that negotiations may be entered into by the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Marketing Board for a floor price for tomatoes, peas and corn, Prince Edward county growers will undertake a cost of production survey to estimate production costs.

The survey will be conducted by W.W. Pacsons, Ottawa and R.W. Robins, Burlington, of the Ontario Agricultural College who arrived in the county over the weekend. They will work in the county until September.

The survey is a joint project between the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Marketing Board and the Provincial Government. Travelling expenses of the investigators will be paid by the government and salaries by the marketing board. Success of the project depends upon the co-operation given by the farmers, it was stated.

A cross section will be taken of the growers in various types of soil with consideration given both large and small farms. Investigators will take soil samples for analysis while forms will be distributed to farmers and cost of labor may be recorded.

Each farmer co-operating will receive a farm business analysis from his records when the survey is complete by the economics department of the O.A.C. at Guelph. All information will be strictly confidential and available only to the vegetable marking board and the economics department O.A.C.

Supervising the survey will be A. Fulton, secretary of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Marketing Board, while Professor W.R. Drummond, head of the agricultural economics branch, O.A.C. Guelph is directing economic phase of the survey.

Two Fishermen Lost 10 Hours When Fog Blankets L. Ontario

Point Traverse, (Special)—Two Point Traverse commercial fishermen, Elmer Bongard and Bernard Delong, were lost for more than ten hours in the east end of Lake Ontario on Wednesday in one of the worst fog banks which has blanketed the lake this season.

The two men left the Point Traverse fishing harbor early in the morning in their 30-ft open fishing boat to tend their nets out in the lake. In the meantime a dense fog set in shutting out all visibility and the fishermen, were unable to pick up the sound of the fog alarm on Duck Island, and the men became lost on their return trip.

Fishermen on the mainland became alarmed when the two failed to return at the usual time but were unable to make a search for the missing man because of the lack of visibility. However, several hours after they were due home, Bongard and his helper found their way back to the harbor late Wednesday night.

Asparagus Prices Set For Factories

Toronto, May 1 (CP)—Growers who deliver grade 1 asparagus to Ontario factories will receive a minimum price of 4½ cents a pound, the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board announced today. Other prices: Grade utility A, 3½ cents; grade utility B, 2½ cents; grade 2, seven cents.

Due to increased labor and fertilizing costs, the acreage planted to asparagus in Ontario has been steadily decreasing over the last 10 years," the board said. "The prices announced negotiated for this year by the industry represent an effort to encourage growers to replant this crop and to increase its production for both the processing and the fresh asparagus market."

Heavy Penalty Of Coronary Disease On Professions

(Associated Press Science Editor)
By HOWARD BLAKESLEE

Chicago, May 1. (AP)— One out of every two men listening to him would die of coronary heart trouble, Dr. Louis N. Katz, of Chicago, told an audience of more than 1,000 doctors of the American College of Physicians here today.

That would happen, he said, unless something now unknown is found to prevent such deaths.

"And," he went on, "not only is this true of the medical profession, but it is true of other professions and of the executives, the people upon whose intelligence the welfare of this country depends to a large extent.

"We don't know why men suffer more than women and why 'brainbusters' in the broadest sense withstand this disease less than the average male population.

"Apparently one of the prices paid by an individual becoming a professional or executive type is that his chance of succumbing to coronary disease is greatly enhanced."

Dr. Katz is director of cardiovascular research at the Michael Reese hospital.

Dr. Katz advised against tobacco. But he said a cocktail or two helps relax the arteries supplying the heart. Also wine with meals should be encouraged.

"Live slow, play slow," he told the physicians, "avoid peak loads, be carefree. Keep your weight down to normal."

Mrs. Alva McColl of Toronto, believed to be the world's only "dog psychiatrist," is seen with a patient and two of her helpers. The unusual study is the treatment is provided by the examples set by the Corgi and the Pekinese, two of Mrs. McColl's dogs.

Death Trap Mine May be Entered To Recover Bodies

By F. C. DUBOIS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Malartic, Que., May 1 — (CP)— Officials of the East Malartic gold mine were waiting today for word from mine engineer Edward Futcher who would send a squad of rescue workers into the black depths of the fire-scarred No. 4 shaft of the mine in an attempt to bring the bodies of 11 miners to the surface.

Futterer said yesterday that a series of tests being made by his workers will determine whether the fire which broke out last Thursday morning deep in the mine had been extinguished following the sealing of the mine and subsequent flooding operations.

Two crews of men have been working above ground for the past two days with diamond drills in an attempt to reach the spot where the fire originated. They will lower thermometers in the bored holes in an attempt to register the heat — if any — of the 10th level.

If the fire has been extinguished, operations will begin immediately to drain the mine of water and rescue workers will attempt to bring the bodies to the surface for the coroner's inquest. Gas fumes will have to be cleared before the miners can resume work. This is expected to take a week after the fire has been declared extinguished.

The community has returned to normal. School boys yesterday were playing baseball only a stone's throw from where last week Quebec suffered its worst mine disaster.

Patrol Constable Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury

Clean-Up

With May the time is here for the spring clean-up of premises, which every municipality and community undertake this season. With the ground being very firm even after the unusual snows of winter many have done a good bit towards the improvement of the natural appearances of their lots and properties.

At the same time stress is being placed on the clean-up of buildings, basements and sheds in which many people have gathered since last autumn.

Rubbish removal is something which will go far towards the prevention of fires and it is very easy to leave a building as a source of danger from fire through accumulation of debris.

An example of debris being allowed to litter and make a house a menace for the conflagrants was only a long ago in the public mind in the clean-up of the Collyer mansion in New York on the disappearance of one of the two Collyer brothers. One had died, the other was found caught in a trap-like contraption set up for protection. In that mansion was found useless material by the tons.

But in many a home, much smaller than the mansion above-mentioned, there are accumulations of such stuff as papers and other things which may create a hazard.

Cleanliness of grounds and premises and of houses and buildings is a step in the way of health and of safeguard against fire or injury.

Moscow Meetings

U. S. Secretary of State George Marshall in his public statement on the course of the Moscow Conference of Foreign Ministers, took issue with Premier Stalin's view expressed privately to him that agreements on the Austrian and German treaties would come "after people had exhausted themselves in dispute." Against such a view the American State Secretary asserted the attitude held in the Western nations that "action cannot await compromise through exhaustion. "To this he added that "the patient is sinking while the doctors deliberate."

The State Secretary was outspoken, declaring that the Russian delegation supplanted "reason and understanding with propaganda appeals to passion and prejudice." He declared against compromise "on great principles in order to achieve agreement for agreement's sake."

He made it clear that the meetings had brought out differences in the precise views of all the governments concerned and in the light of that he sees some hope. With the clear understanding of the differences between East and West he said that some difference are resolved and problems clarified by a studied presentation of the state of agreement and disagreement.

But he holds Russian Government responsible because it made agreement impossible by insisting upon impossible conditions.

In the opinion of a New York Times writer, Mr. Marshall's report "breathes that diplomatic optimism which is necessary to continue the negotiations and avert a final break." In this optimism he is supported by Generalissimo Stalin, who, though taking a rather complacent view of the Moscow failure and the delay of peace, nevertheless assured Mr. Marshall, that, given patience, compromises are still possible. And "Mr. Marshall is quite right in suggesting the expectation that, if Mr. Stalin's statement is correct, it should foreshadow a greater spirit of co-operation on the part of Russia in the future. There is room for such a hope and we must hope fully and, Mr. Stalin honestly desires a world in which all nations can prosper in safety and peace."

Marshall's attitude is of no further compromise on great principles to achieve agreement for agreement's sake, and he refuses to dispose of problems by general talk or vague formulas — by what Lincoln called "pernicious abstractions and asks for concrete solutions and rules out convenient "misinterpretations."

While there is natural disappointment because of the failure to reach agreement on the treaty with Germany, Rt. Hon. Ernest Bevin has expressed the hope that unity will be at length achieved between the Powers. London Free Press says "it takes time for nations with such divergent views and systems and for a country like Russia which is sitting in on international conferences for the first time to come to an agreement. There are suspicions and fears that have to be broken down. Russia is oriental in her viewpoint and in her approach to diplomacy."

About 'Atlantic Records'

A despatch from Shannon, Eire, says that the transatlantic commercial flying record, 24 hours in British hands, has returned to the United States, a Pan-American Constellation clipper having left Gander, Newfoundland, at 1.25 a.m. and arrived at Shannon five hours and 23 minutes later.

What, we wonder, is the value of this speed? It seems to us that if we left Gander, Newfoundland, at 1.25 in the morning it wouldn't matter to us in the least whether we got to Shannon's airport at 6.48 or at 6 o'clock, or at 7 o'clock for that matter. Actually, we'd much sooner get there an hour later, especially if another plane were not waiting for us and we had to go over to Adare to the Dunraven Arms, in which event we would probably find that the Irish weren't up yet and breakfast wasn't ready.

Only a few years ago people crossed the Atlantic in five or six days, thought that wonderful. Now they are breaking their necks to see if they can't cross in five or six hours. Can anybody possibly be in that hurry?

Science is a great thing. The pity of it, it seems sometimes, is that it should waste so much of its effort on things that don't much matter — this especially when there are so many unsolved things that matter a lot.—Ottawa Journal.

Not Losing Ground

You hear it said the churches are "losing ground," and then something pops up every now and then to rock the theory. For instance, the mortgage-burning ceremony in which parishioners of the Church of St. Andrew (Anglican) participated. The $4,000 mortgage on the rectory was taken out in October, 1942. Since that time, according to Rev. John D. Gilmour, the rector, the church debt has also been reduced by some $3,000, a $2,000 organ has been installed, a war memorial has been established and new pews have been purchased. Not much ground-losing there! says R. M. Harrison in Windsor Star.

African Giant

On the border of Swaziland, territory of the husky cattle ranchers, the King and Queen met up — in the most literal sense — with South Africa's bearded giant, Cornelius Mostert, says London Daily Mail.

The King had caught sight of him in the crowd at the railway station, standing head and shoulders above all. Seeking him out, the King looked him up and down slowly with increasing amazement and asked how tall he was.

"Six feet nine inches," the King was told and he replied there and then that he didn't believe it, called for a tape measure, backed him against the side of the Royal train and declared him to be seven feet three inches high.

Some Red Losses in Europe

There's evidence that the Communists are losing ground throughout Scandinavia at least, says Newsweek Magazine. In recent elections to the Danish upper house, the Communists polled 18% less votes than in balloting last year. The Norwegian Communist daily in Oslo is now down to a 40,000 circulation, less than half of what it was a year ago. In Sweden, the unpopularity of the import ban and rationing imposed by the Social Democrats is reacting against the Reds, who've hardly endorsed any anti-business measures. And even in Finland the Liberal and Conservative parties are harassing the Moscow-dominated government to the extent that a Cabinet crisis is expected.

Romance of Antarctica

Hundreds of people have applied to join the proposed Australian expedition to the Antarctic this year. It was revealed last week that the ship, Wyatt Earp, was about to be refitted and that the expedition would probably leave for Antarctica in December.

MIRTH AND WOE

When I tell a tale of woe,
Those who hear it always say:
"Very sad!" or, "It's too bad!"
And they hurry on their way.

When I tell some foolish jest,
Fashioned laughter to bestow,
Busy men will ask me then
If another one I know.

Trouble frightens friends away;
Whimper and they disappear.
Few will spare much time to care.
All have time a jest to hear.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Is any breed of dogs naturally bailless?

No trace of a tail occurs in the typical Schipperke when born.

This breed originated several centuries ago in what is now Belgium and is said to be the Flemish anian, which it resembles except that its shorter hair.

"Schipperke" (pronounced "SKIPP-er-kee") is a Dutch dialect diminutive of "schipper" and literally means "little skipper," or "little boatman." The dog is supposed to have been so named because it was widely used in the Netherlands as a guard or watch-dog on canal boats.

It has a foxlike head, triangular, erect ears, broad chest, a short, thickset body, straight back and forelegs, and a black, abundant and slightly harsh coat of hair.

Most short-tailed dogs, such as the spaniels and terriers, come into the world with bobby tails an inch or two long, are made so by docking their tails when they are puppies.

Many of the English sheep dogs are referred to as "bobtailed," and occasionally one is born without a tail, but as a rule they are born with tails and the tails are cropped so short that the animals have the appearance of never having had tails at all.

There is a common belief that the tails of Newfoundland dogs are bitten off. The usual method of bobtailing dogs supposed to be completely painless — is to tie a string tight around the tails of the puppies when they are only a few days old.

WHEN THE DOCTORS DISAGREE

A reader was in Alaska trapping for four years, and he often had insufficient clothing during the entire four years he never had even the slightest c-r-r-l. That's what the man says, and I can prove it.

The reader sent a clipping from a newspaper telling of a University of California medical professor who spoke at a medical continuation course at University of Minnesota on that baffling question, the "common cold." Of course the Professor didn't define "the common cold"—incidentally my offer of a free volume set of Hyman's "An Integrated Practice of Medicine" and a $5 twenty-five word letter for the best "Little Lessons in the Ways of Health" for the definition of the Doctor of Medicine, of the common cold, is still open—but right or wrong, if it seems to merit printing here, has brought only one letter. Perhaps the topic has reached my desk, though I hope there may be more. I have not compiled up since I made the offer. When the doctors disagree there is no entity, condition, illness or ailment that they can't define differently or describe or even diagnose frankly in the early stage of the condition or illness when most respiratory infections are most amenable.

Now this University of California professor who went to the University of Minnesota to teach doctors there what to do when doctors there don't know, I am sure "the great majority of colds are not the result of bacteria or viral infection," and as he spoke he himself "had a slight cold" according to the newspaper reporter. But the doctor-professor (Mrs. Dr. Brady, W.) "cold" from any one and that's the way most of us think people get to excuse or justify themselves for spreading infection — laymen may sometimes be excused too ignorant to know better but when a doctor commits the error, well, heaven help us all.

The Doctor-Professor who submitted the only definition of "the common cold" I have received so far, left out the whole assertion that "the common cold is caused by filterable viruses proven by bacteria free filtrates obtained from nasal washings of individuals with colds."

So there you have it, though the University of California professor who solemnly assured the University of Minnesota doctors that you get a cold from wet feet in the garden (pronounced kree), few clothes in the fall, did not enter the controversy. Definition of the nature of whatever he calls "the common cold" is so far from the view the lone contestant expresses that we can only infer that they must be talking about two different diseases.

The Nevada reader who did not have the faintest suggestion that "the common cold" (pronounced kree), new readers, a term coined from the initial letters of the phrase

HOUSING LACK

"booked up solid" from April 15 to May 15. Many instances could be cited of persons who they had bought or arranged several months ago to rent.

Trenton, Napanee, St. Catharines and St. Thomas expected little trouble in districts where civic citizens exchanged accommodation. Even in Toronto and Hamilton cities continued acute.

At Sudbury real estate men cited as the lack of housing a principal factor resulting in the lack of May Day activities. Rent controls are operative from May for a 12 month period. Under terms of rental controls, leases ceased to have a meaning, thus spreading evictions over the period of the year, making months of the year.

Prince Edward County: Agricultural representative C. H. Earle says at Charlottetown situation might be as bad as ever. Only one 100 families accommodated in buildings at airport.

Halifax: No moving slated for May 1 because, Major J. E. Alexander says, "there's no place for them to move;" adds situation "still grim but improved slightly."

Montreal: On basis of hydro transfer applications there will be 6,000 to 7,000 moving May 1, about 10 per cent lower than last year and comparing with 12,000 in 1945 and 65 or so in record year of 1941; rental control affected 3,000 numbers who would like to move but cannot meet rent in into thoroughfare; one official says overcrowding hasn't decreased and in last 13 months 2,000 have been averaging two a week.

Ottawa: No figures available on number moving May 1 but carriage companies say it will be busiest on record; city officials think most movers are either people who worked an exchange with citizens in other cities or people moving out of cramped quarters to summer cottages.

Winnipeg: Few movings scheduled for May 1 because of overcrowded conditions; 18 evictions ordered immediately and about 200 going through will become effective May 15; many city families in emergency shelters.

A Spring Study in Greens

It has often been said that we eat with our eyes before we eat with our mouths. This is another way of stressing the appearance of the food served. Salads take the lead as the colorful and decorative part of the meal. They are providing an attractive means of serving a essential part of vegetables. The combination of ingredients should be well chosen, attractively arranged and served with the dressing which will best bring out the flavors in the salad.

The most appealing salads are striking in their simplicity. The ingredients should be showing to their best advantage. Large enough to retain their identity, a salad to say salad is formed by one of the basic salad greens, of which lettuce is most commonly use. At this particular season leaf lettuce and water cress are family favorites. The lettuce should be cup-like in shape to hold the salad. When leaf lettuce is used, a leaf may be split half way up the centre from the stem and one side lapped over the other to form a cup. Then the salad mixture is placed on crossed ends to hold the shape.

Complements Menu.

The salad should complement the menu. If the salad is to be served with the main course, it should be light rather than substantial and small in size. When served as the main course, the salad should be of the heavier type using meat or cheese as one of the ingredients. Fruit and frozen salads make most refreshing deserts.

The tossed spring salad delights the eye and tempts the appetite with its combination of colors and flavors. It may consist of head or leaf lettuce, water cress, spring onions, radishes, cucumber and tender spinach leaves or even young leaves of dandelions.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture suggest the following pointers as "musts" for the perfect salad.

The salad greens should be fresh, crisp and well chilled.

Have all ingredients thoroughly before combining.

Combine dressing and salad just before serving.

Hello Folks!

"An important part of my diet ever since my first bottle has been Crown Brand Corn Syrup. Now, that may be all right for a little character like myself, but let me tell you, these grown-ups sure are lucky what with Mom serving them Crown Brand Corn Syrup with so many of their dishes. And she uses it in her baking, too, as a sweetener. I can hardly wait until I'm old enough to have some hot waffles or pancakes smothered with delicious Crown Brand. If it's as good as it is in my cereal—mmmmm!"

For years doctors have recommended the use of Crown Brand Corn Syrup as a satisfactory carbohydrate acting as a milk modifier for bottle-fed infants.

If you want to look your youngest, slimmest, and lovelies in the new fashions . . . you must watch your diet. And, in any safe diet to gain and keep a lovely figure, you should eat certain special foods because of their "protective" qualities.

That is why Kellogg's All-Bran is included in the new scientific weight-control menus. All-Bran supplies only from the outer layers of the wheat grain. This is the vital part so rich in iron and certain other "protective" food elements your body must have if you want to keep your vitality . . . your very joy in life.

You will be glad to know, too, that All-Bran is guaranteed, on a double-your-money-back basis, to keep you regular naturally. And that regularity is always advisable, diet or no diet. Ask your grocer for a package of Kellogg's All-Bran today.

Civilian Traffic Over Alaska Highway

LORNE BRUCE
(Press Staff Writer)
Ottawa, May 1 (CP)—Don-ald Gregory would like to cover the Alaska highway on his three-horse.

Gregory's couple, each 64 years, has asked about the of motoring via the road to see their son

Mr. Byron, who wants head to Alaska, may be permit providing he with regulations traffic over the road. The United States during the a supply route to

Mr. Gregory has been re-told to make the said he wanted to make a trip "just for some-He," No tourists are al-because of the limited ac-commodation along the highway which runs through sparsely set-tled frontier mountain and bush country to Fairbanks.

"Byron could manage it, on horseback," said one official fam-iliar with conditions.

The Chicago man, eligible to travel over the road because he has "actual business"—home-steading as his objective, must show some proof of his ability to make such a trip before a permit would be issued.

Civilian traffic now goes over the road at an average daily rate of seven vehicles and 18 persons. In 23 days only two vehi-cles returned to Edmonton after starting out on the 2,000-mile haul to Alaska.

Each applicant must make a personal appearance at Edmonton before a constable of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who has authority to issue a permit. Each must be able to supply his own transportation, gas, oil and spare parts, and to understand necessary vehicle repairs.

Rebel Conservatives File Back And Forth When They Oppose Bill

London, May 1. (Reuters) — Spontaneously and without ad-vance notice, decorum-conscious members of the House of Com-mons went on a spree.

With impish song, exits and entrances that started late last night and continued until early today, the parliamentarians per-formed impishly before a packed gallery.

The unexpected demonstrations came after debate ended on the controversial government bill to nationalize inland transport. One hundred and seventy-three Conservative assemblymen were "dumped" by the government, leaving 94 Labor amendments to be put to a final vote with no discussion allowed.

The gallery thought that the Conservatives, who had opposed the bill all the way on the grounds that it went too far in its control of former strongholds of private enterprise, would start a lively show. Unexpectedly, it was not an all-Conservative holdout but minor rebellion of Conservative back benchers, stir-red up by the wealthy author and playwright, Sir Alan Herbert, Independent member for the Ox-ford University.

There was a little preliminary horseplay with loud cheers for Arthur Greenwood, acting leader of the House, who entered in evening dress, and when one Conservative tried on another's top-hat, which did not fit.

But the fun really started when Conservative Clifton Brown rose and began formally to put the re-maining amendments to a vote. They went through without chal-lenge until Sir Alan opposed with a shouted "No".

Vote on Every Amendment

At first he had no supporters, so no counting of votes was taken. Then about 24 of the opposition chimed in, necessitating a vote on "particular" amendments.

Voting, on a "division", is not taken by a show of hands or by roll call, but by members leaving their seats and going into either "aye" or "no" lobby to be counted.

Three members, up until 2 a.m. Wednesday debating the bill, filed wearily back and fifth 18 times.

To keep up their spirits in the repeated processions, members sang "Ilkla Moor," as well as a Welsh Hymn, "The Red Flag", and "Auld Lang Syne".

Roland Jennings, Conservative member, asked: "Is there no way of stopping this farcical proceed-ure?"

The speaker ruled negatively.

Behind the scenes, strenuous and sometimes indignant efforts were made to persuade Conserva-tive rebels to quit. By midnight, all leading opposition members had pointedly left the chamber to show their strong disapproval of their colleagues.

Lumber Magnate Makes Charge Against Govt.

London, Ont., May 1 —(CP)— The charge that "for the past 50 years the forests of Ontario have been political footballs" and that all accessible timber stands with slight exceptions now are in the hands of monopolies was made last night by E. E. Johnston, wealthy Fort William lumber and shipping magnate.

He spoke at a dinner held fol-lowing delivery here of a ship-ment of 300,000 feet of seasoned lumber which is being allocated to completion of homes for veter-ans as first shipment of an ex-pected 12,000,000 feet of lumber for Western Ontario this year. Johnston, with a committee of London men, was instrumental in arranging the shipment.

The lumberman said the mon-opolies were American pulp and paper interests. "And he blamed them for the shortage of building lumber in Ontario.

Hon. W. G. Webster, member of the Ontario cabinet and Pro-gressive Conservative member of the legislature for London, one of those at the dinner, said he would bring Mr. Johnston's charges to the attention of the Ontario gov-ernment.

Premier Drew Urges Citizens To Take Part

Toronto, May 1 —(CP)— Pre-mier Drew of Ontario in an ad-dress over an Ontario network of the CBC last night urged all citizens of the province to con-tribute food and clothing for the flood victims in England.

The campaign for relief of British flood victims, to gather cash as well as food and clothing, opens today under Ontario gov-ernment auspices and runs till May 18. Local committees have been established under chair-manship of mayors and reeves throughout Ontario.

"So that the collections of clothing and food may be cap-tured out quickly and effectively," said the Premier, "the Automo-tive Transport Association of On-tario has offered to provide the trucks owned by their members for transportation of materials without cost."

...orkers' Increased Productivity
...eps Down Nickel's Net Cost
...espite Higher Rate Paid to Labor

...ronto May 1 (CP)—Should ...umption of nickel continue ...creases at the rate set in the ...ng, there is a likelihood ...t the supply will not be ...ded to meet any sizeable ...demands, Robert C. Stanley ...sident of the International ...el Company of Canada, said ...ress conference here Wed-

...nesday. There are no known de...posits of appreciable size not al...ready exploited, he said, although exploration activities are ...under way in many parts of the world.

Markets for the Company's products have changed geographically with Germany, Japan and Russia no longer customers. Russia, he said, was probably producing nickel at the Petsamo mine in Finland but would likely need further supplies in the future.

The federal budget introduced yesterday will have no effect on International Nickel, the president said, since the company had not been paying taxes on excess profits. The recently announced provincial mining tax, however, added $2,000,000 a year to the company's costs.

Mr. Stanley said that production of the company's nickel-using mill employees had increased 100 per cent since 1937 and that despite the higher rates paid for labor the net cost to the company had not gone up due to the increased productivity.

Referring to the suspension of the 5 per cent import duty on copper in the United States, Mr. Stanley said the move would not be of much assistance to his company since the suspension will last only two years and would make it difficult to enter into any contractual relations with importers for that short period. He said he felt certain the tax would be re-established at the end of the two-year period.

DOLLAR LACK DISLOCATING U.K. TRADE

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, —(CP)—The United Kingdom will buy less from Canada and the United States in 1948 unless Canada and the United States buy more from her.

Lack of dollars is the most serious feature of this country's post-war trading accounts. Because of shortages of food and raw materials in other areas, 43 per cent of British imports come from the western hemisphere while only 14 per cent of the British exports go there.

Britain must buy in dollar countries or go without; but as world conditions improve, says Prime Minister Attlee's economic White Paper, British imports will be fixed "entirely by what we can afford."

Once the American and Canadian loans are used up, probably in early 1948, the only major source of dollars will be from current exports. That, means reduced British business for North America.

"We must try to get back to purchases in soft currency or sterling markets as soon as ever the goods are available," says Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the board of trade, "and we must send the maximum possible amount of our exports to the hard-currency countries."

The February industrial stoppage was a serious setback for the export program. At the end of 1946 shipments had reached about 115 per cent of 1938 volume—compared with the so-called "prosperity" level of 175 per cent. Now three is little hope that any further increase can be marked up in the first half of this year.

Difficult Goal

To reach the new goal of 140 per cent by Dec. 31 will be "extremely difficult," said Attlee's White Paper. Most impartial observers consider this an understatement. In view of continuing coal and power shortages, lack of some raw materials, and the fact that almost all the expansion must be from exports of manufactured goods at a time when there are signs the post-war "sellers' market" is beginning to break.

"To get a sharp increase in sales to the hard-currency area will be even harder. There can be no sudden change in destination of exports. The United Kingdom has supply responsibilities in many Empire countries and cannot afford to discard good, long-term markets for temporary markets in dollar countries.

Sir Stafford indicated in the House of Commons that there will be no mass of new controls to force exporters into hard-currency areas. Instead, detailed discussions are being held with exporters to see what lines can best be diverted.

Whatever is done, there will be some reduction in the amount of production available for the home market. About 25 per cent of all manufactured goods with have to go abroad. Attlee warned:

"Failure to build up our export trade in the next two or three years so that we can afford to buy enough imports would mean continued food rationing, much less smoking and private motoring, widespread unemployment for lack of raw materials and inability to re-equip industry with the most modern machinery."

Won't Seek More Aid

Government leaders have emphasized the United Kingdom does not plan to seek more financial help from other countries; yet even this year, with the help of Canadian and American credits, there can be no great increase in rations or other consumer supplies.

The 1947 import program sets purchases abroad at 80 to 85 per cent of 1938 volume compared with 70 per cent last year. It will provide a little more variety of food, a little increase in consumer goods made from imported materials, and continuation of the "taken" imports of manufactured goods from Canada and elsewhere.

The plan for imports and exports in 1947 ends with a deficit of £350,000,000 to be met by borrowing abroad—more than one-third of the Canadian and American credits still available at Jan. 1.

But this is not the whole picture. Trading surpluses in the Eastern Hemisphere cannot be freely converted into dollars and some are drained off in repayment of debts incurred by the United Kingdom during the war. The reduction of dollar credits will certainly be much greater than £350,000,000.

In all the Socialist government's planning, the lack of dollars is a central difficulty. And Sir Stafford says the shortage will "be with us permanently, anyway for the next 50 years."

H. Crawford, who is retiring from his Marmora practice and is moving to Colborne.

A. V. Yates, general manager of the company, who presided, spoke fittingly of Dr. Crawford's long association with the district, and said "we are here to say 'so long and not goodbye'". He then made the announcement on behalf of the company.

"As a tribute to Dr. A. H. The residence of H. R. Pearce was mentioned in this connection.

William Forestell, chairman of the Employees' Committee, then stepped forward to make the presentation to Dr. Crawford of a gold watch suitably inscribed and a brooch as a gift for Mrs. Crawford. In his reply Dr. Crawford expressed his deepest thanks for the gifts and said he was pleased in particular that his efforts to get a hospital for Marmora had received this gracious consideration at the hands of the Company

Doubling a slam you think you can defeat is one thing. Being sure of defeating it is quite another. Many a small slam you expect to murder turns out to be a knock for all the tricks.

♣ K J 10 6

WEST

West thought he could take one or more tricks with the trump he had. Also one or two heart tricks. So, he doubled. And, with entire confidence in what his partner had shown, redoubled.

The opening lead from west was the heart king. South ruffed it after studying what he could do with the hand flopped in dummy. And he was pleased with what he saw.

The double by west indicated where most of the danger must lie—but not all. Surely west would not double on heart tops alone. So, it may be assumed—that west held the unseen trumps. Or most of them.

So, declarer led trump ace for the first round of that suit. When west showed put on this first trump trick, the future plan was plain. It needed only a dependable timing.

A small trump lead was finessed through west. Dummy won this trick with the club 10s when west played small. A heart was led from dummy and ruffed in south with a club.

Another trump through west was won with dummy jack. Dummy's club king of trump was led and the west queen was picked up. One of the south spades was ruffed on this trick.

Taking spade ace and diamond king while in dummy, south got to his own hand with a diamond. All the remaining south spadders were good. So was the spade king for a clean sweep of 13 tricks.

West may deserve some sympathy for not taking a trick with such a hand. But not for doubling. He had too much to lose for the little he hoped to gain! Some risks are not worth it.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ever since they began taking celluloid out of collars and cutting it in 35mm widths for movies the customers have been paying their nickels, showing off their hats, eating peanuts and stepping on the feet of the fellow in the aisle seats.

They have been sitting out front, having their ration of pastries, their drinks and their one and two-hour trips from the munchane. Stenographers have become princesses and have sneered at their boy friends because the poor Joes can't flesh a profile like Victor Mature.

It is only recently that . sharp operating movie making independents have seen the possibility of putting the customers in a film so they could see themselves as others see them. And does that little bit of chicanery pay off at the box office!

With the co-operation of local newspapers, the companies, mainly if the United States, have swept into a city, taken pictures of the local scene including all the people who pay their nickels, and then have held a local premiere. The customers have flocked by the scores to see their own images. They can't get enough of it.

Currently, in Toronto, another movie company with an eye to where its bread is buttered, is making an epic. There is a camera crew poking its lenses behind the scenes in the newspaper industry. The camera men are sitting with the reporters when they cover a story, taking record for posterity the sound an editor makes when the new boy splits an infinitive. They take shots of the press room gangs and of the make-up boys.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 1 — (CP) — International bowling scene: Several American business men, seriously thinking of introducing pro baseball in Australia, have gone so far as to plan exhibition games in Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide and Brisbane late this year . . . Charley Root, former Chicago Cub hurler, is expected to visit Australia to lay the groundwork for an Australian pro league . . . the necessary backing is there in Sydney. However, a few of the potential investors first want to see a big league club tour the downunder country before plunging . . . the big thing is whether Aussie rugby and cricket fans can stand baseball . . . and the big leagues would be the box office guinea pigs . . . another plan is afoot calling for an Australian rugby team to give exhibitions in Canada and the United States early next year and then tour the United Kingdom.

Saddle Sheets

A jockey, ounce for ounce, probably is the most expensively outfitted — at his own expense — in the sports world . . . when he has a leg up in the post parade his outfit cost him about $200 . . . Biggest item is the saddle at $130 . . . the average jockey spends about $1,000 to keep himself equipped each year . . . the only thing he doesn't buy is the shiny one on his back, the silk blouse and cap which the owner supplies . . . the Thoroughbred Racing Association reports that during the month of May $1,242,500 will be put up by 19 United States tracks in 63 stake races . . . the biggest one —the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes — will account for almost a quarter of that total, each having a value of $100,000.

Question of the Year

Can big Johnny Mize keep up his home run-hitting pace—seven in 10 games — and better Babe Ruth's all-time mark of 60 in a season? . . . Although no one expects him to, Jawn would finish the season with 107 round-trippers to his credit at the pace he's going.

AT THE BELLE — Top-featured in a pivotal role in "Nocturne," Virginia Huston portrays the heroine's sister. George Raft and Lynn Bari co-star in RKO Radio's absorbing melodrama. Leon Errol in his newest comedy, "Follow That Blonde," is an added attraction.

HAMLIN SCORES 73RD VICTORY IN LEAFS' UNIFORM

"Hot Potato" Luke Hamlin, in the sunset of a brilliant career that began in 1928, is off to a good start in the young 1947 International League season.

The veteran righthander of Toronto Maple Leafs has turned in three straight winning victories and is the only Leaf who has worked a complete game so far.

Hamlin tied a Toronto record yesterday when he hurled the Leafs to a 4-1 win over Baltimore Orioles in the Leafs' home opener before 14,198 fans.

The victory was Hamlin's 73rd in a Toronto uniform and tied him with Jess Doyle for the most triumphs ever recorded by a Toronto hurler. Doyle won 73 for the Leafs from 1923-29.

Ed Levy was the big gun in the Toronto attack, banging home three runs, two of which rode home on his first homer.

Another banner crowd, 15,012, watched Buffalo Bisons stage their home opener but the visiting Jersey City Giants spoiled the day for the rooters by scoring five runs in each of the last two frames to down Buffalo 12-7. The win moved the Giants into a first place tie with Syracuse.

The pennant winning Montreal Royals hope they will be able to play their home opener tomorrow after two postponements because snow and wet grounds.

No matter what they may say about it all, the reporters, yes, and even the editors, are pretty excited about "their movie." Wall they won't have to wait long now until they can see themselves up where Bob Hope belongs.

Come to think of it, I wonder how I'll look? Don't answer that!

Miserable Showing of Hal Newhouse and Howie Pollett, Top Southpaws, Amazes Fans

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

One of the enigmas of the young baseball season has been the poor pitching form displayed by Hal Newhouser and Howie Pollett, the two southpaw stars of the major league.

Newhouser, Detroit's star hurler so highly rated as the best left-hander in the American League since Bob Grove, has lost his last three starts after opening the season for the Tigers with an auspicious shutout against St. Louis Browns.

Pollett, the stylish St. Louis Cardinals' twirler who led National League pitchers in games won and earned runs last year, has fared even worse. In each of his three starts, Pollett has been belted out of the box and charged with the defeat.

Yesterday was the third straight time that Newhouser failed to go the route as Boston Red Sox clubbed him off in the ninth inning to whip the Tigers 7-1. Mel Parnell, rookie southpaw, ended the Red Sox four-game losing streak by holding the Bengals to four hits for his first major league victory. Sam Mele and Ted Williams were the biggest offenders against Newhouser, with three hits apiece.

The case of the skidding Cards took on a serious aspect following their seventh successive defeat, a 4-3 loss to New York Giants.

The Pirates had three big innings, a four-run fifth and three-run eighth and ninth innings to swamp the Phils 14-4 in Philadelphia. Catcher Clyde Kluttz hammered home four runs with a single, triple and home run.

New York Yankees western invasion started in reverse as the Browns licked Chicago White Sox 3-2 in St. Louis. Allie Reynolds, who had shot out the opponents in his first two starts, yielded three home runs, one to Catcher Joe Ressi. Keath in the first inning with the bases loaded.

Chicago White Sox climbed into first place in the American League past the Yankees by defeating Washington Senators 5-2 as Johnny Rigney wrecked up his second win.

Hill and Underwood Team From Corby's Wins Bowling Title

The Hill and Underwood and Royal Palace teams of the Corby's Bowling League, winners of last-sections of the seasonal schedule, staged a thrilling finals battle at the Recreation bowling Alleys Tuesday night with the "Hill and Underwood" team emerging winners and league champions for the season just concluded.

Archie Hill with 660 and Bill Pennington with 610 were the high-pinners for the winners while Mark Storms with 642 and M. Ferraro led the losers.

Hills and Clarke were runners.

W. Pennyleglon 610; K. Weeks 597; J. Calcutt 456; W. Peoples 429; C. Mathews 432; A Hill 660, Royal Palace

M. Ferraro 554; A. Burley 399; J. Adams 507; J. Chapman 486; M. Storms 632; R. Plumpton 518.

The league comprises six teams from the different departments of Corby's and Tuesday night was the culmination of a very successful season at the Recreation Alleys.

TUDOR MINSTREL FAVORED TO WIN ENGLISH DERBY

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London May 1 (CP)—Can anything stop the Tudor Minstrel in the Derby?

This the question turf followers are asked themselves today following the smashing eight-length victory of the beautifully-bred colt in the Newmarket 2,000 Guineas yesterday. The bookies had the pat answer. They hastened to cut the odds against Minstrel from 15-2 to 5-4.

Even such a prohibitive price failed to keep eager punters out of the ring and considerable money is laid on Whisky Magnate John A. Dewar's 1946 juvenile champion to come through at Epsom, June 7.

Tudor Minstrel's supporters are positive the grandson of two Derby winners and the son of Owen Tudor, the 1941 winner, would be harder to beat over the tougher 12-furlong Derby route.

They point to his easy triumph in the shorter one-mile 2,000 guineas when he won going away from Lambert Simnel, Gordon Richards said after dismounting from his 11th classic-winning mount: "He never had to exert a ride in my life."

Only a year ago Richards predicted Minstrel "would never be beaten" and nothing yet has happened to shake his confidence in the colt.

Questions Unanswered

But three questions remained unanswered which will throw important light on the Derby book, Harry Peacock Bairds' Another is what happened to Petition And the most vital, can Minstrel stay 1-2 miles?

Fred Darling, Tudor Minstrel's trainer, is reticent and is saying the King's Blue Train is just as good a horse as Minstrel on this form but does not excel in the turf world. But the public have little form to go on here since Blue Train raced only once as a two-year-old winning handily at Ascot. They are by farm more when the royal contender takes his first 1947 outing at Sandown. May 3 against a number of less fancied runners.

A victory for the King at Epsom would be immensely popular as the royal colors have not been carried to victory in the Derby since King Edward VII's Minoru won in 1909.

Petition, who was touted as the only horse good enough to give Minstrel a run for the guineas, finished fifth behind Tudor Minstrel at the starting barrier and when the race finally got under way failed to stay beyond the first furlongs to the kilting pace set by Minstrel. Petition finished seventh in the strungout field of 15.

Most observes think that Sir Alfred Butt's Speedster may receoup much of his prestige in the Derby.

BATTING & PITCHING STARS

Batting, Clyde Kluttz, Pirates—Slammed a home run, triple and single, drove in four runs and scored three to lead Pittsburgh to an 11-4 win over Philadelphia.

Pitching, Doyle Lade, Cubs—Won a hurling duel against Ralph Ghandi and the Dodgers with a four-hit 3-1 victory.

WILL BUILD RINK

Collingwood, April 30— (CP)—The Grand Opera House, survivor of two major fires in the last 60 years, is being torn down to make way for the town's new $150,000 artificial ice arena. On its stage four prime ministers have spoken and many old-time vaudeville stars performed.

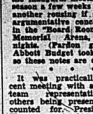
CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The Belleville Baseball Association established another successful groundwork laid at the fraternal meeting of the season a few weeks ago, with another meeting of the executive argumentative conclave held in the "Board Room" of the Memorial Rink on Tuesday night. (Pardon gents, the Abbott Boys took priority, so these notes are delayed.)

It was practically 100 per cent meeting with all officials, team representatives and others being present and accounted for. President Don Thomas was in the chair at the head of his new executive, and kept the meeting ball rolling along at a good pace. There was plenty of work done, with plenty of discussion denoting that the team interest was the "eye-men," but everything was done in a harmonious environment, and much good was derived therefrom.



Sifting the factual wheat from the discussional tare, the following is the meeting simmered down to this. There will be a team entered in the loop this year, namely R.C.A.F. Flyers. Jim Shoemen, Lalia, Napanee, Stirwart-Warner-Alemite, and the Sand Dunks will apply. Trenton was well represented at the meeting.

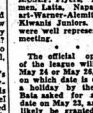
The official opening date of the league will be either May 24 or May 26, dependent on which date is declared as a holiday by the citizenry. It is asked that the opening date on May 23, and that will likely be accepted when the schedule is drawn up. Incidentally the schedule is a thirty-game affair, to end by August 1st, so as not to interfere with the Inter-Baseball Association playdowns.

Teams must loosen the official purse-strings before June 16 and contribute the annual entry fee, which was upped fifty per this year, to the loop coffers, Wall. Gerow was again unanimously elected and will administer the umpiring needs of the league this year. In the meantime names of potential umpires will be submitted to the league and acted upon by the executive.



• • •

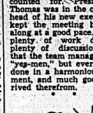
Official scorers will again be selected from the "Red Townsend College of Applied Scoring." It is understood that "Red's" school did a superlative job last year, the initial season last year, and the consensus of baseball opinion was that they were highly satisfactory. As of last year, all scoring arrangements, penetils, forms, etc., not forgetting some sort of remuneration emolument, will be supplied by the league.

• • •

There was a demand from some quarters for uniformity of dress. All teams should wear full suits, including caps and socks, and, it was stressed, shirts should be worn inside the trouser-belt line, and not flapping around outside in the latest approved Ghandi manner. Some clubs last year, it was stated ,used this form of abdominal skirt-cooling, much to the detriment of the foe occupying the batting box. Umpires will be instructed to enforce the ruling this year, the shirt-tails will be worn in private, and not exposed to the breezes, and wise cracks of the faithful.

• • •

There was also some discussion regarding the official starting time of games, and after suggestions received, it was decided that for a start, at least, the games will get under way at 6:30 p.m. Newspaper advertising of games will be the same as in 1946.



• • •

Track and field enthusiasts who are not going to heartbreak some good radio stuff anent their favorite pastime should lend an ear to the airwaves on Saturdays May 3 and 10. On those days at high noon "Sports College" weekly radio sessions will be devoted entirely to this phase of athletics. The helpful hints given at broadcasts will constitute the best and latest information available by experts. Sports College new book "How to Improve at Track" will shortly be off the presses. Write the College at Box 75, Station "O" and get one, gratis. The broadcasts will be aired over CBC.

According to Kingston reports, Frankie Eaton, the "ambidextrous hurling youngster from Averne, will be given every chance to make good with the Eagles in the Border League. Dyer's ability to handle baseball with either hand, equally with either hand, writes Mike Rodden. Manager Rodden and Manager Ben Lady who has never "seed" nuthin' like it, will be in Indianapolis. Says Ben, "Rodden mentioned Eaton to me, who could win in big-time baseball would be the one. Young Dyer is very green in his field but he has an there that ball with either arm. And I'll be having a very keen look."

Gullet garblings from grapevine gapers has it that not a few senior softball pitchers are "on the loose" in the city. Jim Hunter, tall chucking star of last year's Sacos, has yet to sign the piece of paper, and so has Marty Hallerand and others, he understands has it. Herby Henn, erstwhile playing and softball impresario-assistant, has been seen lately in new manufacturing company and he might pop up at the helm of a new team.

• • •

Frank Sodero, dynamic manager of last year's Army, Navy, Air Force Flashes, who was the league's earliest reporter, to head the new Canadian National Railways War Veterans team, may be pilot of a squad from a few miles east o' here. Big Harold Bawden, umpire-in-chief of the Belleville Softball Association last year, declares he is through as a mask and glove blokey, seeing he now likes two-sided arguments. However, it is expected that the various wrinkles will be ironed out at the next meeting of the 1947 executive slated for Wed. May 7.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JIM KEARNEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, May 1—(CP)—Hey, there, Foster Hewitt and Toronto Maple Leafs, you can start to worry anytime now. Montreal Canadiens (remember them?) were not out here in the west just to dish up a little lightning hockey for the populace while at the same time giving the boys a chance to see this end of Canada.

Heck, no, they have bigger ideas. They are given themselves a licence to steal as much as they can of the following you've built up through your Saturday night broadcasts these last 15 winters. Anyway, here is what Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara has to say.

"Les Habs are out to make a formal introduction of themselves to the prairie folks, who are some of the most avid puck followers in the country . . .

"In most western points the Toronto Maple Leafs have become the bye-word. For years radio hockey fans have been listening to those regular Saturday night broadcasts of the Leaf games. Western hockey followers haven't had a chance to hear of Canadiens the same way.

"Howie (Howard) Selke and (Dick) Irvin, who were the prime movers of this tour mainly hope feel their team will . . . spread the news of Canadiens in the western provinces."

And just in case this is cause for worry in Toronto it might help to know that Walter (Turk) Broda, one of the Maple Leaf on the tour, has to date borne the brunt of the autograph assaults.

Vancouver papers report that the expansion into Seattle of the Inter-city Lacrosse League of the lower B. C. Caninians has once again landed on the rocks.

TEAM MANAGERS GIVEN PRESENTS

Vernon B.C. . . . (CP)—Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens was presented with the Okanagan Apple Trophy last night after his team defeated a National Hockey League all-star sextet 7-4 in their first British Columbia exhibition before 5,000 fans.

The trophy, made from the trunk of an apple tree planted here 50 years ago, was a token awarded to the victorious coach. To Jack Adams, manager of the all-stars, went a painting of "Ogopogo"—famed monster said to inhabit Okanagan Lake.

"Red" Carson To Coach CNR Vets Softballers

Mac "Red" Carson, well-known softball and baseball player and was been appointed coach of the newly-formed Canadian National Railways War Veterans' softball squad, entered in the Belleville Softball Association Intermediate 'A' loop this year. "Red" stated today that such well-known hurlers as Jim Hunter, Marty Halloran among others have signed with the team.

The CNR Vets will hold their first practice on the Queen Mary School grounds tomorrow (Friday) night at 6:30. All players are requested to turn out.

Coach of Leafs On Well-Earned Rest in New York

Clarence (Hap) Day, coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs in their world championship winning season just concluded, yesterday left the Queen City for a vacation with his wife. Before he hopped the airliner for New York, he was asked whether or not he would again coach the Leafs in next winter's National Hockey League season.

He said, "the matter hasn't been discussed." Leafs' managing director Conn Smythe wasn't much help either, but he did go so far as to say, "wherever I am in hockey I hope to have Hap Day by my side."

Dan Ferris, who heads the American Amateur Athletic Union, has banned Ontario Boxing for American fighters, so there will not be any visitors from below the border for the annual "Toronto Lions Club Charity Show" here next Monday night. His ban remains despite the pleas of club members that proceeds of the show go to boys' work. There will be four Montreal guests to tangle with Ontario boys like Jackie Callura of Peterborough and Bruce Lidster of Oshawa.

Representatives of the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations and the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association met in Toronto, Wednesday and agreed on the majority of a number of proposed changes in rules and regulations governing racing in Ontario. But the major dispute between the two bodies— disagreement on the amount of minimum purses, which threatens to delay the scheduled opening of the Canadian Racing season in Toronto May 9 was not mentioned.

Toronto Beaches Fastball League, Canada's leading Softball circuit, has a rule unique in this country's sport annals. This year a team may lose all its scheduled games and still win the loop title. Four teams, three from Toronto commercial houses and one from Oshawa, comprise the circuit, and when the schedule winds up late this summer all of them will start over again to decide the league championship.

Featherstone Rovers defeated Huddersfield 3-3 yesterday in a scheduled game of the British Rugby League. Batter, with a 20-10 score, beat Keighley.

A MIGHTY SWING — Goody Rosen, Toronto product of the big leagues, made his debut in Toronto Maple Leaf livery yesterday as they opened the home season with a 4-1 triumph over Baltimore Orioles. Despite a good ovation from the near 15,000 customers, Rosen didn't succeed in the hitting department, with exactly none in three times up. He also walked once. Here, Goody cuts a fast one.

RECORD CROWD IS EXPECTED FOR THIRD GAME

Montreal May 7 (CP)—A record crowd is expected to be on hand at the Forum tonight as Montreal Royals and Calgary Stampeders tangle in the third game of the best-of-seven Allan Cup series.

At noon yesterday all choice seats were sold. Only padre boards available were for the top north end seats and standing room tickets went on sale this morning. More than 12,000 fans poured into the Arena Tuesday night as the westerners edged Royals 3-2, evening the series at a game apiece following a drastic 7-3 drubbing in Toronto Saturday night.

Stampeders who rested yesterday, instead standing pat with the team that played Tuesday taking the ice again Thursday. Coach Frank Carlin announced the only change in the lineup would be Jimmy Haggerty who returns to his centre slot between Rip Sipeile and Floyd Curry.

Commenting on the last game, Carlin said:

"We outplayed them and outshot them but we failed to outscore them, and that's what counts in a hockey game."

Gerry McNeil, regarded as one of the best senior group net custodians in the country and destined ultimately to fill the shoes of Bill Durnan of the National Hockey League Canadiens, has been the darling of Montreal crowds throughout the Allan Cup series.

Rus Deteil of the Bronces turned in a top notch performance Tuesday and his matter are confident the lanky netmind will lead them to their second successive Allan Cup.

CHAPTER 5

The building needed repairs and redecorating and April had decided to close the school and let the landlord have the work done while she was in Reno. She and Gay had planned an entire new schedule, and a new line of advertising, ready to reopen the school into a much larger institution during the summer months.

They were talking over the plans at their noon breakfast when the door bell rang. Hyacinthe went to answer it and some back to tell them excited-ly:

"Bless me soul, it's Mistah Pat Hastings, come all the way in his cah from Virginny."

April got up hurriedly: "Well, bring him in Hyacinthe." She called a welcome. "Hello, Pat! We're in the dinette."

She kissed his brown cheek and the young attorney picked her up and planted a noisy kiss on her lips.

"There, beautiful, that ought to hold you for awhile! You're gettin' prettier every day, April, I declare you are."

"I'm here too, tall, dark and handsome." Gay reminded him and he gave her a hug and kissed her with equal enthusiasm.

"You must have some breakfast," April waved him to a chair. "Hyacinthe, bacon and eggs for Mr. Hastings—and anything else you can find over there to fill a starving attorney."

"Yas mam," hyacinthe blustered, beaming. "I sho 'nough will take care dat little mattah in two shakes a lamb's whisker."

After Pat had eaten the prodigious lunch Hyacinthe had set before him and answered the many questions asked by Gay and April about all the folks at home in Salem, he asked suddenly:

"Where's Cherry? Is she hiding from me?"

Gay excused herself and left the dinette, feeling it was not her place to take part in the session to follow. Pat's strong lean face took on such a look of defeat when the door closed behind Gay that April could have wept for him.

"Job as model?" jaw hardened. "Has she still got that bug in her bonnet? I thought I'd talked her out of that."

April reached out and took Pat's hand: "I'm sorry, Pat. I know how much you love her. But you'll have to be patient. She's got to get a few things out of her system before she settles down."

Pat ran his free hand across his chin in a characteristic gesture he had when deeply worried. "There isn't much use, I guess," he said hopelessly. "The answer is Cherry just doesn't love me enough. I haven't got anything but a law degree and a small salaried job in Reno. She won't take a chance on my making good. Cherry's selfish, spoiled with what I can offer her. Love isn't enough."

April was at a loss for words that would help Pat Hastings through the next few days. Because of the depth of her own suffering she wanted so much to say the right thing.

"Cherry is a little bitter about love and marriage right now," April sighed then, "because of my divorce. It may be she made her love faith. You must give her a little time to get over the shock of seeing me go to Reno. She's young and impressionable."

"I know she was hard hit when she heard you and Bill had busted up," Pat said. "I couldn't believe it myself. It just didn't make sense."

"It doesn't to me either," April looked away a little side to hide her eyes. "So you see I know how you feel when you're afraid you'll lose Cherry."

"I can't live without her," Pat said suddenly very young and desperate.

"Oh, yes you can," April smiled crookedly, "if you have to. But I don't think you will have to live without her always. After she's had a fling at New York she'll be glad to go back to Virginia. I feel sure of it."

"You're just saying that to make me feel better," Pat looked at April closely. "You don't believe she'll marry a poor lawyer at all."

"She will if she loves you enough," April assured him. "And if she doesn't love you enough, she'd only make your lives miserable if she did marry you. It's better to find out now. Believe me, I know, darling."

April got to see her make her understand how I feel about her getting a job modeling." Pat said unhappily. "She'll get mixed up in a wild crowd of show people and men with too much money."

April stopped him with: "Oh, but you mustn't. That's the last thing you want to do if you don't want to lose Cherry. You know how she hates good advice and how stubborn she is. You better just keep out of it and let her find things out for herself. If you chase after her, she'll just run the other way. Surprise her with a little indifference. If she thinks you don't care, she'll begin to worry about whether you really do love her."

Pat looked skeptical: "Do you really think that's the best way to handle her?"

"I know it." April assured him seriously. "I think it would be very smart of you to go back home while Cherry is getting her know you've been here. If she isn't sure of you she'll come chasing after her, she'll lose a little of her conceit. She's much too sure of you now."

April shook her head hastily: "If you do you'll just quarrel. That would be a big mistake. You must just as well talk to a stone, as Cherry right now. Her mind is made up. You go back home and leave her to me. I promise I'll do everything in my power to send her back home to you."

Pat looked out the window dejectedly: "Well I guess you know best. But I just can't stand the idea of not seeing her for a little while. If you're sure she'll just get away thought I'll do as you say."

April was greatly relieved. "I'm sure I'm giving you the right advice." She smiled encouragingly. "You leave everything to me and I'm sure Cherry will come back home and marry you some of these days.

When Pat viewed good bye from his old car and drove away April's heart was heavy as lead in her breast. He was so young and fine and dependable. If Cherry searched the world over she could never find a finer husband than Pat Hastings.

He had very little money, but he was from one of the finest families in Virginia. Good, solid, working people who made their mark in life the hard way. April felt certain there was no doubt of Pat's success as an attorney. He had been a brilliant student and with his charming, likable personality and burning ambition nothing could stop him.

No doubt he would end up in politics, a most of his ancestors before him had done. His father had been a state senator who was too honest to make money. However he had managed to raise and educate ten fine, wholesome children, and April was not surprised that he had very little money left to hand down to them.

April cautioned Hyacinthe and Gay not to say anything to Cherry about Pat's visit to New York, and Gay agreed it was the most sensible course to take. Shortly after Pat had left, Cherry came in by invitation of Mr. Affirmative and Gay.

"I'm sooo glad that April was going back to work the next morning. She won't have to worry quite so much as she was kept busy teaching piano and singing."

When Curt De Witt telephoned, he was disappointed when April told him she couldn't possibly go yachting and dancing that night which was three nights later.

"I'll try to make that date without seeing you," he said in a voice that sounded as if he thought he might mean it. "But I'll be thinking of you every minute."

With the re-opening of the Hillyer-Lorraine School of Music and Dancing the next day, April made a gallant effort to put all her worries aside and plunge into the business of making a secure home for her child. It frightened her to think that the responsibility of bringing up and educating Kenny was now all hers.

Gay and April had planned a summer campaign with special rates which they hoped would bring in new pupils. Two of Gay's former professional dancing friends, Tanya and Tony Haven, had agreed to come in on a commission basis to teach ball room dancing. They had been famous as a team, and were married and living in Douglaston on the month they had saved when vaudeville was alive. They had joined the school because they enjoyed working, rather than t nthe hope of making a lot of money.

Gay was to teach everything but ball room dancing with Jack Hart, also a professional dancer, as her assistant. Madame Clara Gail was to assist April with the piano and singing pupils. She was a middle aged woman who had been well known as a teacher on Long Island for years.

"Syntona Surely Surprised Me" Says This Grateful Lady

"Those Awful Attacks of Indigestion are Gone. I am Free of Pains in My Back and Muscles, My Nerves are Calmed, and I Sleep Soundly Once More."

MRS. LOUISE LEIGH

All over Ontario people are talking like that about SYNTONA that is bringing relief from suffering and distress to thousands of grateful men and women. For example, Mrs. Louise Leigh, 136 Elmwood Ave., London, made the following statement:

"For more than ten years I suffered with a very intense indigestion. Almost every morning I ever heard of, what I did not have to eat. I was afraid to eat it and I just lived on my stomach and my nerves. I had no appetite and only my throat. Gas would come up and choke me and I would get sleepy and had I could hardly drag a full breath. I had pains in my back and around my heart. Dizziness in my head and spots before my eyes. I was very nervous and could not sleep. I was in a terrible condition. I was getting worse all the time. I was very thin and had no appetite. I was afraid to eat anything. I had tried many medicines but they did not help me. I was told about Syntona and decided to try it. I am glad I did. I am now free of all that gas and indigestion. The pains have gone from my back and muscles, my nerves are calmed and I sleep soundly once more. It is years since I felt so well as now."

Let this pure Herbal Tonic help you to Health and Happiness. Many local men and women. It is pleasant to take and quick to act. Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

Telephone Cable Hacked, 300 Circuits Cut

Detroit, May 1 — (AP) — The Michigan Bell Telephone Company reported early today that a cable between two Michigan cities — Wayland and Moline — had been hacked, cutting off service on 300 circuits.

Long distance telephone service was most seriously affected by the cutting Thursday, company spokesman said, but the cable owned jointly by Michigan Bell and the long lines division of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company also carried some radio and telegraph circuits.

Associated Press service to newspapers in at least 20 Michigan cities was disrupted by the damage to the cable, described by the Michigan Bell spokesman as "sabotage." The line was broken at 3:30 a.m.

Telephone Cable Hacked, 300 Circuits Cut

Detroit, May 1 — (AP) — The Michigan Bell Telephone Company reported early today that a cable between two Michigan cities — Wayland and Moline — had been hacked, cutting off service on 300 circuits.

Long distance telephone service was most seriously affected by the cutting Thursday, company spokesman said, but the cable owned jointly by Michigan Bell and the long lines division of the American Telegraph and Telephone Company also carried some radio and telegraph circuits.

Associated Press service to newspapers in at least 20 Michigan cities was disrupted by the damage to the cable, described by the Michigan Bell spokesman as "sabotage." The line was broken at 3:30 a.m.

Fisheries Minister Bridges announced that a fisheries products board will be established to ensure fair prices for Canadian producers as soon as a chairman can be obtained.

Second reading was given to a bill to continue certain import and export controls now functioning under emergency powers legislation.

Back in the Commons, Mr. Justice Laurent said the King's estate titles made no distinctions between Commonwealth countries which had gained self-status and those which still were under British dominion. While the change might not be important to Commonwealth citizens, the situation might be ambiguous to others. In his opinion, a change would be inevitable.

Not Vassals Claim

Mr. Marquis, in moving the resolution, said the change would give Canada "its real significance" in the King's title.

"Canadians," he added, "are not vassals of other countries, but subjects of His Majesty George the Sixth, who, being a constitutional monarch, acts, as far as Canada is concerned, as King of Canada and then only upon the advice of his Canadian ministers."

Mr. Arsenault said the word "Dominion" was "offensive" and should be used as seldom as possible in Canada. Too, the royal designation of "dominion beyond the seas" did not sufficiently describe Canada's relationship to the Crown.

Mr. Church expressed belief the resolution was out of order and was based on a "separatist" movement in Quebec province.

Prime Minister Stalin Watches May Day Parade

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, May 1 (AP)—Flanked by leaders of the Soviet government and the Communist party, Prime Minister Stalin watched Russia's traditional May Day display of military and civilian power today from atop the tomb of Nikolai Lenin in Red Square.

Foreign ambassadors and ministers, with their staffs, navy and military attaches, stood on either side of the tomb, obviously out to see Stalin and whatever the Soviet armed forces might be showing in the way of new military equipment.

Reviewing officer of the parade was long-mustached Marshal Semeon Budyenny, who, in a speech before the parade began, declared the Soviet people were moving toward new successes in achieving Communism, equal rights of the people and "honest collaboration between nations."

He concluded with the cry: "Hurrah for Comrade Stalin."

A hot bright sun beat down from a bright blue sky as massed bands played the Soviet National Anthem and the Kremlin guns boomed the decreed 20 salvoes.

Then the parade began, with cadets from Frunze Military Academy led by heroes of the Soviet Union, leading the way. Following them came long lines of medal-laden heroes from the battles of Berlin, Budapest, Stalingrad, Leningrad, Vienna.

The military part of the parade was relatively small this year and ended at 11:15 a.m., to be followed by the long lines of civilians.

No chocolate bars at eight cents was the slogan adopted by 2,000 students at Central Tech, Harbord Collegiate and Central High School of Commerce yesterday when they pledged themselves to go on a buyers' strike until price is lowered. Miss Maxine Black of Harbord Collegiate is shown here, holding a full house of pledge cards which have been distributed. The students will stage a protest parade on Bloor St. this afternoon.

Acts of Discrimination Criminal Offences Under New Saskatchewan Law

Regina, May 1 —(CP)— Acts of discrimination on religious, racial or color grounds are criminal offences under a Saskatchewan law which comes into effect today.

The "Bill of Rights" introduced by the C.C.F. Government at the last session of the Legislature was named by Attorney-General J. W. Corman who piloted the bill; is designed "within the restricted juridic f n of the province to give some real protection to civil liberties."

The bill re-affirms certain basic freedoms including those of speech, worship, trial and association.

Features of the law passed by Canada's only Socialist government and regarded as innovations, include those providing that: every person irrespective of race, creed, religion, color and ethnic or national group, shall enjoy the right to own and occupy property; of access to public places, hotels, restaurants and theatres; to membership in professional and trade organizations; and to education and enrolment in schools and universities.

A maximum fine of $200 or a jail sentence may be imposed on anyone who publishes, displays or broadcasts anything which might deprive or restrict enjoyment of such rights or in any other way does so.

Gives No New Rights.

Although passed unanimously in the 52-seat Legislature where the C.C.F. has 47 members, the opposition described the bill as "window dressing," claiming that it gave no new rights. They were unsuccessful in attempts to amend the bill so that it might include "protection to the enterprise."

The 59-year-old attorney-general said in outlining the aims of the law, that Saskatchewan was where 33 different races are represented in the population of 822,000 — is as free from religious discrimination as any province.

He added, however, that "alarm is felt by all freedom loving Canadians over the orders in council deporting and denationalizing British subject Japanese; the disregard of established legal practice in the espionage cases; the religious persecution of Jehovah's Witnesses in Quebec and by our treatment in Canada of our war Allies, the Chinese."

The native of Stoney Creek, Ont., cited the case of a Saskatchewan veteran who claimed he had been refused employment because he was not of Anglo-Saxon heritage. Reference was made to the incident last summer when a Regina hotel manager was warned by the government that his hotel licence might be revoked if a United States Negro visiting the city was not given every privilege of the hotel.

Court Reserves Judgment On Chambers' Appeal

Toronto, May 1. (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal yesterday reserved judgment in the appeal of Sidney George Chambers, 34, of St. Catharines, Ont, against the conviction of murder in the strangle-slaying last Dec. 23 of nine-year-old Marian Rumak of St. Catharines. Chambers is under sentence to be hanged June 6.

Defence Counsel Louis Isaacs, of Toronto, argued that the court should set aside the conviction or order a new trial on grounds that except for a statement said to have been given police by Chambers, the crown had produced no evidence to show the child was dead or that Chambers had killed her.

W. B. Common, representing the Attorney-General's Department, cited numerous cases to support his contention that a conviction in the absence of a body was warranted. He urged the court that in the case of Chambers the conviction should be upheld.

Two Big Unions Begin Talking About Merger

Washington, May 1 (AP)—The A.F.L. and C.I.O. shake hands today and begin talking about merger. Labor bills in the United States Congress hastened the meeting.

Both rival leaders — William Green of the A.F.L. and Philip Murray of the C.I.O. — asserted in advance of their meeting that they have an "open mind" about how to solve the major obstacles to unity.

But little optimism could be found in either camp over the prospect of an early consolidation of the A.F.L.'s 7,500,000 and C.I.O.'s 6,000,000 members.

Murray thinks the two groups should demonstrate their solidarity first in fighting off common foes, wherever they may be. After that, would come talk about physical consolidation.

The A.F.L. leadership wants the unions to "get back to come back under the Federation's banner — possibly with a brand new name — as the first step. Then co-operation would come naturally," the A.F.L. contends.

How to get over that basic difference in policy line issue immediately facing the committees representing the big organized labor forces.

They were brought together today as a result of an exchange of correspondence started by Murray last December.

Murray was moved to issue his call for unity of action by the threat of restrictive laws looming both in Congress and numerous state legislatures and the situation John L. Lewis and his United Miners were in at the time.

The government had won an injunction against Lewis' union for shutting down the Federally-operated coal mines, and Lewis and the U.M.W. had been fined $3,510,000 for contempt of court.

Must Hold Prices Board Permit To Slaughter

Ottawa, May 1 — The Wartime Prices and Trade Board announced today that although hog slaughtering quota restrictions were removed April 18, all other slaughter and price control regulations still remain in effect.

To clarify the regulations, officials stated that only the holder of valid Wartime Prices and Trade Board slaughter permits are allowed to slaughter livestock.

Officials also pointed out that in accordance with Board regulations all meat must be properly stamped and in addition all beef must be detailed and graded, while mutton must be stamped.

It is still necessary for all slaughter permit holders to file monthly reports showing the quantity of the various kinds of livestock slaughtered. These reports are to be sent to the nearest Regional Office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in which the slaughter permit holder is located.

Tiny Boat Rescues Freighter's Crew In Violent Storm

Dory Makes Five Trips, No One Injured in Operation

By DAVID McONTISH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Port Mouton, N. S., May 2 (CP)—While standing sea beat at the hull of the shipwrecked British freighter Wickliffe Head, stranded on nearby Port Joli Head, after running aground in thick fog last night, 30 of her crew were taken off in a daring rescue operation today by the tiny fishing vessel Ray Richard.

The other three members of the 33-man crew struggled ashore early this morning on the desolate rocky coast which runs from this southern Nova Scotia fishing village. Their lifeboat was pounded to splinters on the rocks.

Wickliffe Abandoned

No one was hurt in the operation which was carried out in little more than an hour. The 2,888-ton Wickliffe Head, en route from Glasgow to Saint Johns, N.B., was abandoned to the mercy of the thundering Atlantic. She was travelling in ballast.

The 51-ton Ray Richard reached the side of the ship in the breaking freighter and stood 75 yards off. A tiny dory from the fishing vessel manned by Capt. Wilson Huskins and Dougall Wagner pulled alongside a lowered lifeboat of the freighter and took the men off 6 at a time, making 5 trips.

The crew scrambled down a Jacob's ladder to the lifeboat and jumped to the dory as heavy and heaving seas pushed them the starboard side. After that it was another precarious leap from the dory to the Ray Richard.

This reporter stood on the rolling deck of the Ray Richard when she spotted the Ulster steamer pounding on the rocky headland.

The Ray Richard left Port Mouton about 7:30 and was on the second trip after making an unsuccessful all-night search for the Wickliffe Head. The location of the wreck had been given inaccurately in first reports and she was not until early this morning that a precise bearing was taken.

Called to Rescue

The Ray Richard is an inshore fishing vessel and had been called to make the hazardous rescue at

French Premier Makes Bid For Confidence Vote

Paris, May 2, (AP)—Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier, confronted by a new split within the Communist-dominated life of his three-months-old coalition government today on a bold bid for a vote of confidence in the National Assembly.

He seemed assured of victory and sources close to the cabinet said Ramadier was preparing to ask his Socialist party to let him form a new government with Communists excluded if he failed a vote of confidence for his economic program freezing wages and prices.

A fellow Socialist minister, who declined to be quoted use of his name, expressed doubt however, that the party would accept the 18 National Congress pledge not to participate in any coalition which does not include the labro Union-controlling Communist Party, France's strongest single party.

This minister predicted that Ramadier would resign by Monday weekend even though he wins in his confidence vote with the backing of his own party.

Radical-Socialists and the Mouvement Republicain Populaire.

"This is the end of the Ramadier cabinet," one leftist source declared. "No accord is possible".

Ramadier decided at a special cabinet meeting last night to put the confidence question to the legislature today after the Communists balked at continuing the country-wide salary freeze because they favor meeting demands of striking Renault automobile workers for a general increase of 10 francs (8.4 cents). The salary freeze policy was inaugurated last December by then Premier Leon Blum, also a Socialist.

Labor Minister Will Try to End Ontario Walkouts

(By The Canadian Press)

Negotiations have opened in the Ontario Labor Minister's office to find a settlement of a strike involving 600 workers at the Marlette Stove Company in suburban Toronto, and at Oshawa Company and union will meet tomorrow to discuss the tie-up at the big General Motors Corporation of Canada plant.

These were the only signs of break yesterday in the dispute which has put 4,500 more Ontario plants involving a total of nearly 5,000 workers.

The work stoppages are these:

Oshawa: 2,000 employees of General Motors tie up production shutdown resulting from walkout of 250 body room employees in protest against alleged company speed-up plan. Workers are members of the United Automobile Workers Union (C.I.O.).

Toronto: 600 employees of Moffat Stove Company, members of the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) on strike for union weeks demanding wage increase of 13 1-2 cents an hour.

Brantford: 600 foundry workers of Massey-Harris Company pledged to be on sit-down strike following discharge of 24 pipefitting employees who are members of the U.A.W.

St. Catharines: 450 carpenters picketing jobs in demand for 15 cents an hour increase. Contractors planning retaliatory action, saying as district building virtually stopped.

Wheat Credit: 250 employees of St. Lawrence Starch Company, members of International Chemical workers (A.F.L.) walked out in demand for wage increase of 15 cents an hour, double that offered by the company.

Stratford: 110 employees of Canadian Aircraft Co. members of the U.A.W., idle following walkout of machine shop division in demand for wage increase of 10 cents an hour and benefits of sick pay.

Waterloo: 70 production workers of Galt Carpet Company walked out for wage increases, Union security and holidays with pay. Strikers are members of National Union of Furniture Workers (C.C.L.).

Toronto: 70 bakers in 20 Jewish bakeries out for reduction of working hours from 48 to 40 weekly with no reduction in pay. Strikers are members of International Bakery and Confectionery Workers of America (A.F.L.)

MT. COQUITLAM MAY HOLD KEY TO MISSING PLANE

Mountain Searchers Seek Strange Object Sighted on Thursday Near Lake Buntzen

By GEORGE FINLAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, May 2 — (CP) — Cloud-shrouded Mount Coquitlam, its valleys rain-soaked during the night, may still hold the key to the mysterious disappearance four days ago of the Trans-Canada Airlines transport with 12 passengers and a crew of three.

On a high peak, across a million acres of wilds, 100 mountain searchers today will seek a strange object sighted late yesterday approximately four miles north-east of Lake Buntzen, now the base of the search.

"There is something funny up there," said Flying Officer Jack Gibson, head of the search party, "but what only he knows."

Other members of the party said it "looked like a wing standing straight up." Two air force officials with the search leader that the image shaped formation could be snow.

Only a change in weather plane left the sea island airport's search headquarters here, heading across the mainland to Penticton, failed to make an early morning survey of conditions in the Mount Coquitlam area before further searching started.

There was no word from the search base where a big Canso flying boat and a United States Army helicopter is based, ready to take off when cloud backs lift from the mountain peaks.

Source Not Determined

The source of signal lights contacted by Gibson Mountain less than 20 miles northeast of here Wednesday night, has not been determined. None showed last night.

"The lights appeared to be weeping area," said Mrs. J. E. Clubine of Deep Cove, a summer resident on the north shore, when disappeared for an hour. Then I saw an orange flare in the sky, but I'm not sure of that.

There were indications that the addition were the lights were reported and the discovery of possible explanations of an aircraft coincided.

But there was another explanation, too, from residents of the isolated, mountainous area.

Some reported seeing reflections from Lake Buntzen power plant upon the mist and rain-laden tumbling down the mountainsides.

Few, however, held to this theory, as the lights were reported from high mountain, like signal flares in the night sky.

Britain Declares Jews Should Be Given Voice In Palestine Debate

By MAX HABBELSON

New York, May 2 (AP)—Britain declared today that Jews should be given a voice in the United Nations debate on Palestine if any legal means could be found to provide a hearing for them.

The first official British views on this delicate problem were expressed by Sir Alexander Cadogan to reporters just before the general assembly's 14-power steering committee began discussion of Britain's formal plea for presentation at this extraordinary session.

Cadogan said that in view of the fact that Arab states had entered into a full debate on the Palestine question the Jews should be heard if it was "constitutionally feasible." He declined to say whether he believed this was possible or not, but said it could be done.

Pacific Canadian's endorsement of the general idea of hearing Jews, there remained a possibility that Britain and the United States might split over the type of representation to be given.

American spokesmen maintained their usual caution on this delicate matter and would not go beyond saying that Warren R. Austin would jump for some kind of representation." It was reported, on good authority, however, that Austin would suggest that the Jews be given a voteless seat on the 55-member political committee.

Ready to Reject

British delegates were known to be ready to reject any such plan.

Another American choice was said to be for a special committee to hear the Jews and then report back. The procedure would enable the U.N. to skirt a precedent setting decision on giving representation to a non-government.

Britain was reported ready to concede that anxiety over the Jewish agency, only body named in the terms of the mandate was represented as being determined to resist anything short of appearance before a full "55-member body.

More Than 1,000 Killed, Say Unconfirmed Reports, In Revolt in Asuncion

Buenos Aires, May 2 —(Reuters)—Unconfirmed reports reaching here from Paraguay today said that more than 1,000 persons, including women and children, had been killed in the house-to-house battles in the re-volt of the marine garrison against the government. In Asuncion, Paraguayan capital, Sunday.

Public hospitals in the capital have been turned into emergency hospitals for the dozens of the wounded, reports said.

The Paraguayan government announced that the marines, who were joined by civilian sympathizers, suffered "many casualties" and that 700 persons were taken prisoner.

The situation in the capital remained confused, reports said, as censorship but is reported to be chaotic.

Asuncion, Paraguay, May 2 — (AP)— Higinio Morinigo, president of Paraguay since 1940, was in direct command today of government forces resisting a rebellion began March 7.

He announced yesterday, two days after the revolt began, proposed to have put down an uprising by the marine garrison here after taking over in place of Col. Federico Smith. He said the Colonel had "asked to be retired."

Other sources earlier reported that Smith had joined the Paraguay River to Clorinda, Argentina.)

PARLIAMENTARY PACE STEPS UP, 5 BILLS PASSED

Govt-Owned Housing Companies Will Be Empowered to Make "Direct Loans"

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 2 — (CP) — In the wake of passage of the measure discussed government control of the parliamentary stepped-up yesterday as the Commons moved to speed other measures further along through their legislative stages.

The control bill, the main measure continuing a number of wartime controls scheduled to die next year, was given third and final reading with little fanfare after the House voted by 10 to 14 against a C.C.F. motion which would have placed the entire parliament rather than the government the power to abolish the Prices Board.

The measure now goes to the Senate.

With that contentious piece of legislation out of the way, the Chamber then gave third reading to bills amending the Canada Evidence Act and appointing Canadian National Railways trustees, second reading to another bill amending the Evidence Act and to measures to reassess landlords with housing and penitentiaries.

The highlight of the sitting was a statement by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in the form of answers to questions which he answered the government's immigration policy and announced that plans were being taken to bring to Canada "some thousands" of displaced persons now crowding Europe's refugee camps.

No Requirement

External Affairs Minister St. Laurent told the House there was no requirement that the Federal government consult the provinces on a proposed change in the King's title which would clearly designate him King of Canada, "King of Canada."

The bill provided 40 to 25 to give third reading to a measure to extend eight patents held by the Toronto Type Foundry Company Ltd. for a further period another bill providing for compensation for injuries to civil servants.

In the Commons,Reconstruction Minister Howe opened discussion on the housing measure with the announcement that the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the government-operated company, would be empowered to make "direct loans" to individuals to assist them in the building of houses or rental housing projects.

Considered in Detail

Health Minister Martin announced, shortly before the House rose at 11:30 p.m., that the considerations of a proposed bill amending the Old Age Pensions Act were conditioned to be considered from yesterday, although the bill would not be given third reading. A resolution to the measure, which is expected to increase old age pensions has been placed on the House order paper.

In the discussion on the penitentiaries bill, which will appoint a commission to study penitentiaries and two deputies, Mr. Ilsley said he was not in a position to say what penitentiary reforms would be put into effect this year.

SOME THOUSANDS TO BE ADMITTED INTO DOMINION

Prime Minister King Gives Lengthy Statement on Government Policy

Ottawa, May 2 (CP)—The government is making preparations for the "early" admission of "thousands" of the homeless displaced persons in Europe's refugee camps, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced yesterday.

He made the announcement in a 2,000-word statement to which he placed before the Commons a review of government thought on immigration and said that because of "urgent humanitarian considerations" the present policy had been open, a series of measures designed for immediate application and a long term program.

He said the government was ready to send immigration officers to Europe to examine the material among refugee groups and take steps "looking" toward the early admission of some thousands of their number.

At the same time, he announced the setting up of an Order-in-Council allowing all a marries relatives of Canadians who are eligible under existing regulations to bring their families to Canada with them.

Up to now, these peoples have been allowed to come only as sons or sons after their Canadian relatives guaranteed them.

Mr. King touched also on Oriental immigration, announcing the government will be considering of revamping its policy to permit a limited influx from the Far East Orient and reiterating a wartime assertion that no Japanese immigration would be allowed in for years after the War.

Claim Same Rights

He asserted that Canada recognized the right of all other countries to control the entry or non-entry of persons seeking to become permanent residents and said the Dominion claimed "precisely the same right for our country."

Lucius A. Parmalee Secures Money from Ottawa Banks by Forged Cheques

Ottawa, May 2. (CP)—Lucius A. (Christmas) Parmalee, a bald and bespectacled man with a police court today to four charges of forgery and uttering cheques for more than $17,000 and told Magistrate Alfred Bigelow: "Everything I can say in extenuation is that I had lost my job and had no money."

The once notorious internationa-ler-dropped from sight a one time described by United States authorities as the cleverest forger in the world, was arrested without fuss by detective Robert Bayne of the Ottawa police department, narrate the story of passing the cheques on four banks which netted minated with arrest at Vars, 35 miles southeast of here, Thursday night.

Parmalee's nervous, sorrowful eyes occasionally glanced at his little courtroom but when Magistrate Bigelow asked him if he had anything to say he replied "nothing in particular. . . it's all over." He declined his right to counsel or alone after their Canadian relatives guaranteed them.

Police said there was no doubt that he was the "Christmas" Parmalee who once eluded a police search in Canada and the United States for 14 years and won his nickname through his habit of passing bad cheques at the operating chiefly during the Christmas rush period.

Detective Bayne's story revealed that Parmalee had come here from the Quebec refinery of Waterloo, March 12, had registered at the Chateau Laurier and got into four banks—in the heart of the capital with four cheques for $4,500, in each case they had been initialled with the initials

PAIN IS PROBABLY ALWAYS PARTLY REAL AND PARTLY MENTAL, OPERATION SHOWS

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Chicago, May 2 (AP)—Relief of pain of all kinds by the British method of "cutting" a nerve in many mental troubles was reported to the American College of Surgeons today by Dr. Walter Freeman, and James W. Watts, of George Washington University, Washington.

This operation, Dr. Freeman said, shows that pain is probably always partly real and partly mental. The mental part of pain is worry, particularly looking to the fear that it is going to continue or be more severe.

The operation, prefrontal lobotomy severs the main nerve tracts between the brain, just back of the forehead, and the rest of the brain. That portion of the brain seems to be the seat of worry, and also of worry.

Of 63 cutting, he reported, is that the physical part of pain is never abolished by the operation. It is all said that patients no longer minds the pain. Where there is real pain, they endure the pain any longer, after operation the same people laughed at what in pain and said it was nothing to worry about.

The brain operation is done with a local anesthetic. There is a period of months, sometimes of years, when pain is relieved. Then it may return and the patient has to learn over again to do what a person could before the surgery.

The buggy was completely demolished when struck by the fast travelling train and receiving the full force of the impact was torn away from the horse and carried approximately 300 feet down the track. The train was delayed for some time before it was allowed to proceed on into Belleville.

Horse Acted Up

A lively horse which acted up at the approach of the train is believed to have been responsible for the tragedy Mr. Rourke had lived in the vicinity for many years and was thoroughly conversant with train schedules. The crossing at this point crosses the track at an angle from northeast to southwest and the horse would have been facing angling into the locomotive at the approach of the train.

7 Machine-Gunned In May Day Clash At Palermo

(By The Canadian Press)

European disorders yesterday marked May Day observances as the world's workers celebrated labor's traditional international holiday.

Seven persons were killed in a clash at Palermo, Sicily, when two parading May Day columns were caught in machine gun fire from a hill. The search was under way today for the unidentified killers as provincial authorities closed amusement places in mourning and all political parties agreed to call for a protest general strike.

Several 500 Italians in Trieste were dispersed with tear gas and fire hoses when they attempted to hold a parade banned by the authorities. The ban followed a bomb-throwing incident Wednesday night which injured 25 Slav demonstrators.

Throughout the world millions marched in parades and a flood of speeches and resolutions denounced "capitalism" and "warmongers."

There were shouts of protest in Hamburg, Germany as a representative of the American Federation of Labor told a rally that Russia was the "worst centre of slave labor in the world." The crowd drowned out his next words by singing the "Internationale."

Premier Joseph Stalin reviewed a huge parade in Moscow. The display of men and material was described by Canadian observers as impressive.

May Day celebrations were banned in Greece and Spain. Greek workers held stoppages. Spanish group urged laborers to stay away from their jobs.

Britain postponed its celebration till Sunday when Prime Minister Attlee will speak.

Four-day Dock Strike Ended

London, May 2 (AP)—The four-day dock strike was today ended today.

Thousands of dock workers returned to their jobs to unload critically-needed cargo ships. Strike leaders, however, said a few hundred stayed out, ignoring the government and union backto-work pleas.

The dockers quit in sympathy with 3,800 Glasgow dock workers who went out six weeks ago because 500 labor members were declared "redundant" or surplus and dismissed.

The Glasgow dockers remained idle.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Malartic, Que., May 2—(CP)—More gas and heat tests were taken today within the fire-swept No. 1 shaft of the East Malartic gold mine to help determine when it will be safe to reopen the mine where 11 dead miners are entombed.

Mine engineer Edward Futterer and R. H. Taschereau, chief inspector of mines for the Quebec Mines Department, agreed it would be another day, possibly longer, before rescue crews can go below ground for the grim task of recovering the bodies.

The 11 men have been entombed since early April 24 when fire broke out on the 1,000 level, about 1,500 feet underground. A 12th miner died when attempting to escape the gas fumes and flames, but his body was recovered before the mine was sealed and the shaft flooded in an attempt to extinguish the fire.

Holes were drilled beside the shaft after it was closed and thermometers and other equipment have been dropped through them to determine whether the fire is out and to test gas conditions.

The mine will not be reopened while there is danger of fire breaking out anew, nor will crews be sent below ground while there still is danger from gas.

of a manager or accountant and were accepted and cashed.

Teller Made Sure . . . . . .

The police hunt started when one teller asked an accountant if he had initialled one of the cheques. He checked a few hours later when police, after a check of city taxi firms, got the clue that led them to Vars.

There, Bayne said, Parmalee was waiting for a train, ready to head for the Maritimes and a life of seclusion on the money he had jammed into a satchel. In his pockets he had two other cheques made out, one for the fateful $4,350 the other for $3,000.

Once, 13 years ago, he told Toronto police "crime doesn't pay". That was at the end of the 16-year-sentence in the U.S. and just before a six-year sentence in Kingston Penitentiary which ended about 1914. Until yesterday, there was nothing to indicate that he hadn't believed what he said.

Detective Sergeant John Cavan said he made the arrest half an hour before arrival at Vars of the Montreal-bound train which the man later left. police he was waiting to catch. In a brown leather satchel the man had with him police found $17,400 in small denomination bills.

Police said the man told them he had been in Ottawa some time "wining up the banks" and planned a getaway to Nova Scotia to settle there.

In cashing the cheques the man posed as C. K. Booth, treasurer of a Waterloo, Que., firm (MacDonald Melting Products Co. Ltd.), on whose account the cheques were drawn. Each cheque had been made out on a cheque-writing machine and bore a bank "approval" stamp. Even spurious account's initialled had been forged on the certification stamp, police said.

The unsuspecting tellers paid out the cash, meeting the man's request for small bills. And it was not until about an hour later that the four different banks discovered the swindler.

It wasn't long before police learned that a man answering the description of the swindler had taken a taxi to Vars.

As police began to search him the man said: "All right, you've got the man you're after."

One of the first police departments in Ontario to install and use radio equipment, the Belleville Police Department this week kept abreast of the times and had installed the most modern post-war police radio equipment permitting three-way communication between the two cruisers and between cruisers and the police station.

The new equipment has frequency modulation and operates on a very short wavelength on a band from 132 to 162 megacycles. Advantages of the new equipment are that there is very little noise, and there is complete absence of interference from other out-of-town stations.

Older types of frequency modulation operated on a band of 30 to 40 megacycles, and while this showed a considerable improvement on still older types, interference from out-of-town stations was a frequent occurrence.

Under certain weather conditions it was possible when using the older type of equipment to hear distant stations more clearly than signals from cruiser cars on the street only a mile or so away. This feature is entirely absent in the new equipment.

Built in Canada

In changing over to the post-war equipment, the local police department chose the "Motorola" system, built in Canada by Rogers-Majestic Ltd. This is the type chosen by approximately 80 per cent of departments in the United States changing over to new equipment and has also been installed by York township police force, and by the Scarboro department.

Height of local city hall tower will be 150 feet, the antenna is placed considerably extends the range of the new police radio, according to engineers making the installation. The effective range is from ten to fifteen miles in any weather.

It was explained that the range of frequency modulation is limited to slightly more than that of visual sight and thus the 188 feet of the local city hall tower counteracts the fact that Belleville lies in a depression between the two hills.

Installed in City Tower

The main sending and receiving equipment of the new system is installed in the city hall tower, this being remotely controlled from the sergeant's desk in the police station. A control unit is also installed in the office of Chief Constable Walter Probert.

First radio equipment used by the local police force was installed back in 1936, it being placed in operation at about the same time as the first radio equipment used by the Toronto police force, Arthur Booth & Son, Local Radio Repair Service, assisted in installation of the new equipment.

Loch Ness Monster Again Witnessed?

Inverness, Scotland, May 2 — (Reuters)— The Loch Ness monster, a creature with a long neck and a ponderous grey body five feet high said to be lurking in the water's depths, was champioined by Country Clerk J. W. McKillop at a county council meeting yesterday.

"I have seen it," he claimed, after confessing that he had entertained a certain amount of doubt prior to his actual experience.

Sir D. W. Cameron, convenor of Inverness-shire, admitted gravely he too had been skeptical about the monster, but since there could be no more trustworthy witness than the county clerk, he was convinced of what it existence.

The monster first reared its head, shook a few feet of neck like a hoop or two then cut a great swath in the water, according to voluble eyewitnesses, in 1933. Later eyewitness accounts claimed its body was anything up to 40 feet long.

Scientists have gone as far as saying it might be a seal or a giant eel, but British circus owner Bertram Mills hopes it is more than that. In 1934, he offered £20,000 ($80,000) for the monster, provided it was not less than 20 feet long, 1,000 pounds in weight and proved to be of a species thought extinct.

BRITAIN DECLARES

Standing firm on their original idea in asking the special session only to name and instruct an inquiry commission, Britain would provide for Jewish hearings before that commission.

The Arabs were said to be ready to go along with the special committee idea if the Arab higher committee also was given a chance to appear.

The five Arab states suffered a major defeat on the assembly floor last night when Ethiopia voted down 24 to 15 a proposal for consideration at this session of Arab demands or termination of the British mandate and independence for the Holy Land.

TINY BOATS

tempt after the R.C.A.F. air - sea rescue unit at Halifax had picked up a distress signal from the Wicklow Head.

The first message from the ship said the captain "did not wish S O S to be sent," but added that a lifeboat was needed immediately.

Later the captain sent a message to the Ulster Steamship Company at Belfast, the owners, reporting "ashore on Fort Moulton Island. Making water. Bumping heavily. Ask for tugs at once."

Earlier in Halifax, 100 miles east of here, naval officers expressed belief the freighter, despite three holes punched in her plates and a flooded engine-room, was not so much in need of a rescue effort as a salvage job.

They said the ship carried her own lifeboats and was apparently close enough to shore to make use of them with the sea moderating.

Meanwhile, the powerful tug boat Foundation Josephine was steaming down the coast from Sydney," 300 miles away, to attempt any salvage necessary. She was expected to reach the side of the freighter some time tonight.

No details of the Wicklow Head's crew or cargo was known immediately although a ship of her size would normally carry a crew of about 40.

Actress Weeps As Counsel Pleads

Los Angeles, May 2. (AP) — The court wrangle over Actress Laraine Day's dual divorce from J. Ira Hendricks and her subsequent marriage to Leo Durocher ran true to form today.

The brown-haired film player went to the witness stand and Pacht her lawyer in a court-instituted action to set aside her California divorce on grounds of fraud and collusion, referred to her as "unstable" and said up to public scorn because she wanted to make a home for her babies.

The hearing was ordered when Miss Day, after receiving a California decree which would not have been final for a year, obtained a Mexican divorce, re-were guilty of collusion.

"She and her husband thought it was all right for her to be in love and for Mr. Durocher to want to marry her. So we have it from her own lips that he was the marrying broker."

Pacht in his summation said Miss Day "made a terrible mistake" when she married Hendricks and that "for 4 1-2 years she stood by her bargain."

Miss Day has an adopted child and two others in process of adoption.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 2 — (AP) — Leading stocks continued to move upward on a selective basis in day's market although many issues faltered.

Chrysler was the star performer, opening 38 minutes late on a 6,000-share block, up 5¼ points, and later extending the advance to around 10. This stock was spurred by short covering and new buying followed a dividend dividend and 2-for-1 splitup proposal which surprised Wall Street.

Gains or fractions to a point or so predominated near the fourth hour.

Fractional increases led by McIntyre with a gain of ½ prevailed among Canadian issues at mid-day but Dome Mines, with a loss of 1/4, and Canadian Pacific, unchanged, were the exceptions. Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram each added ¼.

On the curb, Lake Shore added 1/8.

Scientists' Opportunity

The death of Sir Almroth Edward Wright, introducer of anti-typhoid inoculation, brings again to public notice the fact that he was credited with saving the lives of more than 100,000 British soldiers in World War I through his use of inoculations. He was consulting physician to the British Army in France in 1914-1919.

Such a statement indicates clearly the greatness of discovery. The whole of modern science and medicine, and of medical, is full of man's achievement through growing knowledge of nature. It shows how in the modern world science can save and does save human life.

Down in New York City in the space of three weeks over two and a half million persons attended the free clinics for vaccination against smallpox which had developed in 6 cases, in that great city. This shows that modern man is swift to accept science's assurance of protection against dreaded smallpox. But what was the story of smallpox in other days long past? In 1520 in Mexico over three and a half million persons succumbed to smallpox and three million died in India in 1770, while Russia lost ten and a half million persons by this disease in a period of seventy years.

Today modern inquiry is intensely active in the war on cancer in the hope of arriving at the most intimate facets of cancer may be exposed and conquered. In the meantime, pending further discoveries by research workers, attention is drawn to early diagnosis and steps to defeat the malady.

Scientists like Sir Almroth have a great opportunity to serve humanity by saving life and preventing suffering.

Looking Forward

Reforestation has caught the imagination because men have learned the ill results of heavy cutting in the past of forests which once covered vast sections of the country. Importance of the forest to rainfall, to temperature, to agriculture and the national wealth has been impressed upon the minds of the people of the present day.

Hasting's County's woodland projects are well under way this week 30,000 red pine trees were planted in northern Hungerford. 20,000 pines will be planted near Bird's Creek in North Hastings.

The foregoing while these projects indicate offers a fine augury for the future when these young forests will have come into their full growth.

One of the best signs of the trend toward reforestation is that such planting is not spasmodic but is part of a vast program which will in the long run create a heritage of which future generations will be proud by repairing mistakes of the past.

From the standpoint alone of the natural growth of wealth in the living forest the present day interest is of importance. Her woodlands all over the world have in the past been beating the brunt of war's needs, which in fact have in some lands sadly depleted the forests, so that today there must be a steadily maintained effort to rebuild this wealth for generations hence.

Last year adverse weather resulted in the killing, it is estimated, of about 40 per cent of the trees planted in the first venture near Actinolite. The gaps in the young forest caused by the death of the young trees are being or have been filled in.

Britain Clears Up After Floods

Work has been going on night and day in the reclamation of Britain's thirty-one inundated counties. Emergency teams of workers helped by army "crawlers" and floodlights are clearing these 600,000 acres with the utmost energy, knowing that not only are the farmers concerned threatened with ruins but that the rations of the nation hang upon their speed. Plans for the Ministry of Agriculture Crisis Committee, whether concerned with technical experts, army authorities and government departments, include:—rushing of seeds from Scotland, special allocations of coal to two factories to ensure supplies of nitrates, extra acreage payments to affected farmers to cover losses due to low yield. The army are assisting with the loan of mechanized equipment and lighting sets to enable every possible acre of ground to be sown with maximum crops of sugar beet, potatoes and suitable vegetables.

Plague of Wild Horses

Thousands of wild horses, donkeys and camels are devastating great areas of the far northern parts of South Australia and southwestern Queensland, and a proposal has been made to destroy them from aircraft says Lodnar Daily Mail.

Mr. Brooks, one of the most prominent pastoralists in Australia says that the brumbies (wild horses) are becoming a national problem because they multiplied much an alarming rate during the war years through the absence of men to keep them in check.

Some owners have already abandoned their holdings where the pests are uncontrollable.

Mr. Brooks strongly urges the use of aircraft to destroy the brumbles, as their haunts the almost inaccessible to hunters.

Other pastoralists report that thousands of wild horses have been shot in the Oodnadatta and Marree areas. A pastoral inspector states that in 18 months on a 150-mile front of the Cooper River 8,000 brumbies were shot after eating enough to feed 16,000 cattle.

Franco Among Cynics

The suspicion with which others than his immediate devotees receive his offer to abolish the Spanish throne with a legitimate line of royalty must wound the tender sensibilities of Generalissimo Franco.

Don Juan, heir-in-exile of the Royal house evicted 16 years ago, regards the dictator's decree of succession as a bit of impertinance. It flaunts both royal prerogative and the "will of the Spanish people," as the pretender puts it.

The exiled head of another Spanish regime, the premier of the Spanish republic, calls it a "crude fake." And those government-in-exile disagree that Franco has made Spain an Ishmael among the nations seem inclined to agree.

The sad fact is that nobody trusts the would-be king-maker. The Royalists look his gift horse in the mouth, and other interested parties suspect him of peddling a "gold brick." — Montreal Herald.

Bumper Uniformity

The day of locked bumpers may be nearly over. Automobile manufacturers have agreed th attach bumpers on cars at a uniform height from the level of the road according to reports from the U. S., says Winnipeg Tribune.

That means that motorists will no longer be faced with the Paul Bunyon job of trying to fit a car bodily from the embrace of the car parked behind it. It also means that they can get a push on a cold morning without being hoisted on the radiator of the car doing the pushing.

If the standard height has not yet been decided upon here would be a chance for the auto manufacturers to extend a peace feeler to their old enemies the pedestrians. They could ask them where they prefer to be hit by a bumper.

Virtue's Reward

An Easter charity of good intent but hard conditions was that devised by Mrs. Sarah Hill, of Wargrave, in the century or so ago left £1 per annum to be divided at Easter between two boys and two girls "who had never been undutiful to their parents, never had been known to swear, tell untruths, steal or break windows," says Manchester Guardian. As a critic of the bequest once remarked: "Fancy giving up all that for a paltry five bob!" It is little wonder that, for lack of eligible candidates, the charity is distributed on another plan.

FLIRTATION

A pretty maiden winked at me,
And, though I knew I shouldn't,
I winked right back, improperly.
But where's the man who wouldn't?

A second wink in manner pert
The lovely damsel threw me.
I boldly took her at her word;
Then come on closer to me."

There was no one to hear or see;
No mother to protect her.
I kissed her and I necked her.

And did you say there is no fool
So foolish as an old one?
A grandpa I. What law or rule
Says.I must be a cold one?

She's only seven. I'm gray and fat,
Past sixty, to be truthful,
But still a little love like that Is what keeps grandpas youthful.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did Minnesota get its name?

Early French in what is now Minnesota gave the name "Riviere a Saint Pierre," Saint Peter River, to a stream that empties into the Mississippi near Minneapolis. Later it was learned that the Dakota Sioux called this river by a Indian name from which "Minnesota" evolved.

In the Dakota language "mini" signifies "water" and "sota" signifies "whitish," "muddy" or "cloudy." By poetic licence "Minnesota" is said to mean "sky-colored water." In "Travels Through the Interior Parts of North America" (1778) Jonathan Carver spelled the word "Menesotor" and "Owen-nesotor." Other early writers spelled it variously "Minsay Sotor," "Minisotor" and "Menesota."

This Indian name for the Saint Peter River had fallen into disuse and was virtually forgotten by both Indian and white alike. It was revived in 1847 as the proposed name for a new state of Wisconsin Territory. Some authorities believe that the name for the new Territory was suggested by Henry H. Sibley, a fur trader who settled in Minnesota in 1834 and who played a prominent part in the early history of the Territory and State.

The Territory of Minnesota was formed March 3, 1849, and the northeastern part of it was admitted into the Union as the State of Minnesota in 1858. Sibley who was presently appointing of Minnesota," was chosen the first Governor. In 1853 the Territorial legislature asked the President to substitute "Minnesota River" for the "Saint Peter River" and this change in official usage was confirmed by act of Congress.

The northern part of the Lake of the Woods in Ontario, Minnesota and Manitoba, and the State of Minnesota extends farther north than any other part of the United States proper and the motto of the State is appropriately "L'Etoile du Nord," the Star of the North.

Minnesota is sometimes called the "Land of Ten Thousand Lakes" but the number is between 10,000 and 11,000 glacial lakes within its borders. The interior water surface of Minnesota — 3,824 square miles — is greater than that of any other State in the Union. There are nearly a hundred bodies of water in the State bearing the name "Mud Lake." Minnesota's official name literally means "Water Cloudy" is situated in latitude 46 degree 56 minutes north and lies half way between the Equator and the North Pole.

SOME THOUSANDS

However, the government was reminded last any time to enter into negotiations with other countries for special agreements for the control of the number of immigrants "on a basis of complete equality and fairness."

Questioned by opposition leaders, Mr. King said he hoped to indicate at this time how many immigrants will be admitted to Canada under the short-term policy. This may be disclosed later.

Of the plan to admit refugees, he said the labor department and the immigration branch of the resources department would determine jointly the "approximate number" which could be readily placed in employment in various industries and occupations.

Then each would examine every quota Canada finally accepts as the share in meeting the refugee problems," said Mr. King, referring to fitness, character and the placement of refugees in countries abroad.

Touching on the long-term program, he predicted that properly-selected immigrants would increase the Canadian standard of living and the country's ability to maintain's dependence on the export of primary products through access to the United States market.

But it was "of the utmost importance" to relate immigration of whatever nationality to the government's objective was "to secure what new population we can without lowering the standard of living."

Shortage of transport would limit the number of immigrants that could be sent here. Under no condition ended, it would be necessary to consider further what conditions are required for the assimilation and adjustment of immigration to the standards and customs of life in Canada and continued:

"It is the intention of the government, under present circumstances, to continue the regulations so administered that British subjects from the United Kingdom, Ireland, Newfoundland, New Zealand, Australia or South Africa, and citizens of the United States, who desire to enter Canada, will not be required to meet certain standards of health and character, and to show that they are not likely to become public charges."

I'M CAUGHT IN A SERIOUS QUANDEY

The conductor of this column is always getting under somebody's skin every day, often enough getting himself kicked into the middle of next week for arousing controversy.

But now I am in a serious quandry and even the bowling green offers no relief. I have decided, after many hours of struggle with the question and won't say loss of sleep for probably would have remained awake writing this column or worrying about something else anyway—I have decided to submit the thing to you readers and ask you to help me out of a quandry— I hope, although I doubt, that some medical colleagues may be good enough to give me their counsel about it and I hope too, that you readers do choose to comment will spare me mere emotional outbursts.

Here is the question: Two years ago, more or less, I recommended here the use of one or two glasses of ale, beer or wine daily by people who are aged and infirm. I said the assimilation of alcohol in such daily ration of beer, ale or wine would not be a hazardous old souls less so, easier to live with, more comfortable and content with their lot.

I did not specify at what age an elderly person should begin to take his or her daily-pint of beer or ale or two wineglassfuls of wine, but I might have suspected, some readers have quoted me as advising people to begin drinking when they are this or that age.

Now I'm old enough to take my ale, beer or wine but I haven't cared for any of it. As long as one feels just fine and dandy, with all pipes drawing well and no pain, ache or discomfort, why bother to start taking beer, ale or wine, wouldn't it?

My revered colleague, Dr. ..., is old enough to take his too, but he, too, I find, has not yet felt the need of the narcotic at 88 he is as keen, as vigorous as active and as spruce as most men half his age, and so his view —that a person of his age needs no ale, beer or wine—has tremendous weight with me.

Not long after I expressed my opinion that the aged and infirm should have their daily ration of alcoholic beverage I received a letter from the head of a great temperance society expressing gently but politely, regret that I had given even such limited sanction to the use of alcoholic beverage after all the fine teaching of the Rev. Mr. Demosthenes Speedpoint dealt me an unfair blow and wondered how my mother would have felt about my advice ...

As though I had not thought about that a thousand times before I decided to print the suggestion.

But I'm in a quandry now and I really need help. I may say that no physician, so far as I know, has questioned or expressed an opinion in favor of or against my suggestion of beer, ale or wine for elderly folk, so I hardly expect any help from my medical colleagues.

I hope I have made it clear that my suggestion of a daily ration of alcohol for the old folk is based on theory and not on experience. Perhaps it may be physiological and sound theoretically, but how does it work practically? That's what I hope my readers will tell me.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Dictated But Not Read

Being quite aware that you receive a great many letters and are much occupied, I shall try to state some facts as briefly as I can. (And so do most 300 words—evidently dictated to a stenographer, transcribed, etc. etc. in that funny way they have of wasting time in so-called business offices). (L.T.F.)

Answer—I'm sorry, son, but you took up so much of my time with your monkey business that I couldn't stay to listen to what you had to say. Try again some time, never mind the hokum, ask your question in fifty words or less, and I'll feel more inclined to listen.

Only Ten Years?

Haven't taken a physic of any kind in ten years, and feel still living and enjoying better health than I ever did when I thought some kind of "regulation" was essential....all thanks to your writings. (Mrs. T.V.M.

Answer—Now you know what I mean when I say the Yankee (North American) Wiseacres are gullible geeks. Send 23 cts. and your name and address, preferably your address, for booklet "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene."

Farm Work Late One to Four Weeks Across Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

All over Canada, a long-lasting winter and continued cold has delayed spring seeding.

Farm work anywhere from a week to four weeks behind last year as May 1 nears. The bad weather of the next three or four weeks will be a vital factor, in determining crop prospects this summer.

In the Maritimes seeding is always behind other sections but this year has not even started yet, except for scattered sections. Quebec is anywhere from a week to two weeks behind schedule. Ontario is a week to two weeks behind normal right now, actually about four weeks behind the pace reached at this time last year. The Prairies report much less work done than at this at this time last year, and only in British Columbia is normal spring work appear to be near normal.

The Ontario Agricultural Department does not look favorable for the next three or four weeks. Cold, wet weather adversely affected hay and pasture in Ontario in April. Winter wheat, however, wintered well. Prospects were said to be unusually good for fall wheat. Fall wheat wintered well and is coming along nicely. Fall wheat acreage in Ontario this year is about 700,000, or 100,000 more than last year.

In Quebec plowing has started in some districts and work on the land won't become general for another week or two, it is said. Pastures and fruit trees are reported in good condition with the exception of those providing ample moisture for the early germination of seed. A period of warm weather is urgently needed for the growth of crops.

In Manitoba seeding has started but is about two weeks behind schedule with up to 20 per cent completed in some districts.

In Saskatchewan seeding has started but is about two weeks behind schedule in most districts. Last year's wheat acreage was 19,000,000 and complete at this time.

In Alberta less than 10 per cent of the crop seeded to date. This is behind last year 30 per cent had been seeded.

Fashion Flashes

WE THOUGHT that a girl we know had inherited a mink ... We saw her in a magnificent sling cape, cut with a scalloped effect. We took it to be chinchilla, then learned that it was natural Australian opposum!

APRIL SHOWERS bring out a fine array of new raincoats. Aqua-blue gabardine is used for a nice raincoat with a double-breasted top and flo-flared skirt closing. Detachable hood is attached under soft, rolled collar. Snug belt; slit pockets in skirt, and modified lantern sleeves.

FINE LINES mark many of the new, long dinner dresses. White silk, with a bright red, black and green poppy design, has a simple bodice with round, slight neckline and capelet sleeves. The skirt has center draping that extends from a sunburst of tucks below a dipping and lowered waistline. A smooth-fitting peplum in back curves away at the sides over the hipline.

TWO COATS stand out in the line-up. One is the greatcoat cut on billowing free-swinging lines with very full, tippled back and face-framing collar. The other is the fitted coat cut with a cape that barely covers the shoulder. Some models, however, show capes that are almost waist deep in back.

THE BIG THING in fur circles is a collection of coats—of all styles, lengths, shapes and sizes —those in caracul that has been dyed in luscious shades ranging from delicate pastels to deep tones. Beautiful in a fitted tunic design in pink worn with a brown taffeta dinner dress.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Groom's Family Wish to Entertain in Honor of Bride-elect

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are the family of the groom-to-be, and we are completely uncertain as to our entertaining responsibilities. Should the groom's family entertain for the bride-to-be? We have been considering two ways we could entertain for her. One would be for the groom's sisters to give a shower for her and to include among the guests the bride's mother as well as relatives of the groom. The other way would be for the groom's parents to give a dinner party, of course inviting the parents of the bride, and also inviting the members of the wedding party and the groom's relatives whom the bride has never met. Would either of these ideas be correct, and if so, which do you think the better one?

A. N.

Although it most definitely is a must that the family of the groom-to-be call on the bride-to-be to welcome her into their family, it is not a must that they give a party in her honor. However, if they are people who can and do entertain, even though on a very simple scale, they usually do give some kind of party in her honor.

I am completely against any member of your family giving a shower for the bride-to-be, because it is not considered good taste for a member of one family, the bride's or the groom's, to give a shower for the bride-to-be. (And a girl of good taste would not welcome such a plan, which, she would know, would be criticized by her discriminating friends as a "promotion" for gifts.)

But I am a hundred percent in favor of your mother and father being hosts at a dinner in honor of their son's fiancee, inviting the members of her immediate family, close relatives of the groom, and if convenient, the members of the wedding party.

Ordering Engraved Cards for the Graduate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter, who is graduating from High School this coming June, has asked for visiting-cards as one of her graduation presents, and my husband and I are planning to give them to her as soon as possible so that she will have them to enclose with her graduation invitations. Before I go to order them, I want to be sure whether or not "Miss" should be engraved before her name: . . should it be? And what type of engraving would you advise?

"Her" Mother

Yes, "Miss" should be engraved before her name on the cards. Ask your engraver to show you Shaded Antique Roman. This is a favorite of mine, for its letters are tall and graceful, not so "set" as some of the other shaded letters. And Script, less expensive than shaded letters, is always in excellent taste, but if you choose Script, don't choose one so fine, for "right".

Congratulatory Telegram Addressed to Bride and Groom

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A dear friend of mine is being married in her cousin's home in Texas. Since she went there to visit and met there the man who is now her fiance, I have not met him. (When they are married next month, I want to send a telegram of best wishes. Should I address this telegram to both, or to her only, including congratulations to him in the telegram itself?

W. S.

Congratulatory telegrams for a wedding should be addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." even though you have not met one of the couple.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

When You're Feeling All Dragged Out

Wear and tear, due to the tension of the times and the anxieties of the last few years, are showing up on the faces of many women who, had life been more peaceful, would have retained their youthful freshness for a much longer period.

If the average woman would answer truthfully the question, "How are you?" she would answer, "I'm dog tired." You hear expressions of weariness wherever women are gathered. Life keeps them on the jump, home women as well as career girls. No man would believe the number of items that mama crowds into a day of activity—marketing household chores, laundry work answering the ever-jangling telephone, mending clothes, chasing out to a P.-T.A. meeting, helping the kids with their lessons. It is surprising that when she falls into bed she gives a sigh that almost raises the roof!

Long before Daddy comes home, the muscles in Mama's neck are tense, her back feels all tightened up. She is in a state of hurried restlessness as she prepares dinner. Mama is fevident, is overdoing.

But what can she do about it? Children aren't always well-behaved, the dog tracks in mud, maybe a water pipe bursts. Such things happen. They don't make for peace of mind or a stable nervous system. Mama looks in the mirror in the morning, wonders how that strange woman got in the house. Her face feels like an old walnut—all creased and ridgy.

If mama can get away for a fruitful vacation, that's fine and dandy. But how many women can? The next best thing is to try to take the job more casually to snatch periods of relaxation whenever possible. When the kids are at school and baby is having his afternoon nap is the time for the boss of the domestic works to do a flop. Let's hope the doorbell doesn't ring, or the dog bark.

In time a woman can learn to relax at a moment's notice, snatch a little rest. But to do that she must have her nervous system in hand. She must train her mind to a state of semi-consciousness. If she's going about the pile of ironing that is waiting for her, she might as well get up and do it.

Sometimes the warm bath will bring release from tension and the jitters. The temperature of the water should be lukewarm. Extremely hot and cold baths are too stimulating when one is fatigued. Soak and relax. Close your eyes and the doors of your mind.

It is evident that Mama is Overdoing.

The tired woman, mindful of the tasks that are before her, instinctively draws her eyebrows together, or clamps her teeth tight. Those habits bring wrinkles in flocks. If the habits continue, no magic cosmetic or beauty treatment will erase them.

The body must be relaxed and the skin freshened by good circulation, proper nutrition and a nervous system that no longer riots.

Strive for a Pretty Figure

By HELEN FOLLETT

Do you cut a pretty figure? If not, why not? The feminine form divine depends upon good nutrition and a sound, healthy musculature. If a healthy woman lets her girlish figure go to seed, and take on spread middles, it is just too bad. Also, it is usually her own fault.

Reducing salons and a non-fattening diet will put any heavyweight in form. One visit to the family doctor may turn the trick. He will plan meals for every day of the week, meals that will supply necessary food elements and which will, in time, deplete tonnage.

Pleasing Silhouette

It won't do to take the pleasing silhouette for granted. One must cherish and take care of it since oncoming years may bring unfavorable changes. Any woman can spare fifteen minutes a day for exercise that will keep the blood streams dancing; act as an insurance against those pannikers or an expanded waist line.

Stand erect, right hand on a table for support. Swing the left leg forward as high as you can, then give a backward kick, keeping the body rigid; six times. Stand with the left hand on a table for support, fling the right leg about. You've no idea how this exercise will keep fatted calves from forming, thighs from developing.

Lie on Floor

Lie on the floor on your back, lift one leg slowly six times, the other six times, both six times and repeat. Put plenty of energy in these movements so there will be muscle pull.

Here is the best one of all for reducing waist, hips and thighs: Lie on the back in bed, hands under the hips for support. Lift the legs slowly until you are fairly standing on the back of your neck. Lower them slowly. At the first sign of fatigue, relax, take a dozen long, slow breaths. Then at it again.

Physicians recommend this exercise for tightening abdominal muscles that have lost tone. It has a favorable effect upon the internal organs, especially if one suffers from constipation.

Advice to the Lovelorn

What's The Matter With Modern Men?—The Girls Want to Know

A good many girls are getting rather bitter about what they declare a tendency on the part of men today to demonstrate their love-making as a routine part of "dating", and especially of "going steady." They say that if they refuse to co-operate in any such program, they find themselves sitting home night after night with only a good book for company.

One girl wants to know if this sort of masculine behavior has come in with the current generation, or if it has been going on since the beginning of time.

"Can you explain men of this generation," she writes, "or have they been this way all of the generations?"

"I am a girl of 18, who went with a young man 22. I learned to love him very much, and he told me he also loved me. After one year of going steady, he asked me to have an affair with him to prove my love for him. This made me very angry, and I told him if that was the kind he was, I didn't care to see him any longer, so we broke up. My question is: Is this natural?"

And another girl declares that she "just can't keep a boy friend, because as soon as they find out I won't lose my self-respect and be what they call 'natural,' they drop me for someone who isn't so prudish". She wants to know if I think "that a girl is right in trying to preserve the 'old-fashioned' ideas her parents taught her," and asks: "Can a girl ever find a man to love and marry by keeping her self-respect?"

Apparently both these girls, who are typical of many others whose letters discuss the same situation, feel that self-respect and self-control, high standards and ideals, are things that go in and out of style like ostrich plumes and slang, and that today, we live in an era in which they must be considered "old-fashioned". They are not yet old enough, in either years or experience, to have learned to discriminate between the superficialities of life, which are short-lived, and the fundamentals, which are always the same.

As one thinker put it: "Fashions of this world are in continuous change, and I would concern myself with the things that are abiding."

Yet even though they seem to feel that the ideals instilled in them by their parents must be out of date, both these girls, you will notice, prefer to stick by them rather than give them up. However puzzled they may be to explain it, they obviously feel that these "old-fashioned ideas" are sounder guides for conduct than any "new-fashioned" ways they have observed.

These two, and all the other girls who have written me to ask much the same questions, can rest assured that they are choosing wisely when they take the way of self-control and self-respect, rather than that of self-respect-ence. As they grow older, they will discover that there are many reasons why this is so.

And in case all this sounds like just so much preaching, let me say that one of these many reasons—and perhaps the most striking one is something completely selfish. It is simply this: that the person who acts with self-control and self-restraint almost always finds in the end that it has been to his own best interests, while the one who discards such standards in favor of the impulse of the moment, usually discovers eventually that has sadly defeated his own ends.

Following a short devotional service and business period, entertainment was provided by contests and games, after which a mock marriage was staged with Mrs. Lockyer playing the wedding music for the entrance of Mrs. Alexander as the "bride" and Mrs. Cornish as the "groom". Mrs. Cornish read a short address to Mrs. D. R. Harrison, while Mrs. Alexander presented a small gift from the ladies, as a token of the esteem in which Mrs. Harrison is held by all who have been associated with her in group work, and Mrs. Harrison graciously responded, expressing her appreciation for the kindness of the women, and gratitude for their useful gift.

For the past five years, Mrs. Harrison has made her home with her brother, Mr. E. R. Taylor and family, Foster Ave., and is now leaving to return to Alberta, where she lived prior to coming to Belleville. The best wishes of a host of friends go with her to her new home there.

About forty ladies, including members and visitors, attended the May meeting of the Tabernacle W.A. held Thursday afternoon in the ladies' parlor at the church, when Mrs. G. G. Cornsilne presided for the opening exercises and business period.

Rev. F. R. Harbeck conducted the worship service, choosing "Motherhood" as his subject based on the Bible passages concerning Mary, the mother of Jesus, and her relation to different incidents in His life.

1. The mysteries surrounding the birth in Bethlehem, as told by the gospels of St. Matthew and St. John, when "joy" was emphasized, which, in the East was most unusual.

2. The flight into Egypt, necessitating strength and endurance in Mary's part.

3. Jesus at 12 years, found in the temple by His parents, and the surprise that they should not understand that His mission had begun—Mary's sensitiveness at His rapid mental development.

4. Mary and Jesus together, enjoying social contacts with friends at a marriage feast in Canada.

5. Mary, with her other sons, Jesus and Jesus to Capernaum to learn for herself if the "news" which His example of consistent life was true; and His declaration that He was fulfilling the prophecies which have become His family, which, perhaps, caused Mary some unhappiness through her misunderstanding.

6. Jesus on the cross committing His mother to the care of John "the Beloved" thus emphasizing His human love, and leaving to humanity His example of consideration for parents.

7. When the early church in Jerusalem had increased from 120 to 300 souls in one day, Mary was there praying with the other Christians."

Never Lost Faith

"Mary", continued the speaker, "moved through all the great experiences and sacrifices of motherhood without losing her faith in God, and especially separating from the church, where she might help to carry on the task and accomplish the purpose for which her son had come to earth. We find love, faith, courage and hope in her life, and we can be the attributes of motherhood the world craves."

Mr. Harbeck closed this service with the hymn, "Abide with Me, Fast Falls the Eventide" and a benediction.

Continuing the program, Miss Ethel Horton welcomed the great-grandmothers to the meeting saying, "Formerly the W.A. has paid tribute at more than one 'May meeting' to mothers and grandmothers, but today we hold 'open house' for you, the great-grandmothers of the Tabernacle congregation."

While Mrs. Harbeck read the poem "My Mother", Miss Horton personally welcomed each of the great-grandmothers present, and presented each with a small token for remembrance. From a list of 18 names, eight were present; two of these being sisters, and for different reasons,—Mrs. George Sprackett who has 31 great-grandchildren, and Mrs. John Blakely who had small Patricia Blakely with her. Patricia and her sister, Shirley, were born in England and they are the only wee Canadian-born sister, Rose Marie. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Blakely, Ridley Street.

Musical Program

Mrs. Frank Jeffrey of Holloway Street Church W.A. with Mrs. George Wright as accompanist, contributed a timely solo "Your Mother Loves You Still", which was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Jeffrey expressed appreciation to Mrs. Jeffrey for this fine solo, and in addition to the program.

"Things our great-grandmothers missed" was the next of a contest conducted by Mrs. M. C. Burgess, including a Bible lesson from the 15th Chapter of St. John, which called for 15 articles mentioned in the lesson.

Readings were given by Miss Sara Wallace, Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Harry Thompson. Mrs. Morley Hagerty conducted a contest work being done in Shanal mission field, and Mrs. Haggerty reviewed the second chapter of the Study book, on religions in India.

On behalf of the society, Mrs. H. Wallace expressed gratitude to Mrs. Fleming for her hospitality. Donations were brought by the members to be given to Mrs. Villetorte for her friends in Finland.

Mrs. Milton Shaw dismissed the meeting with prayer.

Election of Woman Alderman Signifies Another Gain In Struggle of Quebec Women

By MADORE ALBIN
((Canadian Press Staff Writer))

Montreal, May 2 —(CP)— Election of Gertrude Ennard as alderman of neighboring St. Lambert signified another gain in the struggle of Quebec women for political emancipation.

For years Quebec women fought male prejudice before obtaining provincial suffrage in 1940 — 18 years after women of other provinces had been enfranchised — although federal suffrages was obtained in 1918. Some Quebec municipalities still bar women from holding office as do many professional organizations.

At present Miss Ennard and Kathleen Fisher, only councillor on Montreal's 90-member council, are the sole voices of Quebec women in the municipal field.

Nominated by last month's electors by members of St. Lambert's Proprietors League, Mrs. Ennard received a majority of 363 votes over ex-Alderman Henri George Gointhier, son of George Gointhier, Auditor-General of Canada, and a prominent business man.

"I consider it a real personal triumph to have beaten an influential man like Mr. Gouthier," she said in an interview.

Non-Partisan Miss Ennard believes she was elected because people who voted for her had complete faith that she would do a good job. Years of experience and sincerity were outstanding factors in her victory.

Congratulatory telegrams, letters and telephone calls besieged Miss Ennard after it was learned she was the first woman to be elected alderman in St. Lambert's history. One letter came from distant British Honduras.

Mrs. Theodule Bruneau and Elizabeth Monk, the latter among the first women admitted to the Quebec bar, are the only other women who have held public office in the province. Both were councillors from 1940 to 1942.

The gifts were varied and as each was unwrapped Miss Richards thanked the donor personally. When the last balloon burst, it directed her to a large parcel containing a gift from the entire group, i.e., a beautiful rose and gold colored Bedford Bed blanket, for which Miss Richards voiced her appreciation. To all these friends whose friendship she has so kindly expressed in this "warm" gift.

The lunches served delectable refreshments in the dining-room, where the table was gracefully centred with pink carnations, and centred with a bowl of sweetpeas. The place cards were attached to flower favors, and the table lighted with tapers in candlesticks.

All present enjoyed the evening of delightful entertainment and before leaving thanked the hostess for her hospitality, and wished for the honor guest much future happiness.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Elva Tyrne is handicapped by a dread of making wrong responses in her bridge games. No excuse for it. All in the head. Being smart enough to boil an egg, she thinks not have to lay one.

Merely learn the simple routine replies and you can also your fears goodbye forever. Providing, however, you do not let some expert or partners of hers berpuss talk you into something else.

In answer to an opening bid of one, do not pass if you have more than two tricks. When you bid, until you run out of tricks, follow the order of choice suggested by T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump.

In answer to an opening of two in a suit, never pass until game is reached. With one trick, first bid two no-trump and then follow T-A-N. With a sure trick, follow T-A-N at once.

Hold strictly to these rotine replies and you will never be in the wrong. Never, never, never. If the final result turns out bad, it will be only because your partner did something wrong.

Are you going to stand there and tell me that your partner has a more brilliant way? And his brilliant way is what makes you fear your responses will be wrong? Then he is wrong to use them with you.

South opened with a bid of two spades. West passed. North leaped a response of three spades would be too weak with this hand:

♠ K Q 4 3 2
♣ K 3

No reason why a three spade leap should be wrong. With a sure trick, follow T-A-N at once. With no biddable takeout suit, an assist is the correct first response.

The opening two bid is forcing to game. Partner has announced that he will not stop short of game. He reply promises a sure trick and spade support. He knows enough to probe now for a slam.

Is there a fear that partner may pass the three spade bid? It he does, he should have his head examined. Or his system.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 2 (CP)—Accordeing to the song, the Mississippi is the 'Ole man river that just keeps rolling along. Hollywood, too has a counter part that does the same thing and who has a mouth, according to the latest geodetic survey, just a few inches narrower.

We speak, of course, of Joe E. Brown.

There are those who like the earthy Brown and there are those who don't but none can detract from the honor he won during the war for his devotion to the troops. Hope and Crosby had better press agents. Brown didn't want one. And wherever he went, the guys loved him because he too was a guy and he understood them.

Mr. B. went up front, did his turn, drank coffee and stayed. When his teeth chattered it sounded like a machine-gun barrage, they say, but he stuck it out. And when his son lost his life in the Pacific, Joe worked harder than ever in the best tradition of the stage, because his heart is twice as big as his mouth.

A couple of weeks ago, in Chicago, Joe put on a party. He is playing there in the famous stage play "Harvey." Yes, the one about the rabbit. In fact, the play is in its 41st week in the windy city and Joe is the star.

As you might expect, the party wasn't a very formal affair. There were in attendance a number of Joe's friends including Roger Hornsby—getting stout now—Elmer Layden of the four horsemen and football fame, Brock Pemberton, Pulitzer prize winner (twice, I think), and a number of others.

Joe took the occasion to announce that in a few weeks he is returning to Hollywood to make another movie. This time with a new fervor fanned by the loss of his son and by his ingrained love of kids he will a dissertation on juvenile delinquency.

He will play the role of a minister, dedicated to helping the kids in the back alleys. The film is tentatively entitled "My Son and I" and you can bet your last oscar Joe E. Brown will reach right in to his heart to do a good job.

The little fellow has been through the mill. Hollywood and its phonies have never baffled him. He has been up, down and around but one part that never was denied was his character.

GREENWOOD CLUB RACING MEETING MAYBECANCELLED

Possibility O.J.C. Meeting Which Follows May Also be Called Off

Toronto, May 2 (CP)—It seemed definitely established today that the dispute over minimum purses between the race track and the horse owners would result in suspension of the first scheduled Canadian racing meet of the season—and possibly the second also.

Official announcement was expected later today that the meeting of the Greenwood Racing Club at Woodbine Park here would not be held, as scheduled, from May 3 to 16. There was no distinct possibility that the Ontario Jockey Club's meeting at the same track, from May 17 to 24, also would be suspended.

The impression, otherwise the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association, have been campaigning for minimum purses of $1,500 at the Toronto tracks. The condition books for the Greenwood and O.J.C. clubs listed minimum purses of $1,200, and yesterday Col. K.R. Marshall, president of both racing clubs, said that minimum would not be altered.

Officials of the Ontario Jockey Club met a committee from the H.B.P.A. here yesterday and although no official statement was issued after the meeting it was learned that compromise suggestions by the horsemen got nowhere.

The horsemen were understood to have told the track owners that if they agreed to higher minimums the horsemen would make concessions at the autumn meetings if it was shown that the tracks lost money by boosting purses during the spring meetings.

Official announcement of the track decision was expected after the deadline the club owners set for replies to a questionnaire in which they asked horsemen to express willingness to race under present conditions. One spokesman for the horse owners said that more than seven had answered the questionnaire.

NEXT AT THE BELLE — Ingrid Bergman provides romantic excitement in RKO Radio's romantic adventure, "Notorious," co-starring Cary Grant, and produced and directed by Alfred Hitchcock. Claude Rains, Leopoldine Konstantin and Louis Calhern head the distinguished supporting cast.

Canadians Place Four Players On N.H.L. All-Star Team and Each Man Gets $1,000 Cheque

Doug Bentley and Milt Schmidt Are Other Two Members of Squad

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, May 2 — (CP) — A somewhat backstop, a bruising, rushing defence and a trio of high-flying, high-scoring forwards ranks this year's all-star coaches' dream team of the National Hockey League as a formidable selection.

The 1946-47 mythical team was selected by the circuit's six coaches from members of teams other than their own.

Although the Stanley Cup-winning Toronto Maple Leafs failed to make the team, the four-times-in-a-row league champion, Montreal Canadiens got the lion's share with four placings. Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks nailed the two other positions.

Here's the "perfect sextet" that would be an opposing coach's nightmare if set down on the ice together—

Selected by Coaches

The all-stars were selected by the coaches, who named their 1st, second and third choices among opposing players. Their own players were excluded from their selections to prevent any charges of favoritism. First choice got 3 points, second two and third one.

Only player selected unanimously was the swivel-hipped, bullet-shot Richard, who topped the scorers last season with 45 goals and set the all-time mark of 50 in the 1945-46 season. He got the maximum 6 points, and Schmidt, versatile at left wing and defence as well, collected 14 to win the centre spot. Durnan and Reardon had 13 points each, Bouchard 13 and Bentley 10.

Second Team

The second team, with points voted, was:

To the members of the all-star crew, selected this year by the coaches for the first time as the Canadian Press polled sports writers in the N.H.L. cities to select the team in previous years—go individual cheques for $1,000 from the Hockey Writers, who won the Vezina Trophy for goal-tending for the fourth time in a row last season, collects an equal amount for copping the trophy.

Selected Referee

With the exception of Reardon, the rushing, hustling defenceman who sparked Canadiens to some of their greatest victories this year, the squad is all-star in past selection, as well.

Durnan has been named to the first team in each of his four years in the N.H.L. Schmidt and Emile Bouchard held down a second-team spot before making the first squad last year; Schmidt was selected in 1939-40 before he went into the armed forces, Richard's selection was his third in a row, and Little Max Bentley has been on two all-star squads before this year.

BUDGET DEBATE RESUMES TUESDAY

Ottawa, May 1 — (CP)—Veterans Minister Ian Mackenzie, House leader, informed the Commons yesterday that the budget debate would be resumed Tuesday and would continue without intermission until it was concluded.

LARRY MACPHAIL AND CHANDLER HOLD TALK FEST

Neither Party Has Any Comment to Make After Long Session

By WHITE HOWELL

Cincinnati, May 2 — (AP)—It looks as if Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler has accomplished, at least temporarily, one of his tougher tasks — that of getting the silencer on red-haired Larry MacPhail, volcanic voice of the New York Yankees.

The two terrific talkers put on a conversational contest for six hours and 40 minutes in Happy's office yesterday and just who won the marathon is still a mystery.

MacPhail appeared on the outpost at Chandler's order, the supposition being he wanted to chat with Larry about the latter's failure to observe a "don't open your mouth except to breathe" edict relating to the circumstances surrounding the Jack Graney-to-Brooklyn Dodger manager, Leo (The Lip) Durocher.

After the long conference MacPhail said: "I have no comment and Chandler wouldn't even say that, except he thought it was swell." MacPhail flew back to his Yankee base last night.

Chandler, who so pass up a chance to say a few well-chosen words, declared: "Larry and I talked and "talked out" as he turned to the newspapermen and inquired, "I'm sorry I'll not be able to help you. If you want any information you must get it from this office."

Spring Training For Rugby Squads Starts Monday

(By The Canadian Press)

Spring training will start in the football fields of widely separated provinces as Hamilton Tigers and Toronto Argonauts prepare ready by League and Hamilton Wildcats of the Ontario Rugby Football Union begin next Monday — the same day Winnipeg Blue Bombers start getting in shape some thousands of miles away. Saskatchewan Roughriders and Regina expect to begin this week.

Dennis White, Quebec province's supervisor of amateur boxing, said in Montreal yesterday that unless the Toronto Lions Club Schmidt, versatile at left wing Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, no championship fights will compete in the club's annual charity boxing show in Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens. With sanctions of the Union, he said, he hopes to be ready to allow the four boxers tagged for the show to come to Toronto.

Halifax defeated Liverpool Stanley 12-12 yesterday in a British Rugby League match in London.

Marcel Cerdan, French holder of the European middleweight boxing championship, said he will leave New York by plane Saturday for France to defend his title against England's Vince Hawkins, European welterweight champion. He said the fight would be held either in London or Paris on a date to be set after his arrival.

Marty Servo, former world welterweight boxing champion who relired last September when he had to forego a title bout with Sugar Ray Robinson, said yesterday that chairman Eddie Eagan of the New York State Athletic Commission had prompted that his license would be reinstated soon. He retired because of a nose ailment. Physicians have assured him he will be able to fight again.

Palestine will compete for the first time in the Olympic Games when the meet is held in England next year, Leib Sirkin, coach of the Hapoel soccer team said on arrival in Philadelphia yesterday. He added that swimming, boxing, wrestling, track and field, gymnastics, rowing, tennis and soccer teams would compete.

Sauras Surrenders To Quebec P. P.

Montreal, May 1 (CP)—Conrad Sauras, an official of the Canadian Seamen's Union for whose arrest a bench warrant was issued yesterday after his appeal from six-month jail sentence had been rejected, today surrendered to provincial police.

Sources was sentenced to jail after he was convicted of boarding a vessel here during the seamen's strike last summer without permission of ship's captain. Counsel for Sauras said today he had no intention of desire to evade sentence, that he was under the impression he could have a few days' delay in which to adjust his personal affairs.

CHIPS

OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

When Sandy "Black-Jack" O'Donnell rolls into the Arena ring here tonight to wrestle Mike "The Body Beautiful" Sharpe, the fans are due to see two vastly different and contrasting mat stylists. O'Donnell is not the usual ring villain. Rather he should be said to be more of a straight tonight of a wrestler who occasionally resorts to slugging. Sandy has a rubbery body that enables him to duck or under violent punishment and still come back swinging.

In contrast with the man who made the black-jack famous in wrestling circles, Mike Sharpe is the classical wrestler. Bold Michael has just about everything to make a perfect athlete. Six feet six inches or more tall, weighing two hundred and forty pounds, built like a Greek god, young Mr. Sharpe is following the classical style in his wrestling. Every move is nearly perfect to watch. Breaking onto the wrestling hortizon only a short year ago Iron Mike (as they call him in St. Louis) is being hailed as the coming champion of the world by those who should know.

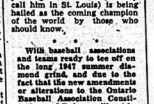
With baseball associations and teams now well set off on the long 1947 summer diamond grind, it is to be hoped the fact that the new amendments or alterations to the Ontario Baseball Association's Constitution and Bylaws will not be ready in printed form for two or three weeks, we pass on some of the data regarding amendments which will be enforced this year, thanks to Secretary F. Rowland of the OBA and Executive member Ken J. Collins.

* * *

Reinstatements - Tryouts

Any player who has signed a contract with a professional baseball club and who receives unconditional release from such professional club prior to July 15, shall become eligible to play in the OBA immediately he returns to his home city, drops in to the club room which he advanced to pro company, or may play with any club in the province providing he qualifies under the OBA residence rule.

Any player on signing a contract with a pro club for the purpose of a tryout must notify the OBA secretary on his tryout form, and if he fails to be being released from a pro club he shall immediately be forward to the OBA a copy of his uncontested release before he is eligible to take part in the OBA competition.



CLASSIFICATIONS

The OBA will operate three new groups in 1947, Intermediate "C" for towns and communities with a population under 3,000; Minor "B" for towns and villages, population limit, 7,500; Bantam "B" for towns and villages, population limit 7,500 and under, for a change this year in classification limit from 5,000 to 7,500; Junior "B" and Junior "C" the limit is now 7,500.

* * *

EXPENSES ALLOWED

In case of minor postponed games, owing to rain, fog, same, etc., the visiting team must pay the visiting club half the actual expenses, for the amount payable to the visiting club in any one game shall not exceed $60. Where the visiting team does not agree to remain overnight and play the postponed or its game the following day, then the home team shall provide suitable accommodation for the visiting club. Full expenses of said accommodation to be paid by visiting club.

PLAYERS ADVANCING TO HIGHER SERIES

A player in the minor series will be allowed to advance during the season to one senior club, or one intermediate club, where there is no senior entry, regardless of whether the senior or intermediate club is playing in the same league as the player leaves from which the player is advancing or not. It being understood that the player shall advance on his minor certificate, he may play in as many league games with the senior club as he so desires, without affecting his status in a lower series. . . .

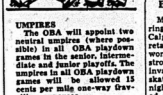
* * *

In all groups below Intermediate, a player may advance, and play in three league games only, without losing his status, or the right to revert to his former lower series club. In the minor OBA playdowns, all games in the future will be home and home regardless of the distance travelled by the clubs. Third game, if necessary, to be played on neutral ground.



UMPIRES

The OBA will appoint two neutral umpires (where possible) in all OBA playdown games in the senior, intermediate and junior playoffs. The umpires in the OBA playdown games will be allowed 15 cents per mile one-way travelling expenses.

In future the official Reach or Spalding baseball will be used in Junior, Juvenile and Midget playdowns.

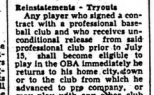
* * *

ELIGIBILITY OF CLUB PLAYERS

In order to be eligible to participate in the Ontario Baseball Association playdowns, players must represent a city, town or municipality within the boundaries of the province of Ontario. Players must be bona-fide and continuous residents of the province in accordance with OBA rules and regulations.

* * *

The incoming executive of the OBA was instructed to consider the advisability of establishing a tournament among its senior and intermediate "A" clubs during July or the early part of August.



(News Item—Jack Bond, advertising staff of Ontario Intelligencer weds Nurse Lillian Dillon)

'Tis said that single guys are wasted
'Could be, not me," grinned staffer Jackie.
"I finally let it through my head
That the time had come when I should wed.
'Tis said, when wed, from bad to worse,
You go, not me, I've gotta nurse
To tender to my aches and ills,
While she's got me to pay the bills."

So today he's prancing, high his head,
To the office where now he should be wed,
His bachelor days behind him lie
Ahead there's nothing but bliss and joy
Together, hand-in-hand they
Along life's road in rosy glow,
In beneficial pond impressed,

Chance of Retaining Allan Cup Does Not Appear Bright for Westerners

Montreal, May 2 (CP)—Barring a sudden change of tide, Calgary Stampeders' chances of retaining the Allan Cup they won last year looked none too strong today. The crimson-clad invaders from the west were outskated and outclassed here last night as Montreal Royals romped to their second Dominion title in the best-of-seven Dominion series final.

Outshot nearly three to one by Frank Carlin's hard-skating Royals, the defending champions were unable to solve goalie Russ Dertell's great goaltending.

At the other end of the ice Royals' netminder Paul McNeil didn't have much work to do. He chalked up his fourth shutout since Royals started along the Allan Cup trail in search of this city's first Dominion-Allan Championship since 1930.

The squads move back to Toronto for the next three games with Calgary's hopes dim. They were handed the two goals with Today's ice in the first game when Royals trounced them 7-3 in Toronto, and couldn't get going at all last night on the Forum sheet which was slightly east of the game.

Every Royal player except the goalie and Denis Casavant got on the score sheet. Gerry Plamondon scored two goals, with Tod Campeau, Cliff Malone, Floyd Curry, Jimmy Haggerty, Pierre Galbraith and Jacques Locks getting the other goals, and 10 men sharing 13 assists.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

Toronto, May 2 — (CP)—When the North Bay Nugget phone rang the other day, sports editor Bill Jessup heard the querie: "Are the smelt running at Point au Baril?"

"No, I think they're walking this season," quip backed Jessup.

When there was silence-at the other end of the line, Jessup, a former R.C.A.F. pilot, realized the inquirer was in earnest, so he quickly referred the matter to his officer in charge of angling.

Who Should Pay?

Alan (Branford Expositor) Rose tells of a Galt fan who protested the spending of "public funds" by Premier Leslie Frost to take Maple Leafs at a banquet. The fans argued that the Leafs should have paid, that by "seeing-at was a professional affair" and the club "was making a fortune out of hockey."

Rose says the point "may or may not be well taken in these times when anything goes," but he adds that if there is going to be curtailment of spending public moneys on sport events some think non-essential, "a few folks could make up quite a list."

"The Galt city council gave its Red Wings (juniors) a banquet," says Alan, "and if you can find a more professional outfit than that, we'd take notice." he adds: "Maybe Galt fans complainant should start at home."

* * *

Amateur "Contracts"

When it seemed as though Owen Sound Mohawks would fold in the O.H.A. senior series last winter, Frank Smith came to the rescue. But Bill (Owen Sound Sun-Times) Dane says there is little hope of Frank "assuming the role of sugar daddy next fall.

The sponsor has a good point, argues Smith, because such an important game comes along a player can decide "he doesn't like playing hockey for the way he received all year." Contract would give Smith "complete control" over his "amateurs."

* * *

Unlikes Delay

Now that it's "fairly unanimous" that Toronto's Howie Meeker will be named N.H.L. rookie of the year, Chick (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Appel finds it a bit difficult to understand why president Clarence Campbell and the Commissioner winners of individual awards.

"Hockey fans are still luke warm about the Stanley Cup playoffs but by the time the league presidents announced interest in hockey will have waned," says Chick.

Mize's Eighth Homer For New York Giants Hands His Former Card Mates Eighth Straight Loss

Sam Breadon Flies to New York to Bolster His Sadly Riddled Champions

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Shed a tear for "Sad Sam" Breadon who flew from St. Louis to "pep up" his world champion Cardinals and arrived in time to watch them stumble through an eighth-straight loss on a homer by New York's Johnny Mize.

Mize, an old hired hand whom Breadon peddled to the Giants for $50,000 and three players more than five years ago, but the finger on the last place Card's early season trouble with one full swing of his war club. The Red Bird pitchers are throwing too many home run balls.

Coming up with a man on and the Giants trailing in the seventh Mize hammered a Ken Burkhart delivery against the right field barrier to give the Giants a 5-3 decision.

Ken Trinkle, who had earned the decision Wednesday by pitching one relief inning, picked up a second straight win by blanking the champs in the last three innings as the Giants overcame a 5-0 St. Louis lead.

The leading Dodgers routed Bob Chipman with a three-run second inning and went on for a 5-2 victory over Chicago. Kirby Higbe required relief help from rookie Ed Chandler to preserve his second win.

While St. Louis mourned the Cards' misfortune, the Brownies gave them something to cheer about with a 20-hit attack and 14-5 rout of Washington.

Once again manager Harold (Muddy) Ruel lifted his starting pitcher Jack Kramer and relieved with Cliff Fannin although the Brownies held a 9-2 run lead going into the ninth.

Two homers by Jeff Heath and one by rookie Ray Coleman were the big blows of an attack that included two doubles and a pair of singles by Bob Dillinger.

CHAPTER 6

April was a little appalled with the responsibility she and Gay were assuming on a shoe string. If it hadn't been for Gay's absolute faith that with the help of Tanya and Tony couldn't fail to bring in a lot of new business she would never have had the courage to reopen the school with a staff of five assistants.

Gay had found enough in their venture to pool every cent she had in the world with April's last dollar to buy the new equipment. If all went well in the Fall they would add other musical instructors to their staff of teachers.

And so it was with a determination not to let her friends down and a realization of the long years of raising Kenny stretching before her that April plunged into her work. The face she showed to the world was young and calm, but in her heart she was heavy with tragedy. Her inner feelings showed only in the wide gray eyes with their beaten inner-ly look.

April worked long hours, but there was always Curt De Witt waiting to send any free evenings or Sunday with her. Sometimes they would go yachting in the ocean or golfing or dancing at one of Curt's clubs.

It was obvious to her that the charming man she had met on the plane flying from Reno was falling in love with her, and this worried April when she stopped to think about it. She was sure there could never be anyone in her heart but Hill, and she wondered if it was right to accept Curt's invitations when all she could never be anything but a good friend.

April was aware too that people were talking about her being seen so often with a millionaire, but she tried not to worry about gossip, as she knew there was no way of stopping the tongues wagging. Curt De Witt was a perfect gentleman, and if they must talk she preferred that it would be about her friendship with a man of his good reputation and standing in the community.

After Cherry became a model at the Maison Georgette, April seldom saw her except when she came home to sleep. Cherry was spending her days in the salon on Fifth Avenue and her evenings with Brett Hobart and Lola Hitchcock and her crowd.

She had acquired a much too sophisticated wardrobe for her age, and her eyes were tired and faintly rimmed with blue. But miraculously she kept the innocent baby look in her heart shaped face.

April had seen very little of Brett Hobart, but one look at his bored face told her all she needed to know. He seemed to have a limitless amount of spending money, and enjoyed a place at the top of the list of eligible males of the four hundred. But April was sure he was a spoiled weakling. His one ambition in life seemed to be to see how he could play.

April closed her heart against the fear that Cherry would ruin Cherry's life, and hoped against hope for the day that her young sister would tire of her merry-go-round and get homesick for Pat Hastings and her home in Virginia. She made it a point never to criticize Cherry, or to cross her in any way, because she feared any opposition to discipline her would only have opposite effect.

July and August came and went and April could scarcely believe it was September and kindergarten time for Kenny. He had grown like a weed during the summer months, and was strong and brown as a berry. After the Christmas holidays he would be in the first grade.

One of April's biggest heart aches was the way that Hill had neglected his son. Although she was happy to have Kenny with her instead of at any time, Hill had seen him only once since their divorce. That was when he had telephoned and asked Hyacinthe to bring Kenny to his apartment in Flushing. The boy had talked of his father often the first few weeks, but seldom mentioned him as the time went by.

Hill's new advertising campaign and the hard work of Tony and Tanya Haven's bring in new pupils had increased the business of the music school, with its growth came heavy expenses and April and Gay soon found themselves short money. They had managed to keep their heads above water, but their bank account was appallingly low.

The first week in September a remarkable stroke of good luck came to April Hillyer. One day Gay went to New York on business and when she came home she was greatly excited. She burst into April's room breathlessly.

"Darling," she cried, "you're going to have a radio audition tomorrow!"

"Isn't it very," she laughed. "But something amazing happened today. "You remember hearing me speak of Hartley Jones, the radio director. He directed several of the programs in which I sang. I bumped into him and had lunch today. He's looking for a singer!"

April laughed: "Does anybody want to look for a singer, sweet? I thought they were a nickel a carload."

"Ah," Gay held up a finger. "They are. But not the kind who can sing operatic arias and lullabies and old folk songs in a mellow contralto that plays on the heart strings. I told him about you, and you're to be at the World Wide Radio Studios at 11 o'clock. Madame Gall says she'll go and accompany you."

"But, I haven't thought of singing professionally as yet. What do I want with a radio audition? I'm teaching music, I'm not a singer."

Gay said eagerly: "Oh, but you've never been in better voice in your life, Madame Gall and I were listening to you as you played the piano in your studio yesterday when you broke down and sang "Home Sweet Home!" Your voice had something that I've never heard before. It's so warm and human and full of sympathy! I wouldn't tell you it was if I didn't believe it darling. You know that. Won't you give it a whirl?"

When April shook her head negatively, Gay said: "But you can't throw all that money away when we need it so much. Think what it would mean to us. There's a fortune to be had if you click. If Hartley gets a sponsor for you you'll make a lot of money. It's like a sweet business, he says. An evening show. You could still spend a lot of time at the school."

April weakened. "If there is money in it, I suppose I'll have to try. I probably won't win the audition anyway. But for your sake, I'll do it."

Gay jumped up and gave April a tight squeeze.

"I knew you would, darling! Oh, I'm so thrilled. It's a grand chance for you. It's a crime to throw a voice like yours away. I've always thought so."

"But what shall I sing?" April asked.

"Hartley wants only old familiar songs. Ballads and folk songs and lullabies. He says people are so sick of swing they're hungry for that sort of thing. The telephone for advertise Grandmother's Lavender Soap, That's another one he wants old familiar songs."

Two pink spots of excitement were by that time burning in April's usually pale cheeks. Singing on the radio had been her girlhood dream before she fell in love with and married him. Now perhaps it was to come true.

"I'll probably disgrace you," April told Gay the next morning holding her shaking knees as they rode over to the auditorium in Madame Gall's car.

"Nonsense," said Madame Gall. "I know you'll be wonderful. I hear one! If you just forget the microphone for a moment and sing as you sing everything will be all right."

April was glad that the studio where they were ushered into World Wide was deserted except for Hartley Jones and an attendant. She had expected a crowd of competitors.

"I'm taking you first," Jones explained when she asked him where the other singers to be auditioned were. "The others are coming this afternoon," Gay thought you might be a little mike shy, so I thought we'd better take it alone."

April said gratefully: "That was very kind of you. I am a little scared."

In a short while Gay went with Hartley into the small glass enclosed room off the studio where the broadcast April was voice coming over the microphone, and soon she lost in the lovely strains of "Old Folks at Home."

After April had sung three numbers Hartley Jones who sat listening tensely said quietly to her:

When Hartley Jones telephoned April the next morning that she had won the audition to sing on the Grandmother's Lavender Soap program and asked her to come to Manhattan to sign the contracts that afternoon, she was more surprised than she had ever been before in her life.

It didn't make sense. Singers struggled for years to get a break like that, without success. Wonderful singers with voices she felt were much better than hers. But it was true, this amazing luck. All she was to have an income that would keep the school and the house running without any further worry over bills. Together she and Gay wept tears of joy, and felt that perhaps it wasn't such a bad old world after all.

Only Surplus Canadian Cheese Sent to Britain

Ottawa, May 2 (CP)—Only surplus Canadian cheese—usually about 70 per cent of the amount produced—will be sent to the British Market and that will be bought at the floor price, Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Commons yesterday.

He was replying to the questions from H. E. Drope (PC—Northumberland) and J. T. Tustin (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox). Mr. Tustin had asked if the government intended to requisition all cheese made in Ontario and Quebec from April 1 until late next fall to fulfill Canada's agreement with the United Kingdom.

In reply to Mr. Drope he said the cheese prices announced in the Commons yesterday were floor prices. The prices announced then were: "First grade 25 cents a pound; second grade 24 cents, 1-2 cent; third grade 24 cents. Previously the British food ministry had agreed to pay only 23.3 cents a pound for first grade.

Anglo-Soviet Talks On Treaty Revision Will be Resumed

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

London, May 1 —(AP)— A government source said today Prime Minister Stalin and Foreign Secretary Bevin agreed at their Moscow meeting to resume talks between Russia and Great Britain on a revision of the Anglo-Soviet friendship treaty.

The informant, who may not be identified by name, said Stalin also expressed hope that Russia would have a wheat surplus after the next harvest and that Great Britain could get some if needed, probably at a lower price than from Canada or the United States.

The informant said that although difficulties emerged in the talks on treaty revision, these sprang from Russia's anxiety that Great Britain at no stage should enter into any form of an anti-Soviet political alliance.

Stalin also was said to have told Bevin that because of the British coal shortage, Britain should make up some of its urgent needs from Ruhr mines. Stalin was quoted as saying it was right and proper that the German people should work harder to alleviate some of the sufferings they brought upon the Allies.

Workers in Italy Hold Brief Strike, Protesting Ambush

Large Demonstrations Staged in Rome and Milan

By FRANK O'BRIEN

Rome, May 3. (AP)— Workers throughout Italy held a 24-hour general strike and mass meetings today in protest against the May Day ambushing and machine-gunning of a Workers' and Peasants' parade in Sicily.

From 10,000 to 15,000 persons, some waving crepe-draped national and Red flags, shouted "enough, enough!" as Rome speakers declared that there must "be an end to the spilling of workers' blood."

All workers except those in public services and utilities were called out in Rome's half-day strike by the powerful general labor confederation. The walkout caused Rome afternoon newspapers to suspend publication.

Eight persons were killed and 33 wounded among 400 in the May Day parade. They were machine-gunned in Piana degli Ginestra near Palermo Thursday morning by persons hidden on a hill 300 yards away.

The Labor Confederation's strike resolution said Sicily's "attempted massacre" placed responsible for the massacre. It said they were trying to "suffocate the workers' organization in blood."

A two-hour general strike was staged in Rome yesterday and scores of clerks struck for 10 minutes on the assembly floor in defiance of the call for an argument over responsibility for the crime.

First Tentative Wage Settlement Hints a Break

Washington, May 3 —(AP)— The first tentative wage settlement between a Bell System Company and an affiliate of the National Federation of Telephone Workers hinted a break today in the cross-country American telephone strike.

Four of negotiations in the capital were filled deadlocked, but there were these bits of development:

1. In Chicago leaders of three N.F.T.W.-affiliated unions accepted a tentative contract with the Illinois Bell Telephone Company, subject to ratification by 10,000 members, It was the first development in the N.F.T.W. from its demand for a wage increase of $6 a week.

2. In Washington, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company made its first monetary offer to its 20,000 long-distance employees.

Though rejected by the American Union of Telephone Workers, this offer was superior to that from the previous A. T. & T. position of offering four cents an hour—ten but making no money proposals.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 3 — (CP)—Synopsis: The storm which brought rain to a large part of Ontario on Friday is now centred over Indiana and is in the process of dissipating. Considerable cloudiness and fog remains this morning in Eastern Ontario but elsewhere mostly clear along Lake Erie and in Northwestern Ontario skies are partly cloudy in the Maritimes and New England states. Over most of Nova Scotia rain has fallen steadily for the past three days and total rainfall in some places exceeds five inches. A disturbance now over Southern Manitoba is moving rapidly southeastward and is expected to bring some rain to Northern Ontario today and showers in Southern Ontario during Sunday followed by cooler weather in northern sections of the province.

Judge to Rule On Day-Durocher Marital Mix-Up

Los Angeles, May 3 (AP)— Whether Leo Durocher's marital mix-up is in the hands of Judge Ingall W. Bull, with a ruling promised next Friday on whether the actress' California divorce from Ray Hendricks is valid or valid.

Durocher, to hear the opposing lawyers tell it in their final arguments yesterday, is either a "fine upstanding gentleman" or a "roughneck from Brooklyn."

Judge Bull is called upon merely to determine whether Miss Day's divorce from Hendricks was obtained through fraud and collusion.

The legal ruckus arose when Miss Day, after obtaining a decree here which would have made her separation from Hendricks final for 12 months, flew to Mexico, took a quickie divorce, and the following day married Durocher, suspended Brooklyn baseball manager, in El Paso, Tex.

Judge George A. Dockweiler called Miss Day and Leo on to the carpet, and Durocher's talks back to umpires, too, insured a statement calling the jurist a "most unethical and pathetic conscious public servant."

Attorney-at-law Joseph Scott appointed by the court to help prosecute the action, is the man who hung the "roughneck from Brooklyn" tag on Leo. The bushy-browed, white - haired Scott stalked back and forth across the courtroom yesterday, his version of how Durocher acts during a ball game.

"Judge Bull another umpire, judge," he told Judge Bull. Scott, who has been practicing law since 1894, commented caustically on Leo's absence from the hearing yesterday.

"Why, with the young bloods of our day, it is hard to put into a jam like this a team of wild horses couldn't have kept him away."

Miss Day's counsel, Isaac Pacht said on the witness stand that Durocher's conduct was such as was aware of what was going on around her and of what was said to her.

The girl, a postal employee, fell asleep in a village theatre Sunday night.

London, May 3 —(AP)—The critics are all warmly today on Winston Churchill and his paintings.

Experts had an advance peep at Churchill's work in a private showing at the exhibit of London's Royal Academy, which hangs only the best in modern art. Churchill made his big-time art debut by getting two pictures accepted there under the pseudonym of "Mr. Winter." His identity became known later.

Both the Times of London and the Daily Telegraph said Churchill's works fully "justify on be their own merit," as The Telegraph phrased it, "the attention they are sure to attract."

"Original"vision combined with sound craftsmanship," The Times said of "Winter Sunshine," a winter scene.

Peter Pierre Jeanneret of The Dail Mail, with tempered enthusiasm, described the works as "pleasing essays" but doubted that Churchill had achieved artistic success.

If he gave up politics, though, and concentrated on art, Jeanneret said, he might turn out to be "an outstanding artist."

EXPECT "EARLY SETTLEMENT" OF TAX AGREEMENTS

Negotiations Leading To Solution Being Held At Official But Not Cabinet Level

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 3. (CP)— Success of the federal government said last night they expected "early settlement" of the differences which so far have failed to secure taxation agreements among the Dominion and Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia.

The sources, saying that Cabinet ministers were unwilling to commit themselves, stated they understood negotiations leading to new agreements were being carried on at official level but not cabinet level.

Since last Monday, they said, there have been new indications that agreements were imminent. In the case of Ontario, they pointed to Prime Minister Mackenzie King's announcement one day that the federal by-election for the vacant Halifax seat will be held June 16.

The seat has been vacant since last November. Some opposition members have claimed that the reason for the delay in calling the by-election was the reluctance of Nova Scotia's Premier, Angus Macdonald, to accept the federal government's terms for a new agreement.

Even Liberal members have said it would be difficult for Mr. Macdonald to support a federal-Liberal candidate if he was at odds with the federal government on taxation agreements.

The sources said that Premier Drew of Ontario and Premier Duplessis of Quebec were not dealing directly with Finance Minister Abbott in agreement negotiations. However their information was to the effect that officials of the three governments below the cabinet rank were holding talks.

Premiers Silent

To support their statements, the sources said that Premier Drew and Premier Duplessis had been privately in touch in recent weeks on the question of Dominion-Provincial relations. When since 1894, commented caustically, Mr. Leo's absence from the meetings was noted.

"Why, with the young bloods of our day, it is hard to put into a jam like this a team of wild horses couldn't have kept him away."

Miss Day's counsel, Isaac Pacht said on the witness stand that Durocher's conduct was such as was aware of what was going on around her and of what was said to her.

The girl, a postal employee, fell asleep in a village theatre Sunday night.

Survivor of Nazi Camp May Become Famous Pianist

By DONALD DOANE

Frankfurt, Germany, May 3 (AP)—Marion Filar, 27-year-old Polish Jew whose 'musical' fingers survived mutilation in a Nazi concentration camp, will go to Prague next week to launch what noted German musicians predict will be a brilliant career as a concert pianist.

Two years ago when Filar emerged from the Belsen concentration camp, an ounce of nutritious Buchenwaldo his fingers were cut and bleeding, the flesh shredded by forced labor making shell casings for the German army.

Stiff and sore as those fingers were, the touch was still there, and the one-time child prodigy began the laborious climb back toward the skill which had caused pre-war Polish critics to hail him.

He found help from a German musician, Anni Fried, a singer. On her piano at Nixdorf he improved so much that within three weeks after his liberation he went to Prague for an audition. Ferenz Kubelik, conductor of the Czechoslovak Philharmonic Orchestra, invited him to appear with his orchestra.

But Filar wanted first to find his family. He found only two brothers still alive. Both had been captured as Jews and died at the hands of the Nazis.

A few days ago he obtained a long-waited exit permit to leave Germany. Now he is ready to accept the invitation to play with the Czechoslovak Philharmonic Orchestra.

FOUR LOBSTER FISHERMEN DROWN AS BOAT SWAMPED

Body of One Found in Water-Filled Boat Which Drifts Ashore

New London Harbor, P.E.I. May 3 (CP).—Four lobster fishermen were drowned just off this north side fishing village last night when their small fishing boat was swamped in storm-tossed waters. The body of ne of the men was found in the water-filled boat which drifted into shore early today.

One Man Held In Snatch Of $6,000 Payroll

Montreal, May 3 (CP).—One of two gunmen who snatched a $6000 payroll of the Pepsi-Cola Company in suburban Cartierville was arrested here last night a few hours after the theft had been committed. News of the holdup was withheld by police until early today.

The robbery took place at noon yesterday when two company employees, Cecile Napper and Margaret Edwards were returning from a nearby bank with the payroll containing the weekly payroll.

The two gunmen held up the girls in a short distance from the bank, forcing them into a waiting yard of a Van Horne avenue home where Miss Napper was struck on the head with the butt of a revolver by one of the men. The men grabbed the satchel. Both bandits fled, but two City of Outremont employees stopped a car driven by the shouts of the victims, gave chase and finally got him.

Under questioning the bandit gave his name as George Thompson, 22, but police later discovered the name was false, and found that shortly before the hold-up his mother had died at her home. Because of this police decline to identify the thief.

Donald Gordon Tendered Banquet For His Services

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Tempolary wartime and loan-play could win the peace, said Donald Gordon, chairman and of the Wartime Prices Board; at a testimonial banquet here last night attended by a gathering of 300.

The immediate outlook may be dark, he continued, but light is emerging," he said.

Mr. Gordon quietly accepted praise of his wartime work from Prime Ministers — Justice Minister Ilsley and Finance Minister Abbott — and in turn commended those who had made his wartime task a success by merging their political, business, even religious and racial differences in meeting the national emergency.

It is unfortunate, said Mr. Gordon, that such team-play could not be carried into international affairs so that "people of different beliefs, habits and ideologies could live together without a sudden urge to cut each other's throats."

"Under the stimulus of war, we have found ourselves ready to peace and we struggle with ignorance, indifference, poverty."

Mr. Ilsley, who previously held the finance portfolio and thus was responsible for the drafting of the acts of the Prices Board, termed Mr. Gordon "a fine gentleman."

"This country owes Gordon an immense debt of gratitude for knowing when to say 'no' and for having the courage to say 'no'. To say 'no' in time is sometimes the most autocracy, it is not bureaucracy. It is courage in the best and highest sense."

Presented with a silver platter and the keys of a new motorcar in recognition of his services, Mr. Gordon said he had been "engaged with" Mr. Abbott that prize "in a most embarrassing profession," and a month later they are giving automobiles away free."

RESCUE CREWS WILL GO BELOW FOR INSPECTION

Whether Eleven Bodies Can be Removed Depends on Conditions in Shaft

By C. C. DUBOIS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Malartic, Que., May 3 (CP). Rescue crews, waiting a week for the to subside so they can go into East Malartic gold mine, were to go below ground today to see if they can bring out the bodies of 11 men trapped there but if not to find a way for their retrieval.

Edward Furterer, mine engineer said last night that crews might go underground at 8 a.m. for inspection purposes. Whether the bodies can be removed will depend upon what the crews, all Leiners Limited men, find on the shaft.

It was just a week ago today that hope was abandoned for the 11 men, imprisoned by fire deep underground by fire which began at the 10th level early on the morning of April 26. The blaze destroyed his life attempting to escape by the 2,000-foot shaft.

Since last weekend the mine has been pumped dry to enable crews to extinguish the flames, burning in chemically-treated timbers. Water was pumped from 760 to 4,000 feet and the flooded conditions below ground may cause some delay in bringing up the bodies.

Names Can Be Released

Mr. Furterer said the water pump at the 10th level is out of commission, however it is now above that level and will have to be repaired before the bodies can be brought up.

Mr. Furterer went forward yesterday on removal of the bulkhead at the shaft after tests taken during the last few days showed that concentrated air was leaving the workings, mixing with fresh air seeped —one No. 4 and No. 3 shafts.

Mr. Furterer now are going the way we went there—one ladder in No. 4 shaft and upcast in No. 3," Mr. Furterer said.

Until the foul air with its carbon monoxide gas is cleared from the shaft there is danger of rescue workers being overcome when they go below ground.

POLICY OF GOVT. ON IMMIGRATION GETS GOING OVER

Most Speakers Claim British Immigrants Should Have Priority In Any Scheme

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 3. (CP)—The initial problem of how Canada best can obtain the immigrants needed to fill her sparsely-settled lands and lightened her standard of living came in for many-sided discussion in the Commons yesterday.

A number of proposals were advanced—that British immigrants be given priority, that the labor of Chinese be governed by a quota, that the Dominion speed up her plans to take care of the refugees, that the general policy be selective.

The debate developed on second reading of a government bill to amend the Chinese Immigration Act, a measure passed in the 1920s which has been widely criticized over the years for the drastic limits it places on the entry of Chinese to Canada.

But most of the points made had reference to a policy statement made yesterday by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in which he reviewed the government's outlook on the broad immigration problem.

The debate continues Monday, May Extend Act

At the House opening Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the Government still was considering extension of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act to the rest of Canada.

External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said that government plans for establishment of a Canadian commission to the U.N.E.S.C.O. still were under study.

Speakers in the immigration debate included Harry White (PC-Middlesex East); Dr. P. E. Gauthier (L-Portneuf), T. Ashton Thompson (PC-Grenville); John R. MacNicol (PC-Toronto Davenport), J. J. Ferguson (PC-Simcoe North), Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC-Nanaimo), Walter Tucker (L-Rosethern), and Lawrence Skey (PC-Toronto Spadina).

Dr. Gauthier suggested the government be very careful in its selection of immigrants and when that question should be "made immigration or any question of subsidizing railways or other organizations which may affect the revenue of the Dominion.

Mr. White suggested that immigration from the Orient should be of a quota basis.

Mauretania Newly Refurbished Reaches N.Y. on First Cruise

By R. J. ANDERSON

New York, May 3 (CP)—A ghost of the golden past came back to New York yesterday.

She was the Mauretania, a nostalgic name to the traveller of the years. Launched in 1906 as the fantastic voyager of that vanished era of easy, gracious travel chose his ship and went to sea in her sixth.

But the Mauretania that steamed through the Narrows and swiftly proceeded up the bay to the welcome that only Manhattan provides was no wraith. She was a 35,739-ton liner that had undergone a 900,000 job of reconversion after her days as a troop transport. She was another weapon in Cunard's post-war battle for survival.

Third Cunard-White Star Liner to bear the name, the new Mauretania, which sailed from Liverpool April 26, returned on this voyage to regular passenger service. Built at a cost of $10,000,000 to carry on the tradition of speed and service of her famous predecessor, she made only 14 round trips between England and New York before the outbreak of war in 1939. In war, she carried 250,300 Allied servicemen, many of them wounded, to world battlefronts and three times escaped from enemies.

The 35,37?-ton liner is the second largest to enter the New York Atlantic run since the war's end and is the Cunard Line's second important passenger vessel returned to peacetime pursuits. The first was the Queen Elizabeth, now in dry-dock, back in service since last October. The 81,000-ton Queen Mary, undergoing reconversion, will return to the shipping lanes in July.

The first Mauretania, 785 feet long, was the largest and fastest ocean liner of her time. Her maiden voyage Nov. 16, 1907. Her last was in May, 1934. The most famous liner with her familiar four red and black funnels made 269 round trips between the Atlantic and for 22 years held the speed record. Her fastest crossing was made at the ripe age of 32 — New York to Plymouth in four days, 17 hours, 50 minutes.

The Mauretania was broken up in 1935, her hulk passing to a 600 old 345-ton paddle steamer converted to a floating pier. The new Mauretania, which sailed from Liverpool April 26, returned on this voyage to regular passenger service. Built at a cost of $10,000,000 to carry on the tradition of speed and service of her famous predecessor, she made only 14 round trips between England and New York before the outbreak of war in 1939. White Prisoners Protest Eating With Negro Inmates

Fort Leavenworth, Kas., May 3 (AP)—One prisoner has been killed and six injured in a riot at the United States Army disciplinary barracks here today involving 800 prisoners. The rioting is continuing unchecked.

Col. Graham S. Patten, commanding officer of the prison, identified the dead prisoner as Dewey Osborne, 30, Mountain City, Tenn., and said he had been "stomped to death."

Parks indicated there might be other dead. "There is a possibility we might find bodies on the inside."

While not commenting on the causes of the riot during which guards have lobbed into two cell blocks more than 200 tear gas shells and grenades the commanding officer told the newspaper a public address system that Negro inmates refused to have been segregated at breakfast this morning and the practice would be discontinued.

Began Friday Morning.

Joe Wellington, Kansas City Times reporter, said that from the information he had gathered the riot began at breakfast Friday morning when white prisoners protested eating at the same table with Negroes.

Maj. Henry C. Trisler, Jr., public information officer, said the outbreak was confined to cell blocks 7 and 8. He said the men had been locked in their cells all day Friday as punishment for the disturbance at breakfast.

"We let them out to eat," he declared, "and the disturbance started again."

He said 1,200 prisoners were in the disciplinary barracks, with about half participating in the riot.

He said the tear gas was having the effect on the men. They have smashed all the windows and doors in the cells, Capt. Keith Thiele, New Zealand, said they have underestimated their fed requirements. The plane is picking up cargo en route.

Indians Refused Permission To Shoot Rapids

By K. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 3 — (CP) — A prospective canoe dash through the boiling Chaudiere Rapids of the Ottawa River by a pair of paddling Indians Sunday was called off last night after police took a look at the roaring waters, called the attempt "practically suicide" and put a ban on the whole thing.

And not only the police thought the Indians would be risking their lives on an uneven chance of success. It was disclosed that a number of insurance companies had declined to underwrite the lives of the paddlers, 42-year-old Chief Harry Aubin and his 43-year-old brother, Tony, who had volunteered to do it as a stunt for the Montgomery branch of the Canadian Legion.

Chief Harry and his brother, long removed from their native Assiniboine Reserve near Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., had been confident they could shoot the Chaudiere Rapids in their canoe in a 10-foot canoe. And they were obviously disappointed that police had moved to stop them.

"We're not going to let them risk their lives," Harry: "We'll take a canoe and shoot the Deschens Rapids further up the river somewhere, just to show them we know what we're doing."

The fact that both Chief Harry and Tony had shot rapids in other rivers in earlier days didn't make any difference police said.

"We're not going to let them risk their lives."

Barrie, May 3 (CP)—An audience of 2,000 at Barrie Arena were in an uproar for 20 minutes last night when a lioness escaped from her cage and leaped over the footlights. She was soon was captured underneath the stage.

During the wild animal act of Merrick Bros. Circus, the lion trainer brought out a male lion from the cage. Before the trapdoor was closed, the female crowded lioness scampered out of the cage and up into the grandstand. Spectators climbed up to closed doors and the shouting of spectators, and the leaping up under the seats, where the trainer and Barrie police closed in to capture her.

Saturday Market

With the transplanting season fast approaching a few farmers offered radishes, onions, etc. on the local produce market Saturday morning. Prices asked were 10 cents per cane for the Columbia variety.

Beautiful Hydrangea plants afforded a spot of colour and were offered at the price of $3 per plant being asked by the one vendor. Other types of potted plants were also available.

Egg prices held firm at 40 cents for firsts with mediums being quoted at from 33 to 36 cents. The fowl offering was not large with several Mixes asked being of each per lb., although a few capons sold up to 48 cents. Broilers were available up to $1.75 per pair.

On the outside market maple syrup was still available with approximately half a dozen vendors offering this commodity at $4 the gallon. Maple sugar sold at 65 cents the lb.

On the vegetable market potatoes were offered at $1.50 per bag or 50 cents the peck. Russett apples sold at $1 the peck with Greenings and Starks being available at 50 cents the small basket. Parsnips and carrots sold at 50 cents the peck.

Young pigs were plentiful at prices averaging from $8 to $9 although a few exceptions. The opinion that if feed grains continued to advance in price young pigs would in all probability decline in price.

William Blakely Will be 85 Years Old on Monday

For thirty years a resident of Bellleville and for the past eight years living at Thomson Park, this vegetable and flower garden each summer is the envy of the neighborhood. Mr. William Blakely on Monday, May 5th, will observe his 85th birthday. But aside from the many messages of congratulation which he normally receives, Mr. Blakely expects to spend the day quietly, possibly planning for the summer garden which for the past few months will represent his principal activity.

A native of Madoc township, Mr. Blakely farmed in the 4th concession of Sidney township before he came to Belleville in 1910. For many years he was janitor of the Ritchie (now CDS store) and also acted as janitor for City Hall. Mr. Blakely was before it was burned some years ago.

Retiring from active work Mr. Blakely could not be completely idle so he moved from Bellefonte to Rossmore where he terms it "just a move from one farm to another." He says he could not find sufficient garden space in Belleville to suit him. He still enjoys good health and takes a keen interest in the affairs of state which he does merely for a hobby.

Married twice, Mr. Blakely is again living alone, his second wife having died some years ago. Each summer he looks forward to a visit from his daughter Mrs. J. W. Irving, Mr. Irving, who comes to stay with her father, from May until September. There are two sons, Daniel Blakely of Montreal and Fred Blakely of Fort Francis Ontario.

German Diabetics Break Diet Rules And Survive

By WILLIAM HAMSHER

Berlin, May 3 (Reuters)—German diabetic sufferers are breaking all the rules of diet treatment, and yet surviving.

Reuters reporter found this fact easy, according to the medical opinion here, result in a new angle of approach to the whole question of remedies.

According to orthodox medical practice hitherto, no insulin accustomed diabetic could survive deprivation of insulin and a diet in which carbo-hydrates predominate.

Doctors here first assumed the granduleuse of the transition from former standards called into play some recuperative powers of the human body, re-establishing the disturbed balance between glandular secretions and metabolism. They set to work to discover what the unknown factor was.

Diabetes, it was thought, might be cured under diets conditioning varying little from the normal and without resort to insulin. Treatment would take only a reasonably regular life, including a great deal of gaunual labor in the open air and a regular check by doctors.

Some of these views—the concepts are astonishing, not to say revolutionary," said Dr. Otto Ranzer, head of the State administration of Health Scientific Department. "They are away with many preconceived notions and topple over what have been regarded hitherto as facts."

Little Ship Pitched Around Like a Cake of Soap Writer Says in Describing Rescue

By DAVID McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Port, Quebec, May 3 — Thirty-two, 115-ton 68-foot fishing vessel Ray Richard wrecked in a storm that claimed five lives, whose name had not yet been repainted on her doughty prow, lost two of her 12 crew and one passenger, it was disclosed today as British freighter Wicklow Head.

This report was told to us the gallant crew of the Richard plucked off the grimy, unshaven seamen who had expected their ship to break up under their feet at any moment.

While sturdy sea-going tugs plowed their way toward Port Menier on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, who fish for cod and halibut, quietly went about their hazardous task of seamed all in a day's work for Capt. Wilson Huskins and his seven men.

We put out from Port Montour at 7:30 a.m., a biting wind from the north and a brisk wind out of the east. Once out of the bay our vessel hit the Gulf where the going got heavy and the little ship pitched around like a cake of soap. The wind started to close in, folding over the sea in a blanket of fog. Visibility decreased to 500 yards. The Ray Richard hugged the coast which was hardly discernible.

She had run into a rock-bound coast bow on and was pounding sharply. The entire crew lined the rail and watched us silently.

Quickly and efficiently the dory was put over the side and we jumped in. Capt. Huskins and Douglas Wagner piled the oars.

We approached the freighter's starboard side of the ship.

Approached Starboard Side Of Ship

sea was running high and we had to approach with extreme care. One of the lifeboat which had already been lowered by the crew of the ship we had seen another lifeboat being hallfed over the davits. The lifeboat we reached for had a deep gash in her bow and a line was being Capt. Huskins had decided not to bring the Ray Richard closer in these swirling seas.

"I'll take you off!" asked Capt. Huskins.

"Yes," said Browne, a Belfast veteran of 21 years at sea and five as a master. Called back he shouted: "Yes."

As heavy seas pounded the hull of the freighter, Capt. Huskins and the crew abandoned ship in the dory and came aboard the Ray Richard.

Capt. Browne said the ship had struck a reef at 2 a.m. the last night. A boat was put over the side but the first attempt failed. It could not be floated. The seas flooded in rapidly till there was four feet of water in the hold.

The engine room was almost completely submerged and the electric plant went dead. The emergency set was put into operation but the freighter might break up at any time and that the crew would be dashed to death on giant rocks on the shore.

Said Charlie Tod of Belfast, the sole passenger: "I was in the sanatorium for a time and I never had a worse moment there. I was asleep when we hit. I awoke to the roar of my bunk. We dressed hurriedly and put on lifebelts. After that it was a matter of waiting. We couldn't eat much but we smoked a lot. It was good to see that little fishing boat."

Missing Plane Search Directed To Woodedislands

Vancouver, May 3 (CP)—The search for a missing Trans-Canada Air Lines plane and its 15 occupants turned today to the scores of wooded islands dotting the Strait of Georgia, separating Vancouver Island from the British Columbia mainland, and to the coastal and mainland waters themselves.

From Vancouver's sea island airport, 25 planes immediately traced a gigantic pattern search over a 12,000-square mile area and a coast boat and amphibious aircraft darted in and out of the lake Shore Inlets and isolated islets. The search continued at dawn today.

As the search went on for the two-engined transport, last heard from only three minutes flight-time from a landing last Monday night, three of the searchers themselves had to be rescued. Aerial mishaps temporarily put their alligator drifting helplessly in the strait and despatched a rescue ship to help them in.

Last of the promising clues to the whereabouts of the missing plane when it was discovered that mysterious lights, spelling in morse code letters, Albert and Daniel or Trenton, and George of Burlington; twenty-four grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

Governor-General Pays Visit To Men's Press Club

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Viscount Alexander, governor-general visiting Toronto, spent more than an hour yesterday at the Toronto Men's Press Club. The Governor-General is a member of the club.

When he heard from members that a few years ago there was discussion that the first week of racing at Greenwood would be the Greenwood Club's meet at Woodbine, he became excited because of a dispute over purses, he expressed keen disappointment that the Woodbine Park Plate would be run as scheduled May 24 because that would have been invited to attend that running and was keen on seeing it.

His Excellency also told members he would check his database to see if it was at all possible he would like to go on the club's holiday trip to Algonquin Park May 30.

Ship Refloated After Hitting Pier

Cardiff, May 3 — (CP) — The Canadian steamer Port Quebec in Park, probably the only freighter which ever broke up a dance, was refloated today after spending 24 hours high and dry beside Penarth pier, from which she was driven by an easterly gale last night.

The pier dance hall was packed and the orchestra had just struck up the first number when the 7,000-ton vessel was blown inshore while trying to dock. Attendants dashed from the hall crying "Clear the hall" and dancers fled.

Representatives of the owners, Park Steamships, said the wind drove the ship broadside and forced her on to the pier. There were no casualties and the crew remained aboard till tugs floated her loose this morning.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES (DUNLOP) SAYERS (Picton)

MORRIS — In loving memory of my mother, Elizabeth Morris, who passed away one year ago today, May 3rd, 1946.
To my heart your memory lingers,
Sweet and sacred and true.
There is not a day, dear mother,
That I do not think of you.
—Ever remembered by son, Walter.

STICKLE — In memory of George Stickle, who died suddenly on May 4th, 1946.
Dear Lord, God took you home,
We did not know.
You left us so suddenly,
You never said "goodbye."
There is a trail of precious memories
That leads from your home.
A trail that does so often
Bring sad and lonely tears.
But in our hearts we love him still,
He is always near.
It is hard to think of you,
We often sit and think of him
And wish he was here.
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
I am sad within my memory,
Lonely in my home.
For the one I loved so dearly
Is gone, but not forgotten.
I think of him in silence,
No eye can see me weep.
And amid my grief I am glad
When others are asked,
Have you seen George?
—Sadly missed by his wife Ella and family.

BRITISH-BURMESE AGREEMENT

Rangoon, May 2 — (Reuters) — Britain and Burma have reached complete agreement in the financial talks held here during the last two weeks. It was understood today. Terms of the agreement were expected to be announced next week.

Bill Will Name Republican Speaker of House as Direct Heir to the White House Job

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Washington, May 2 — (CP) — President Truman may soon sign a bill which will name Joseph W. Martin, Jr., Republican Speaker of the House, as his direct heir to the White House job.

If Congress passes the succession bill, and it seems very likely, the president will have no alternative to signing it — even though it provides that if death or illness lay him from his job he would be followed in office by a Republican.

The bill is almost identically in line with what the president himself recommended to the last Congress. But then the Democrats were in power on Capitol Hill and the direct heir would have been Speaker Sam Rayburn, Texas Democrat.

The succession bill died in the last Congress. Now it has been revived.

It provides that in the case of a president's death or inability to serve, when there is no vice-president as now, the successor will be the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Senate president pro tem in line in the event of the House Speaker being unable to serve the succession would go to the president pro tem of the Senate who is the second Republican Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, a possible candidate for the presidency in 1948.

But, if neither of these could serve, the succession would go to the secretary of state, pending a special election.

The Secretary of State is George C. Marshall who, still some other legislation is passed, is the direct heir at the moment, under existing legislation.

Canadians Not "Company"

President Truman, who plans to visit Ottawa next month, went down to Mexico City a few weeks ago and was given a gala reception this week Washington is entertaining President Miguel Aleman of Mexico in a return visit and the arrangements for his reception were exceeded only by those made when Britain's King and Queen came here in 1939.

No one seems to know just why such extraordinary efforts should be made to welcome the president of Mexico, a country with about twice the population of Canada. Perhaps there is a hidden compliment in Canada in the fact that the Earl of Athlone, Governor General, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King come and go there with a minimum of public reaction. They don't need to be treated as "company."

Record Flights England to S. A. Are Significant

Capetown, May 2. (CP)—Two record-breaking R.A.F. flights from England to South Africa were viewed Friday as significant from the point of view of commonwealth defence and strategy.

The flights, a four-engined Lincoln bomber and a twin-engined Mosquito, shattered all records for the 6,000-mile London to Capetown flight yesterday. The faster Mosquito made the trip in 21 hours, 29 minutes and 35 seconds while the Lincoln, Aries II, broke the heavy-plane record set by its sister ship Aries I in 1945. The first Aries took more than 30 hours

The three-stage flight of the Mosquito, which went from London to Cairo to El Adem, Libya, to Capetown, was viewed against a background of over-all British strategy. The Lincoln made the journey with only one stop and obviously was pioneering for four-engined bombers which could operate either from British or South African bases.

DENIES REPORTS FROM MINDEN

London, May 2 (CP)—The Foreign Office has denied news reports from Minden, Germany, Wednesday which said the coal mines in the Ruhr will return Thursday to German control. The Foreign Office said the story apparently got out through a French government official who misunderstood the British position with respect to the mines.

Honored Prior To Departure

On Tuesday evening, April 29, members of Madoc Catholic Women's League met at the home of Mrs. Owen McEvoy to honor her before her departure to her new home in Belleville.

Mrs. Wilfred Berstell read an address and Miss Agnes Walsh made the presentation of a pair of boudoir lamps.

Mrs. McEvoy replied thanking all for the gift and expressed her regret at leaving. Mrs. Edward Marsaw and other members of the C.W.L. served refreshments.

Jan Antonin Bata Sentenced to 15 Yrs., Property Confiscated

Prague, May 2 (AP)—The Prague National Court today convicted Jan Antonin Bata of action against the Czech state and sentenced the former shoe magnate to 15 years' imprisonment. Bata is in Brazil where he is said to have built up another big shoe business.

The sentence confiscated for the state all of Bata's property. Actually his great factories at Zlin in Moravia already had been taken over in the government nationalization program and the decision meant merely that nothing would be paid or them.

Hitler Aimed to Capture Whole Canadian Army By Ardennes Offensive

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, May 2 — (CP) — One of Hitler's aims in ordering the Ardennes offensive late in 1944 was to capture the whole First Canadian Army and force Canada's withdrawal from the war, says a Toronto intelligence officer who worked on the official war history.

Milton Shulman, who specialized on the German battle order in the west, bases his statement on disclosures in a prisoner-of-war camp by Lt.-Gen. Fritz Bayerlein, commander of the German Panzer Lehr division.

The First Canadian Army at the time of Ardennes was in Holland, part of Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Group. In his book "Defeat in the West," just published here (Secker and Warburg, 15s.), Shulman uses Bayerlein's words to describe a special briefing Hitler gave the Ardennes commanders Dec. 12, 1944.

"Hitler looked sick and broken, and began to read from a long prepared manuscript . . . He then went into the details of the Ardennes offensive, telling us what formations were involved and what they were to do.

"The object of the attack was to capture Antwerp in 14 days and at the same time trap Montgomery's 21st Army Group in Holland.

"The loss of so large a force would cause Canada to withdraw from the war, and thoroughly discourage the United States about continuing the struggle."

"Defeat in the West" is the latest of many books about the western front operations. It has this difference: It is written from the German angle. It is the story of the German collapse instead of the Allied victory.

QUANTITY OF JADE STOLEN

Seattle, May 2 —(AP)— Theft of more than 10,000 pounds of jade, believed to be the largest bulk amount in the United States, from a Seattle storage lot, was reported today by the Arctic Circle Exploration Company.

Officials said the jade is valued at between $25,000 and $50,000.

Norman C. Stines, consulting engineer for the company, said it was apparently stolen by persons well acquainted with the value and use of the stone and that the thieves had to use derricks and trucks to haul it away.

Police and Radio

Belleville Police Department, which first used radio communication twenty-one years ago, has just had installed equipment which will place the local department abreast with the most advanced police departments in the use of radio in department service. Citizens can well be proud of the fact that for years modern scientific invention and discovery have been used by the local police which enabled them to serve not only this community but beyond the city limits and to operate with police departments in other cities with the result of mutual benefit.

It is of interest to know that the first radio communication in the local department was planned and installed by Arthur Booth, then a police sergeant, the equipment giving good service in all these days of radio as applied to police work. The new installation has been installed by Arthur Booth and Son, Mr. Booth now being engaged in radio service.

Much has been heard of frequency modulation and Belleville department's communication service has frequency modulation, that fact showing that the equipment is thoroughly modern.

Some months ago it was announced that the Ontario provincial Police will be linked in a thoroughly modern network covering the whole province.

Radio has earned its place in the enforcement of the criminal code and has proven its great value. Modern police work is employing the latest inventions in science. During the late war man saw how the latest inventions could be made servants of the nations in the prosecution of the struggle. During the war many inventions were brought forward, some of the most far-reaching importance. Use of inventions prompts new inventions and speeds up discovery. To that growth there seems no end.

It is a far cry to the old days when officers of the law had to rely on slower means of communication and transportation. Today faster and still faster thought is massed can encompass the earth and no offender can get so far away as to be beyond the range of telephone, telegraph, radio, motorcar and airplane.

Truly the arm of the law can strike swiftly today for its enforcement has immense advantages in greater efficiency possible through the wide range of agencies at its command.

Today no police department works for itself alone. It is in touch with the great network of communications which make police work one of united co-operation in the maintenance of order and for the benefit of the public. To the police falls the opportunity in countless ways of doing deeds of service. They are able to perform many a kindly act, they solve problems, they know the public and that knowledge makes them invaluable in so many ways. In all the branches of their work radio communication is a great advantage and of course a real necessity in the world whose tempo has stepped up very greatly in the past few decades.

When April Disappoints

April 1947 was unusually cool. The mean temperature was only 40 degrees according to local records.

Everything knows that the spring has been slow and that work on the land in Canada and in the United States is much behind time and the agriculturists are hoping for a break with good weather to even up the results.

The warmest day in the month saw a temperature of 66 degrees in Belleville while last year the highest temperature was 75 degrees. The low was 22 as against last year's 24 degrees.

April brought precipitation, not only in rain but in a very heavy fall of moisture-laden snow, with 12 inches of snow as against one-half inch in April 1946.

April disappointed people because it lacked the usual amount of growth and delayed work on the land in preparation for the 1947 crops.

Builds Bridge for Greece

United Kingdom sappers have completed the Bailey Bridge across the Corinth Canal. When it was officially opened this week by King Paul, this further example of British contribution to the reconstruction of Greece was enthusiastically cheered by large and appreciative crowds. This bridge which is 170 feet high and 100 yards long is of vital importance as it will not only permit traffic once again to cross the canal, but it will also allow dredgers to pass beneath to clear the debris which has blocked the canal since the liberation.

The Incredible Platypus

Some very strange animal life is found in Australia, but none stranger than the platypus. The first British settlement of the land down under was only a dozen years old when a stuffed specimen of this mixed-up beast was carried home to England in 1799. Scientists there were frankly skeptical. They thought it was a fake, contrived by some ingenious oriental mind. But when they tore it apart they found it was really so. Nature had actually combined mammal, bird and even a trace of fish into something that looked like a muskrat, had a snout resembling a bird's beak and broadly webbed feet. We were a long time learning what we know about the platypus. It was not until 1884, for example, that its egg-laying characteristic was authenticated, according to David Fleay, Australian curator, world's greatest expert on the platypus, and a travelling companion of the three that are now eating worms and egg custard at the Bronx Zoo. Another feature belatedly authenticated is the presence of a venomous spur, which is now found to be a fact. It is attached to the ankles of the hind feet, and not on the tail as was earlier believed.

We are told by Mr. Fleay that the platypus is a very temperamental animal. Only one pair has ever been bred in captivity, and that offspring of 1944 is still alive and doing well. New York once had a live platypus, in 1922, but it died after forty days. The preparations for the current move to exhibit some specimens here have been going on for months. Mr. Fleay caught nineteen, and chose these three as most likely to settle down and be reasonable about it. We had assumed that, because of its engaging characteristics, there was probably a pet platypus in every Australian home. This is not the case at all. New York has as many platypuses as there are in any one city in the world. There are only five on display in all Australia. New Yorkers may view the three platypuses in the new platypusary at Bronx Zoo, and the platypuses may view New Yorkers at the same time. We assume this will be mutually instructive.—New York Times.

British Merchant Fleet Grows

Despite all her troubles Great Britain is leading the world in shipbuilding. Under construction now for her post-war mercantile fleet are 1,940,000 tons.

Men and nations return from war to do the things they know how to do and to try to earn their living as they did before the war. Great Britain served the world with the most efficient merchant fleet before the war and is now building ships for competitive trade.

In contrast the United States with millions of tons of Liberty ships and idle rusting in harbors is only currently building 327,000 tons of merchant ships — The Argonauut, San Francisco.

A drip-proof tap, the washer of which can be changed without turning the water off at the main, has recently appeared in Britain says U. K. Information Office. Consisting of only six parts, it is based on a new principle resulting from wartime advances in hydraulic equipment in aircraft. Two washers, made of a new synthetic resilient material, replace the normal leather. Sealing is effected by water pressure. After being turned on and off 1,000,000 times in laboratory tests — the equivalent of 40 years of household use — the tap was as good as new.

Faith, like light, should always be simple and unbending; while love, like warmth, should beam forth on every side, and bend to every necessity of our brethren.—Luther.

DEMOCRACY OF PAIN

Though wealth and place make mortals vain,
We're much alike when we're in pain.
In rooms where doctors come to call
One touch of fever levels all.

The private room the rich afford
Shares in the moaning of the ward.
Let but the body feel a twinge,
Alike both rich and poor man cringe.

Health has its pride, but illness none.
We're brothers all when pain comes on.
The agony the poor man bears
Treats just as harshly millionaires.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did the willow pattern on chinaware originate?

The first chinaware bearing the popular design known as the "willow pattern" was made about 1780 by Thomas Turner at the Caughley porcelain factory near Bridgnorth, Shropshire. It is supposed that the pattern was designed by Thomas Minton, an Staffordshire apprentice potter, from old blue chinaware imported from Canton, and that the pattern illustrated a Chinese romantic legend.

The designs vary considerably, but the typical plate pattern shows a house near a river on which there is a boat. An orange tree is shown beyond the land on which is located the house. In the foreground is a bridge, with a willow tree at one end and a cottage at the other. A cottage on an island is shown in the upper left-hand corner. Two turtle-doves are also conspicuous in the design.

According to the general accepted legend, a large fortune was occupied by a wealthy mandarin whose only daughter, Koong-se, fell in love with Chang the mandarin's secretary, a man who frequently met this sweetheart secretly under the orange trees. When the father discovered the secret affair he warned Chang never to come near the house again and built a fence across the path between the two and the water to prevent him from entering. Koong-se was shut up in the house and betrothed to a nobleman, a wealthy friend of the mandarin who was much older than she.

This was when the willow was in bloom, and the marriage was to take place when the pear tree blossomed. Chang, however, contrived to communicate with Koong-se by means of a tiny boat that he let drift down the river with a message. While the man-by-it darin and the nobleman were making plans for the marriage they got drunk with wine, and Chang, disguised as a servant, entered the house and eloped with Koong-se. The drunken mandarin pursued, but the pair gained the lodge and made good their escape. This pursuit is represented in the design by three figures on the bridge — first Koong-se bearing a distaff, then Chang carrying a box of jewels that the nobleman had given Koong-se and that they took with them in their flight, and, second, last of all the mandarin with a whip.

For a time the fugitives concealed themselves in the gardener's cottage, but after fleeing swam across the river for a boat in which to hide. His bride to a distant island, where they lived happily for many years in a cottage. Finally, however, the nobleman learned of their whereabouts and got permission to have Chang arrested for carrying away the jewels. Accordingly he and an armed force made their way to the island and attacked Chang, who was killed in the struggle. Koong-se committed suicide rather than be recaptured by rushing into the burning house. But the gods of old China, who were ever ready to punish the nobleman and made the rest of his life miserable, and Chang and Koong-se were transformed into turtledoves, symbols of eternal love and union.

As an old Chinese story, like the willow pattern itself, has many variations and refinements. Although the chinaware design dates from 1780, apparently nobody has been able to trace the legend further back than 1694, when it appeared in an elaborate story in an English magazine called "The Gentleman's Friend." There is no proof that it is of Chinese origin and it may be pure fiction, suggested by the pattern rather than the pattern by it.

MEDICINE ARE SELDOM REASONS

I became a therapeutic nihilist when I was an interne. A patient who had recently come from away down south entered the hospital with chills and fever. We placed the microscope on his bedside table and examined his blood and found the malarial plasmodia in the red blood corpuscles—a rare occurrence in that part of the country. When the attending physician learned about it he begged that we withhold quinine and give the patient placebos capsules only, so he could show his medical students the plasmodia. So we gave the patient Rochelle salts in capsules every few hours and the professor brought relays of students to see the malarial parasites. Within the week or so, however, the patient had a relapse, another next day and then, so far as we could determine, made a permanent and complete recovery and left the hospital without having received other than placebo treatment.

The was unfortunate for me. I began asking myself how come for up to that time, it was taken for granted that quinine was a specific remedy against chills and fever. Of course it is by no means certain that the patient will not receive any quinine while he was in hospital—he may have had his own supply of quinine, or a well-to-do kind hearted nurse may have felt it her duty to sneak the quinine to the patient. Anyway, that was the one and only time I ever saw malaria diagnosed by a blood test—which by the way, is the only method of correctness of the diagnosis of malaria (fever and chills, ague), but which is rarely used because it does not occur (except in persons who have received the disease and where) such doubt of the curative value of quinine in the mind of a doctor as to make him feel no indignation or resentment on the part of his colleagues. And after it, I had some unique experiences in that same hospital with digitalis and strophanthus which finally uttered heresies about the value of digitalis. Digitalis, by the way, wow! it's really a wonder, folks that I managed to survive the reaction that followed.

'Live or die here or there or everywhere, I wouldn't take digitalis myself except on order of my doctor if I asked a doctor's advice. If you suspect heart trouble or care by a doctor I'd take malignant delight in sneaking from the doctor ordered me to take it. For anyone not under immediate care of a doctor a multivitamin optimal daily ration (three or four times as much as is required normally) of vitamin B complex with iron and manganese (taken in the form of yeast or vegetable) is an excellent substitute or supplement for digitalis — I believe this is a real heart tonic and digitalis is not. There isn't room to explain this in detail—you'll find more about it in the booklet CVD (heart and arterys diseases) for copy send 25 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address.

Well, then what medicines do I believe useful in the treatment of disease?

Well, it won't take long to tick off, one by one, the medicines I believe useful as remedies for human ailments. A few days should be enough—that is, an article now and then in the course of the next few weeks.

Meanwhile as the newscasters say yhile reaching for another clipping from yesterday's paper, mfanwhile I'll skin over to the bowling green and think this thing out. Then you'll be hearing more about it, I hope.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Blackheads And Pimples

Thanks to you my very stubborn acne has disappeared. My complexion is not perfect, but I am often told now that I have a nice skin and that do I use to keep it so nice. A pleasant change, believe you me. Had I known it, your free pamphlet when I was sixteen I might have saved me a great deal of embarrassment and unhappiness.

(M.W.)

Answer—Well, I do my best to let all girls and boys know (1) that blackheads and pimples, medically called acne, are more or less normal or physiological in the teen age, and are no significance other than that the owner is a young person, (2) the pamphlet on acne (Blackheads and Pimples) is available on written request (do not send a stamp if you enclose a stamped envelope bearing your address.)

Candy And Pep

Son 15 very fond of pop and candy, eats quite a bit of cake too. Will he get diabetes from this habit? (Mrs. H.W.R.)

Answer—Excessive indulgence of cheat foods, predisposes to development of diabetes, especially if the boy is a potential diabetic by inheritance. Any normally active boy or girl may profitably indulge in candy, sweetened beverages, cake, etc. as dessert, but such food yielding only calories and little of minerals and vitamins, is cheat food, because consumption is satisfied for only a brief spurt and then gets tired unless he or she can have another slice of cake or sugar right away. If there is diabetes in your family history, send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Training for Diabetics" that, Ma'am, is what your son is doing.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A whopper hand looks very grand. But frequently you hate it. A barking bear always near that you try overrate it. Like with this hand:

♠ A K
♥ A K Q 6 4 3 2
♦ None
♣ A K Q

You get a chopper like this only once in a long spell of blue moons. It has its pleasant moments. Lots of them. But it gives you a few shivers, too.

If you sit at a game, you are likely to find there was a slam in it. If you stop at a small slam, there usually is a grand-slame in it. If you go to any slam, you are likely to be defeated.

All you can do is to bid it correctly and fit it with what your partner shows, then combined values in the partnership hands is what will determine where this hand should go.

As the dealer, your opening bid with such a cluster of clucks is two hearts. This is a signal that shows how many tricks the hand contains. It also signals partner to help out.

Partner is first asked to show if he has a sure trick. This is the information that tells the opener whether they may have a slam. After sure trick information, other advices are given.

Suppose partner has no sure trick. His first response is two no-trump. If he what he opens, this hand rebids with three hearts. This awalls the next bid by partner.

Suppose partner then bids three no-trump. This tells you he has no biddable suit for a take-out. Also that he lacks support for even a rebiddable heart suit.

The Movie Column

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Toronto males have been assaulted during the past few days by perfumes whiffs originating from an ostrich-plumed hat, and by a dress-full of something billed as "The Living Trademark of Enterprise Studios."

We, too, never heard of Enterprise Studios, but we got a whiff of that perfume and took a look at Miss Laura Hope Crews, who obviously bathes in champagne, and has a mink-lined swimming pool tucked away in an 80-roomed mansion back of Beverly Hills.

Miss Wells, fresh out of Hollywood, tells us she used to be a Powers model and we don't doubt her word. Ymmm. Stunningly enough, the scent on her dress is age-old: She is looking for a man. Maybe you, even.

It all began when someone named a soon-to-be-released movie "The Other Love." The epic concerns a girl in love with two men, one the good steady, bring - the-envelope-home-every-pay-day type; the other a rounder whose glance never missed an ankle.

What Miss Wells is seeking on a trip that is taking her to 40 cities, is a man to be known as "The Other Love of the Nation." If you are interested, you send your photo to Laura, care of Enterprise Studios, Hollywood, and who knows? If you win, you get (1) a trip to the movie capital (2) a whiff of that perfume.

To qualify you must have, and we quote: "Some indefinable quality of color or characteristic. It's as simple as that, perhaps, and the line forms on the right.

GROSSLY EXCESSIVE

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Terming a three-year penitentiary term imposed last November on Izzie Freedman, Peterborough scrap metal dealer, "grossly excessive," Ontario Court of Appeal yesterday reduced the sentence to two years less a day definite and 12 months indeterminate in reformatory.

Freedman was convicted of receiving copper wire stolen from the Canadian General Electric plant in Peterborough. He was sentenced by Magistrate J. A. McGibbon.

SENTENCED FOR MUTINY

Jerusalem, May 3 (Reuters)—Eleven members of the parachute regiment of the British 6th Airborne Division, convicted of mutiny, received sentences ranging from 14 months to two years' imprisonment, it was announced last night.

It was stated at a court martial that the accused were ordered to make their beds and lay out kit for inspection. They failed to carry out the order, some giving the excuse that they had not seen the order and others that they had not had time to finish the job.

FLOWERS BLOOM AT FALLS

Niagara Falls, May 3 (CP). — Despite the chilling presence of the ice-bridge spanning the Niagara river below the falls, flowers are blooming in greenhouses overlooking the falls, and the odd hyacinth and daffodil has managed to keep in season in the vicinity.

New York, May 3 (CP)—Cynics who observe the high mortality rate among current Broadway shows and pronounce the theatre moribund would do well to see what group of earnest students of dramatics have just done with existentialist Jean-Paul Sartre's "The Flies."

This modern version of the tragic Orestes theme, staged by the Dramatic Workshop of the New School, is a stimulating, challenging production and a shot in the arm for the legitimate theatre.

The critics rightly welcomed the performance of the French philosopher-playwright's work as a noteworthy event. As handled by students taking courses at the dramatic workshop, it is a brilliant and moving experience.

The dramatic workshop, which is one of a series of courses in different professional careers given by the New School, is giving a repeat performance of "The Flies" here May 14-18.

Tyranny Vs. Free Spirit

Sartre's emphasis on the conflict between tyranny and the free spirit of man gives "The Flies" a topical significance for a world just emerging from a war in which the tyranny of Hitler was overthrown.

He tells of Clytemestra and Aegisthous, who usurped the throne of Argos by slaying Clytemestra's husband, Agamemnon of the awful sense of guilt that plagues the population of Argos after this crime; of the vengeance wreaked 15 years later by Orestes, son of Clytemestra's and Agamemnon, on his mother and her paramour. Sartre depicts Electra as an injury ridden neurotic woman who spurs her brother Orestes on to kill thgir mother and Aegistheus, only to turn against him afterwards.

Sartre depicts the furies as flies and Orestes as inwardly drawing them upon himself and thus freeing the people of Argus from their spell.

Fernec Molnar's "Miracle in the Mountains" ran only for 3 performances before closing down at the Playhouse recently. Following by a hot blast of critical disproval. . . "A Young Man's Fancy," a farce about the goings-on of teen-agers at a summer camp, moved into the Plymouth theatre this week. Despite a thoroughly unconvincing and weak plot, this play by Harry Thurschell and Alfred Golden has an engaging cast of young-

Little Benny's Note Book

I went a errand for ma and there was 3 cents chages and I wondered if she would leave me keep it, only I didn't think better actually. So I didn't. Ha ha.

Then I went down to the store on account of ma considering it's a bum principle to allways be crabbing if I can keep the change.

And I just stood there with the 3 cents in my pants pocket watching ma sewing on her electric sewing machine and wondering it there was some way I could give her a good hint without actually hinting so strong it would practically be the same thing as asking, and I thought, G, maybe she'll be willing to give it to me if it's her own idea, but if I start the subject I'm libel to spoil it because then she's libel to think it's my idea.

And I just kept on watching her and she kept on sewing without saying anything, and I thought, Heck, if I don't even mention it she's libel to just suddenly ask me for her change and that'll be the end of it.

The result being I just stood there trying to describe which was the worst way and which was the best, and ma said, Well, you certainly seem to be admiring my handywerk.

Sure, ma, G. I bet if the other guys' mothers could see you sewing I bet they'd be so jellies actually. I just retire from that sewing machines and never sew again, I result, and ma said, My, what a crazy silly idea.

And she lafftr as if she liked it just a same, and I said, Oh, by the way, ma, here's your chane while I think of it.

And I stuck my hand in my pocket without actually pulling the 3 cents out, and ma said, Oh, you might as well keep it, I suppose.

Making me feel lucky and proving the best thing to do when you're in doubt is probably just keep quiet and wait.

Referee Bunny Dunlop Causes Near-Riot at Wrestling Match By Decision in Main Bout

Blood, Bedlam and Bunny Dunlop.

Those three words practically tell the story of the wrestling gambroglio that took place at the Memorial Arena last night.

Mixed up in the affair were two stratospheric wrestlers by the names of Miss Sharpe and Sandy O'Donnell. The third man in the ring was the old perennial "Bunny" Dunlop.

And there go the tale.

To come to the point, Mike "The Body" Sharpe, his golden torso crimson-streaked with blood that flowed from O'Donnell battered schnozzle, won the main go after winning the first fall with his famous "stretcher" hold, lost the second with a throwback and won the third when O'Donnell back-flipped him to the canvas only to overslide the foe and get himself pinned.

And then hell broke loose.

O'Donnell Objects

O'Donnell soon flailing wildly, objected to the referee's decision. In the third fall he had punished the handsome profile of Sharpe to the point where the gore flowed unrestrainedly. He lobbed him in the nose, the eyes, the gullet, the abdomen and the income tax.

The end came rather suddenly. Sharpe had secured his back-shoulder hold and was swinging Le O'Donnell like the pendulum of a grandfather's clock. His arms fashioned like the locks forming of a dead duck. And the crafty O'Donnell, who won the second fall in a like manner suddenly threw himself over backwards. To all intents and purposes he had won the fall.

But Referee Bunny Dunlop, raised Sharpe's hand in victory, O'Donnell had oversold the mark and had his own shoulders pinned to the mat.

The crowd was nonplussed, yet delighted. Then O'Donnell went practically berserk. Sharpe, his body glistening with scarlet foam, started for the dressing room. Dunlop, with the referee's right in an attempt to pacify the infuriated O'Donnell."

The crowd milled around the ring. O'Donnell, his eyes gleaming fire, turned on the referee. Cigarette boxes were hurled at Dunlop's head in fury. Invectives. Then Dunlop, satisfied that things were under control, jumped through the ropes and headed for the dressing room. O'Donnell followed him, on the run.

Near the entrance to the dressing rooms, O'Donnell suddenly let go a haymaker that caught Dunlop behind the ear. The crowd surged to the scene. Dunlop threshed on the floor of the arena, then got to his feet. A young lady suffered a severe cut over the eye as the melee maddened crowd threatened to get out of control. Police formed a cordon around the prostrate Dunlop, Mike Sharpe, his blood-smeared face a crimson mask, reappeared. The crowd yelled. It surged again towards the dressing room entrance. Then it was over.

Villain of Piece

Now to get back again to the wrestling angle for after all it was outright blind as a wrestling match, there was plenty of action throughout the three falls. O'Donnell early established himself as the villain of the piece. He used the ropes to good advantage, but Bunny Dunlop, who is as good a showman as an official as he is a wrestler, used his bag of tricks to subdue the contestants.

O'Donnell did a bicycle act in the first few minutes of the main bout, then when Sharpe refused to go to it resorted to the tactics for which he is famous. Both big boys threw each other out of the ring. It was nip and tuck and apparently there was no love lost, between the two. Sharpe with his now famous stretcher hold won the first fall, lost the second when he was hoisted by his own wrestling petrad and as was said before won the third and deciding fall.

In the semi-final Tour Morgan defeated Dick Bishop who made his first appearance here in four years, Bishop who essayed the villains role had the faithful in an uproar with his bad-ass tactics. But it was a good show and Bishop and Morgan can come back.

CANADIENS BEAT NHL ALL-STARS BY 4-2 SCORE

Rocket Richard Scores Two on Two Beautiful Solo Efforts

New Westminster, B. C., May 3 (CP) — More than 10,000 resident hockey fans thronged the arena here last night to watch Montreal Canadiens, 1946 Stanley Cup winners, outscore the National League All-stars 4-2.

Maurice Richard's smooth style drew roars of approval from the fans as he paced the Canadiens with two goals. Buddy O'Connor kept pace with the Rocket with a goal and assist and Glen Harmon tallied the other for Montreal.

The crowd was disappointed by the absence of Max Bentley, National Hockey League top scorer during the past season, but found little complaint in the hockey dished up by Syd Abel, who took Bentley's place.

Elmer McCaig garnered both goals for the All-stars — both unassisted.

Doug McCaig and Ted Lindsay were the only other goals scored. Both slid the puck behind Canadien goalie Bill Durnan on stylish solo efforts.

Rocket Richard Says Broda Beat The Canadiens

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Canadians were defeated in the Stanley Cup playoffs by one man in the opinion of Maurice Richard of Canadiens. Speaking of the man in question —Turk Broda, goal tender of the victorious Maple Leafs—Richard said the Canadiens' yesterday couldn't beat him, Toe Blake couldn't beat him and neither could Buddy O'Connor." Richard was in the west coast city with the touring Canadiens.

Organization of a junior baseball league in the Fort Erie area is to be considered at a meeting there Monday night, when Wray Zimmerman, veteran Fort Erie catcher, a likely choice as coach. So far three entrees have been named for the loop, Ridgeway Chippewa and Fort Erie. Crowfland and Niagara Falls may enter teams to round out the circuit.

Four softball teams have been formed by the Community Youth League of Listowel, Ont. Apparently the kids didn't want to waste any time as the groups held practice at a meeting Friday—the day the basketball season ended.

Vivian Haller, nine-year-old Kelowna, B.C., schoolgirl, was ordered as a disciplinary measure to stay in her classroom while the remainder of the class attended a reception for the visiting Montreal Canadiens and National Hockey League all-stars teams Friday. She is glad now. The players came into the room before going to the reception and naturally, Vivian was the only person in it. She was the only pupil to obtain autographs from all the players.

The first class cricket season opens today in England with two matches—South Africa versus Leicestershire and the Marylebone Cricket club versus Yorkshire, last year's county champions.

Captain Cash, six-year-old brown gelding, yesterday won the $2,500 featured race at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, California finishing three-quarters of a length ahead of Volo Abble, with King Abbe third. Time was two minutes, 4 4-5 seconds.

Andre Majar of Egypt defeated Mario Sva Wort of Barcelona Friday 6-3, 7-5, 6-2, 8-3 in a first round Davis Cup match. Doubles will be played today.

Czechoslovakia's Jaroslav Drobny defeated Lennart Bergelin of Sweden 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4, at Malmo, Sweden, Friday, as the Davis Cup tennis forces of the two countries started their European zone elimination matches.

Assault and Stymie, a pair of thoroughbreds that dominated United States racing last season, are both starters today in the $40,000-added Grey Lag Handicap at Jamaica Park, New York. The Canadian-Bred Windfields, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto is also an entrant in the race.

Dazzling String of 29 Shutout Innings Again Establishes Feller as Top Hurler in Majors

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Bobby Feller of Cleveland Indians again has established himself as the top pitcher in baseball with a solid chance of hitting the 30-game win mark. He now has compiled a dazzling string of 29 shutout innings.

After losing the American League opener to Chicago, 2-0, Feller has blanked St. Louis, Detroit and Boston in succession, hurling a pair of one-hitters and a three-hit job. In 35 innings of pitching he has allowed only 14 hits and has struck out 30 batters.

Only three extra base hits have been gathered off Feller during the series and two lonely singles have barred him from joining the exclusive club of men who have pitched three no-hitters. It appears to be only a matter of time until Feller turns in another hitless effort, and he has a date with Cy Young and Larry Corcoran.

In notching his 10th one-hitter yesterday against Boston, Feller saved his fan mail from the added possibility of a perfect game. Johnny Pesky took care of that with a first-inning single. Three times in four years Pesky has turned back the Red Sox with one hit.

It was Feller's third victory of the season to one lone defeat, bringing him ever closer to two long-standing records. The modern major league season shutout is five, set by Harris White of Chicago White Sox in 1904 and the longest string of runless innings is 56, established by Walter Johnston with Washington in 1913.

While Rapid Robert was adding a new chapter to his history with his 141 win, rookie Frank Shea of New York Yankees was recording his first big league victory over Chicago, 5-1.

The freshman righthander had a two-hit shutout going to the eighth when he wobbled momentarily to yield two runs.

Pat Mullin registered his fine comeback with two home runs and a single in Detroit's 3-2 edge over Philadelphia. Mullin had trouble striking his sure-ever stride last season after returning from service but he has erupted into the .400 class this spring.

BATTING AND PITCHING STARS

Batting, Pat Mullin, Tigers — Hit two home runs and a single in perfect day at bat against Philadelphia as Detroit eked out 3-2 victory.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 3 — (CP) — In the sports world at least, 1947 may go down in history as the year of great exposures!

In Moose Jaw it was admitted that $10,000 was divided among the amateur junior hockey team, the Canucks and in Ottawa Rough Rider Football Club officials moan that they cannot meet a Lansdowne Park rental demand of 10 per cent of the gate receipts and survive.

This latter bit of moaning has aroused the ire of Mike (Kingston Whig - Standard) Rodden. Mike points out that the Ottawa club's operating expenses were $57,000 last season but their cash balance in the bank is but $1,200. That outlay proves "that the Ottawa Rough Riders have no right to operate as amateurs in any sense of the word."

Baring of the facts, the Kingston scribe says, shows why the Riders were able to "rush merrily into the importation business while leaving native sons hanging on the ropes of failure and dismay."

Up to now the club has been renting the park for a paltry $50 a game, which explains a lot when it comes to figuring where all the extra money was coming from and why the club officials are balking at a 10 per cent rental.

Sabbath Ball

Cec (Peterboro Examiner) Perdue puts himself on record as being against Sunday ball. The reason? — "We certainly don't feel like working seven days a week." And that's a pretty solid reason, too!

On the same topic Dan (Kitchener Record) Odette points out that the Ontario Baseball Association did not vote against Sunday games, but put the Sabbath ban on playoffs. Sunday ball is popular in the Chatham-Windsor area and there are other sections of Ontario that don't frown in the pastime for the Sabbath.

In Odette's opinion the trend toward the Sunday game is growing.

Boxia Brevity

From St. Catharines, Standard sports editor Clayton Browne says the Mann Cup champions, St. Kitts Athletics, will be wearing the old familiar double blue garb this season. The double blue has been the pride of that city for 75 years but during the war years, manufacturers just couldn't get the wool and so the A's wore blue and white.

To old fans and officials, the boys will wear eight-inch numbers front and back. That's a suggestion every club in every sport should follow. It's an awful nuisance having to wait for a man to turn around to find out who he is.

ITALY NOT INTERESTED

Rome, May 23 (Reuters). — An Italian spokesman, asked about a report that Vittorio Mussolini, eldest son of the late Italian dictator, was in the Argentine, said last night the question "is of absolutely no interest to Italy".

Allied authorities in Italy said they were not aware of any decision regarding Mussolini.

Argentine police yesterday confirmed that Mussolini was in the Argentine. A Buenos Aires dispatch said he is to be allowed to take up residence there after paying an unspecified fine for illegal entry.

Although fishing was poor on opening day for trout in other sections of Ontario, some Western Ontario anglers did well. Helen Schram (left) shows four dandies she caught in Brant County. Norman Haines, 14, of Brantford (right), is seen with four of the 11 he landed. Longest is 13 inches, smallest 10.

DERBY MADNESS MORE INSANE THAN LAST YEAR

125,000 People Will Attempt to Get Glimpse of Horses as They Run for Roses

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Louisville, Ky., May 3 (AP)—The Derby madness that strikes this town on the first Saturday in May each year was somewhat more insane than ever today as some 125,000 race-mad people attempted to pick the winner among 14 three year old colts.

Main reason for the extraordinary confusion was the fact that there wasn't an outstanding favorite among the horses due to parade to the post at 4:45 p.m. E.S.T. today for the 73rd edition of the classic.

The weather continued as a prime factor for speculation although the forecast called for fair and warmer after a rain that turned the Churchill Downs racing strip into a soup mess.

The one certainty today was that the largest crowd in all Derby history would jam the rambling wooden stands at Churchill Downs to capacity and a little more.

Phalanx, jointly owned by C. V. Whitney and Abe Hewitt, continued to hold the favorite's role he assumed after the Wood Memorial. But also as highly regarded were the Kentucky-bred Faultless from Warren Wright's Calumet Farm and Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's $41,000 beauty, Jet Pilot, who all has the experts talking about the race he won in the mud on Derby day of 1946.

On Trust, from the California barns of Earl O. Stice and Sons, took the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby and Mrs. E. E. Whitney's pint-sized Bullet Proof literally ran away from bigger, stronger horses to win the Chesapeake at Mayre De Grace last Saturday.

STAMPEDERS MUST WIN TO HAVE AN OUTSIDE CHANCE

Montreal Royals In Series so Far for Allan Cup Look Best Team

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 3 —(CP)— The stark, hard fact that they must win to avoid being placed with their backs to the wall for any future games of the series will confront the veteran-packed Calgary Stampeders tonight when they tangle with the young and speedy Montreal Royals in the fourth game of their Allan Cup hockey final.

The Royals, striving to bring Montreal its first Allan Cup championship in 17 years, hold a 2-1 edge in games in the best-of-seven series for the Dominion senior title and the Stampeders have yet to come up with an impressive showing.

All this taken into account, there's not many willing to bet more than a wooden nickel on the chances of the westerners retaining the title they won last year out West from Hamilton Tigers whom the Royals whipped in three straight games this year to win the eastern crown.

The Stampeders, even in edging out a 2-1 triumph in the second game at Montreal last Tuesday after losing the first 7-3 here Saturday, didn't show enough power for anyone who saw them in two games to climb aboard their bandwagon. They held the sharp-shooting Royals in check in that game but in the third clash Tuesday at Montreal they looked woefully weak again when they were snowed under 7-0.

ORIOLES DEFEAT TORONTO LEAFS BY 8-2 COUNT

Howie Moss Slams Ninth Homer of Season With One Aboard

(By The Associated Press)

Vern Benson, currently holding down centrefield for Rochester Red Wings, may turn out to be the best player the St. Louis Cardinal International League system has obtained in the deal that sent shortstop Eddie Joost to Philadelphia Athletics.

Benson is only 23 and Red Wing manager Cedric Durst recently said "Benson is a youngster who has shown enough so far to hold the job. He is fast, a good thrower and owns considerable power. He has the qualities to go on to a fine career in baseball."

So far, in 11 games, Benson has collected 10 hits in 40 trips to the plate and belted three homers, one less than last season. He has batted in nine runs and scored seven.

In the only league game played yesterday, Baltimore Orioles defeated Toronto Maple Leafs, 9-2, under the lights in Toronto.

Howie Moss slammed his ninth homer of the season with one on in the third inning to lead the attack while Ray Poat shackled the Leafs on seven hits.

New York May 3 —(CP)— Woops! That man Murphy is back again . . . everybody thought he was finished with baseball after the Major League club owners announced their pension plan . . . but Robert Murphy of Boston, chief advocate of a players' union in both baseball and hockey bobbed into the news earlier this week when the New York State Labor Relations Board issued a complaint of unfair labor practices against the Yankees, Dodgers and Giants . . . Today we Live in a Greater Canada

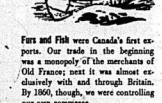
TODAY ON THE Nile THEY KNOW CANADA

ALL OVER the world today, Canadian products are known—and Canada's modern greatness recognized—as Canadian initiative builds our export trade to totals undreamed of in the past. During the war we became the second exporting nation of the world. TODAY our exports, with a value more than 2½ times as great as those of pre-war years, make an immense contribution to modern Canadian development, benefiting all business, creating new and greater opportunities for all Canadians.

Furs and Fish were Canada's first exports. Our trade in the beginning was a monopoly of the merchants of Old France; next it was almost exclusively with and through Britain. By 1860, though, we were controlling our own commerce.

Down to the sea of the 19th Century, our chief exports were sawmill and timber products. Next in importance were cheese and fish. The great wheat exporting era began with the 1900's. By 1939 newsprint had become our most valuable export.

World War II's demands spurred our production and exports to unprecedented heights. Canada's huge shipments of foodstuffs and munitions were one of the greatest contributions made by any nation to the successful prosecution of the war.



GERARD HEROD of Oakville, Ont., was a clerk in a department store nine years ago. At the age of 24 he added $400 savings to his natural interest in machinery and began to manufacture red clay flower pots. Initial difficulties were overcome by determination and his native Canadian enterprise. Today his firm, Dominion Potteries Limited, produces more than a quarter of a million dollars worth of pottery a year.

MR. HEROD says: "Canada proved a land of opportunity for me. She is a land of even greater opportunity for young Canadians commencing their careers today. Now, more than ever before, there are within Canada's borders rich rewards to be won, successful careers to be achieved."

CHAPTER 6

"She has a magnificent voice," he sighed with relief. "I'm sure she'll be a success."

"Of course she will," Gay smiled back at him, "I have never doubted it. She's got everything."

"She's the most wonderful person I have ever known," said Gay gravely. "She deserves a great deal more than life has given her"patted his hand: "Why don't you ask her and see? I'll do everything I can to play cupid."

"You're a good girl," Curt said gratefully. "I can't tell you how grateful I am to you for approving of me."

Gay said excitedly: "You must ask her tonight! This would be a good psychological moment. I'm leaving after the broadcast so you two can be alone."

"Oh, you must do that!" Curt protested. "We'll all go out and celebrate together."

"Not at all, nothing of the kind." Gay shook her head swiftly. "You and April into some nice romantic place with soft lights and music and speak your piece. Tonight."

When April had finished singing her last song, Curt took hands with Curt De Witt hurriedly and grinned: "Tell April I've gone home with a headache. And that I think she was marvelous. If I wait to congratulate her, she'll make me go along."

Before Curt could stop her she was gone. Everyone in the studio crowded around April to congratulate her, and Curt went downstairs and waited on the edge of the crowd. When she joined him her cheeks were pink from the praise heaped upon her.

"Mr. Jones says it was all right," Her eyes sparkled with excitement, "He says all there is to do now is wait and see how the fan mail comes in. Isn't that awful? Suppose no one writes."

Curt smiled: "I'll write you a fan letter Miss Lind. You are now my favorite singer."

April was singing as April Lind, because she felt she did not want to capitalize on Hill's well known name, now that she was no longer his wife.

In a charming little restaurant overlooking the East River, a little later Curt and April drank champagne and listened to a small sting orchestra play old Viennese waltzes. April was very beautiful in the soft lights, with her wide gray eyes, and excitement burning in her cheeks.

Curt De Witt leaned toward her suddenly and said very low, "I love you."

April was startled. She thought she must have misunderstood.

"Who—what did you say?" her eyes opened wide.

"I love you," he said again.

April was taken completely by surprise. Her eyes lost their sparkle and she said unhappily: "I'm sorry."

Curt said tensely. "Sorry? Why should you be sorry, dear?"

"I—I had hoped you wouldn't—really fall in love with me. That —you were just fond of me, and enjoyed going places—" she looked away.

Curt's warm brown eyes searched her face closely: "Do you like me a little, April? Just a little?"

She reached over and took his hand shy ly as he slowly on the table beside her.

"Oh, Curt," she smiled through tears, "of course I'm fond of you. You're an angel."

He held her hand tightly, leaning closer, "Will you marry me?"

April withdrew her hand and sat back almost as if he had struck her.

"Marry you?" she whitened. "Oh, Curt, please don't let's talk about marriage. I—I've been through one—marriage—couldn't bear it again."

Curt looked at the look in her eyer. He tried to smile. He said gently:

"But darling, this would be so different. I want to take care of you. I don't want you to ever have to worry about anything. I want to be a good father to your child. My little daughter needs a mother like you. It—could be wonderful. Won't you think it over? Don't say no right now, but give me a chance. I'm crazy about you, darling."

April said quickly: "You don't have to prove yourself, darling. You're fine a person to cheat—"

Curt broke in gently.

"I'll take a chance on winning your love. I'd be so good to you April. I'd live my whole life for you. I'd give you anything in the world that money can buy if you'll be my wife."

April couldn't bear the longing in Curt De Witt's eyes. So she said with a look of affection that made him glow.

"I'll try to make myself feel differently about marrying again, Curt. But I won't marry you unless I'm sure of myself. I don't care how much money you have. You know that I'm terribly fond of you. Some of these days—perhaps I'll feel differently about love. I hope so."

"That's better—" he sighed. "At least you're going to give me a chance. That's much more than I had hoped for."

A little later April said: "I'm more tired than I realized after all the excitement. Do you mind if we go now?"

Curt said excitedly: "Of course you're tired, darling. I'm selfish keeping you so late. We'll go at once."

In the car going home, Curt moved closely to April and when he put his arms around her she made no effort to pull away because she did not want to hurt his feelings. She knew how deeply he loved her, and was more than grateful that he had made no effort to make love to her in a physical way.

But suddenly Curt moved his head and sought her lips, and April closed her eyes and let him kiss her long and hungrily. As Curt held her close kissing her face and her hair and her soft warm throat April wished desperately that she loved him as he wanted to be loved.

At least, she discovered to her surprise, she enjoyed his kisses a little more than he had expected. Perhaps she was a little more fond of him than she realized. Or was this just because she was so lonely, and because of her great need to be loved?

Would love really come to her again?

Gay was waiting up for April when she got home, lying on the divan reading. She had been too excited and curious to go to bed.

April said surprised: "What on earth are you doing up at this ungodly hour? It's two o'clock. Do you really have a headache?"

"Sure," Gay grinned. "But I'm all over it now."

She searched April's face for a sign of what her answer to Curt De Witt had been, but could read nothing from April's expression. Suddenly April said:

"Curt asked me to marry him tonight, Gay."

Gay sat up swiftly. "Yes! You told him yes of course."

April sighed, dropping her evening wrap and sitting down in the big chair near her old friend.

"No I didn't say yes. Naturally I wouldn't do that."

Gay looked disappointed. "Sure— you didn't turn a man like Curt down? Are you crazy?"

"But why should I say I'll marry him when the very thought of marrying him makes my blood cold. You know what I've been through."

Gay said impatiently: "Don't dramatize things so! Just because you got married to an immature boy the first time, and had to break it up because you couldn't be the man of the family any longer, why should you think you couldn't make a go of it with a man who could give you anything in the world!"

"There's more to marriage," April said hotly, "than material security."

"Not much!" Gay's green eyes snapped. "I'd like to see myself having a chance, turning down a man like Curt De Witt. He not only has money but he's kind and considerate and handsome. Why he's got everything a woman could possibly look for in a husband!"

"You wouldn't say that." April smiled —tolerantly at her disturbed friend. "If you'd ever been married for love."

"Bah!" Gay exploded. "A lot of good it did you, that puppy love stuff! It just got you into children to look after! A childish husband and a son!"

When April's face clouded Gay added hurriedly:

"Oh, honey, I don't mean to criticize Hill or hurt your feelings. I know he could charm a bird off a tree. And he's got some wonderful qualities. But I just get furious when I think how you have struggled and worried, and that here is a millionaire at your feet and you let your love for Hill stand in the way...That's all over. You're living in the past.

"I'm not so silly to be prejudiced against marriage, just because your first one didn't turn out right. It's so darned old fashioned to make a martyr out of yourself. You're young and beautiful and you can't stop living and loving just because your first marriage didn't jell. I could make you for being such a silly wit. I wouldn't urge you to marry Curt if he weren't such a fine person. But he is. Hi's a saint! He'd carry you around on a pillow the rest of your life. And he'd be a wonderful father to Kenny."

April smiled uncertainly: "You're doing a very good job of selling him to me. You almost make me believe I should take him on sezzy how it would work out."

Gay said excitedly: "Are you really serious? You are very fond of him?"

"Of course I am." April admitted. "I adore him. He's one of the nicest people I've ever known."

"Then I can't see there's anything stopping you," Gay sat back triumphant, relieved. "Tell me," she asked then "has he ever kissed you?"

April looked surprised that Gay had asked her such a personal question.

"I know it's none of my business," Gay shrugged, "But I just wanted to know if you were perfect effort to find out if he appealed to you. You're such an old fuddy-duddy."

April flushed slightly. "He kissed me tonight for the first time."

"Did you like it?" Gay raised her-auburn eye brows inquisitively. "Curt isn't so hard to take is he?"

April laughed uncertainly: "I'm sure I could tolerate his kisses, if you must know the truth. But that doesn't mean I'll marry him. I'd want to fall in love again, silly as it may sound to you. And I don't believe I ever could."

"I give up!" Gay threw up her hands. "You certainly don't belong in this century, Priscilla. Well, go ahead, get your security the hard way. If you'd rather be a singer on the radio than the wife of a millionaire, it's your life. I've no doubt you'll be a big success on the air. I imagine Curt would be very happy to have you continue with your career, if that's what's standing in your way."

Educational Notes

As a measure to promote educational publicity and to assist in the stimulation of community interest in education and to give the public correct information regarding education both in Belleville and throughout the district, the Belleville Teachers' Council each week will contribute a column to appear in the Ontario Intelligencer under the heading "Educational Notes."

The Belleville Teachers' Council is an organization representing teachers of the four public schools and the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School.

HOME ECONOMICS IN THE HIGH SCHOOL CURRICULUM

As home economics is a comparative newcomer in the high school course of study, many people have a rather vague idea of just what is included in the subject. First, let us consider the objectives in the course. True education should teach students how to live; it should be a preparation for life. From this point of view, no other subject on the curriculum is of more value than home economics. In our grandmother's day, cooking, sewing and housekeeping were learned at home, where girls had enough practice to become expert in these arts. But in our complex modern life, there is little time at home for practice and our schools have realized the necessity of including it in their course of study. In later years, every girl will find a use for her training in home economics. It is a pity that the course is not open to boys as well, but at some future date, perhaps it will be realized that a study of home economics and family living will prepare girls to be better wives and mothers, it might train boys to be better husbands and fathers. There are therefore these two main objectives—to teach right living and to teach the necessary skills of homemaking.

* * *

Home Economics, as a subject, is divided into two sections — "household science" and "household arts". On account of the variety of subject matter taught there are more comprehensive titles than just "cooking" and "sewing". Household science includes a study of food values and choice of foods for all members of the family, meal planning, food preparation, table service, marketing, the care of the house, nutrition and physiology, home nursing, care of the infant and child, hygiene, and the art of living. Household arts is a study of family, social and community relationships to make for happier living.

* * *

The household science room in the Belleville Collegiate is a well planned and equipped unit. There is the added advantage of a complete apartment for practice in homemaking. During a typical day in the cooking classes, two entirely different classes may be cooking fruit, preparing lunch, doing the laundry, studying the digestion of food or learning how to be better wives and mothers in their future home. There is no lack of variety in this course. At the same time a smaller group in the practice apartment may be learning to entertain various duties assigned to them as a family group. In the kitchen two young cooks are perhaps preparing dinner and making the acquaintance of the greengrocer while the waitress is setting the table and studying its proper arrangement. The housekeeper is cleaning woodwork and polishing furniture and the laundress the group is bathing and dressing the school's most greatest problem, however, is invariably testing the cooks' products when the meal is served in the dining room! It is not possible, of course, to give practical training in every art to acquire perfect skills in these subjects, but the course is planned to want to take more part in such activities at home and to gain the knowledge they need.

Household Arts, the other section of the home economics course deals with the mechanics of dressmaking, following pattern directions, embroidery stitches, composition of materials, elements of costume design and color, outline of period costumes, principles of interior decoration, and history of civilization and culture. This makes a wonderful preparation for girls who will work as dressmakers, in the sales or decorating departments of a store, or who wish to go to art school, or enter the Fine Arts course at the university. Even if girls never have finished their school course, they have learned to stretch the dollar on making pyjamas, blouses, skirts, coats and dressed for themselves, smocked dresses for children, little boys' suits, curtains, rugs, quilts and many other things. The course has also given them a love for beauty, interests for the future, and the ability to avoid cruel and needless mistakes, and plan for beauty, and practical usefulness in their homes.

There may be some doubt as to where home economics fits in to the school curriculum. It may be taken in any one of the three sections of the school—collegiate, commercial or vocational. In all Grade IX it is a compulsory subject for all. And Grade IX it may be chosen in the collegiate general course as an optional subject to Latin and middle school standing may be obtained after four successful years. For those planning to take a nursing course, home economics is of great value. Much of the subject matter taken at school will be of real help and the practical work especially is helpful. For entrance to a number of university courses and to normal school, home economics will be accepted with the other middle school subjects. In the commercial course home economics may be taken as an optional course after Grade IX. The Home Economics Course in the Vocational School is a four-year course resulting in a high school graduation certificate. The academic subjects included are English, social studies, science, mathematics, health education, art, music—all necessary for a good general education. Languages are taken but more time is allowed for home economics than in the optional course. Certain commercial subjects are included in the third and fourth years. Unless a girl intends to enter university, normal school or a large school of nursing, the home economics course provides a good high school education. In any case, no matter which course a girl decides on, she would do well to consider the advantages of home training in home economics.

LOST HIS BET

Capetown, May 3 — (AP) — Stanley Brown lost a $20 bet because he could eat only 28¼ lbs. of cake at a sitting.

Brown fancied some 2½-pound cakes he saw in a Capetown hotel and exclaimed, "Boy, I could eat a dozen of those." The hotel manager heard the boast, proposed the bet and pocketed his winnings when Brown threw in the sponge after eating 10¼ cakes.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINIFRED E. WILSON

POINT PELEE

From the most southerly tip of Canada, Point Pelee, a little chain of islands extends across Lake Erie, forming an inviting path for migrating birds. Enormous numbers pass this way spring and fall; song birds, hawks, geese and ducks.

Middle Island, four miles south of the peninsula, is actually the most southerly piece of Canadian soil. Believe it or not, it is more than 25 miles farther south than the northern border of California! I believe that parallel. Plant life is similar to that of North Carolina and Virginia. No wonder, then, that in this district are found southern birds which seldom visit any other part of our country: as the Orchard Oriole and the Mockingbird. Here the rare Summer Tanager occurs and the Cardinal may look out Canadian citizenship papers.

Furthermore, Pelee can boast of a most unusual, yearly happening. When we think of spring we picture birds flying from their winter playgrounds in the south to their northern homes. And so it comes as a surprise to learn that spring may be seen going in the reverse direction.

This phenomenon was first noted by the Canadian ornithologist, Harrison F. Lewis, on the morning of May 12, 1937. Stationed on Pelee Island in order to watch birds passing north, he was amazed to find them travelling south. The weather was mild, and they were deliberately going about their face wind. Cedar Waxwings, Pine Siskins, Goldfinches, and large numbers of wood Warblers, such as the Myrtle, Black-throated Green, Blackburnian, and Chestnut-sided —35 species in all he counted at that time. Was some thing spoiling the wrong way?

Since then Canadian ornithologists have made a point of visiting Pelee at the same date. The southern flight is a regular affair. Sometimes as many as 9,500 birds have been seen in a morning, or 65 varieties from half an hour after sunrise until 8 a.m. Many are resting migrants. All prefer striking out into an adverse wind.

Some species fly in large, loose flocks; some keep their way from tree to tree, hesitantly, then take off one by one; some rest for days, then suddenly take off again. Finally, all go straight south across Lake Erie as far as they can be seen. And no one has as yet been able to give them a better convincing answer as to why birds fly south in May at Pelee.

Ottawa, May 3 —(CP)— Parliament forgot its party lines and its sessional problems on a day this week for a social fling that revived what has come to be known as the gaiety with the glare of music and a blaze of color.

It was the "At Home" of the cabinet ministers, one of the few the social events of the Ottawa season that has not been heavily subdued occasion while the war raged. This year it came back in full style.

Roughly 1,000 guests, predominantly garbed in evening attire, shared with Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Canada's 72-year-old bachelor Prime Minister, in enjoying an evening of music, pulchritude and, occasionally, song.

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, and Mrs. Bracken topped the list of guests from other parties. Diplomats, high-ranking civil servants and members of the parliamentary press gallery also were included.

Any threats of stiffness faded early. It was, it may be reported authentically, a good party.

Looking younger and happier since he became a figure from the finance department, Justice Minister Ilsley took his vivacious wife and others to the dance floor again and again.

Later he contentedly confided to one of the numerous little parties that were up simultaneously in members' rooms:

"Boy, what a time we sit there Tuesday night and listen to Doug (Finance Minister Abbott) deliver that budget."

Seven previous budgets had made Mr. Ilsley an older and less happier man.

As for the unfortunate Mr. Abbott, he, too, got into the dancing groove. After one final fox trot with his secretary, Miss Doris Bentley of Middleton, N.S., he mopped his brow and grinned. "It's not the budget that tired me out, it's my long underwear."

CAHA BRANCHES SHOW INCREASES IN REGISTRATION

48,755 Hockey Players Registered With 1,325 Players From Ontario

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, May 3. (CP)—The 30th annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association moved into the second day of its four-day deliberations today amid indications that the calm which prevailed in the opening sessions might be shattered when debate is started on the contentious affiliation question.

The measure, advocated by President Ranson Dowell of Middleton, N.S., suggests that the C.A.H.A. become a member of the Ligue Internationale de Hockey Sur Glace, dropping out of the International Ice Hockey Association.

The L.I.H.A., instituted in 1941 when the war stopped operations of the C.A.H.A., now includes the Scottish Ice Hockey Association and the American Hockey Association of the United States as its members. It would mean that acceptance of the C.A.H.A. decides on affiliation with the L.I.H.G.

The affiliation matter has far-reaching implications since it is doubtful if the Canadian Ice Hockey Association and the Scottish would be interested in the favorite of their own. The Scottish group refuses to join the L.I.H.A. unless Mr. Dowell, president of the S.I.H.A., maintains that the B.I.H.A. is the "one-man show operated by Secretary John F. (Bunny) Ahearn."

The Scottish group is unable to join the L.I.H.G. since the world governing body recognizes only one group in a country and the B.I.H.A. already represents Britain.

The General Assembly approved a by-law amendment at last night's session which provides that the Canadian Amateur Hockey rules committee of a chairman and two other members, one from the east and the other from the west. One duty of this committee will be to make a uniform code of rules in professional and amateur play.

At a morning session registration disclosed that registration was at an all-time high with 48,755 players registered in the 1946-47 season. Hewitt said that all nine C.A.H.A. branches registrar, W. A. Hewitt of Toronto, more than twice as many as Quebec which runs in second place.

The Senate did not sit.

Does Life Insurance Give Good Value?

"Good value" to most of us means "getting our money's worth." These days particularly, each dollar spent must contribute substantially to the family's welfare.

But the family budget has its limitations—some things we cannot afford to buy—other things we cannot afford to do without. In planning for the future, life insurance is as necessary as food, clothing and shelter. Place it high on your list.

Six New Records Established At Swimming Meet

Seattle, May 3 — (AP) — Six new records were established, a world mark installed, a queen of a vanished era and a queen of 1946 deposed as the United States' finest swimmers opened the women's national senior indoor A. A. U. swimming and diving championships yesterday.

Ann Curtis of San Francisco, took the heaviest crack at the records as the 24-year-old girl who was deposed to the 100-yard sprint in 1944 by Denmark's F. Nathanson and bettered the world mark established in the 220-yard event in 1931 by Helene Madison of Seattle.

In the finals, Miss Curtis won in 1:04.3 to erase the defending champion, Brenda Helser of Los Angeles.

Nancy Merki of Portland, Oregon established the American and meet record of 2:32.1 in both the Helen Rains of New York when she won the 200-yard individual medley in 3:53.4.

Another Portlander, Sue Zimmerman set up meet and American records in the 200-yard backstroke. She took both finals in 2:28.6 after turning in the best preliminary time of 2:31.2.

POLICY OF GOVT.

Mr. Kidd said the Canadian people were "disturbed" with the apparent coldness of the government toward immigration from the British Isles. He urged that priority be given to immigrants from the British Isles.

Mr. Kidd said that in discussing immigration members also had to look at the question of assimilation. There was a most "alarming situation" in the United States. Some of Canada's most promising young people were going to the United States because of the lack of suitable employment in the Dominion.

In the 1920's 1,000,000 Canadians emigrated to the United States. The immigration policy should be framed to prevent a re-occurrence of such emigration. While this emigration was proceeding, only one immigrant of British origin came to Canada for every two Canadians going to the United States.

He said many young people in the British Isles wanted to come to Canada.

No Discrimination.

Resources Minister Glen, under whose jurisdiction immigration falls, said there was no discrimination against people of the British Isles. The only difficulty was in obtaining transportation.

Mr. Kidd said priority should be given to those from the British Isles and Newfoundland. Many Newfoundlanders were lost to the Empire because Canadian immigration laws drove them to the United States. He said the government should give the Pole the same assistance as was being given Polish veterans brought to Canada.

Mr. Glen said the British government was paying for the transportation of the Polish veterans to Canada.

Wants Full-Time Minister.

Mr. Kidd said Canada should have a full-time minister of immigration so that all immigrants should be subject to stiff medical examinations before being allowed to enter Canada.

Mr. While said he thought if immigration were to Canada they should be prepared to pay higher prices because they would be getting a higher standard of living.

He also "resented" the fact some immigrants brought to Canada were from "corrupt ideologies." They should be prepared to accept Canadian ideals.

Gen. Pearkes said a number of young Canadians had suffered for action in the Pacific in 1944 and said this was indicative of the spirit of the young Chinese Canadians.

Chinese Shining Example

He said the Chinese living in Canada had been a "shining example" to other Canadians in their support of veterans loans and other financial drives.

British Columbians admired and respected the Chinese and did not like to see any restrictions against them.

But Canada had to be practical about the matter and realized how many Chinese wives and children might come to Canada. The total might be 40,000.

Gen. Pearkes said it would be "utterly impractical" for British Columbia to accept that number of immigrants. The townsfolk of British Columbia were "terribly over-crowded" and could not absorb all the wives and children.

There also would be a lack of school facilities and employment.

In view of these facts, he felt immigration would assure British Columbia there would not be a "floodtide" of Chinese immigration.

Mr. Ferguson said he would try to treat the immigration problem as it affected Canada as a whole and not simply the Province of Ontario.

Has Utmost Regard

Mr. Ferguson said he had the utmost regard for the Polish veterans who had fought alongside the Allies, but he felt that the heroes of the British Isles should be given priority in matters of immigration. He recalled that a clipping which outlined what Canada had done on the matter of shipping.

Immigration Free

Labor Minister Mitchell said he went to see Mr. Ferguson that immigration from the British Isles to Canada was as free if not more so as it was prior to part of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Sinclair urged the government to conclude a treaty with the British government which would facilitate immigration from the British Isles. Canada must be prepared to cover the "freedom" they now were being offered.

Mr. Tucker protested against provisions of the International Refugee Organization which he said would prevent Canadians from bringing their blood relatives of German Ethnic origin who would make fine citizens. He did not have enemy aliens in mind.

BOY'S FEET SEVERED

Ottawa, May 3 (CP).—Donald Brennan, 13, was found on a suburban street car track late last night with both feet severed above the ankles and police said he had been run over by a train whose motorman had kept going, apparently unaware of the accident. Less than an hour after he had left his foster parents, attracted by his cries for help, found him lying on the track.

BRITISH SEEK 227 PRISONERS AFTER BREAK

Gandhi Doubts UN Can Maintain Lasting Peace

Fears World is 'Heading For Another Showdown'

By DOON CAMPBELL

New Delhi, May 5 (Reuters)—Mohandis K. Gandhi said today he does not believe that the United Nations can maintain lasting peace and that he fears the world is "heading for another showdown."

"Fear permeates many minds," he said in a 40-minute interview. "But it all goes well with India then the world may have a long peace."

He also made these points:

The Jews in Palestine are damaging their case by violence.

The partition of India "is not inevitable.

British withdrawal from India must take place according to schedule irrespective of internal conditions.

Gandhi received me in one of 3 rooms reserved for his personal use in Delhi's Bhangi (Sweepers) colony. He squatted cross-legged on a mattress apparently unfatigued by a succession of visitors including Jawaharlal Nehru, vice-president of the Indian Interim Government, Krishna Menon, secretary of the India League and special Indian representative in Europe, and Sir Walter Monckton, adviser to the Nizam of Hyderabad.

His 78-year-old mind seemed in first-class shape, more responsive and alert than many men one-third his age. As he answered my questions, he:

Q: "Do you subscribe to the opinion that British in under a moral obligation to stay on in India if outstanding differences between Hindus and Moslems have not been resolved in June, 1948?"

India's State of Mind

A: "That question has never been put to me before. It would be a good thing if the British were to go today. Their two months means mischief in India.

"I do not question the nobility of the declaration [of June 3] not question the sincerity of the Viceroy, but facts are facts. Neither the British cabinet nor the Viceroy, however outstanding he may be, can alter facts.

"The facts are, that India has been treated in toto to hand over power for everything. Now it is not possible for India to take her mind off that state suddenly.

"I have never appreciated that argument that while British want so many months to get ready to leave. During that time all parties will look to the British cabinet and the Viceroy. We have not defend the British by force of arms, it has been a victory for India by non-violence.

"The British will have to take the risk of leaving India in chaos or anarchy. That is to be cause there is no home rule—it has been imposed on the people and when you voluntarily remove that rule there might be no rule in India—initial state.

"The communal feuds you see here are in my opinion partly due to the presence of the British. If the British were not here we would still go through the fire, no doubt, but that fire would purify us."

On the Palestine problem, Gandhi said Jews should not meet the Arabs, make friends with them and not depend on British aid, on American aid, or on any aid save what descends from Jehovah."

Husband Named As Slayer Of Four Relatives

Wayne, W. Va., May 5 —(AP)—Prosecuting Attorney Floyd Harrison announced that Oliver Hurley, hunted 48 hours because of the killing of four relatives near Fort Gay, was slain today by a special investigator from his office.

"We don't have the details yet," said Harrison, "but an unidentified man has left here to return the body."

Fort Gay, W. Va., May 5 (AP)—A posse of 40 sheriff's deputies and state police fanned out in the rugged brushy and wooded section from here south of here today in their search for Oliver Hurley, 40, named by a coroner's jury as the slayer of four relatives.

Police found the dead Included Hurley's three-year-old son, Jay Hurley, three; Oliver Hurley, his estranged wife, Mrs Susie Billups Hurley, 34, shot three times; his brother, William Hurley, 45, shot six times, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Nora Hurley Stokes, 32, shot twice.

Police said they would file murder charges today after the jury ruled that the four met death "by shots inflicted by one Oliver Hurley."

Two other children, including Hurley's nine-month-old daughter and a 7-year-old nephew, were wounded.

The shootings, attributed to a fit of "mad jealousy" over Hurley's estrangement from his wife, broke the Sunday quiet in the isolated Tabor's Creek and in nearby Wildcat Hallow.

Bill of Appropriations Total is $163,593,515 Less Than Estimated In Budget

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

Washington, May 5 — (AP) — A 23-per-cent cut in the combined 1948 budget of three United States government departments and the Federal courts was recommended today by the House of Representatives Appropriations Committee.

The Committee sent the $535,028,000 Omnibus Supply Bill to the House floor with these recommendations for funds:

State Department: $12,128,058, a reduction of $60,409,565 or 22 per cent less than the President's budget estimates but $37,592,353 more than it had for the current year.

Commerce Department: $191,000,000, a 35-per-cent cut from the budget figure of $286,869,000 and $8,560,470 less than for 1947.

Justice Department: $108,396,500, a cut of about 2.7 per cent from 1947 figures of $111,470,000 and $1,293,450 less than the 1947 total.

The bill's total is $163,593,515 less than the estimates but $36,248,530 more than the combined agencies received this year.

The bill finances the cost of such agencies for the fiscal year starting next July 1. It is scheduled for House consideration late this week.

Hoover Says Reds Every Field in U.S. Have Penetrated

Washington, May 5. (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, says "Communists have penetrated every field of activity" in the United States.

He told a House of Representatives appropriations sub-committee that there are now one of the 74,000 Communist party members there are "no other individuals who are ready to do the party's work."

He said Communists have gone into the movie, radio and newspaper fields, the labor movement and "every field of endeavor in this country" and that "penetration by this group has increased in last several years."

Hoover said he did not think "we are going to have a revolution in this country to-morrow".

BABE ESCAPES INJURY

Windsor, May 5 — (CP) — Miracles do happen. That's what Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams and their neighbors are saying about themselves today. Because little Sandra Williams, the baby daughter of the family, Williams' cough tumbled a straight drop of some 35 feet out of a bedroom window in her home last Friday night and escaped with scratches and a chubby cheek. Sleeper-togged, she landed on the lawn.

Russian Movie Depicts Churchill in Cheap Victory, Profitable Peace Role

London, May 5 — (Reuters) — Britain's wartime prime minister, Winston Churchill, is depicted as opposed to the invasion of Europe in 1943 in a new Russian movie, "The Battle of Stalingrad," which also quotes the late Franklin D. Roosevelt as saying that the British leaders dreamed of a "cheap victory and a profitable peace."

The scenario of the movie, which portrays Generalissimo Stalin in the principal role, was broadcast by Moscow radio today.

One scene shows Stalin's study crowded with the Generalissimo, Churchill, Foreign Minister Molotov, United States Ambassador Averell Harriman, British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr (now Baron Inverchapel) and others in conference.

The following dialogue ensues:

Churchill: "Invasion of Europe is impossible. The British cannot risk now an operation which may not bring proper results."

Stalin: "Bluntly speaking the British want to break their earn est pledges made in the spring of this year. Is that so?"

Churchill (after more discussion): "We cannot do more than we are. Africa will be quite enough for our land forces at present."

After the British and American representatives leave Stalin is heard saying: "All is understood . . . they want us to shed more blood so as to be able to dictate to us later. They will not succeed."

Another scene shows Roosevelt in his study reading the latest news and talking to an unnamed visitor.

Roosevelt: "The Russians have stopped the Germans on the Don."

Journalist: "Yes, it makes me think of those people who advised us not to send arms to them."

Roosevelt: "How can we help them now?"

Journalist: "By invading Europe from the west."

Roosevelt: "Alas, this does not depend on me, you know."

Journalist: "The British dream of cheap victory."

2,000 EMPLOYEES AT OSHAWA PLANT RETURN TO WORK

Industrial Picture in Ontario Appears Brighter but 2,500 Still Out

(By The Canadian Press)

The industrial picture in Ontario, where nine disputes have tied up 4,600 employees in recent days, took a brighter hue today with the return to work of 2,000 employees of the General Motors Corporation of Canada at Oshawa.

Workers and management were also to meet in the walk-out of 170 employees at the Canadian Wooden Aircraft Company at Stratford, but there was no signs of developments in the other disputes.

The Oshawa General Motors factory was forced into idleness after 1250 workers in the transmission body room walked out April 30 in protest against the company suspension of the Union Militant Wildcat Strike Committee.

Continuing disputes were those involving 600 foundrymen at the Massey-Harris plant in Brantford, 500 at the Fort Morlet Stove Company in Toronto, 450 carpenters at the Canadian Chesley Walker Credit plant of the St. Lawrence Starch Company, 235 at Otis-Fenson Car and Wagon Co. and the Globe Furniture Company in Waterloo and 70 Toronto Jewish bakers.

Trout-Rearing Grounds Blasted By Dynamite

Sudbury, Ont., May 5 —(CP) —Wildlife Specialist Charles Bibby charged today that thousands of fish were killed or scattered over ice in a lake northeast of nearby Chelmsford, the result of wanton fishermen who dynamited the trout-rearing grounds early Sunday morning.

He said the depredations of fish life in the lake created a "serious situation" because, in addition to the thousands of small fish washed up on the ice by the force of the blast, the specialist recovered some that weighed up to two pounds.

Comb Coastal Waters in South B.C. In Search for Missing Airliner

Vancouver May 5 (CP)— An exhaustive combing of coastal waters in southern British Columbia is underway following reports that an aircraft believed to be the missing Canso flying boat airliner was seen "flying low over Georgia Straits" last Monday morning, after it had lost contact with the Vancouver airport.

The reports, described as reliable by officials in charge of the search for the Lodestar and its 16 passengers, came from residents of Galiano Island, lying in the Georgia Straits less than five miles off Nanaimo on Vancouver Island.

Word that low-flying aircraft had been sighted strengthened belief that the plane had ended into the sea instead of hurtling into a mountain side.

Today the unflagging hunt—the greatest aerial search in the history of Canadian aviation— is centred in the vicinity of Gabriola Island, with officials more hopeful than they have been for several days that the mystery will be solved.

Hopes that survivors will be found alive, however, are fading fast with every hour the search continues.

The reason was given for the delay by the islanders in forwarding reports of nearby Chelmsford, the result of wanton fishermen who dynamited the trout-rearing grounds early Sunday morning.

He said the depredations of fish life in the lake created a "serious situation" because, in addition to the thousands of small fish washed up on the ice by the force of the blast, the specialist recovered some that weighed up to two pounds.

16 PICKNICKERS KILLED IN WRECK IN AUSTRALIA

Special Excursion Train Piles Up After Locomotive Jumps Rails

Sydney, Australia, May 5 (AP) — At least 16 picknickers were killed and about 60 injured today in the worst Australian train wreck in three years.

But Ramadier's action, involving the resignation of his Socialist party's right-wing over his left, put to a crucial test the post-war French political axiom: "It is impossible to govern with the Communists and equally impossible to govern without them."

Will the country miss them? Is the country with a general strike by way of protest against the policies of any government they are not formally pledged to support?

Former Financial Head, M.J. Insull, Dies in Orillia

Orillia, Ont., May 5 (CP) — Insull estate left a $2,000,000 financial empire which collapsed with heavy losses to investors, died in Insull died in hospital here yesterday morning at the age of 75 years, since the crash of the huge organization built up by himself and his elder brother Samuel.

Martin Insull was 67 when he went to Orillia in 1938. British citizenship—he and his brother were born in London, Eng.—he returned to the United States in 1887. Since then he has been involved in the charges resulting from the failure of the Middle West Utilities Company of Chicago he had lived in obscurity in a guest home here. He entered the Soldiers' Memorial Hospital in this small town 80 miles west of Toronto one week ago, and died Sunday. His wife died two years ago.

Martin Insull was long as associate of his brother Samuel Insull, who died ago in construction of the vast utilities edifice which collapsed in the early ship in 1932. Martin was senior vice-president of the Chicago concern in charge of operations.

Both Insull brothers left Chicago when the crash came and the United States government began a long fight to extradite Martin from Canada and Samuel from Greece. Canadian authorities intended there was no proof of criminal charges against the younger Insull but finally yielded him to custody at Toronto. Authorities in March, 1934. Samuel was captured and taken into U.S. custody at Greece.

Sam Insull first was tried on charges of mail fraud but was acquitted by a Cook County jury at Chicago in 1934, and freed in June, 1933. At that time the state dropped similar charges against Martin Insull.

Always reserved and reticent, Insull was nevertheless the principal mouthpiece of his brother Sam's business interests for years, their chief salesman.

RAMADIER DROPS FIVE COMMUNISTS FROM CABINET

French Premier Faces An Uncertain Future With Regard to Wage-Freezing Policies

By ROBERT C. WILSON

Paris, May 5 — (AP)—Premier Paul Ramadier faced an uncertain future today as he embarked upon the experiment of government without the powerful, labor-controlling Communist party.

The Socialist premier dropped the five Communist ministers from his coalition cabinet last night following a 366-to-186 vote of confidence in his wage-freezing policies, with the Communist members dissenting.

George Marrane, former minister, was due to resign today.

No new ministers were added. Incumbent among the Socialists, mouvement Republicain Populaire and Radical Socialist ministers simply took over the Communists' jobs. Ramadier's cabinet portfolio changes gave radical Socialist Yves Farge the Tillon defence ministry — choicest post the Communists had — and Socialist Daniel Mayer the labor ministry.

It was not apparent, however, that the cabinet shake-up had brought any solution to the situation which prompted the Approximately 3,200 Renault auto and aviation workers to go on a demanding 10 francs an hour extra pay.

Communists backed the strike by saying it was justified and also opposed any salary raises.

But Ramadier's action, involving the resignation of his Socialist party's right-wing over his left, put to a crucial test the post-war French political axiom: "It is impossible to govern with the Communists and equally impossible to govern without them."

Will the country miss them? Is the country with a general strike by way of protest against the policies of any government they are not formally pledged to support?

Underground Bomb Engineers Delivery And 16 Killed

Villages in 120-Mile Area Placed Under Surveillance

By EDWARD CURTIS

Jerusalem, May 5 — (AP) — British troops spread a great dragnet over the white northern third of Palestine today in a determined manhunt for 192 Jew and Arab convicts still at large after Sunday's mass delivery at Acre prison by the Jewish underground.

This afternoon, however, no recaptures had been reported officially other than the 19 taken shortly after the break-out, executed under cover of a blazing machine gun from Zvai Leumi underground gang.

Official figures listed 16 killed and 20 wounded in and as a result of the spectacular attack.

An official statement said today of the Jews escaped, and that four later were killed. The total of Arabs who broke out was set at 183 and one killed.

A total of 613 prisoners was in the prison at the time of the outbreak. Of these 163 were Jews serving life sentences for political prisoners. There were 450 Arabs including 34 inmates.

The latest, official statement gave no figure on the number of recaptures, which had reached 92 at 19, but said that a number of Arabs had surrendered. Eight of those recaptured were wounded. Two of these recaptured were known to be Arabs.

Beside the convicts killed, six of the Jewish attackers, dressed in British Army garb, were slain. Five other Jews were killed in attempting to flee a road block at Nahlitya, quickly established by British troops after the attack on Acre began.

Sixteen of the attackers, including four wounded, were captured.

Troops of the British 6th Airborne division, moving with lightening speed, combed all of Acre, a dozen predominantly Jewish settlements in the immediate vicinity of Acre during the night and began an inch-by-inch hunt for fugitives.

All villages in a 120-mile area were placed under surveillance and highways were blocked every few miles by gun-bristling barricades at which all travellers were checked and all automobiles searched.

Army Radio Issued in Palestine today said that of the 251 Jewish prisoners who broke out, break 191 were Arabs and 60 Jews. Nationalities of others were given the figures as 120 Jews and 131 Arabs.

A number of the fugitives — both Jews and Arabs were wounded in the attack.

Prison attaches in Acre reported that the Jews were first organized by a small band of "Commandos" dressed in army gear and led by a Jew who had formerly been a captain in the Royal Engineers.

The "Commandos" battled duels against the prison wall from the roof of an adjoining Turkish bath and blasted open two heavily-grilled windows with small explosive charges.

Then an adjoining Turkish bath and blasted open two heavily-grilled windows with small explosive charges.

The party then climbed through the windows into a long corridor of the prison and blasted open two of the cells, freeing the prisoners gathered in the courtyard.

The wall was breached simultaneously by other attacks.

London Subway Preferred by TTC To U.S. Systems

London, May 5 (Reuters) — Members of the Toronto Transportation Commission, headed by William C. McBrien, agreed today that the control and operation of London's subway was better than anything they had seen in the United States and they said they had gleaned much valuable information which would help them in providing Toronto "with the world's most modern subway.

In an interview McBrien said that at least two large British engineering firms were eager to supply a substantial portion of the equipment for the $80,000,000 project which would provide Canada with its first subway system.

If a steady stream of materials could be obtained McBrien stated that work might begin within 12 months but it would be eight to 10 years before the subway was completed.

McBrien emphasized that no manufacturing contracts had been signed yet but he made it clear that Canada was anxious to keep as much of the money to be spent in Canada for the Dominion's wealth.

Members of the commission were to go to Paris today and Berlin to Amsterdam. They hope to be back in Canada in about two weeks.

Attlee Calls For Patience, Work

London, May 5 — (AP) — British workers observed "May Day" Sunday with rallies throughout the country, high-lighted by a gathering at Hyde Park Corner at which Prime Minister Attlee and other Labor party leaders extended words of encouragement and called on the people for patience and hard work.

The prime minister, recalling the industrial, financial, and political difficulties of the last winter, said: "We have the promise of summer, but the seeds which we sow in the fields of plowing to Spring up, and there will be much hard work before they are reaped. Like an English spring, there is work to be done, sowers, warmth and chill."

Attlee asserted that the Labor government was "making great changes in the social and economic structure of the country . . . without disturbance and with respect to the rights of the individual and the community."

British workers celebrated the centuries old May Day holiday on the Sunday following May 1.

STAFFS ARE PRAISED FOR COURTEOUS SERVICE

Merchants of the city in general and their sales staffs in particular can take a well-deserved bow. Compliments like those voiced over the weekend by hundreds of out-of-town shoppers are rarer than they deserved and they are due and for this reason doubly appreciated.

The two shoppers, ladies, in this case, who reside in a city much larger than Belleville were loud in their praises of the courteous treatment they received by staffs and management of various stores on Front Street and the vicinity of Kingsway.

"It was a distinct pleasure to be waited on by such polite and attentive ladies and gentlemen," the clerks especially were out of their way to cater to our needs, while store officials were very obliging and mannerly. We're coming back—but soon".

"WICKY" RUTTAN CATCHES BIG ONE ON OPENING DAY

It takes more than cold weather to stop "Wicky" Ruttan, well-known city fisherman, from enjoying the first opening week of the speckled trout on opening day. And his efforts were well rewarded for he brought home the best specimen of that type of fish that has to date come to the bait.

Ruttan's fine fish caught in a lake north of Plevna weighed in the vicinity of four pounds and gave the veteran quite a battle before saying "uncle".

Twenty-eight inches long, according to reports, with a freezing driving rain pelting down on the fisherman. Snow in some places to a depth of eighteen inches mantled the woods while thick ice rimmed the lakes. But the trout were biting—and that's all that matters to the enthusiastic fisherman.

Speckled Trout In North Waters Looking for Bait

There may not be the best fishing weather in the world prevailing, but according to reports of fishing enthusiasts who visited the speckled trout haunts in the northern parts of the district, the fish are showing a distinct yen to take the bait.

Fred Deacon, of this city, who spent a few days in the vicinity of Plevna last week with Weimkeonon, returned with a nice haul of trout some of which tipped the scales at two pounds, two pounds.

Jack Lee, Herb McCabe and Dr. Russell Shier, "old timers" and "old keepers" of hunting and fishing, braved wintery weather at the opening of the season in the area north of Plevna and came home with nine nice specimens.

Joe Shortt and party returned after a weekend trip with reports of a good catch. Belleville fishermen also brought home many trophies of the fine day.

Roy Woodbeck and party who tried the brook trout hiked through several streams of West Huntingdon and returned with five.

A number of Americans arrived in the city over the weekend according to Harry Lazar. Ed Thomas, and immediately left for the northern fishing grounds.

Kinsmen Variety Program Presented In Aid of Community Swimming Pool

Featured by the appearance of out-of-town personalities, including "Greg" Clarke, Montreal broadcasting feature writer, Mayor Ernest Ayrhart of Campbellford and Jack Clapper, coach of the Boston Bruins hockey club, the Kinsmen stage and radio show held at the McArthy Theatre Sunday night was an outstanding success.

The theatre was jammed to capacity for the 2.30 p.m. performance with every available seat being filled long before the opening of the program, while Master of Ceremonies Barry Woods, well known radio personality, kept the show moving at a rapid pace throughout.

Large Sum Needed.

The show was the initial venture of the local Kinsmen Club to raise money for the Belleville Community Swimming Pool Fund with Kinsmen today pronouncing the show a huge success. However, donations to the Fund are still being accepted by Kinsmen and may be mailed to the Club treasurer, F. Franklin Lang, Treasurer, box No. 297.

President of the Kinsmen Club, Arthur Croll, expressed the appreciation of the club to those who had attended the show for the swimming pool fund, and pointed out that the venture was an Inter-Service Club project.

Mayor Pollwell stated that the Kinsmen had pioneered the swimming pool project but now the venture had the support of every organization in the city. The last proceeds of the Old Home Week would be turned over to the fund, he said. Mayor Ernest Ayrhart of Campbellford, told of the value of a community centre in combatting juvenile delinquency, citing Timmins as an example. "Greg" Clarke introduced the two mayors.

Group Captain Rutledge, commanding officer of Trenton R.C.A.F. station, added his support and encouragement to the swimming pool project, pointing out its value to the community.

Splendid Talent.

Some of the best stage and musical talent in Belleville and district was featured on the two and a half hour program which was broadcast by station CJBQ.

The musical background was provided by the ever-popular Commodores Orchestra, with the Y.M.C.A. Junior Boys' Choir under the direction of Ed. Shortt, and the Belleville Collegiate Girls' Octet under the direction of W. R. Hall, gave much appreciated support. Approximately thirty young local artists, including vocalists and instrumentalists, participated in the program which followed closely the list published last week. Additions to the program included piano selections by Miss Joan Kay of St. Michael's Choir Club, and by Richard Ferrier, accomplished Montreal pianist, and by Bob Francis.

The Rhythm Ranch Riders, the Commodores Orchestra and Ed. Fraser, formerly of Jamaica, were heard in encores, the latter singing "Old Man River" as his final number.

Monty Doesn't Want Recruits Bored by Methods

Chester, Cheshire, England, May 5. (CP)—Older soldiers will no longer be allowed to employ "Boer War" methods in training National Service recruits, Field Marshal Montgomery told a press conference after a visit to Western Command headquarters here.

The Chief of the Imperial General Staff said he had given orders that trainees should not be required to undergo continued instruction in a phase of military work in which he already was proficient.

"I don't want a young man to be bored and taught something he knows all about," said the Field Marshal. "When he is proficient he should be allowed to fall out and do something else."

Three Members Of Crash-Landing Are Recuperating

Edmonton, May 5 (CP)—All three members of a four-seater moth plane, marooned at Coffey Lake, about 240 miles north of here, were recuperating today after a seven-day experience in the northern bushland.

The trio, George Fletcher of Brandon, Man., pilot of the plane, and his passengers, Joseph Driscoll and 19-year-old Jim McAvoy, both of Yellowknife, N.W.T., were returned to Edmonton last night by an Associated Airways plane, piloted by Fletcher.

None of the men suffered serious injury when their plane crash-landed on the lake last Sunday after developing engine trouble. They were flying from Edmonton to Yellowknife at the time.

And 19-year-old Jim McAvoy, both of Yellowknife, N.W.T., were returned to Edmonton last night by an Associated Airways plane, piloted by Fletcher.

None of the men suffered serious injury when their plane crash-landed on the lake last Sunday after developing engine trouble. They were flying from Edmonton to Yellowknife at the time.

And it was Fletcher who was taken to Fort McMurray where the latter is receiving treatment for a back injury and possible rib fractures. Fletcher, who received a number of facial cuts in landing, the craft was flown to Edmonton for medical attention.

The men were reported missing after stopping at McMurray on the first leg of their flight. Search planes combed the area three days later and the rescue plane was sent to the area to bring them out.

Rescue operations were held up for a couple of days because of ice and slush conditions on the lake, which is about a few miles north of the lake.

Meanwhile, Earl Pearson, trapper at Coffey Lake set out in a canoe and brought them back to his cabin. They stayed with Pearson for three days until the plane was able to make a landing about a mile from the lake.

Peron's Bloodless Revolution Meets More Resistance

Buenos Aires, May 5 —(Reuters)—The bloodless revolution which President Peron has thrust upon the people of Argentina in the form of a gigantic five-year plan intended to remould the economic, social and political structure of the country is in danger of running into a counter-revolution.

This comes from the rich wheat and corn lands and cattle pastures on the pampas upon which Argentina's great wealth has been built.

Already the first "guerrillas" of the counter-revolutionaries are at work. Andres Picione, secretary of the Argentino Farmers' Society in the Province of Buenos Aires, has been arrested by federal police on charges of threatening to burn a farmer's crop if the latter proceeds in harvesting his maize.

Everywhere through the rich farming and agricultural areas of Buenos Aires province the farmers have threatened to let their crops rot rather than sell them to the government at prices the latter has offered.

If an effort to prevent the orderly mobilization of the Agrarian forces, the government has declared all meetings and demonstrations by farm societies.

"If I am forced to, I will distribute the land to the farm laborers and give each one a gun to defend it," Peron angrily told a group of agrarian leaders who had called to ask for higher prices for agricultural products.

The basic cause of the serious situation developing in the rich pampas country of Argentina is the government's price policy. Farmers receive 150 to 170 pesos a ton for wheat which the government sells abroad for 450 pesos, and 100 to 120 pesos a ton for maize sold by the government at a profit of more than 100 per cent.

OBITUARY

WILL HOLBERT
(Thomasburg)

The funeral of Will Holbert, who died suddenly at his home in Thomasburg early Thursday morning, was held from his late residence on Saturday afternoon, following a brief service in the home, to the United Church in that village where an impressive service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. H. B. Haywood, assisted by the Rev. C. C. Rogers, of the Anglican Church at Roslin. The funeral was under the auspices of the Independent Order of Oddfellows and was largely attended.

Interment took place at Thomasburg Cemetery and the last rites of the Order of Oddfellows were conducted at the graveside. The bearers were: Herman Elliott, Clifford Adams, Fred Coulter, Allan Jones, Harry Kennedy and J. E. Bateman.

The late Mr. Holbert was born 83 years ago in Thomasburg and all his life was passed there. He was a blacksmith by trade and despite his advanced age, he continued to perform light work at his shop. On Wednesday he drove to Tweed and on Thursday morning it was found that he had died in his sleep during the night. The announcement of his death brought deep regret to residents of the community and the entire district where he was widely known and highly esteemed for the many fine traits of character which he possessed. He will be much missed by many old friends. In religion he was a member of the United Church and fraternally he was a member of the I.O.O.F. for many years and in recognition of his long service to the Order he was presented with the 50th Year Jewel a few years ago.

Mr. Holbert is the last of a family of three and surviving to mourn his loss are his wife, the former Annie Fleming; one son, Floyd of Toronto; four daughters, Mrs. Will (Dora) Vance, Thomasburg; Mrs. Harold (Nettie) Morton, Thomasburg; Mrs. (Ruby) Dennison, wife of Dr. Dennison, Fort William, Ontario, and Mrs. Elwood (Audrie) Kincaid, Toronto, a son, Murney, died some years ago.

Boy Finds Out For Himself Feet Amputated

Ottawa, May 5 (CP)—Donald Bastien, 13-year-old son whose nurses hadn't the heart to tell him his feet had been amputated, has found out for himself.

Donnie lost both feet in a fall from a street car Friday night near his suburban Westboro home. Suffering from severe shock in hospital, he rallied satisfactorily during the weekend to make himself the discovery when no one had been able to tell him. "The first thing he asked me," said the tearful mother, Mrs. William Bresnan, "was whether or not he would ever be able to swim again." She recalled his excellent record in school athletics.

"I just wanted to tell him. God will help you'."

Hospital officials said the boy's strong constitution had brought him through, and that he was "well out of danger."

ACID INDIGESTION at the Lunch Counter...

TWO RENNIES give instant aid

You never know when you may get an attack of acid indigestion. It comes at the most awkward times—at the lunch counter for instance; but you can have quick, comforting relief if you carry a few RENNIES in your vest pocket or handbag.

Digestif RENNIES are pleasant-tasting tablets. You dissolve them in your mouth like candies. Their soothing antacid ingredients mingle with the saliva of your mouth and drip gently into your stomach, thus starting at once to help neutralize excess acid and helping to relieve the miserable feelings of acid indigestion, upset stomach and heartburn.

Each RENNIES tablet is individually wrapped in hygienic waxed paper. Carry a few in pocket or handbag. Easy to take—anytime, anywhere. At all Drug Stores—25c and 75c. If RENNIES don't relieve your indigestion, it's high time you saw your doctor.

DIGESTIF RENNIES Easy to take . . . anytime, anywhere

Fish and Game Club Holds Open Meeting

Marmora (Special) —Marmora members of the Belleville Fish and Game Association through the efforts of Jack Wellman and Dr. G. H. Hannibal answered an open meeting in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening when various matters relating to conservation of fish and game were discussed. Mr. Joseph Merrit, secretary of the Belleville association presided. After introductory remarks of the chairman, the film "Sighting Big Game," featuring Jasper National Park was shown.

Dr. Hammond, then gave an interesting talk, mentioning the depletion of wild ducks. He said that it was definitely pointed out by an authority that a factor in the depletion of ducks and geese had been the lead poisoning to their systems through bullets lodging in their stomachs. A new kind of bullet had been devised which would eventually dissolve there ,without harmful consequence to the birds.

Another film "The Beaver Family" was flashed on the screen to the deep interest of the audience. John Bonter, called upon to make a few remarks spoke of young ducks dying in large numbers owing to uncontrolled waters. He also recalled a humorous experience of his where having taken a good catch of bass on one occasion, he found them missing later, and discovered that a mink had been sneaking them to feed her seven young offspring.

FARMERS DELAYED

Sarnia, May 5 —(CP)— Heavy weekend rainfall in Sarnia delayed Lambton County farmers from getting on the land. Little work has been done this season, described as the latest on record, but the last few days brought about by the rainfall however, gives promise of a good hay crop. Market gardners in low-lying regions are the worst sufferers.

Planning an Upsweep Hairdo

While letting your hair grow, ch oose a style that will be becoming such as this one worn by Actress Leslie Brooks

By HELEN FOLLETT

When a woman with shoulder-length hair decides that she is tired of all that, would sport a swell-elegant upsity coiffure, she is likely to be in for a bother-some period of transition between the long and the short of it. The tapered neck line is especially troublesome.

It is well worthwhile to consult a hair stylist. There are modes that avoid the "growing out" look. During this term of cultivating pigtail material, a woman can have a variety of hairdos.

New angling of the crwon may be necessary every two months. Also, the short hair along the nape line will have to be subjected to the permanent wave treatment. One can't have crazy wisps to come and appear composed and pleased with oneself among one's fellow creatures.

Every Two Months

No matter how seriously a woman puts her mind on the matter, she can't possibly make her hair grow more than one inch every two months. Nature seemed to have made that decree, though growth may vary slightly with different individuals. To cultivate wool that can be brushed upward and made to stay put will require about six months. In the meantime one must appear presentable.

A side parting at the back of the head will let the short ends sweep toward the sides instead of falling downward and looking untidy.

As Ends Grow

As the ends grow longer they can be pin-curled, forming an attractive fringe. A little more length and they form a fat roll at the back. By last time one has acquired two extra inches. If one considers the roll a bit plain, one can bis the switch bob with wide undulations across the back of the head, the ends of the tresses fall in soft ringlets.

A little more length and rear locks can be brushed upward, forming a soft, fluffy effect. Another partial permanent may be called for at this time.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Leave Your Husband Or As bad a lot of fun on our last date, Impulse and I don't did not do anything to hurt him.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a married woman and mother of children. My husband is so good to me. He is very kind and loving, but he doesn't love me any more. He is very jealous and doesn't want me to go any place. He never takes me any place either. Sometimes I think he is jealous because there is another woman, and I might find it out.

I get so troubled sometimes that I say I'm going to leave, but I hate to leave my children and my home. He never gives me any money. I have to wash and sew to get any. He says a woman doesn't need money. I don't want to leave, but if going away will help me, I can do that.

"M. H."

Dear "M. H.":

I don't like to tell a woman to leave her husband, either. And I don't think she ought to do it as long as there is any hope at all that she can save the situation.

But at the same time there are times the only way — if there is any way at all to save this kind of situation is to give it up. That is the time a woman does leave her husband, it may bring him to his senses and she can go back, after a temporary separation to a better deal. That is, of course, if he realizes he really loves and wants her.

If you think there is no possible chance of your husband changing his attitude, then perhaps it is time for you to try such an experience. But don't just walk out some day on an impulse, leaving your children behind. Don't do it at all, but have your plans out. In advance, a definite plan as to how you are going to carry on.

You Shouldn't Have Been So Hasty!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last summer I went to a wedding with my girl friend. She met a very nice boy there who asked her out, and they fixed up a blind date for me with this boy's brother. I am 16 and he is 18.

This boy borrowed my ring and has not as yet returned it. The boys used to call up every week, but for the past few weeks we have not heard from them. We and plans were made to hold a tea and sale at the home of Mrs. F. C. Besser, delegate to the 61st Diocesan Annual meeting held in Brockville recently, gave a very interesting report of the different meetings.

The articles for the sale, which will be packed now, were on display.

Mrs. W. Clapperdale read an article on "Rhubarb and Rhubarb Syrup."

An appreciation was expressed to the president to Mrs. Besser for her splendid report of the annual.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess and a social hour enjoyed.

UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

Tweed (Special) —The May meeting of St. John's United Church Women's Missionary Society was held on Thursday afternoon in the Sunday School room with the president, Mrs. Lincoln Elliott presiding. The program and worship service "Trust and go forward a step" were combined. For years we have looked across the sea to distant parts of the world and sought to build the World Christian Community. Now the ends of the earth have been brought to our very doorsteps by the coming of foreign students who are the leaders of the future. Mrs. Harold Ketcheson, Mrs. Ward Wood, Mrs. Gerald Austin and Miss Molly Reesmith impersonated two of the foreign students who have come to Canada to study in the universities while they are here. Many will make the fateful decision between Christ or chaos, between consecration or destruction. Mrs. C. Kerr's devotional expected report. Mrs. M. Drinkwater, Superintendent of Literature, gave the meeting two instances where supply work is needed. Miss Lois Mumby read the "Tree of the Heart of the Shepherd" which was much enjoyed. The worship service was conducted by Mrs. G. Gordon, the meeting closed with prayer and a hymn. Refreshments were served and a social half-hour spent.

ROSLIN ANGLICAN W.A.

Roslin. (Special.)— The May meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Wilson with sixteen ladies present.

The President, Mrs. W. Slingerland, opened the meeting with a hymn followed by prayer. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. C. Sills.

Business Items were discussed

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl at the shop some time ago and we became the best of friends. She is 18 and I am 16.

I thought a lot of this lad and began going out drinking with a girl friend, older than myself, still go with her during the week-ends. Saturday's pays as attention to me while she and this girl go drinking. But if I turn around and go out with another girl then, she doesn't like it.

I like her, but I think she has been taking me for a sucker. What do you think?

"Worried"

Dear "Worried":

I don't know whether or not she is "taking you for a sucker," but I think you'd be very silly to make this lightweight a heavyweight influence in your life. Why in the world would you want to spend so much time with a girl like this anyway? You see her all through the week. I should think it would be a fine idea to see something of some other girls over the week-ends.

If you want to keep taking her out occasionally, and enjoy doing so, there's certainly no reason why you shouldn't. But it would be extremely foolish to make her your main interest, and I'd let her know very definitely that you're free to do as you please as she is.

Reducing the stump figure

Excess inches and extra pounds steal on gradually. Suddenly one day a thing happens that you may be aware of, but not quite ready to face with human honesty. Or, more likely, you don't see it at all. She has a feeling that there's more of her than there used to be, but not much of what it is. She feels well.

Mrs. Stumpy is the beginning. Mrs. Stumpy: A little gain in weight, and in measurements at first. Then the measurements increase faster. One month you may gain three pounds, and the next month four. It is like the 300 question. Something, you will be sure, is different. Then, in accordance with the rules of every made by insurance companies prove, Fat calls more fat. Surface dwellers may pack themselves away, but inside the abdomen interfering with the functions of the various organs.

One can put a stop to expansion by curbing the appetite for fattening foods and taking a little regular exercise. No need of starving. One can have clear soups, lean meats, fish that is not fat, poultry, vegetables, fruit, cottage cheese, buttermilk, unbuttered toast, green salads. To be avoided, or cut down to the limit, are ice-cream soups, sauces and gravies, mayonnaise, oily dressings, fat meat, starchy foods, butter, cream, sugar, pastries, heavy cheeses, macaroni.

By careful choice of line and color in dress, excess can be camouflaged to a certain extent. The tendency of Mrs. Plumpie seems to be to wear tight-fitting clothes. This is a mistake, as such clothes are cruelly revealing. The loose fit gives ease to the figure; the silhouette is not clearly defined. Heavy fabrics increase the size, so one should avoid brocades and thick woolen stuffs that tend to make the figure appear square and awkward, as well as bulky.

While transparent fabrics may neither increase nor decrease the apparent size of the figure, they reveal its contours mercilessly. Knitted fabrics are impossible on the figure that has followed a policy of expansion. The best choice then is the material of medium weight, like serges, soft tweeds or soft, clinging silks. Lines of silk brings us to the subject of prints. These must be selected with care by women of pronounced proportions. Most fancy patterns are not for her; they distract from height. Small all-over designs give an indefinite outline to the silhouette, hence add to beauty with. Stripes are slimright, if not wide; they lead the eye up and down the figure. Printed materials should be scaled to the size of the wearer. Blending color contrasts are difficult for all but the perfect shape, and there is danger that they may even shadow the personality of the wearer.

Birth Announcements Do Not "Demand Gifts"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What with the big crop of babies arriving these days the following question is one very frequently asked: "I have received so many birth announcements lately that it has become just impossible to buy gifts to acknowledge these. Do tell me, please, if it's necessary to send a gift when one receives a birth announcement?"

Mrs. S. M.

No, it isn't at all necessary to send a gift to acknowledge a birth announcement. . .not even unless you very much wish to, to a relative or intimate friend. I do think that, under most circumstances, the announcement should be acknowledged in some way, say by writing a note of felicitation and good wishes for mother and child. But sending a gift to acknowledge every birth announcement received is a strain too heavy for the average pocketbook.

As a matter of fact, many mothers with a real sense of delicacy about such things hesitate to send out birth announcements, for although they very much want to have their friends receive the happy news as soon as possible, they are fearful that their relatives and friends will regard the birth-announcements as bids for gifts. It is too bad that this charming bit of paper that announces the news that the baby has arrived is so often misinterpreted as practically a demand for a gift.

Invitation to Wedding Receptieu Must be Acknowledged

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"1. My husband and I have received an invitation for a church wedding and for the reception following the ceremony. On the reception card is engraved "Please reply". Does this mean that we should inform them that we shall be present, or only if we cannot be present?

2. Also what about our sending a gift? I have always believed that when you receive a wedding invitation you are obliged to send a gift whether or not you attend the wedding. Is this correct?

E. C.

1. When we receive a formal invitation to a wedding reception, we must reply as soon as possible either accepting or regretting the invitation. There is a definite form for this reply, which should be written on the first page of double-sheeted letter-paper of good quality, and which should follow the general spacing of the words on the invitation.

This is the form for the acceptance:

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chatfield accept with pleasure Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Foster's kind invitation for Saturday, the tenth of May

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chatfield regret that they are unable to accept Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Foster's kind invitation for Saturday, the tenth of May.

2. There isn't and there really never could be, any "This you must do" rule about sending a wedding present, because whether or not you send a wedding present depends on whether or not you wish to send one. However, it is usually and quite naturally taken for granted that if you are a friend of either the bride or groom or of either family and are, therefore, invited to the reception as well as to the ceremony, you will want to send the bride a wedding gift. But if you are only an acquaintance who receives an invitation to the church and not to the reception, or who receives only an announcement, you may or may not send a gift, according to your wish.

Hope of Salvaging Freighter Small

By DAVE MENTORE

Port Hawkesbury, N. S., May 5 (CP)—The diligent, Atlantic beaver is hastily at work on the deserted hulk of the British freighter Wicklow Head as her crew and one passenger plucked from her smoldering decks yesterday by the little fishing vessel Richard Burgeo prepared to leave from nearby Liverpool for Halifax.

Churning through seas that had subsided since 30 mine sweepers raced from the stranded freighter in a tiny fleet, the salvage tug Foundation Josephine neared the wreck to determine whether there was any possibility of saving the 1,600-ton ship. The Wicklow Head, lost in a blinding fog while en route from Glasgow to Saint John, N.B., smashed bow-on into the rocky coast five miles from this southern Nova Scotia fishing village Thursday night.

There was little hope that the freighter might be salvaged. Her hull would have to be sealed in sections, her ballast removed to lighten it, and then pulled free from the shore, a tricky job. Veteran seamen here said the ship probably would be pounded to bits before such a lengthy operation could be carried out.

As for Capt. Wilson Huskins, skipper of the 13-ton Ray Richard, and his crew, they returned to their fishing today as if nothing had happened. Yesterday they had performed a daring rescue operation in taking off the 39 men while heavy seas pounded the freighter. The other three men aboard the vessel had lowered a boat and managed to struggle ashore.

Fifty Houses Surrounded By Flood Waters

Ottawa, May 5 — (CP) — More than 50 houses on low-lying Gatineau Point have been surrounded by flood waters from the Ottawa River and a number of families forced to evacuate as the worst floods in the area since 1928 were predicted.

Villagers living on the shores of both the Ottawa and Gatineau Rivers are keeping careful watch on the river as it continues to rise and many have made preparations to move to the upper floors of their homes should the water enter the ground floors. Horace Seguin, veteran river ferry operator, said that considering the recent heavy rainfall and the fact northern waters have yet to reach this point of the river, he expected the Ottawa to "rise another 4 feet."

The flooded river has already undermined one road along the shore.

Growing Campaign Against Price Of Candy Bars

Halifax, May 3 — (CP)—Protests, petitions, placards and parades were the weapons as Nova Scotia teen-agers today organized their growing campaign against "the price of candy bars —namely eight cents."

Stores throughout the province reported chocolate bar sales had slumped — some as much as 50 per cent — as the militant teenagers rose in wrath to organize the boycott.

In Halifax, a petition the size of a large window blind was going the rounds under the sponsorship of a group associated with the tri-teen council, representing 3,000 city youngsters.

One woman cafe owner here started selling her stock at six cents but soon returned to the eight-cent level with the comment that the wholesaler might be "grieved and cut off supply." Still later she announced she would refuse to sell bars at the "inflated price" and would not replenish her stock when it was depleted.

In the Annapolis Valley town of Middleton posters appeared on fences and lamp-posts denouncing the present price and crying for a return of the "five-cent chocolate bar." Plans were made for a mass parade this afternoon complete with placard-carrying picketers and the high school student council was expected to consider the matter.

In Kentville, main street passers-by were stopped and requested not to buy bars at the present time. Merchants were kept busy removing signs pasted to their windows reading "Don't buy eight-cent bars."

Heaviest List Of Fatalities In Many Months

(By The Canadian Press)

A total of 36 weekend fatalities, heaviest list in many months, was recorded throughout Eastern Canada by The Canadian Press today. Ten drownings and six traffic fatalities were in the list, headed by Ontario with seven deaths. Nova Scotia counted five, Prince Edward Island four and Quebec and New Brunswick had four each. The bodies of two missing persons were recovered as well.

At Toronto Andrew Harvey, 79, and Edward Wilson, 56, died in hospital Saturday. Harvey from drinking weed-killer by mistake, Wilson from a fractured skull received in a fall. Lewis Ellis, 50, drowned at Toronto's Sunnyside Beach when a rowboat overturned.

At Windsor five-year-old Richard Giroux was drowned in the Detroit River. Ottawa recorded one traffic fatality, Cyprien Cousineau, 45, who died in hospital Sunday after being struck by a hit-and-run driver.

At London Ollie Chase, 42, died from burns received when the couch on which he was lying burst into flames from a cigaret, and Kenneth McKee, 33, was found with a bullet wound in his head and a service-revolver underneath his body.

Three Drownings

Of Nova Scotia's five deaths, three were drownings. Henry C. Foster, 74, and Maynard Williams, 18, were drowned in Minas Basin on a fishing trip; Westfield police are dragging for the body of Arden Smith, whose canoe upset Saturday. Howard Roy, 31, died at Bridgewater after falling from his bicycle in traffic, and James O'Toole was killed by a truck at Upper Kennetcook.

A quadruple fatality late Friday contributed largely to Prince Edward Island's total: Four lobster fishermen were reported drowned just off Lourdes there when their small fishing boat swamped in a storm. The men were: Preston Harding, 38, whose body was found in the boat, drifting inshore; Ralph MacLeod, 36, missing; Marvin Hill, 19, missing, and Anthony Blanchard, (age unknown), missing. The other casualty in the fishing was at Mount Stewart, where Freeman Logan was killed Saturday when struck by a truck.

Sequel to Fishing Trip

In New Brunswick, the sequel to a fishing tragedy on the previous week unfolded with the discovery of the bodies of James McGill, 26, and George MacDonald, 28, lost from an overturned boat in Miramichi River. Ten-year-old Edward Dunlop died at Woodstock from burns received Thursday, and Mrs. Ethel Taylor was killed when a car in which she was a passenger plunged through a guard rail on a hillside nearp Tuctouche.

At Quebec City an unidentified man, 50-55, was killed when he fell from a moving train, and at Montreal Miss Ida Lavoie, 21, died of gas fumes. Montreal traffic accidents claimed two victims; Eugene Desparding, 76, died and Cyprien Cousineau, 45, died Sunday, after being struck by automobiles in separate accidents last Thursday.

Parliament May Prorogue in June

Ottawa, May 5 — (CP)—Reports are being heard on Parliament Hill, albeit prematurely, that an effort will be made to prorogue the Commons and the Senate by mid-June.

Some observers say, however, that this speculation is all too hopeful and that the press of business still to come before Parliament makes a July prorogation more likely.

It is true, however, that the Commons almost outdid itself in the speed with which it gave passage to the main government bill for the continuation of wartime controls. This measure, which had not been expected to pass until around May 15, received third and final reading this week.

Its passage was followed by the rapid dispatch of a number of other minor measures on the order paper and the way now is open for the resumption of the budget debate this Tuesday.

The duration of this debate may possibly determine how long parliament will sit, since the budget discussion, being one of the few in which members may bring up any subject they wish, traditionally is one of the longest during the session.

Once the budget debate is out of the way, there will be debated, perhaps prolonged, on increases being legislated in Old Age Pensions and on a new Federal Labor code. A number of smaller items also will be dealt with.

A time-consuming matter then facing the House will be the voting of supply, the method by which the Commons authorizes the government to spend money for administration of the country. This involves discussion of estimated amounts needed for every function of every government department and often leads to lengthy debates in a number of fields.

In 1845, Hugh C. Baker a Hamilton banker, felt the urgent desire to obtain security for his wife and children. But there was not a single Canadian life insurance company in existence at that time.

So Mr. Baker covered the 500-mile journey to New York on horseback, by stage-coach, and finally by river steamer down the Hudson to buy life insurance. Returning home he resolved to help his own countrymen obtain the same security. With a few associates in 1847 he organized the first Canadian life insurance company—the Canada Life.

Throughout its hundred years, this Company has brought security and peace of mind to Canadians in all walks of life.

The Kibitzer

After all, there are only just so many kings and kings and queens in a pack of cards. So, if one hand has an unusual number of them, the other three hands cannot have an many.

When a player opens with a bid of two in a suit, he promises at least nine tricks. It stands to reason that a hand with nine or more tricks is going to have an unusual number of big cards.

So, when your partner starts with an opening two bid and you have nothing, think nothing of it. Make up your mind that you are not supposed to have much or anything at such a time.

If you have much, it is more than you are entitled to under the circumstances. Because partner already has a total of his share and yours, too. Nine tricks in his hand tell you so.

Give yourself a look at this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠ A K 6	♠ 10 6 3 2
♥ A K Q 6 4 3 2	♥ 7
♦ 9	♦ Q J 10
♣ A K Q	♣ 8 7 6 5

South starts with an opening bid of two hearts. If you are in the north, you must not sit there feeling sorry for yourself. You have what your partner expects. Even more, probably.

What partner has hoping at a time like this is that you have the unexpected. He has most of the big cards. He knows you can have but few. But he hopes you have at least one or more top cards.

If you have an ace or a K Q combination, he may make a game. If he has a slam by himself and you have a sure trick, he may have a grand slam. So, tell him at once what you have.

With no sure trick, bid two notrump at once. This is the warning signal that you have no sure trick. From there on, co-operate with him in whatever else he desires to know.

Later you will try to tell him what all you have like for trump, if any. Or that you have not adequate support for his suit or side.

Times are when even a little goes a long way.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Toronto, May 5. (CP)— A group of Toronto newspaper writers wrangled the finished product of a new Canadian industry the other night and they were enthusiastic about what they saw. The product, a movie entitled "The Whispering City", was produced by Quebec productions and is the first All-Canadian effort of its kind. And a very creditable effort is it.

Aside from a few minor flaws, the camera work, scenery, acting and general technical quality, is excellent. And its brings to the public an actress who, we'll wager, will be snapped up by Hollywood.

Nicle Germaine is her name, and she has that mystical quality that marks those destined for fame. She has beauty, an ethereal face, and an abundance of acting ability.

The story, to recount it, is involved, but its intricate path is woven in a pattern of simplicity that is exciting and satisfying.

More important, from a Canadian standpoint, is that such a picture has been made in a country that has been criticized for having no culture.

Two versions of the film—one in French called "La Forteresse"—were made and all supporting actors played in each film. In the English speaking version Paul Lukas, Helmut Dantine and Mary Anderson were imported, no-doubt to assure box office appeal. They are the only Hollywood fingers in an otherwise Canadian pie.

Something new has been added to the celluloid art. Something new, something fine, something Canadian. Who said we couldn't make movies?

Forced Landing On Thoroughfare Brings Summons

AT THE BELLE — Romantic rendezvous — with the picturesque setting of Miami and Rio de Janiero as backgrounds, Cary Grant and Ingrid Bergman co-star in RKO Radio's romantic drama "Notorious" arrived at Belle Saturday with a record of eight weeks at Radio City Music Hall. Produced by Alfred Hitchcock, the film features Claud Rains and a distinguished cast.

New York, May 5 (AP)— A Bronx flier, piloting a rented plane with a 20-year-old ballet dancer as a passenger, made a forced landing in a busy Manhattan thoroughfare last night because of engine trouble—and promptly received a police summons for doing so without a permit.

The pilot, John M. Jewett, 23, told police he had been cruising over Manhattan and the Bronx for 20 minutes when the engine developed trouble.

He said he dived in an unsuccessful attempt to eliminate the trouble and, spotting a break in automobile traffic on the Henry Hudson Parkway, landed the craft on a grassy strip in the center of the thoroughfare. Neither Jewett nor his passenger, Pauline Goddard of Manhattan, who identified herself as a ballet dancer, was hurt.

A policeman handed Jewett a summons to appear in court today for landing without a permit from the Parks Commissioner, who has jurisdiction over parkways.

New York, May 5 (AP)—Capt. William Odom, 25-year-old ex-army flier, who piloted Milton Reynolds' "Bombshell" on its unofficial record-breaking trip around the world last month, made two flights between New and Toronto yesterday and bettered on each trip what he said was the fastest previous time for airplanes between the two cities.

Along at the controls of the "Bombshell," a twin-engined converted A-26 bomber, Odom flew from New York to Toronto in one hour and 15 minutes, he said, and on the return trip made it in one hour and 10 minutes.

Odom said the fastest previous time for a New York-Toronto flight was one hour and 29 minutes, which he said was made by a Canadian air line."

Northey, New St. Louis Recruit, Makes Brilliant Show as Cards Finally Hit Stride in Loop

Harry Walker Traded to Phillies for Hard-Hitting Outfielder

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It began to look today like old Sam Breadon, president of St. Louis Cardinals, had been reading up on Redbird pennant history when he made that Harry Walker for Ron Northey deal with Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

If he did thumb through the baseball record books he probably discovered that nearly every year the Cards won a flag, they were aided by a refugee from Philadelphia who had joined the club earlier in the season.

Take 1943 for instance. The Cards gave up three players to the Phillies for outfielder Danny Litwhiler who proceeded to clout a dozen homers to help the Cards win the pennant.

In the winter of 1933, Breadon obtained catcher Virgil (Spud) Davis from Philadelphia in exchange for Jimmy Wilson and Spud helped the Cards win the title in '34 by hitting .300 and catching 107 games.

Grover Alexander, another former Philadelphia star, helped the Cards capture their first pennant, and his great work in the 1926 World Series when he won two games from New York Yankees and fanned Tony Lazzeri with two out and the bases loaded in the seventh inning to save another, is still remembered by many.

Made Brilliant Debut

And now comes Northey. The hard-hitting outfielder made a brilliant debut yesterday when he slugged two home runs and a single and batted in four runs to lead the Cards to a 9-3 victory in the second game of a doubleheader with the Braves at Boston.

His bat and Harry (The Cat) Brecheen's shut out pitching were chiefly responsible for St. Louis breaking a nine-game losing streak. The Braves lost their 9 on them 4-3 in the opener.

In the only other National League game, the Phillies clouted Cincinnati twice, 5-3 and 10-5, to dump the Reds into seventh place while taking over fifth place while taking over fifth place. Schoolboy Rowe pitching his third straight game without allowing a base on balls, gained his fourth win without a defeat in the nightcap.

Must Have More Rest

Bobby Feller discovered that even he can't work with only one day's rest. The great Cleveland righthander was rushed in by manager Lou Boudreau to protect a one-run lead in the seventh inning against Washington. But the Nats climbed all over him for four runs to win 6-3 and hang a defeat on Feller.

Chicago White Sox increased their American League lead to one game and a half by winning two squakers from Philadelphia Athletics 4-3 and 2-1.

Showing a semblance of their '46 form, the Red Sox swept a doubleheader from the Browns at St. Louis 3-2 and 8-1. Tommy Fine, 20-year-old rookie, pitched five hit ball to win his first major league game in the nightcap. Detroit and New York Yankees played a 2-2 tie at Briggs Stadium in a game ended by rain.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Sports Circles of the city and district will suffer a distinct loss next week when Harold F. (Spencer) Hall, former well-known hockey and softball player of this city, Hamilton where he has accepted a position as the manager of a bank in that city.

"Bouncer" is a member of the famous Halsey family of this city that boasts former National Hockey League stalwart of the Montreal Maroons, Francis X. Cecil, Albert and Ernie the last three veterans of the second great war with Cecil the wearing the ribbons of the first conflict.

Coming from an athletic family, "Bouncer" naturally turned to sports at an early age. He specialized in hockey and became one of the best-known players in the city and district as well as Ontario points. He starred with the Belleville Intermediates before going overseas in 1916 where he played an outstanding role in the Greatest Game of all.

Returning to Canada after the war (he served with the 21st Battalion in France until 1919), he joined the Belleville intermediate hockey squad later playing for Kingston and Brockville teams. He was also associated in a playing role with the Smith Falls Mic Mac Greyhounds.) Later he became one of the district's, better known referee's.

While he has relinquished active participation in sport for quite some time, his interest in the game has never waned. He has always taken more than passing interest in boys and young men's athletics, and is a firm believer in wholesome recreation for these youngsters, not only from the standpoint of the view but from a social angle as well.

His fall figure was usually seen on a warm summer evening on a sandlot baseball ground, surrounded by a group of youngsters with baseball bats and balls or on a blustery cold winter day on a waterfront teaching the young scalawagh how to handle a stick, themselves with a hockey puck. The boys in town, especially the younger ones will find a vacancy hard to fill when "Bouncer" hops the train next Monday.

•

"Bouncer" is a member of St. Thomas Church and also of the men's club of that organization. He was born in Toronto but came to Belleville as a lad and he had lived here practically all that time with the exception of the four years and his terms of out-of-town hockey.

•

Sports fandom in general in the city, and district will regret to see the loss of such well known figures leave the city, but at the same time its best wishes will still be with "Bounge" for success in his new endeavours. Mrs. Hall we say and family will remain here until the matter of suitable accommodation problem has been solved.

•

Six hundred kids will play organized baseball in Belleville this year, thanks to the interest and activities of the Police Department of the Limestone City. The "limbs of the law" are sponsoring two teams in the midget, pee-wee and bantam series, with approximately eight or ten clubs in each group. The police have affiliated with the Ontario Baseball Association, and the other day received charters for 600 certificates. It seems the boys in blue down Ontaiawy recognize the value of organized sport among the younger fellows, and are doing their best to further it. Orchids to Chief Tom Ponton and his merry men. They are doing a swell job — and don't think the kids don't appreciate it.

•

Jack Lee, Herbert McCabe and "Doc" Russell Scott, the three goodly musketeer sportsmen of the city who will hunt or fish for everything from an Ogopogo to the onetoo-sized platypus, bled themselves northward the other day to a point to entice a few speckled beauties from the lakes and streams in the vicinity of Flevna, or thereabouts.

•

And according to reports from the trio, Old Man Winter just took himself north of the city a few days before he decided to hole up for the summer in that district, so as to cut down travelling expenses when next November rolls around. They ran into eighteen inches of snow on the level-ice-rimmed northern lakes, frosty air, and natives still wearing parkas, and using sleeping bags. They had their tennis rackets along (the boys like to indulge in a few snappy sets before breakfast each morning) but this time they strapped 'em to their feet for snowshoes — and that is the reason they returned home without four days instead of six months.

•

In any event they hauddi-ed together one month. In the bottom of an open boat, wandered over the lake surface for an hour-at a time (after that they'd be too thawed out) and managed to get home with nine or ten beauties which weighed two pounds. A drivind freezing rain met them at the railway station and its reported that another Belleville fisherman ran the fish hooks in his hand without drawing blood. It was that cold.

•

However, twas an ill wind, etc. The boys had no trouble with rheumatism. It was so cold, so the public relations department of the trio informs us, that every time they hooked a fish, they tossed it in the air and it fell to the bottom of the boat frozen solidly.

•

Another story from that part of the country is the effect that a Belleville fisherman raced to the settlement loudly proclaiming that he had caught one of the rare white-furred northern muskrats. By the time he was covered with something that resembled a fur coat the substance disappeared after it had been subjected to warm air — merely water which had collected about the body of the fish, as it was being taken out of the lake and the warmer air was so cold it froze there and then. That's what the man said.

"Is the Canadiens' four-year reign in the National Hockey League finally over?" Andy (Montreal Herald) Christmas asks the question and answers it in the same breath. Sez Andy:—That's the No. 1 sport riddle in Montreal since Toronto Leafs copped the Stanley hardware. Certainly, it would seem that Leafs' much-improved lineup is still far away from its peak and that Canadiens' lush payoff in confidence and experience as well as talent, it should be borne in mind, however, that the Toronto Leafs and Canadiens wasn't very much. Canadiens actually dominated the league in the 60-game schedule grind before shifting into the main balanced off the Leafian casualties. Both teams are their semifinal playoff series—Canadiens ourting the rugged Bruins while Leafs took the mediocre Wings.

Leafs then took Habs. It's true, but it was a six-game series with each team scoring 13 goals, and I still figure the slumping Bruins helped Toronto plenty. So the margin wasn't so great. Leafs will be a better team next season but the point is that Canadiens don't have to make many changes to match the Leafin improvement. Elmer Lach's absence might have meant the Cup to Canadiens and Maurice Richard's missing two games didn't help.

•

A few improvements—two of three—on the second and third lines, and it's a ball ticktick. The Canuck defence and goaltending are strong. And the Richard - Lach-Blake lines, I'm me, still.looms as the best in hockey. Talk of "re-building" Canadiens is an exaggeration. "Reinforcing" is the right word.

C. A. H. A. TO DEAL WITH AFFILIATION OF TWO BODIES

O.H.A. President Loses Fight to Segregate Big Cities in One Strong Group

By R. W. CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, May 5 (CP)—The fourday annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association moved into its last day today with the general assembly due to resolve the troublesome affiliation question which received unanimous endorsement from the executive committee.

The executive proposal, the affiliation resolution contained an amendment from the form in which it had been submitted originally by President Hanson Dowell. The amendment by Dowell had merely suggested that the C.A.H.A. affiliate with the Ligue International De Hockey Sur Glace.

The resolution includes references to both the British Ice Hockey Association and the British Ice Hockey Association, two organizations which at present are loggerheads for some time.

The resolution provides that the S.I.H.A. is to get "full protection" in the arrangements to obtain Canadian players. Delegate George Panter, President of the Canadian Soccer Association, and the Scottish Association had "always played square with us" and he added that he didn't want that body to get a "thumbed."

Under the terms of the resolution, the S.I.H.A. may make application through the B.I.H.A. for players but it has the right simultaneously to make a duplicate of the list of players wanted to the C.A.H.A.

A section specifies that when the S.I.H.A. applies through the B.I.H.A. for players, it "shall not have such transfers blocked."

Not Binding

Although successful in his efforts to bring aid to the Scottish body, Panter lost out in an attempt to implement members of the resolutions committee in a resolution suggesting formation of a "super series" involving teams from five eastern Canada cities—Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton.

Delegate Norman Dawa, President of the Quebec Hockey Association, said he felt sure that Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa would not be interested in such a plan. Panter said that Ontario likely would go through alone with the idea of a league made up of "highpowered" entrants.

Panter said the idea was to provide a "balance of competition" for softer-spoken "amateurs" who were "taking all the prizes" in the Allan and Memorial Cup playoffs; that teams in small centres rarely weren't able to compete on an even footing with those in the big cities.

Operate Two Clubs

At one stage of the discussion, Panter remarked that "it is not inconceivable that we will some day call it the C.H.A. and operate amateur and pro clubs." He said that if Ontario had to go through with the idea alone, then it was possible that London and Kitchener might be able at take places eventually with Toronto and Hamilton in such a league.

He said plans are ready for a large new rink at Hamilton and added that London and Kitchener were "ready to go with $1,500,000 rinks."

Valleyfield and Shawinigan Falls are bidding for Montreal Owen Sound is no match for Toronto," Panter said. The latter sponsored clubs win all the prizes and that applies all the way down the senior and junior ranks. Management clubs are upsetting the balance of our hockey.

"This being so, why not take these clubs from senior circuits and put them in a league of their own. They could play for a cup of their own and our senior clubs would compete for the Allan Cup.

"In that way we would be giving a break to the teams in the smaller towns—town that never win the Allan Cup and never will simply because they cannot compete financially with the big cities."

Speed Horses Expected to Give Jet Pilot Trouble

Louisville, Ky., May 5 (AP)—

Aside from the chances the dozen or so others have of beating Derby winner Jet Pilot in the Preakness next Saturday if the track is fast, the chief hangover today from this year's run for the roses is: How fast the Derby was?

From all you hear, if the weather is good at Pimlico the Pilot is going to have a lot tougher time of it. There'll be speed to run with him in the early going to find out whether he can take it when he's pressed.

Some of the speed shipped out for Baltimore yesterday in the same train with Jet Pilot. King Ray was among the whipped. On Trust and Double Jay in a sizzling spring nine days ago. Another was Count Boom, the only one brave enough to run at Pilot Saturday. He found it was too rugged, and folded to fifth.

Bullet Proof, the pony-sized Virginian who wound up seventh in the Derby, and Phalanx, the favorite who dropped out of the clouds from last place to second with a none-too-hot ride by Eddie Arcaro, also were riding the same rails.

This morning, Faultless, definitely not an off-track horse; Blakslater, a disappointing 11th Saturday; and Double Jay, who finished next to Blakslater, are out for Baltimore. And tomorrow the California flier, On Trust, gets in his second workout for the trip. On Trust came home the fastest fourth Saturday.

As for the Derby's growth—the 1-mile romp for three and a ripe 73 years of age, is no longer a child. You'd figure it would have reached its full growth long before this. Yet Saturday an all-time record threw, which Col. Mat Winn estimated at a mere 115,000 to 120,000 say the Pilot, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's Maine Chance Farm, lead from end to end to pick up the $92,160 winner's end.

SYRACUSE CHIEFS TRIM TORONTO IN BOTH GAMES

Southpaw Prendergast Limits Leafs to Four Hits in Ten Innings

(By The Associated Press)

Southpaw Jim Prendergast, who won 17 games in 1946, is off to a flying start in the current international league campaign.

The 12-year-old Syracuse moundsman, knocked from the hill in his initial start, has won his last three outings, going the route on each occasion.

His latest triumph took place Sunday as the Chiefs trimmed Toronto Maple Leafs in a twin bill 2-1 and 3-2.

Prendergast twirled the opener which went 10 innings and limited the Leafs to four hits.

The twin-killing enabled the Chiefs to tie Jersey City Giants, who split a bargain double encounter with Rochester Red Wings, for the league lead.

Rookie lefthander Jim Goodwin gained his fourth straight victory in the opener against the Wings when the Giants broke a 1-1 tie set-to when Goodwin in the ninth to cop the tilt 5-1. In the finale, southpaw John Mikan limited the Jerseys to five blows in chalking up a 6-2 decision.

Buffalo Bisons and Newark Bears split, the Bisons winning the opener 4-3 in 10 innings and the Bears the second 3-2.

In the remainder of the ball-Baltimore Orioles defeated Montreal Royals to sit behind the four-ball tossing by Bob Muncrief who sent in the Orioles from the Cleveland Indians.

Ontario's Junior Hockey Might Freely Admitted

Quebec, May 5 (CP)—Ontario's junior hockey supremacy has reached the proportions where sections of the country stand little chance of capturing the Memorial Cup and the situation is going to get worse before it gets better," George Panter of Greenshorn, Ont., President of the Ontario Hockey Association, told here Saturday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

After commenting that nearly half of the C.A.H.A. total registration of 46,000 players came from Ontario, Panter added: "There is no doubt about it. We have a big advantage over the rest of Canada in the juniors. We have three other clubs in the same category as St. Mikes (The Memorial Cup champions) and the situation is going to get worse before it gets better."

Panter described Ontario as "hockey mad all of its own" and said that it could survive even though cut loose from the rest.

"It's certain that we would be more successful financially on our belief that Toronto Maple Leafs (of the N.H.L. would be quite content' for instance, to drop their affiliation with their Tulsa pro farm club and just operate amateur farm teams in Ontario."

Panter's remarks were made during a meeting of the resolutions committee. No resolution was under way on a motion by Ernie Savage, M.P., Kingston, Ont., recommending formation of a "super-amateur" league.

Savage suggested that eastern and western divisions be formed, and when the west could be those playing in the Western Canada league while the east teams would be from Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton and Toronto.

The matter was left for further discussion.

CALGARY ON EDGE OF ELIMINATION IN ALLAN CUP

Montreal Royals Win Third Game and Need One More to Clinch Title Outright

By MIKE SUTTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 5 — (CP)—Only the most fanatic of western hockey followers could see much chance today for Calgary Stampeders to join the select circle of two-in-a-row winners of the Allan Cup and Dominion senior hockey championship.

For Montreal Royals, eastern champions, have been cruising along to an the least, in taking three of the first four games in the best-of-seven finals. They were full worth in their 4-3 victory over Stampeders before 8,498 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday night.

Calgary, still a determined team, now teeters precariously on the brink of elimination, having to take all three remaining games to retain the trophy they won last year. Next game will be played here Wednesday.

Royals Always Headed

They put up a stiff tussle Saturday night before bowing out to the faster-skating Montrealers but took a 4-3 lead in the third period and were never headed.

Calgary drew a penalty on a 3rd period penalty to Gerry Plamondon and Bill Ezinicki to 2-2 with a pair of goals 22 seconds apart. But Royals kept going a goal ahead and Calgary couldn't catch up and wound up with the 4-3 win.

Floyd Curry, Plamondon, Dennis Casavant and Ted Campeau Guerin's Ezinicki made the nine-take of throwing a punch at Gallbraith who was serving Calgary penalties. Both were in Calgary scorers.

Curry from the third period when the Stamps were on fairly even terms with the Montrealers outplayed and only the remarkable work of goalie Russ Bartell kept the game knotted scoreless.

Exchange of Blows

The hard-bumping game was marked by an exchange of blows between Ezinicki, Montreal's enemy Galbraith and a rinkside spectator. The onlooker made the mistake of throwing a punch at Gallbraith who was serving Calgary penalties and Hunter at the time. Incensed, Galbraith swung back at the while a large free-for-all with the spectator from the rink. Referees Lorne Lyndon attempted to pull Galbreith away. The Montreal rearguard countered with a nimble misconduct in addition to the two-minute holding penalty when he shoved Lyndon around during the tussle.

Describing the incident after the game, Galbraith said he was sorry it happened, "I admit my temper got the best of me, but I shouldn't have hit him but then he got me pretty mad."

Also in the game was the recurrence of an old football ankle injury suffered by Cliff Malone. He was helped from the ice after falling into the boards during the last period. Club officials said it wasn't decided whether he'd be back for the next game.

JET PILOT GIVES ELIZABETH ARDEN HER FIRST DERBY

"Cosmetic Queen" Quite Pleased When Her Horse Led From Wire to Wire

Louisville, Ky., May 3 (AP)—Elizabeth Arden's dream came true today.

And, racing, "my pleasure", had fulfilled Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's fondest dream.

It also aptly demonstrated former's fickleness in the "sport of Kings."

A year ago, it had been disaster by fire and defeat in the Derby for Mrs. Graham, "the cosmetic Queen" who was born in Woodbridge, Ont.

Mrs. Graham's first Derby venture went amiss. Last year her entry of Lord Boswell, Knockdown and Perfect Bahram was favored, but Assault won.

Then; only two days before the 1946 Derby, fire had destroyed a score of Mrs. Graham's young thoroughbreds in a stable at Chicago's Arlington Park.

But fortune smiled then, too, but perhaps wasn't recognized fully, at that time.

Jet Pilot had been shipped here for the first race on that Derby Day program—and missed the race. He showed his form in historic Churchill Downs racing strip—capturing that race by nine lengths.

On Saturday, the "Pilot" repaid manifold for the kindness and Boswell's defeat of last spring. As it was Mrs. Graham's and trainer Smith's first Derby victory, so was it jockey Eric Guerin's.

In recent years, Mrs. Graham has spent fabulous sums—thousands of dollars at yearling sales. Her aim: a Derby winner. She came by her luck honest, naturally. Her father had been a horse breeder.

Her Kentucky agent, Leslie Combs II of Lexington, and trainer Smith help in her decisions. But she has "final say" in selling her Main Chance Farm Stable.

Gym Display At Y.M.C.A. Well Attended

With every available seat filled and standing room at a premium, the annual gymnastic display of Belleville Y.M.C.A. went off with a flourish Friday night. And it was not just a display by picked members of the gymnasium groups, but Ed Shortt, the capable and efficient director of Physical Education had every member of the "Y" who would take part on the floor, and every one of the 200 or more young people gave a fine credit to the effect of the season's training. Even more surprising is the fact that no special preparation for the display was made until the last two weeks. This is not the way things are usually done, for it takes long periods of careful work to prepare the usual display. However, this year, the policy in the Physical Department of the Y.M.C.A. in Belleville has been to do a program which has concentrated on general development of sports and body building, from a health rather than a gymnastic skill point of view. And it has paid good dividends, for the co-ordination shown by even the youngest boys and girls surprised the audience and thrilled them.

Many mothers and fathers went home marvelling at the way their youngsters have come along, and enthusiastic about the "Y" and its leadership to a far greater degree than ever before. It was a good display. The gymnastic work was of high calibre, and of great variety. The precision was clean, and the form with which it was done left little to be desired. The difficulty of many of the gymnastic and exercises was far beyond what might be expected of youngsters of the age performing them in almost every group. One of the highlights was a demonstration of pyramids by a group of 10 and 13 year old girls, 24 in number, the first pyramids ever done on Belleville ice, and so far as this reporter's memory runs. To select for special praise any one would be to allow others to go unmentioned, therefore, when we say it was a good start to finish, with never a single act that was below standard, we feel that we are being fair to all.

Perhaps the most thrilling effects were achieved on the Parallel Bars by the Intermediates and by the Senior gymnasts. Their movements were showy and carefully timed, and brought terrific applause from the audience.

Great credit is due to Ed Shortt and his young friends, who year after year continue to steadily improve the standard of their displays, and improve the health and skill of the young people of our city who attend the "Y". It is only regrettable that all boys and girls of the city do not avail themselves of the opportunity that is at the Y.M.C.A. for fine physical and health development through the program put on by the Physical Education Department.

Delegates Meet To Draw Schedule For Int. Clubs

(By The Canadian Press)

A meeting of delegates from intermediate baseball clubs in the inter-county loop of the woodstock area met yesterday and arranged schedules for the season. In the three classes available, 13 teams were picked — five in "A" and four each in "B" and "C".

The "A" series starts May 24 with Aylmer at Tillsonburg and Ingersoll at Stafford ville. The same day "B" series clubs start with Dover at Delhi and Waterford at Langton.

St. Catharines Athletics, holders of the Mann Cup, added another lacrosse trophy to their collection Saturday night by defeating Rochester Iroquois 24-20 in St. Kitts.

Joe Schleimer of Toronto Central Y.M.C.A., former Canadian Olympic representative, took the 18-pound event at the Ontario amateur wrestling championships in Toronto Saturday from Larry Hobley, also of Central Y. He pinned Larry in three minutes, 17 seconds.

Chauncey Burden, sports editor of the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch, threw back his head and yelled, "I told you so," and with good cause. Not only did he name the winner of the Kentucky Derby, Jet Pilot, but also correctly called the shot on horse number two, three and four.

Titan Hanover, an American trotting horse, lowered a world's record for 1 1/8 miles at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif., Saturday. He covered the distance in two minutes, 16.3 seconds. The old record was two minutes, 17.4 seconds, set 22 years ago by Cupid's Albington at Aurora, Ill.

Assault, the 1946 "horse of the year," started his fourth year of racing with a win Saturday at New York's Jamaica Park. The Texas-bred trifle crown winner came from behind in a brilliant burst of speed to take the $40,000 added Grey Lag Handicap by a head from Let's Dance.

Corby Bowlers End Season With Banquet

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 5 (CP)—Wilbur (New York Sun) Wood tells the story of a high school pitcher in Connersville, Md., who struck out six batters in the first inning, only to lose the game, 1-0, score six runs . . . This unique performance took place when Converse Yole, 17, made his first appearance on the firing line for Connersville Rainier High . . . The explanation, Wood says, is that the pitcher walked the first batter three times, one batter walked, another scratched an infield hit and there were five errors . . . Yole had 12 strikeouts in nine innings but only managed an 8-8 tie.

Bonny Prince Charlie

If Bing Crosby can escape left over from baseball and the Kentucky Derby, New York sports writers will be treated to a short Bill Durnan's choice as All-Star Nat-ional League goaltender . . . The Prince Charlie Rayner Admiration and Sentimental Society is a going concern . . . A number of the New Yorkers recently signed petitions to prevent ex-pat goal tender since hockey was unrivaled . . . Latest statistics to do count and Durnan's powerful Canadien teammates helped him lead in the race against parade. . . Coach Frank Boucher says that if the Rangers need next year are two defencemen and one goalie . . . But he adds, after his recent trip to Winnipeg, hockey players are scarcer that new houses these days.

Golden Boys

Boucher says that professional teams are getting terrific competition from amateur clubs . . . He added, somewhat unhappily, that it was a strange situation that "amateurs" were being paid higher salaries than some pros.

DUROCHER FLIES EAST

Love Will Come Again

By Alma Sioux Scarberry

CHAPTER 7

"No my darling," April smiled, getting a hanky from her table that could be taken care of very nicely. I just want to fall in love again, before I marry."

"Sure Gay called to her as she disappeared through the door to her room. "And I do love you for it."She said under her breath, getting up to go to her own bed.

At last Cry felt she had done everything she could to keep her promise to Curt Du-Witt. Now the rest was in the lap of the gods, and there was always hope that a woman would change her mind any minute.

When April arrived home from her broadcast the next evening, Pat Hastings was sitting in the living room. She kissed him and told him how glad she was to see him.

"You don't know how hard it has been for me to keep my promise to you so long." Pat said miserably. "I just about died to see Cherry. How is she, and what is she doing? Isn't she tired of all the rumpus yet?"

April decided to be perfectly frank with him. His face seemed thinner and had a look of discouragement that moved her deeply, but she could see no use in giving him any hope.

April said: "You must be hungry, Pat. I am. Come in the kitchen and we'll make sandwiches and coffee and talk."

Pat sat down listlessly on the tall stool near the kitchen sink: "Tell me the worst."

"I don't see much of Sis," she looked in the box for lettuce and tomatoes and some of the roast beef left over from dinner. "She keeps pretty busy. During the day she models at Madame Georgette's and evenings she goes places. She just comes home to sleep."

"At least she does come home to sleep," Pat sighed. "That's something."

"Oh, yes," April said quickly, "Cherry lives here."

They were eating their sandwiches and drinking coffee when April heard the front door open. She caught her breath: "Why that must be Cherry now!" she said.

Pat's face whitened: "Do you really think so?"

"Cherry?" April called. "Is that you?"

Cherry appeared in the doorway. "Yes! Believe it or not—"

When she saw Pat her pansy eyes widened with amazement; "Pat!" she exclaimed, "What are you doing here?"

"Just visitin' April on my way through to Chicago on business," he said untruthfully. "Don't the darling! firemen get a little kiss?"

Cherry hesitated, then went over and kissed him quickly on the cheek.

"Well, it's nice seeing you again," she said politely. "How is everybody in Salem?"

April get up from the table. "I'm so tired I've just got to get some rest, Cherry," she picked up her sandwich. "You take my place and visit with Pat."

"I'll see you later, Pat. Let me know before you go. Wake me up if I'm asleep."

When she closed the door behind her Cherry said coolly:

"I guess I'll have a-sandwich myself, what's the news?"

Pat stared at the girl he loved so dearly out of dark hurt eyes. Then he begged unhappily:

"Let's not put on a show, Cherry. I'm not on my way to Chicago and you know it. I came because I couldn't stay away from you any longer. I want to know if you've ever going to come back home."

Cherry was not the fresh looking simply tailored girl Pat had loved since she was in pig tails. She was-in a close fitting sophisticated gown that she had bought at Georgette's, and the pearls she wore in a heavy strand around her neck were the only touch of color to relieve the severe black of her costume.

Her eyes were tired, and Pat thought she looked at least five years older than when she left home. Cherry saw his close look and dropped her eyes to the sandwich she was preparing:

"You've no right to come here, Pat," she said sullenly.

"I told you when I left home we were through. What I said still goes.

Pat's jaw hardened: "You mean all that stuff about not believing in love in a cottage. That rot about it a man leaves you holding the bag it's got to be filled with a lot of filthy lucre."

"Fine! she exclaimed, "What are you doing here?"

"Just visitin' April on my way through to Chicago on business," he said untruthfully. "Don't the darling! firemen get a little kiss?"

Cherry hesitated, then went over and kissed him quickly on the cheek.

"Well, it's nice seeing you again," she said politely. "How is everybody in Salem?"

"I'll see you later, Pat. Let me know before you go. Wake me up if I'm asleep."

When she closed the door behind her Cherry said coolly:

"I guess I'll have a-sandwich myself, what's the news?"

Pat stared at the girl he loved so dearly out of dark hurt eyes. Then he begged unhappily:

"Let's not put on a show, Cherry. I'm not on my way to Chicago and you know it. I came because I couldn't stay away from you any longer. I want to know if you've ever going to come back home."

Cherry was not the fresh looking simply tailored girl Pat had loved since she was in pig tails. She was-in a close fitting sophisticated gown that she had bought at Georgette's, and the pearls she wore in a heavy st dsondnrarn around her neck were the only touch of color to relieve the severe black of her costume.

Her eyes were tired, and Pat thought she looked at least five years older than when she left home. Cherry saw his close look for a young man in love. He hasn't bothered you since you came up North."

"Well then why does he have to come around now?" Cherry sniffed, "just because I happened to get engaged to him once. I've told him it was only puppy love!"

April smiled crookedly: "Was it, Cherry? Are you sure?"

"Of course, I'm sure."

"Then why are you so upset? Why don't you just go to bed and get some sleep and forget Pat Hastings. He won't bother you again. I'll write and tell him not to, if you say so."

"I'll do my own writing," Cherry's chin set stubbornly. "You keep out of this! I'll write a letter that'll pin his ears back." Then high chin in the air Cherry went to get it through that thick head of his that I'm not marrying for anything but money."

April said: "Suppose you don't get the opportunity to marry for money? Then what? Will you die an old maid?"

Cherry almost shouted: "Stop talking to me as though I were a child and you thought this was a very funny! I'll get the opportunity to marry for money! I could marry Beryl Hobart in a minute."

"Has he asked you?"

"We're too busy having a good time to talk about getting married," Cherry said. "Pat, stop the table. "He'll ask me. Don't worry! And if he doesn't there are plenty of other saps with money I can get glad to marry a girl beautiful enough to get a job modeling at Georgettes."

"Is that why you asked, half smiling. "Well I guess you know what you want to do. It's your life. But if you marry for anything but love, darling, you'll break your heart."

Cherry sniffed contemptuously. "A lot of good it did you. Who are you to tell me what to marry for? It's seeing what happened to you that put me wise. No man will ever make a fool out of me, my sweet. Because while he's trying to fill be picking his pockets of every dime they've got in them. You just watch me!"

April's eyes filled. "Oh, Cherry" she said desperately, "you mustn't let my divorce make you so bitter, I know that's what has brought all this on, Honey, just because Hill and I couldn't make a go of it isn't any reason why you should go crazy. I did love Hill terribly, and all the things that happened almost killed me. But I'm getting over it. I've a radio career and a music school I love being independent."

"Like hell you do!" Cherry said bitterly, "You're eating your heart out for that big blond dope. That's why you haven't got sense enough to marry Pat."

April said quietly: "Stop calling Hill names. And what makes you think Mr. De Witt wants to marry me? Don't talk nonsense. He's just a good friend."

"Cherry smiled knowingly. "That's what I parked across the street in a car when you and he drove up tonight! I saw him kissing you. So did Brett. If that was friendship it was pretty warm, for you. You're not the type to go around kissing strange men."

April's face grew red with embarrassment. Cherry laughed loudly: "Oh, April you're sweet. Why your blushing. Or, that's cute. Really it is, I love it." And she went off into further gales of amusement.

April said firmly: "Stop it Cherry! I swear I'd better tell you the truth, although I can't see that it's anybody's business but mine. Tonight is the first night Mr. De Witt ever kissed me."

Cherry jumped excitedly: "You're engaged! I know you are!"

"No," April denied, "I'm not. Curt did ask me to marry him, and I refused him. I felt sorry for him, so I let him kiss me."

"Consolation prize!" Cherry sniffed. "Oh, you fool! You get a chance to marry a millionaire and you turn it down. I could cry! I'm glad to marry a girl

"Whom I marry or don't marry is my business. I certainly wouldn't stoop to marrying a man for his money."

Cherry's eyes narrowed, "If Curt De Witt weren't your boy friend I'd go after him myself. That's an idea! Why don't you get me out on a party with you and let me go to work on him? It's a crime to let all that money get out of the family."

April said trying not to look shocked: "You're not half as blase as you try to sound, my darling sister. With me you're no fool. Plenty of beautiful youngsters have thrown themselves at his head without success. Don't get the impression you could make a fool out of him. He'd probably turn you over his knee and give you just what you're needed for a long time. A darn good spanking."

Cherry stalked out of the kitchen childishly, calling over her shoulder: "You're jealous because you're afraid I'll get him from you. Well I could if I tried. I know all the answers."

When April arrived at the studio the next evening she was amazed at the stack of letters and telegrams that awaited her. Some were full of praises, others requests for old songs.

As the days went by by the mail became heavier and heavier and the name of April Lind swept the country almost over night. Her voice with the haunting appeal had that something that only an understanding heart can send out over the air waves.

Most of her time was taken up with interviews and pictures because she was new to the press. The camera did full justice to her quaker girl beauty, and from nearly every fan magazine and radio page Kent Hillyer picked up the lovely sad gray eyes stared out at him hauntingly.

April became more and more disturbed about Hill's neglect of his son as the weeks wore on. Kenny broke her heart pretended ink that every stick he picked up was a golf club. When he found some old clubs of his father's in a closet in the maid's room he carried them around for days, playing with nothing else.

Knowing the boy's fondness should telephone Hill and suggest that he take Kenny for a weekend now and then, so that Kenny wasn't always under the care of a stranger to his father. But on second thought she decided this would not be good judgment.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop came home erly on account of Saturday, and I waited for him to get out the bus and started to walk home with him. And I said, G, pop, that's a funny site.

Meaning the Brewn big old dog Andy standing outside their house watching Maggie Jenkins little puppy jumping around him trying to make him play.

Which Andy wouldn't just standing there like a tired man and letting the puppy do all the running and jumping, and pop said, That's not really funny. It's quite sad, when you come to think of it, he said.

Why is it, pop? I said, and pop said, Because there's a time for playing and every dog has his day, and old Andy's day for playing has been over for many a year. That puppy ought to seek companions of his own age who would be only too happy and willing to cavort with him, but youth is naturally thoughtless, so poor Andy has to stand there looking silly and probably wayed down by the thought that his own gambolling days are over for ever. Doesn't that make you feel sorry for poor old Andy? he said.

Well G, pop, yes I guess so, I said, and pop said, I realize I had a sort of an engagement to put on picture at the Little Grand.

5-Billion Oil Royalties For Ibn Saud, Heirs

Washington, May 5 — (AP)— Chairman Owen Brewster (Rep., Me.) of the Senate war investigation committee said today King Ibn Saud and his heirs will receive about $5,000,000,000 in royalties from United States oil companies.

Brewster said the time Brewster and Senator Carl Hatch (Democrat., N.M.), a member of the investigating group, had a report of Senate interviews they are conducting in connection with receive all papers and documents from the files of the late President Roosevelt dealing with the Arabian oil transactions now under investigation.

Brewster said the estimate of a $5,000,000,000 royalty income for King Ibn Saud was based on testimony and documents already before the Senate investigators. He said these show that there are 20,000,000,000 barrels of oil in the rich Saudi Arabian fields and that the King is to receive "about 22-cents-a-barrel royalty" in accordance with American companies that run until 1999.

Rabbi Urges Support For British Relief

Toronto, May 5. — "In deep gratitude for the help we have had in Canada by British fortitude, under the leadership of Churchill and the residents of Ontario should have a weak sinking and cold area for the flood-stricken areas of Britain. The drive, which began May 1, under the chairmanship of the Minister of Finance, Hon. T. Kelley, hopes to collect four million articles of clothing from the residents of Canada.

"An old overcoat, a few cans of food, the out-grown clothing of our youngsters—surely is a small contribution to make to help our friends overseas," he said.

Immigration: The Senate's government attitude, is hearing-satisfied with the changes opening Canada's immigration doors.

Senator Roebuck says, however, that "immigration is a continuing problem, one that can well come under constant review. For the present being, I consider these changes highly satisfying."

British Flood Relief Campaign, the balance of which will remain forever on the otherside. We shall never be able to repay Britain; British Flood Relief, however, can be a token of our undying appreciation," conducted Rabbi Feinberg.

60 FREIGHTERS HELD UP

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 5 (CP)—Sixty Lake freighters downbound from Lake Superior crowded the St. Mary's Falls River today and waited their turn to pass through the locks here.

The delay arose from heavy fog which, it was reported in the river during the night and from presence of numerous ice floes which had drifted in from Lake Superior. Marine men said that at the present rate of passage it is doubtful if all the boats would move through the locks by tomorrow night.

Two Firemen Injured at Fire

Essex, Ont., May 3 — (CP) — Two volunteer firemen were injured yesterday as fire destroyed nearly two grain elevators and a feedmill of the Essex Farmers, Ltd., causing damage estimated at $50,000.

George Myles suffered head and face cuts; Gordon Chevalier, shinbone burns and cuts. Both were struck by hot, flying glass.

The blaze, believed to have started in a covered driveway near the main elevator, was detected by firemen as the worst in this town since 1921, when a high school was destroyed.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By The Ottawa Bureau of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, May 5 (CP)—The Federal Government is understood to have shelved, for the time being, the recurrent suggestion that Canada appoint a diplomatic representative to the Vatican.

The proposal has been advanced a number of times, particularly in recent months, in a number of quarters, but the government, while some of its members feel the idea is feasible, has decided it is not the time.

At present, Canada's approach to the Vatican, when necessary, is made through the British government which has a diplomatic representative there.

It is likely that Canada, with a substantial Roman Catholic population, will eventually appoint a representative to the Vatican but not until possibly several years have elapsed.

British Coal Miners Start On 40-Hour Week

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 5. (CP)—The Labor Government today staked the United Kingdom's economic future on the ability of a key group of British working men—the coal miners—to increase the newly-made coal output while working shorter hours.

As the miners entered the nationalized pits for their first five day 40-hour week, government and union officials urged fullest co-operation to prove that improved working conditions are not incompatible with producing the essential commodity in adequate quantities to enable the country to win the fight back to a higher living standard.

Meanwhile, a new coal-saving directive went into effect in Southern England and Wales which meant fresh petty hardships for millions of Britons and underscored the government slogan "we are up against it."

Heating of homes by gas or electricity until Sept. 30 and business premises until Oct. 31 now is under a ban to which is attached a £100 ($400) fine for violations. The measure aims to save 2,500,000 tons of coal by next winter.

But much of this saving will be lost as an indirect results of the new week unless a settlement is soon reached in an unauthorized strike which is keeping 12,000 men off the job and costing the country 50,000 tons of coal weekly from 12 Durham mines.

"Winding Enginemen" (elevator operators) struck Sunday because they claimed that under the new schedule they would lose between 30 and 40 shillings ($6 and $8) weekly. As a result of the strike underground workers were unable to reach their jobs.

As the momentous 40-hour step was taken in industries, miners entered other pits after listening to Lord Hyndley, Coal Board chairman, say in a broadcast that "our daily production has got to go up sharply, very sharply" to meet a target of 200,000,000 tons in 1947 which is necessary "if our fellow workers in other industries are not to be thrown out of work or put on short time."

Stassen Says Premier Stalin Told Him U.S.S.R. Wants to Co-operate

Washington May 5 —(AP)— Premier Stalin told Harold E. Stassen that Russia "does not propose" to wage war against the United States but on the contrary "wants to co-operate."

He denied he ever had said it was impossible for the Soviet and capitalistic systems to exist together in harmony and declared:

"If one party does not wish to co-operate then the result will be conflict, war.... I want to bear testimony to the fact that Russia wants to co-operate."

The discussion of Soviet-Capitalist relations highlighted an 80-minute interview between Stassen, former Minnesota governor and present Republican presidential aspirant, and the Russian leader in Moscow April 9. Foreign Minister Molotov was present at the meeting.

Stassen on Saturday made public the transcript of the exchange with Stalin's permission.

Stalin's rejection of the idea of war came at the outset of the talk. Stassen, mentioning the differences between "the U.S.S.R. with the Communist Party and with its planned economy and socialized collective state, and the U.S.A. with its free economy and regulated private capitalism," told him:

"I would be interested to know if you think these two economic systems can exist together in the same modern world in harmony with each other?"

Stalin replied:

"Of course they can. The difference between them is not of essential importance so far as cooperation. The systems in Germany and the United States are the same but war broke out between them. The U. S. and U.S.S.R. systems are different but we didn't wage war against each other and U.S.S.R. does not propose to. If during the war they could co-operate, why can't they today in peace? Given the wish to co-operate, of course, but if there is no desire to co-operate even with the same economic systems, they may fall out as was the case with Germany."

Stassen took issue with the Generalissimo's parallel between the German and U.S. economic systems, declaring that "imperialism, the development of state monopoly and the oppression of workers are the evils of capitalism practised by the Nazis." He said the "monopoly of capitalism and the imperialistic trend" have been prevented in the U.S.

Stalin's response was the suggestion: "Let us not criticize mutually our systems. Everyone has the right to follow the system he wants to maintain. Which is better will be said by history... if we start calling each other names of monopolist and totalitarian it will lead to no co-operation." He said he was no propagandist but a "businesslike man."

On atomic control Stalin said there are "big differences" but "international control and inspection will be established in my view and it will be of great importance." War use of atomic energy in the long run "will be met by the consciences of the people and it will be prohibited."

Mother and Son Perish in Fire Near Parry Sound

Five Others Suffer Burns, Leap From Upper Window

Parry Sound, May 6 —(CP)— Trapped on the second floor of their frame home at Britt, 60 miles northeast of here, Mrs. David Boucher and her nine-year-old son Joseph were burned to death early today when fire believed to have started from an overheated stove destroyed their dwelling.

Five other occupants escaped by jumping from the upstairs window but all suffered burns.

They were Darcy Boucher, husband of the dead woman; a 15-year-old daughter, Yvonne, who injured her back in the leap; and Mrs. Boucher's mother, a Mrs. Therrien, 80, and three being treated for burns in St. Joseph's Hospital here. Two other Boucher children, whose names were not available, also suffered burns but were treated in Britt.

By noon the two bodies had not been recovered from the ruins of the home.

Details of the fire were scant but it was learned that Boucher arose about 5 a.m. to start a fire in the kitchen stove and went back to bed. Soon afterwards the lower part of the house became filled with flames which cut off the descent of the upper by stairways.

Despite firefighting efforts by residents of the Georgian Bay village of approximately 800 population across the Spring inlet on the Magnetawan River, the house was levelled.

Parmalee Planned $130,000 Coup

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—Police said a further check of the baggage at Leclair Airport, Montreal, 58-year-old international swindler, has piloted guilty to four swindling charges last Friday, and that he apparently planned a coup of approximately $130,000.

Everything but that amount were found in a suitcase Parmalee left in Montreal. Detective Inspector Leonard Green said. The additional cheques, 20 in number, were prepared or partially prepared on blanked and three signatures. They were made out for a total of $78,000.

Previously Parmalee's possession was $17,000 in cash obtained by passing fake cheques at four Ottawa banks Thursday, and 10 others totalling $39,200.

Inspector Green, who said the whole swindle "the most skilful we I've ever heard of," disclosed Parmalee obtained signatures for the blanked cheques by writing letters to the banks signed "C. F. Cook, Box 323, Shawbrooke, Que." inquiring about a non-existent account.

Churchill Seeks To Delay Vote On Conscription

States Conservatives Need More Time To Consider Attitude They Will Take

London, May 6 — (Reuters) — Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative opposition, declared in the House of Commons today that he would use every parliamentary means to make sure a vote did not take place tonight on the Labor government's proposal to reduce from 18 months to a year the period of compulsory peacetime military service in Britain.

Churchill, questioning Herbert Morrison, Lord President of the Council, urged that the government intended to dispose of the conscription issue by the government bill for peacetime conscription, rejected Morrison's suggestion that it was hoped the amendment dealing with the period of service would be dealt with today.

"We ought to have at least from today to tomorrow to consider what attitude we are to take," Churchill said. "We are supporting the government and we have some right to decent considera-tion . . ."

The bill, opposed by 75 Labor "rebels" when it was debated on second reading March 26, was approved at that time in principle by a combined government and opposition majority, with Liberals joining the rebels against it. The government has now limited the period of service, a clause strongly opposed by labor member H. S. Crossman and a group of government supporters who rebelled against the foreign policy last year, was likely to win the government majority after the debate.

The House will devote three days to considering the bill to ensure, which provides for the extension after June 1, 1948, of provisional military conscription now in force. There are 135 amendments.

Morrison said Defence Minister Alexander would make a complete statement on the decision to alter the period of hilltime service.

One of Britain's Leading Dietitians Says 'England Dying of Starvation'

London, May 6 (AP)—One of Britain's leading dietitian, Dr. Franklin Bicknell, said today "England is dying of starvation."

"As a nation we must literally perish" unless food stocks improve, Bicknell wrote in the Medical Press, an independent weekly.

Citing the "piteously thin" shop girls," "undersized" debilitated children" and "what is deemed the bad temper and general lassitude of the whole population," Bicknell said the government's nutritional surveys have "damned themselves by their own euphoria and mean nothing."

A spokesman for the Medical Press said the publication expected to present opposing views later. The government's opposition has been that, in spite of admittedly short rations, Britain's over-all health was better than before the war because of more equitable distribution of food.

Bicknell described Britain as the healthiest country in western Europe, including Germany. He said everyone in the country was suffering from "prolonged, chronic malnutrition."

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—The Toronto Star says in a newspaper story today that the Canadian Olympic Committee is discussing at a closed meeting at Montreal today whether Barbara Ann Scott jeopardized her chances of competing in the 1948 Olympics by accepting the gift of a new auto from her home city of Ottawa after she won the world skating championship.

The Star published a telephone interview with Avery Brundage of Chicago, President of the United States Olympic Committee and member of the International Committee, in which he said he called attention of J. Sigfrid Edstrom of Sweden, Chairman of the international Committee, to Miss Scott's gift.

Brundage, speaking from Santa Barbara, Calif., said: "Yes, I did it. I sent Mr. Edstrom a newspaper clipping which said Miss Scott accepted a motor car as a gift. This is not allowed. It might eliminate her from competing in the Olympic games."

Brundage came into prominence at the time of the 1936 Olympic games when he suspended Ralph Metcalfe, Negro sprinter who later married showman Billy Rose, on grounds he violated rules forbidding drinking and late hours.

12,000 CHINESE IN CANADA WILL BENEFIT BY BILL

Would be Allowed To Bring Wives, Children Under Eighteen To The Dominion

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 6. (CP)—Resources Minister Glen indicated in the Commons yesterday that possibly as many as 12,000 Chinese in Canada will be eligible to bring wives and children under 18 to the Dominion as a result of the proposed repeal of the Chinese Exclusion Act.

He estimated that approximately 2,347 of the Canadian-born or naturalized Chinese in Canada would take advantage of the repeal. In addition it was possible that more than 8,000 of the 26,000 unnaturalized Chinese in Canada would eventually become naturalized and qualify to bring in their wives and children.

His statement brought from Howard Green (CCF-Vancouver South) a warning that the relaxation of the regulations might bring an influx of Chinese as great as the present population of Chinese in Canada which stands at more than 34,000.

Mr. Green said such an influx might cause a serious situation in British Columbia and force a change in a new Exclusion Act.

Mr. Glen spoke before the Commons gave second reading to a bill providing for the repeal of the Exclusion Act. He took the floor again when remarks on section clause by clause study of the bill were made.

Third to be Sentenced

He turned down a suggestion of C. G. Candlish (Lib.-Argenteuil) that a committee of the House in Canada be given the same rights as other immigrants and be allowed to bring in their wives and families.

Among those making the suggestion was M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, who stated that if vestige of discrimination were to be removed Chinese should be given the same rights as other immigrants. Otherwise the government could not call itself "Liberal".

Convicted of War Crimes Against Italian People

Takes Full Responsibility For Ardeatine Massacre

Venice, May 6 — (AP) — A British military court today sentenced Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, former Supreme Axis-man commander in Italy, to death by shooting after convicting him of war crimes against the Italian people.

Kesselring's counsel, Dr. Hans Laternser, had declined to ask for clemency after the verdict was announced, saying:

"He expressly asked me not to address the court any further."

The lawyer said later, however, that he himself would appeal personally against the sentence.

After announcing the verdict, the five-man court deliberated 40 minutes to reach the sentence. When Kesselring heard the words, translated by the interpreter, he sat down abruptly for a moment. Then he was led from the courtroom by British military police.

C. L. Keating, the Judge Advocate, announced that both the conviction, and the sentence were subject to review by "the appropriate military authority" in this case, Lt.-Gen. Sir John Harding, commander of British Central Mediterranean forces.

Kesselring was convicted on two counts, one of them accusing him of responsibility for the Ardeatine cave massacre in which 335 Italians died in reprisal for the killing of 32 German police troops.

Third to be Sentenced

He was the third German officer to be sentenced to death for that slaughter. Two others were Col.-Gen. Eberhard Von Mackensen, formerly second in command in Italy, and Lt.-Gen. Kurt Maeltzer, commander of Rome during the German occupation. Both were sentenced last November. Neither of the two has been executed as yet been confirmed by the high command in Italy.

The second count upon which Kesselring was convicted charged him with inciting his troops to excesses in fighting partisans.

Kesselring, who was commander of all German forces on the western front, was tried in 1946 before taking command in the south, went on trial in Rome on charges of having ordered the reprisal killings of more than 2,000 Italians, including 75 children and two-year-old babies.

The prosecution charged that he also was responsible for the killing of 1,000 Italians, informed the court on March 7 that he assumed the full responsibility for all the deaths caves massacre.

"The decision was made last night by the church's restoration committee that a memorial stained glass window should be placed in the nave of the church in memory of the late Archdeacon, assistant rector of Holy Trinity from 1908 to 1910 and rector from 1910 to 1914.

Escaped in 1934 Woman Returned To Penitentiary

Marysville, O., May 6 — (AP)— Nearly 13 years of freedom ended last night for Margaret Ann Martin, 39, who was returned to the Ohio Reformatory for women to resume serving a one to 20-year check-forgery sentence. The woman escaped from the institution in 1934.

Mrs. Marguerite Reilley, superintendent of the reformatory, said the prisoner would be considered by the parole Board at its next meeting, early in June. Mrs. Reilley said it would be up to the parole board to determine how much longer she would have to serve.

Customarily a prisoner is released a two-year penalty for escaping the superintendent said.

Mrs. Reilley said the woman apparently had led a crime-free life during the 13-year period. Recognized by store detectives through a picture, she was arrested and shortly as she left the store where she had been employed as a saleswoman.

Students Troop Back to School After Ban Lifted

Haney, B.C., May 6 —(CP)— A somewhat subdued band of youngsters, who likely lost tossed away their text books last Friday and skipped school the rest of the week, left their teachers, filed warily into the Haney High School today when the "holiday" was over.

Following an emergency meeting of the school board late last night, the ban imposed Friday by Principal C. J. Welland yesterday against the "hookey players" was lifted.

The spontaneous school strike was the result of a decision to have voted a proposed banquet to honor the school's championship girl's basketball team. Students said the vote was the "last straw." Earlier teachers turned down plans for a school picnic, because of all banned co-eds wearing of slacks and turbans during the picnic.

Principal Welland said the banquet was approved because it would have meant the outlay of little money, and could raise funds for non-paying guests.

The strikers, comprised about one-quarter of the student body, claimed a "moral victory" with the lifting of the suspensions, but the teachers weren't doing so much talking. There was still no banquet scheduled — and no slacks, or turbans or lipstick.

Y.M.C.A. Boys' Choir Placed Second At Peterborough Music Festival

Receiving fine praise and kind criticism from Major Brian McCool, the Adjudicator for vocal competition, the Belleville Y.M.C.A. Boys' Choir placed second in the Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival, one and a half points behind the Peterborough Girls' Choir on Monday night in Peterborough.

Both choirs were criticized for singing the test number "Angel Voices Ever Singing" at a rather distinctly more rapidly than the Adjudicator felt it should be sung. He stated that he had never heard a choir sing it as slowly as he personally felt it should be sung to allow the full value of tonal production. The Port Hope Choir, comprised of between 45 and 50 girls ranging in age up to 18 years, displayed a little better tonal quality, singing the song a little more slowly, but with less tone variation, and their attack was a little more exacting than the boys in the Belleville Choir limpid. On best, they ran close losing half a point each time.

Major McCool remarked that it was unfair to both choirs to judge one against the other because of the fact that one was composed of girls and the other of young boys, which gave the girls the advantage in favor of the girls, as a boy's voice changes at times and can hope to achieve the same personal balance that a girl can gain while still remaining young enough for junior competition.

Creditable Performance

He said that both choirs gave very creditable performances and showed the result of good training and leadership and that it was doubtful if the Festival would produce a class which gave as fine a listener reaction, and he hoped hoped both choirs would continue to charm their audiences for a long time to come.

The boys left Belleville at noon, paying a visit to the Quaker Oats plant during the noon hour afternoon, where they observed the manufacturing processes from the raw materials to the packaged goods ready for shipment, being guided through the large plant by members of the staff of the company. They then visited the famous lift locks, had a swim in Peterborough Y.M.C.A., and generally had a very satisfying and educational experience, returning home in the late evening.

27 Boys Made Trip.

Following the performance the leader of the Port Hope Municipal Band invited the boys to be guest artists at a band concert in the early summer, and Festival Committee Chairman Stanley Northrop thanked them for their participation, congratulating them on their fine performance. Twenty-seven boys made the trip, with Stanley Hagerman acting as accompanist, and Mrs. Shortt in charge of the party and conducting the choir. The boys who represented Belleville were Bob Alexander, Hugh Barclay, Buddy Batchelor, Buddy Bird, Norman Boothby, Wayne Bowey, Don Buck, Ross Burns, Billy Campbell, Glen Cornell, Ronald Day, Jack Dee, Jack Doig, Wayne Fox, Terry Goyer, Gary Hall, Jack Kane, Jack Lafferty, Melvin Lloyd, Jack Matthews, Ralph Nelson, Bill Rose, Sid Samuels, Douglas Soule, Billy Vallance and Larry Wood.

R. Duffy Given Year Term For Breaking Jail

Pleading guilty to a charge of being unlawfully at large, Robt. Duffy, 21, formerly of Belleville, was sentenced to one year in the common jail when he appeared Tuesday morning in court before Magistrate F. C. Wills.

The accused escaped from the Hastings county jail on April 14th where he had been sentenced to serve three months on a breaking and entering charge. He was recaptured in Napanee the following morning and returned to Belleville. In giving a summary of the evidence, Inspector Hayes pointed out to the court there had been no violence when Duffy escaped from the county jail.

"The man has had every possible consideration and he took advantage of his being given a little more freedom in the county jail than some of the other prisoners," stated Magistrate Wills as he sentenced the accused to serve a year in jail. The sentence will be in addition to the balance of the three-month term which Duffy was sentenced on the breaking and entering charge.

Seven other charges; including four of theft, two of breaking and entering and one of theft, were faced by Duffy when he appeared in court. All of the alleged offences, however, took place in Western Ontario and Magistrate Wills refused to hear them.

"I am not going to deal with these other charges," stated the magistrate. "They should be brought up in the area where the offences took place and where evidence will be more readily available."

Employ Thousands To Conduct Irish Sweepstakes

Dublin, May 6 —(CP)—Three thousand women and girls are hard at work over cheap tables in a four-acre factory-type building in a Dublin suburb.

In Canada this huge one-storey structure with its air-conditioning and its carefully planned north-lighting to prevent glare might be a small-arms factory converted to civilian manufacture.

Here it is an even more important factor in the nation's life; the Irish Hospital's Sweepstake which in 17 years has provided almost $6,000,000 for hospital and Red Cross funds and distributed more than $2,000,000 in prize winners around the world.

Today counterfoils are coming in by hundreds of thousands for the Derby draw, from Canada and the United States, from Malaya and India, from the Virgin Islands and the Gold Coast. The 26 countries where sweepstake tickets are sold reads like the index to a world atlas.

The big workroom is full of women counting money orders and cheques, writing official receipts punching storage cards for the sweepstake's filling system and watching the automatic sorting machines that group the cards in order of serial number. Ahead of May 30, eight days before the race, the big white drum at one end of the staff canteen will be started and Irish nurses, under police supervision, will draw the winning tickets. The prize fund this time is expected to be well over £1,000,000, divided into more than 20 "prize units" each with a first prize of $25,000.

Everywhere outside Eire the sale of foreign sweepstake tickets is illegal but ticket sales increase nonetheless. Sweep officials chuckle happily when asked how they evade restrictions abroad—said carefully refuse all information.

Even the number of tickets sold in individual countries is kept secret.

"We sell a lot in Canada and the United States," J. O'Donohoe, director of the draw, grinned. "But after all, when you consider the population of North America there's lots of room for expansion."

The first sweepstake was on the Manchester November Handicap in 1930. The prize fund target was £100,000; actually it was £ 411,561. First big Canadian winner was Arthur P. Dawe of Vancouver with second prize of £ 85,317.

Sterling Bloc Will Survive, Experts' View

London, May 6 (AP)—Financial experts confidently predicted today that Britain's Sterling Bloc will survive—thanks to the Dominions—the country's July 15 dollar convertibility deadline.

Under terms of the United States loan, Britain is pledged after that date to make all Sterling arising from current transactions freely expendible and transferable. That means convertible into dollars in most cases. If every seller country demanded payment in dollars, Britain's position likely would be untenable. Her present dollar resources are the American loan which is needed to pay for food and other materials purchased in the dollar area, plus income from exports to dollar countries. And as a result of last winter's industrial crisis, the export business is far off the mark.

"But we do not expect all the Sterling-area nations to demand dollars," a Bank of England spokesman said. "In all probability, sterling area will continue its existence."

Britain also will be required to arrange for liquidation of blocked sterling balances, piled up here by creditor states during the war.

The blocked sterling must be made convertible into any currency; again that means chiefly dollars. But all of the balances, totalling £4,214,000000 ($16,856,000000) do not appear to be made convertible immediately.

Liquidation Years.

In fact, British experts say, liquidation of these accounts must be spread over a period of years.

The United States wants Britain to scale down these blocked accounts and Britain would like to do just that. Gifts from Australia and New Zealand during the winter have made sizeable dents in the obligations due those Dominions.

But India, to whom Britain owes some £1,250,000,000 ($5,000,000,000) has refused to agree to any scaling down.

The latest statistics, as of Dec. 31, showed Britain owed the Dominions £444,000,000 ($1,776,000,000); India, Burma and the Middle East £1,883,000,000 ($7,532,000,000)—remainder of the Sterling area £ 983,000,000 ($3,372,000,000) North and South America £847,000,000 ($3,388,000,000); Europe and its dependencies £358,000,000 ($1,424,000,000), and the rest of the world £91,000,000 ($346,000,000.)

British experts point out that in the 10 weeks remaining it will be physically impossible to negotiate settlement of all these debts.

DUTCH MAKE

dian forces in February, 1945, is visible across an intervening valley. The whole town of Goresbeek, near the cemetery and from where the Canadians first advanced into Germany, turned out.

A large white cross was placed in the centre of the graves and the flags of seven counties of servicemen who served in the 1st Canadian Army were placed alongside Canada's flag.

The entire diplomatic corps at The Hague, including the Soviet ambassador and dignitaries of a dozen other countries, placed wreaths at the foot of the large cross after Queen Wilhelmina and the Prince put their floral tributes there.

Some 2,500 Girl Guides and Boy Scouts placed neat bouquets of flowers on every white mound.

The ceremony, witnessed by a huge throng, was initiated by Pierre Dupuis, Canadian ambassador at The Hague. It was the largest and most impressive service in Europe honoring Canadian troops since the war's end.

Along the roads and over the fields the Dutch crowded to the hilt to pay their homage to the Canadians. All towns and villages in Holland were decorated with banners but the solemnity of the Canadian ceremony was the most important in the land for Netherlanders did not forget the Canadian 1st Brigade. Queen Wilhelmina, on her own initiative, asked to attend the service.

YOUNG COMMUNIST HEAD ARRESTED AFTER DEMONSTRATION IN LONDON

London, May 6 — (Reuters) — William Brooks, National Secretary of the British Young Communists' League, was arrested last night after a demonstration outside the Spanish Embassy here.

Brooks was a member of a deputation representing Communist and other left-wing organizations which had collected 2,000 signatures to a petition on behalf of nine young Spaniards alleged to have been sentenced to death in Spain for anti-Franco activity.

The demonstrators were told that all officials had left the Embassy but Brooks refused to leave until an official took the petition. He was charged with obstruction.

For Safety In Driving

Ontario Highways' traffic toll is again mounting, the record for 1946 showing in the total of 688 deaths the greatest number of fatalities since 1941 when the toll was 801. The total of accidents was only a little below that in 1941, 17,356, as against 18,167. Property damage last year reached a new high at $23,450,000.

However, since gasoline consumption and the number of licensed drivers climbed to new high levels and the death toll was considerably below that of five years before, there is felt to be room for quite a few more efforts, a substantial saving of lives, injuries and property damage may be won.

The striking fact of the accident record is that the "human element" is usual with the main factor in accidents. The Hon. George H. Doucett, Highways Minister, states that "the average accident occurred in daylight on a good road with the vehicle in apparently good driving condition, driven by a driver with five or more years' experience and in the age group, 25 to 40 years. This points to the importance of safety education directed to drivers and pedestrians."

Law enforcement aims to promote greater safety as recent amendments signify. The legislation seeks to get incompetent drivers off the roads and, by thus off the streets and highways by the imposition of severe penalties or conviction of traffic law violations.

There will be automatic suspension of driver's licence and owner's permit of every person who after an accident is convicted of any of a large number of offences for which a penalty is provided in the Highway Traffic Act, as speeding, careless driving, operating without a licence, failing to stop at a through street, failure to heed a traffic signal, making an improper turn to an intersecting, driving without properly scribed lights or brakes, failure to report an accident, and upon conviction for any criminal offence involving the use of a motor vehicle, including reckless or dangerous driving, drunken driving, failure to remain at the scene of an accident, criminal negligence, manslaughter, theft of a car and failure to satisfy a judgment arising out of a traffic accident. In these cases the driver's licence and owner's permit of the person convicted will be suspended until there is filed with the department, proof of his ability to pay a judgment up to $11,000.

The Motor Vehicles Branch of the Highways Department and other organizations have spent months in preparation of plans and literature for safety campaigns. There will be an intensification of programs of safety education backed by law enforcement and safety engineering.

The 1947 season has reached a time when there is usually an increase in the number of cars and people travelling on the roads and highways. Motorists have therefore a great responsibility in carrying out the law and the rules of the road. They must realize that as is stated by the minister the human element remains the important factor. They should not fail to appreciate their duty and obligation to practice all the rules of safety at all times.

Not only to the motorist is this a solemn duty. It is a duty that faces every pedestrian or other user of roads and highways to be careful and conversant and acquainted with the road rules and the cautions to be followed for safety.

The results of accidents are so lasting-many lives being claimed, and large numbers of persons being injured or maimed for life, while the financial loss runs into millions of dollars.

Safe and sane driving is the only driving that should be followed. Any other use of the highways is criminal use because of the danger that it creates, dealing injury or death in many cases.

Motoring should be one of the most enjoyable experiences, is often marred through the manner of driving of some persons.

Every motorist should set the ideal before him of driving always within the meaning of the law and regulations. Most people do but there are others who do not. The careful driver has a right to expect other drivers to be careful and law-abiding.

Many motorists have a clear record of driving without accident, some with records of many years. These persons should be emulated.

Last year's toll of grief through driving should not be forgotten. 688 persons lost their lives and 12,228 were injured. That means that in that year persons in number the equivalent of the entire population of a fairly large village were killed in traffic accidents and that the entire total of killed and injured is equal to the population of a good sized town. That is a terrible toll due largely to the human element, the human factor should work to get the collateral expression of human beings.

Deliberate and concerted effort to observe the rules would bring down the total of accidents and of accident victims, a marked degree and add to the joys of driving.

Where Farming Is Primitive

One reason for the shortage of food in Russia is that farming in most of the Soviet is still primitive. The peasants work hard to wrest a living from the soil, but they have not got modern implements and they cannot possibly get the best out of their land.

That is one reason why Russia wants so many tractors. The plan is to get the collective farms mechanized so that production can be stepped up. Even that will not overcome the droughts that hit Soviet Russia just as hard as they sometimes hit Western Canada.

The drought did not strike Western Siberia or Kazakstan last year, but these two areas only contribute a small portion of the total grain supply of Russia. The Ukraine, which is the breadbasket of Europe, had a poor harvest. There has been severe hunger in Russia this winter.

The Russian people have suffered terribly. That is why millions of Russians are wondering if they don't need a new man in the Kremlin.—W. L. Clark in Windsor Star.

Last Straw or Fag

Byron, among the many who were lyric over the pleasures of smoking, has referred to "sublime tobacco" as a satisfactory to cheer us everywhere. The new British budget will diminish at once the satisfaction, the scope and the places in which smoking is possible. Ralph Lane, Virginia's first tobacconist, is credited with being the historical distinction of being England's first smoker. From his example and that of Raleigh, the habit became rooted among Elizabethan courtiers 400 years ago and has rooted on all classes in Britain. But Mr. Hugh Dalton's action may change that characteristic. If so, Mr. Lane may yet be linked in the record with his historical namesake, England's last smoker.—Montreal Gazette.

What Is "Apple Pie Order?"

Why do we use the expression "apple pie order" when we mean that things are exactly in their right place? Because every Saturday a certain Puritan dame, Hepsibah Merton, made a practice of baking two or three dozen apple pies to last her family through the week. She labeled each according to the day of the week on which it was to be used, and the pantry, thus arranged, was said to be in apple pie order, remarks Guelph Mercury.

Accidents Can Happen To Us

One of the greatest problems in promoting highway safety is the attitude taken by too many people that "Accidents happen to other people, not to us." Having convinced themselves of this untruth, the drivers become careless and the pedestrian fails to respect elementary rules of common sense, with the unfortunate result that somebody gets killed or permanently injured, says Sherbrooke Record.

Coin - operated, self - service gasoline pumps may be on the market next year to aid the night driver who can't find an open service station or the driver who can't wait for a gas-station attendant, says Business Week.

Without mounting by degrees, a man cannot attain to high things; and the breaking of a ladder still casteth a man back and maketh the thing wearisome which was easy.—Sir Philip Sidney.

JUST FOLKS

THE DISCONTENTED MAN

He wanted something more from life
Than home and a devoted wife.
A patch of lawn, a garden small,
And now and then good friends to call.
Disdaining these, his years were spent
In bitterness and discontent.

He fancied fortune ought to come
To him in one tremendous sum.
He thought the pleasures, song and dance
Were products of some lucky chance.
And not by faith and courage earned,
And so to hating life he turned.

And yet, the home with love aglow
Surpasses all the years bestow;
The pride of guarding children small
From evil ways is best of all.
In these lies every man's success;
And failing these, is bitterness.

Istanbul, Its Culture Borrowed, Shows Age by Smell and Sound

(By John F. Lescoes in Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Istanbul—To feel a glimmer of what moves the hearts of the people who constitute the geopolitical storm centre that is Turkey today you must be there around Ankara, the brash, new capital of the republic, and Istanbul, the sinuous and dissolute citadel of the former sultans.

In both the political character. Is an inferiority complex lurking beneath a highly justifiable pride. Centuries in 20 years has expanded tenfold and like modern Turkey itself, practically pulled herself up by the bootstraps in self-creation.

Where the white marsh flats now there are great, landscaped boulevards. Immense modern government offices, luxurious apartment houses and even fancier edifices with Mongolian touches. Yet on the hills of the old city beneath the hilltop castle on the edge of the crest new city the laborers and overseers of Ankara still live in mud huts without sanitation, without direct water.

Squatters Must Work Fast

If they want to better their housing, they have the privilege of squatting on a piece of land and working furiously to build a wooden shack and get the roof on before the next dawn because if they fail, the police custom is to force them to tear the whole business down.

Istanbul, on the other hand, where relics of Byzantine splendor like Santa Sophia mingle with those of Ottoman magnificence in the multiple minarets of the Blue Mosque, is built on the right of conquest over the Greeks in 1453, and since then by sheer luck and chance has escaped the designs of other powers.

Both cities feel no borrowed culture, have as the Turks are trying to help their native arts, as Ankara will be as much about the former glories of the places like Greek-Roman times as you do of the remarkable assimilation of western technology that built the town.

Istanbul Has Tang of Age

Istanbul, no longer called Constantinople by decree of the new Turkey, at least smells and sounds like a city civilized by age and experience. Instead of the Asiatic atmosphere of dirt, infectant, Istanbul has all the aromas—human, animal and vegetable which mingle in a city that has been long settled.

True, you have the exhausts of decrepit taxis with nevercreasing horns but also the mustiness of old wood and carpets, the advertising of the Bosphorus while the sweetness from the Golden Horn Bridge crossing the Golden Horn is doubled by nothing else than fluted sea air. Phew! It's high noon.

From Istanbul in Europe you look across to the hills of Anatolia or Asia Minor beyond which live three fourths of the Turks among their stork nests in some 40,000 scattered villages, still

Letter to the Editor

"Think"

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

I have always entertained a reluctance to enter the columns of a gratuitous columnist of the daily press, but in case no voice is raised in favor of the following it is a matter of grave concern to many.

I refer to the continued use of the Arena for such spectacles as the wrestling which is now evening.

In a burst of civic pride the Arena was purchased as a "civic social" to the sacrifice of our boys in World Wars I and II. It was to be a unit of our youth centre, a unit dedicated to the recreation of the boys and youth of our city and district. Dare anyone's imagination suggest that putting our Memorial Centre to such a use is helpful to the developing of our young people. The very least we can say is that it is certainly not educational rather it is degrading and sickening. And as a form and participator of sport, because of the important place it fills in the lives of all particularly the young I must protest against such exhibitions.

"Near riot at wrestling match". "Blood and Ankles".

"And then hell broke loose".

"Spectators swarmed into the ring".

Cigarette boxes were hurled at him."

"A lady! fan spat invectives".

"Police were on the scene". "Nerves cut over the eye as the row got under way". "Bandages were to get out of control".

Then for protection a simple sterile gauze dressing may be applied, such as an unmedicated fold of gauze held in place by adhesive tape.

If the vaccination is successful, it is "taken", a red spot appears about the third or fourth day, which grows into a papule or little pimple and then into a vesicle nearly half an inch in diameter, filled with clear fluid and surrounded by a reddened ring. In about ten days it has become a tense, yellow pustule with a dimple in the centre, the umbilicus. This is the characteristic picture of a successful vaccination, and a successful vaccination centres nearly if not quite absolute immunity for periods ranging for many, many years.

Vaccination and Immunity

Next time to vaccinate is when the child is four to six months old. But when, smallpox is present in the community vaccination should be done at any age. In the future, or very young child, however, the accidental effects are likely to be less severe than they are in some instances where the first vaccination is done in youth or adolescence. I was vaccinated the first time on my 21st birthday as a riversary and the reaction nearly made me miss medical school graduation ceremonies in the course of which I actually took my honors, a knee, a high fever, acrastic cath, which, I gather, is no longer fashionable, and the accidention of granting the degree.

The vaccine or lymph used for inoculation is material taken from the vesicles on the skin of a calf 4 days after the inoculation and stored in the refrigerator in thin glass tubes.

The skin to be inoculated is washed with plain soap and water and rubbed with alcohol, allowed to dry, touched, with a drop of the vaccine from the tube, and then with this drop slightly punctured or scratched with the point of a sterile instrument or the sharp edge of the broken tube so as to penetrate the skin barrier, but not deeply enough to draw blood. The drop of vaccine is then rubbed off immediately thereafter or left to dry for a few minutes.

What were the Alabama Claims?

All the claims made against Great Britain by the United States for damage done to her shipping during the Civil War by Confederate warships built and fitted out in British ports are known as the Alabama Claims, although the famous raider named the Alabama did the most damage.

The Alabama was built by Laird of Liverpool and was completed in 1862 by the Confederate government to go to sea under the flag of Commander Semmes, who left Liverpool July 28, 1862, under the guise of trying out the British flag. Four days later she was commissioned and manned by her officers at sea off the Azores and placed in command of Captain Raphael Semmes. Under the Confederate flag the vessel ran to the east for "290" and later as the Alabama. During the two years the Alabama, manned largely by British seamen and gunners, flying the flag of the Confederate privateer without any right to do so, Atlantic and Caribbean, the Gulf of Mexico and even the Indian Ocean, she captured 69 Union merchantmen, most of which were burnt at sea because there was no lawful way to dispose of either the ships or their cargoes.

In 1864 Capt. Semmes, who had commanded the C. S. Navy's fighting ships, took his famous raider into Cherbourg, France, and docked her for repairs. Capt. John A. Winslow of the U. S. Navy learned who had long been trailing the Alabama, stationed his ship off the Cherbourg mole and waited for the next move of the privateer.

Capt. Semmes, who had come to be known as a match for Capt. Winslow in the "old navy," decided to accept the challenge and engaged the Kearsage, which, French eye witnesses say, had chain armor or bolted on her sides and concealed by boards painted black. The two ships watched the unequal contest. The Alabama fought gallantly for more than an hour and a half after the first shot, was fired by the Union warship. The Alabama lost 40 men killed, 9 drowned and 3 by three in wounded. Capt. Semmes escaped from the sinking ship. He was picked up by the British merchant, taken to London and received with honors presented with a sword to take the place of the one he had thrown into the sea when he abandoned his ship. And according to the Confederate States, was made an admiral. And according to the Confederate forces before Richmond in 1865. Capt. Semmes was returned to the Congress for his victory and promoted to admiral.

The Florida and the Shenandoah, both other important privateers fitted out in Britain, the Shenandoah not getting to sea until the Confederate States was made an admiral. And according to the Confederate forces before Richmond in 1865. Capt. Semmes was returned to the Congress for his victory and promoted to admiral.

In 1872 an international arbitration tribunal sitting at Geneva, Switzerland, decided that Britain should pay the United States $15,500,000 for the "Alabama Claims."

R. Kent Rowley, Director Textile Workers, Arrested

Lachute, Que., May 6 (CP)—R. Kent Rowley, Canadian director of the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.) which is directing two strikes here, was arrested by Provincial Police at his Montreal home today, a Union spokesman announced, adding that warrants had been issued for the arrest of two union organizers.

L. Robach, union publicity director, said Rowley had been charged with participating in an illegal strike and the same charges had been laid against Madeleine Parent and A. Beauchage.

Miss Parent was one six persons arrested Friday when provincial police and pickets clashed in front of the Ayers Limited Textile Mill as company officials led 250 workers into the plant. She was later released.

At the Dominion Shuttle company, a subsidiary of Ayers, the union reported everything closed tight and the situation quiet.

At least half of the 800 Ayers employees and the 250 Shuttle workers are idle. The Ayers workers, out for a month, and the Shuttle workers, are demanding a 15 cents hourly wage increase, six legal holidays a year, and a union shop provision in the work contract.

Police, roat in uniform, and several in plainclothes are keeping watch over this industrial town about 40 miles northwest of Montreal.

Workers going into the Ayers plant have been paraded into work amid jeers but no attempt was made by the picket line to stop them.

Details of Printing Magazine Shown To Kinsmen Club

The intricacies of large scale publishing and the vast amount of skilled work which goes into printing a single edition of a nationally famous magazine was demonstrated to members of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville when on Monday evening they viewed a showing of "Magazine Magic," a color film released by the Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia.

The film was shown to Kinsmen through the Curtis Distributing Company and through its district supervisor, Maurice Crompton of Toronto.

Every step which goes into the publishing of a magazine is clearly outlined in the picture. The vast timber tracts and the pulp mills which go toward providing the necessary paper are shown, together with the Curtis empire in Philadelphia, a virtual "city within a city", where over 6,000 persons find daily employment in some skilled trade pertaining to the publishing and distribution of magazines printed by the company.

Kinsmen Ernie Coleborne of the Upper Canada News introduced Mr. Crompton to the club members while Kin Harry Knott expressed club appreciation.

President Arthur Crull tossed a few bouquets in the direction of club members to whom he expressed his sincere appreciation for their efforts in assisting to make the Kinsmen Radio Show a success on Sunday evening. Officials of the radio station CJBQ also came in for thanks from Ernie Coleborne who stated cooperation from the station was in a great measure responsible for the success of the show. Sponsors of the radio show, the Montreal Standard, also were thanked. Radio station manager Bill Slovin and Tom Wilkinson were guests at the luncheon.

The entire proceeds of the show will go toward the Belleville Community Swimming Pool Fund, it was pointed out by the club president. "The show was definitely a credit to the club," stated President Crull.

Not For Having Locure

This brought Veterans' Minister Mackenzie to his feet with the statement that it was the "biggest insult I ever heard in his House" to be given a lecture on liberalism by an "arch-socialist".

Mr. Coldwell said his party was not anxious to obtain Orientals for British Columbia or for any port of Canada, but the party was anxious to see Canada, which called herself a democratic country, remove the last vestige of racial discrimination from her laws.

John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) said the bill was in effect telling the British Columbia people that the whole Chinese problem was being thrown in the lap of that province. He said pains should be taken to see that there was not an impossible number of Orientals allowed to congregate in British Columbia.

Only 6,547 Eligible

Mr. Glen said there actually were 12,000 Chinese males who now would be entitled to bring their wives and families to Canada.

However, there were about 3,000 which would not take advantage of the provision. For example, there were about 2,000 young Chinese who would probably marry young Chinese females now in Canada.

Actually it was estimated that only 3,547 would bring in wives and families. Possibly 8,000 of the unnaturalized Chinese would become naturalized and take advantage of the relaxation in immigration laws. He said single male Chinese-Canadians would be allowed to go to China and marry and bring their wives back.

However, "picture" brides—Chinese girls married by proxy in a mail-order basis—would not be allowed entry.

71,693 Enter Canada

Speaking of immigration generally, Mr. Glen reviewed the steps taken since the early 1930s and reported that 71,693 immigrants of all racial origins entered Canada between the end of the war and Dec. 31, 1946—as many as had come into the country between 1935 and 1939.

Replying to questions put earlier in the debate by Walter Tucker (L—Rosthern), Mr. said Canada would be prepared to accept persons of German ethnic origin living in the unoccupied zones of Germany who were not German nationals, and added that immigration officials overseas have been instructed to facilitate their entry into the Dominion.

Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East) said people from the British Isles should be given a preference because they fitted most easily into the Canadian way of life. He urged that some scheme of making loans to prospective immigrants be adopted. The loans could be repaid once the immigrants were settled. He said he also wanted to put in a special bid for the people from the Balkan areas.

Jean Francis Pouliot (Ind. L—Temiscouata) said the question of race should not be allowed to enter into the immigration question. The only question should be whether the immigrant would be an asset to Canada.

Fallen Down on Job

Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton) felt the Canadian government had fallen down on the job. Since 71,100 people were admitted to Canada from the United Kingdom and United States in 1946. These admissions did not help to relieve the misery and suffering of people in Europe.

He complained against the government's action in allowing Ludger Dionne (Bonaventure-Beauce) to go to Europe to recruit female labor for textile mills at St. Georges De Beauce, Que.

Arthur Smith (PC—Calgary West) said many speakers had stated there should be no discrimination as to race, color or creed. He wondered how many were serious when they used the words. Those who rose to heights of oratory and charged the government with discrimination were not serious unless they were prepared to have one of their own daughters marry one of the colored people in Canada.

Lewis Menary, (PC—Wellington North) said Canada should guard against those persons who were communistically inclined and H.—W. Herridge (Ind. CCF—Kootenay West) said the first assistance should be given to those, irregardless of race, who suffered because of their opposition to Nazism.

"Art Hostesses" To Aid Visitors

London, May 6 —(CP)— A panel of 1,000 "art hostesses", to act as guides to connoisseurs visiting Britain from any part of the Commonwealth is planned by Malcolm Mackenzie, secretary of the Empire Arts Council.

"Artists arriving in this country from various parts of the Commonwealth want, without any delay to get into direct touch with the source of their interest," says Mackenzie.

"In future, if they get in touch with my council, they can have the advice and guidance of an art hostess who will be a specialist in the particular branch of art, whether it be paintings, pottery, textiles or jewelry.

"We hope to have such hostesses in every large town in the country. Already I have the names of 50 on my list."

The council also is forming a register of private collectors willing to let overseas visitors inspect their art collections.

WILD GEESE

The April moon was silent
With alternate shade and shine,
When hark! the calm is broken
And we hear a V-shaped line.
Afar in the boundless heavens
Led by their leader bold,
Over lake and wood and river
To their summer home of old.

They make a pretty picture
In the cloudy April sky,
Winging their way majestically
Above the world so high;
True to their wavy leader
They kept their steady flight.
The spirit of these feathered migrants
Filled my heart with calm delight.

And I thought of Him who guided
Their flight o'er hill and plain,
And how by His wondrous guidance
They come to their home again;
And my weakened faith grew brighter
In the strength of His guiding might,
Sure that He who guides the migrants
Will lead my steps aright.

Helen B. Anderson.

Annual Reports Given at Last Meeting of Club

The Collegiate Home and School Association held a supper meeting in the cafeteria on Monday night, this closing meeting of the year the annual reports were submitted. Mrs. G. A. Wright, president and delegate to the annual Home and School Convention held in the Royal York, Toronto, gave an extensive summary of many of the discussions held at the convention.

In her report the president stressed the importance of greater interest on the part of parents in Home and School aims and achievements. In public schools the Home and School Association work for the benefit of the pupils. In secondary schools the association works with the pupils. Better Perspective.

Speaking on the value of Home and School meetings Mrs. Wright stated: Parents have a better perspective when discussions are held on problems relating to students. This situation has pioneered in discussions on human relationships. Some of the difficulties which parents experience in bringing up their children arise because they fail to treat them like human beings. Parents who complain of lack of appreciation on the part of their children fail to remember that this is an adult quality.

Dr. Muriel Brown, Consultant on Family Life, Washington, has said that children with better family life resulted in better moral and social balance for children.

In continuing her report Mrs. Wright stated that some of the objectives in education are to aid a child to develop initiative, to teach children to have respect for laws and health, and to teach children how to use leisure time wisely.

At the conclusion of this report the new officers for the coming year were installed by Mr. J. M. Wood. These include, Honorary President, Mr. Geo. Currie; President, Mrs. G. G. Wright; Vice Presidents, Mr. Bowden, Mr. Mott; Recording Secretary, Mr. C. J. Heard; Treasurer, Mr. W. Countryman; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. S. Joss. The executive will be composed of Mr. W. Blatherwick, Mrs. Croll, Mrs. H. S. Robbins, Mrs. H. Seldon and Mr. N. Thompson.

BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society of Bridge Street Church held their regular monthly meeting in the church parlors on Friday. Mrs. Finkle was in the chair.

Miss Ethel Morden gave an excellent report on the branch meeting held in Port Hope in April.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Cook's and Mrs. Bush's group, Mrs. Adams being in charge. Mrs. Baker taking the devotional using as her theme, "For God, for home, in every land." she then introduced the speaker, Mrs. Hooper of Napanee who took as her subject "Christian Citizenship."

The speaker asked as church members to be total abstainers, as the moderator Dr. Jones had requested all to be. "Temperance" she said, "means self control, every Christian must sacrifice in her life, but she must strive to keep an even balance. We can do many things, with regard to the liquor situation of today, with education of youth and influencing public opinion, by our attitude toward liquor, in showing that we are behind any measures furthering its use and sale. If the use of household commodities be restricted; why not liquor? "We must learn a practical way of refusing cocktails at public gatherings and making our conference known for non-alcoholic beverages, standing by our principles, when it is required of us. If we only feel that way about the evils in our country, what wonderful things could be accomplished. Could we keep on in this task, nothing may daunt us and our faith in God, we will win.

We must also by letters conversant with the work being done by those fighting against liquor, not to forget to read the magazines, which are regularly published by the Anti-Saloon League against liquor and cigarettes."

The speaker concluded, "Life is a one way road and we must make it as lovely as possible for ourselves and those we touch daily."

Miss Helen Cook then delighted everyone with the solo "Trust in Me."

Mrs. Finkle graciously thanked the speaker and brought the meeting to a close. A social hour followed.

Give Old Man Time The Laugh

If a woman can keep healthy —mentally, physically and spiritually—if she can laugh and play and keep busy, birthdays will have little meaning. Time may put a heavy hand upon her in the way of appearance but can silver her hair and seam her face but, otherwise, he can't touch her. She has her secret of youth. There are cute little tricks of sighty who are as chirpy as crickets, the joy of the family circle. If you are edging along in the sixties, my friend, make it your special business to keep from getting old. There are ways of doing just that. They make for a happy and contented life.

Don't harp on the past. Young people aren't interested in tales of yesteryear, and, if you are up and coming, you won't be either. We call them the "good old times", but were they? They brought along their quota of disappointments and troubles.

Let your mind dwell on the affairs of the moment. Keep posted on what is going on, but do not let yourself get too opinionated. Quite frequently the other fellow is right. Anyhow, argument deprives you and take away your good spirits. Don't overlook the fact that the teen-agers of these days are wonderfully well-informed. When you were a teen-ager, you probably didn't even know the name of the President of the United States or care.

After the age of sixty, it is easy to take on little habits that are age-revealing. Avoid them. The way one talks, walks, sinks into a chair may have more to do with appearance of advanced years than wrinkles or frosted locks. Try to keep alert, on your toes. Stand erect when you walk. Once you get into the habit of letting your shoulders fall forward, get to sleeping, you will feel older than your years.

Young People Aren't Interested in Tales of Yesteryear

Keep an eye on yourself so you will not take on little mannerisms, like indulging facial acrobats, or letting a whine creep into your voice, or standing with your hands on your hips, or slumping awkwardly in a chair. These faults can multiply if one is not watchful. They are all conquerable through the medium of conscious control.

Most important of all, have a quiet, relaxing hours by yourself. Don't feel that the family must always include you in their parties, visits. If you're the right kind of girl, you will be good company for yourself.

Have plenty of work to do, so that you will have a feeling of usefulness, a place in a world of activities. Above everything else, keep cheerful. Be tolerant of the faults of others.

Fashion Flashes

A NEW LOOK to skirt lines is achieved by the hemline flounce, seen on smart new afternoon frocks. White silk chiffon, all-over pricked, with a sketchy plume design in yellow, green and blue, is simply fashioned with the tucks released low to give a flounce look to the hem section.

A GOOD BUY is a tailored jacket of white tweed cut on long, slim lines. Teamed up with a navy or black or brown skirt, it adds up to a nice suit, is good over country slacks, is charming with a tailored skirt, and goes well with a plain dark sheer or crepe dress.

MADE TO LIVE IN during the Summer is a big, generously cut coat of butcher rayon. It closes from a high, convertible, neckline, with double rows of tiny buttons, has huge patch pockets and bracelet length sleeves with wide turn-back cuffs. Saddle stitching down the coat and around the pockets collar and cuffs.

ABOUT NOW we are seeing several pretty little short evening coats at smart places. Aqua woolen is used for a short coat with pricket dipping hem to the flared back. It has big sling sleeves and slanted slit pockets. Embroidery in seed pearls and gold thread marks the hemline and the sleeves.

THERE ARE TIERS on many a skirt this season. Pure silk crepe in white, with a poppy print in red and black, is used for a pretty frock with side-closed shirtwaist top; the skirt has two deep front tiers finely accordion-pleated.

When to Use Eye Shadows

Choose a becoming shade of eye shadow and apply with care.

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAVE YOU ever played with eye shadows? The conservative young lady is definitely afraid of them. Well, maybe they are not for her. Certainly they are not for the timid little mousey girl; they throw her out of character. But on the girl who has style, who knows her cosmetic lessons, a little eyelid pigment gives a touch of pleasing mystery, lights her countenance, makes her feel that she has a place in the front ranks of the modern parade.

The feminine face can stand just so much batik and no more, though some of our bedizened femmes haven't found that out yet. When rouge is not used, it is wise to apply powder that has a rosy cast; unless one is lucky enough to own natural coloring. We wonder why, when we know so much about the rules of health and the importance of outdoor exercise.

Blue Eye Shadow

Blue-eyed beauties take to blue shadows, but must be careful that the blue of the lids does not dim the blue sparkle of the eyes. Sometimes a delicate mauve is more effective, or even a light touch of the rouge compact.

What the red head can do with jade shadows you would never believe. They are in such glorious contrast to the flaming thatch that they call attention to it. With what care and delicacy must they be applied! Not too much, not too little. Never drawn beyond the far tip of the eyebrow, never extending entirely to the eye brow. A little heavier along the lashes, if you please. Then a fade-away.

For brunettes, there are blues and lovely shades of bronze. And, as new jewel shades are offered in rich profusion, we are these soft glowing colors found among eye pigments.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This Girl Has Two Good Reasons For Hesitating Over Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and have been going steady for eight months with a boy 22. We were making plans to get married this summer.

Now he tells me he isn't sure how he feels about me, but that he would never leave me because he knows it would hurt me too much. We could never get married under those circumstances, but if we broke up, I could never be happy with anyone else.

My mother likes this fellow very much, but there's a difference in religion, and she doesn't want me to change mine for him, because she is afraid I would regret it. However, I am willing to take the chance.

Please give me your advice.

"N.D."

Dear "N.D."

You have two very good reasons here for thinking long and seriously about marrying this young man, first, he tells you he is uncertain about his feeling for you. Second, you are of different religions.

As to the first, you realize yourself that you wouldn't want a man to marry you out of pity, and whatever he says now, I don't believe he'd do such a thing himself when it came right down to it. I think he's telling you he would just like to back out of the situation as gracefully as possible.

And the question of your different religions is not one to be brushed off as lightly as you appear to be ready to do. If you are a regular reader of this column, you undoubtedly know that I do not think a difference in religion is necessarily an insuperable obstacle to marriage. But I do think it is a matter which should receive a very great deal more thought and discussion between two young people, before they decide to pool their lives, than I gather you two have given it.

Maybe I'm wrong, but my own opinion is that you had better make up your mind that this boy is not for you. But make up your mind, too, not to permit yourself to coddle the mercenary idea that you could never be happy with anyone else. You not only can be, but undoubtedly will be.

A Girl With More Sense Than Most

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a boy of 17, and have been going with a girl of 16 for four months.

This girl is fast, and even though I tell her I love her very much, she tells me it is just a passing fancy. She tells me that she has been out with a lot of boys who have told her the same thing, so she just won't believe me.

And another thing—she won't go steady with me.

What can I do to prove that I love her. Or do you think I should stop going with her? Do you think she is being smart or not smart enough about being in love and going steady?

"A Very Worried Boy Friend"

Dear Worried Boy Friend:

I think your girl is not only very smart indeed, but that she has far more common sense than most girls of her age. I wish I had more letters telling me about girls with such sensible ideas instead of somany from teen-aged girls who seem to feel that a person can be irrevocably "in love" at 15,16 17 or 18 and will never again be happy if they can't marry the boy or girl who happens to fascinate them at the moment.

If you were half as smart as your girl friend, you'd be tickled to death with her, and be ready to go right along with her in her very wise attitude toward teen-age "love" and "going steady."

CHANCE ARRIVAL OF DETECTIVES SAVES $925

Toronto, May 6 (CP) — Chance arrival of two detectives who heard cries from a tunnel linking Toronto's Union Station and a large hotel last night saved an 85-year-old Detroit man, Charles Angel, from loss of $925 he had in his pockets. Police arrested Rudolph Miller, 26, and charged him with assault with intent to rob.

EPIDEMIC HITS INFANTS

Philadelphia, May 5 — (AP) — Two additional deaths of infants, bringing the two-day total to four were reported yesterday by Temple University hospital which last week admitted 18 babies stricken with gastro- enteritis at an Allentown, Pa., hospital.

All four children of children less than two weeks old were due to the disease, a form of diarrhea to which children are especially susceptible, the hospital said.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Completely Selfish Visitor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently a friend of mine wrote me that she had given a man whom she knows a letter of introduction to me, and in two or three days he telephoned to me about making an engagement to come to see me. I am a widow and own my own home. He is a widower, and lives in a room he rents in a house some distance from here.) When he telephoned he spoke of coming here for the following Sunday, and since he has no car, we talked together about the bus-schedule. He said, "Then I'll leave here on the ten o'clock bus, which will get me there about eleven-thirty." He was here to mid-day dinner and stayed to supper. The next Sunday the same. The third Sunday he was again here to mid-day dinner, and after dinner I suggested we go to the movies in a nearby city.... I felt he owed me that much! Since then I have been "busy."

I discussed this with my daughter and son-in-law, and they think it was not proper for me to suggest that he take me to the movies I would very much like to know your opinion about this. I maintain that he, knowing that I work five days a week and then have to do my housework, should not have invited himself to dinner (which he did by arrangement, if not actually by words), but should have invited me to go out to dinner. My daughter and son-in-law say that a man of his age (he's 50) wouldn't think of it. In my opinion if he wouldn't think of anyone but himself, I'm not interested in him. As a matter of fact I was bored to death with his company anyway. I shall be very interested in your opinion. B.R.

My opinion is that your friend passed on to you a man completely selfish and self-centred, a man socially dumb if that be apparently thought you were so dumb that you would leap at the chance to spend your precious Sundays cooking delicious dinners and just for the sake of having his "glamorous" presence opposite you at table!

I applaud you for having the good taste and the good sense to "bored to death" with his company anyway." I applaud you too for giving him a chance to stir (if he's ever going to) out of his social inertia and to give a thought to someone beside himself.

Your daughter and son-in-law are soffles to maintain that, after all the generous hospitality you had given this stick-in-the-mud, you shouldn't suggest stepping forth to the movies.... if for no other reason but to get a breath of fresh air to ventilate his stuffiness. The contention of your daughter and son-in-law, that "a man of fifty wouldn't think of inviting his kind and generous hostess to go the movies is ridiculous, sheer bunk. Selfishness is not a question of age.... it's a state of mind. And my suggestion is that you keep on belnt too "busy" to let such bogged-down selfishness tarnish your apparent delight in life and living!

Problem Concerning Form of Address

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please help me with my problem. I am a widow, my son is to be married in June, and I am doubtful about the announcement cards. Should I say, "son of Mrs. Peter Carter and thi eate Peter-Carter," or is this form wrong?

Mother

I wish I could help you, dear lady, but I am not sure what kind of "announcement cards" you mean. It is the bride's parents who send out the marriage announcements, and these formal announcement do not carry the names of the groom's parents. In any published announcement of the engagement or marriage (such as in a newspaper, a club publication, and so forth) the form would be "Mr. William Hoyt Carter, son of Mrs. Peter Carter and the late Mr. Carter." (Notice that the form is "the late Mr. Carter," not "the late Peter Carter," since the "Peter" already has been given in your name.)

Dublin Caught in Backwood of Crisis, Problems Said Worst Since Partition

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, Eire, May 6 —(CP)— Dublin, wartime city of plenty, has changed.

This country has been caught in the backwash of great Britain's fuel crisis. With scarcely any domestic coal it must rely on British fuel which just isn't available in the required quantity.

And the worst winter in living memory has brought serious agricultural problems to a country of small farmers.

The prospect is that Dublin — and all of Eire — will face greater shortages before times of plenty return.

Some call the new economic problems Eire's greatest crisis since "time". The shock has been greater because it was unexpected. While the United Kingdom pulled in its belt gradually through the war, Eire prospered.

Now Eire has had to take in half-a-dozen notches with a sudden jolt.

Hotel and restaurant meals still are better than in London, but the gigantic wartime meals of steaks and chops, ham and eggs, and unlimited courses are gone. Almost every order has its restrictions.

Fats are scarce with a butter ration of only two ounces a week. A winter strike in the sugar-beet plants brought a cut in the sugar ration.

You don't get toast unless you have an early breakfast. Dublin's gas supply is available only 3½ hours a day — from 7:15 to 8:15 a.m., 11:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m., and 6 to 7 p.m.

Almost all passenger trains have been stopped for want of fuel. There is plenty of gasoline for road transport — but not enough buses. Inter-urban travel is almost at a standstill.

The world's biggest brewery, short of coal like the remainder of Ireland, hasn't been able to fill even local demand. Many pubs have to close part-time. Bottles of Irish whisky that could be found, even on the pub counter have disappeared and even nips are under the counter for "regulars."

Eight School Sections Compose New School Area

The new North Thurlow School Area will be composed of eight school sections five from north Thurlow and three from Tyendinaga township, to go into effect after December 25 of this year, Public School Inspector R. H. Macklem announced today.

The announcement followed the decision of the Tyendinaga township council at a meeting held on Monday night, at which the body passed a by-law attaching School Sections Nos. 22-23 and 26 to the newly formed school area.

It was pointed out at the meeting that $900 in extra school grants will be paid to the sections in the school area which was formed last year. The three sections of Tyendinaga entering the new school area will receive an extra $450 in grants from the Department of Education.

The Tyendinaga Council will call a meeting of school boards on Tuesday, May 20, in Lonsdale school to discuss the advisability of another school area and thus get extra grants of $1,200 to lighten the burden of the taxpayers.

Stanley Beebe — and one of his trained bears. This act appeared with Bob Hope in the motion picture "Road to Utopia," appearing with Merrick Bros. Circus at Belleville May 12, 13, 14 under the auspices of the Belleville District Shrine Club.

Merrick Bros. Circus Will Present Full Program of Splendid Acts; Sponsored by Belleville Shrine Club

The Belleville and District Shrine Club, whose community efforts are centred with other things, in aid for crippled children of the district and province, have turned to an age-old amusement and entertainment as a means of raising funds this year. It is nothing more than the old-fashioned circus, a word that spells magic to adult as well as child.

The Shriners will bring the famous Merrick Bros. Circus here for three days starting May 12 through to May 14, inclusive. This show sis rated among the best now playing under the Big-Top or, Indoor set-up. From the time the clowns and Uncle Hiram and Aunt Matilda step out on the tanbark, to the closing act of the famous Berosinis, the entire performance absorbs more than two hours. Two straight hours of good old-fashioned circus entertainment of the type that grandpap saw plus modern acts and improvements.

Twenty-two Acts

Twenty-two sparkling acts comprise the show that is all new to Canada. There is Herb Taylor and his troupe of "clown" pantomimists that keeps kids and grown-ups in stitches; with their antics among others, of their wheezing out-moded auto. The "Izzizz" does everything but talk, and ends up in a sorry mess of disintegration.

Then there is the Torelli Family, with their menagerie of trained ponies, dogs and mule, which is an outstanding feature of the circus. The Cyclonians, are an 8ply named trio of cyclists who whirl their way through a maze of cyclemanias.

Patrons here will likely recognize the star of the Beebee's Hollywood Bears, because this huge hunk of hair and muscle is the homely brunette that co-starred with Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour and Bing Crosby in their rollicking comedy "Road to Utopia."

The Juggling Jewels

Five beautiful ladies, "The Juggling Jewels," give out with a bewildering display of juggling both individual and in unison. This is another outstanding act of the Merrick Brothers Circus.

A remarkable, routine of grace, strength and ability will be presented by the Balzar Sisters, which calls for a novel lighting arrangement that enhances the entire act.

The Four Fantinos consisting of two men and two girls swing on ropes through amazing aerialistic acrobatic stunts in a breath-taking performance. The outstanding feature is the tremendous strength of the larger woman who supports the other three on a bar while she hangs by her legs from a trapeze. The smaller woman artist flips from 80 to 100 times over the bar.

Miss Winifred Colleano, sister of the world-famous Con Colleano, the greatest tight-wire performer in the world, has a specialty all her own which has never been duplicated. From a full swing on the trapeze she makes a daring leap through the air catching the flying bar by a single heel grasp.

Lion Act

The newest of all lion acts will introduce the Great Kigor from India. Kigor has seven magnificent kings of the jungle, and it takes all his coolness and nerve to put the savage cats through their paces. The closing act features the Berosinis who perform high in the air as they ride bicycles over the tight wire while carrying partners on their shoulders. They do nerve-tingling stunts at ceiling height, and they have long been a headline feature with the famous Ringling Bros. Circus.

Also with the circus are Betty Tilton, trapeze specialist; Lewis and Oliver Sisters, head-to-head balance and pyramid novelties; the Scatterbrains, zany horizontal bar trio; Liberty horses and Torelli's High School Horses and many other acts.

The Merrick Brothers Circus will be here for three days starting May 12 and will be housed in the Memorial Arena.

Brief Period Of Cross-Fire Heard in House

Ottawa, May 6 —(CP)— A brief period of cross-fire developed in the house last night during cause-by-clause study of a bill to repeal the Chinese immigration Act, previously given second reading.

It developed after M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said his party was not anxious to prohibit Orientals for British Columbia or for any other part of Canada, but they were anxious to see Canada, which called itself democratic, remove the last vestige of racial discrimination.

Mrs. Glen said Mr. Coldwell "evades all the issues."

He asked Mr. Coldwell if he would repeal the offending order and give Asiatics the same rights as others.

"We want all discrimination removed from the bill," retorted Mr. Coldwell.

That, said Mr. Glen, would mean that every Chinese in Canada could bring in his mother or father or any other family member.

"Why not"? shouted A. M. Nicholson (CCF-Mackenzie).

"Is that the view of the C.C.F. party?" said Mr. Glen.

Mr. Nicholson said this right should be granted every person entering Canada legally as an immigrant.

REPORT A. B. J. GRAY DEPUTY MINISTER WILL RETIRE

Toronto, May 6 — (CP)—Imminent resignation of A.B.J. Gray as deputy minister of municipal affairs for Ontario was reported in Queen's Park circles yesterday but neither Mr. Gray nor the minister of municipal affairs, Hon. George Dunbar, could be reached for confirmation last night.

Mr. Gray is said to have tendered his resignation for reasons of health. He entered the civil service in 1936 as supervisor of finances of defaulting municipalities and became deputy minister six years ago. Previously he was a leader in the York township council.

Sees Possible Price Reduction In Cost of Salmon

By JOHN MOSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Saint John, N. B., May 6—(CP) —In a few weeks — it is usually around the first of June—salmon will start their annual run through St. John Harbor as they head for the St. John River to spawn. Consumers who prefer this fish to any other are wondering if their shrinking dollar will be required to stretch to last year's sky-high prices.

Much depends on the size of the catch but some hope for the price-conscious comes from M. H. McCavour, Saint John's largest salmon dealer, who predicts a possible reduction of 10 per cent or more will result from a considerable carryover of the product in Canada and the United States.

For salmon caught figuratively in the local consumer's backyard, fishers here charged 90 cents a pound last year before the price eased later in the season. And those who caught the fish enjoyed a generous share.

They received about 50 cents a pound or average of $6 per fish, in previous years the average price to fishermen was $1.45 per fish. The legal season extends from May 1 to Aug. 15. With a catch estimated at 1,500 to 2,000 fish averaging 12 pounds each and they often run larger, harbor fishermen earned upwards of $9,000 during that period last year.

Approximately half the catch is exported, mostly to the United States.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You can sometimes tell much by what you fail to say. At least this is often so in a bridge game when partners are exchanging bids.

We are talking about this deal:

NORTH
♠ 10 4 3 2
♥ 9
♦ Q J 7 10
♣ 8 7 6 5

WEST
♠ J 7
♥ 10 7
♦ A 5 4 3
♣ 9 4 3 2

EAST
♠ Q 9 8 5
♥ 8 6
♦ K 8 6 2
♣ J 10

SOUTH
♠ A K 6
♥ A K Q 6 4 3 2
♦ None
♣ A K Q

South opens with a bid of two hearts. This a forcing to game signal. Partner must make a bidding effort until at least a game contract is reached.

North responds once with a bid of two no-trump. This is the signal for saying he has no ace trick anywhere in his hand. He does not admit or deny anything else.

South now bids three hearts to show his suit is at least in the rebiddable class. Three hearts is not a game contract. North must bid again. This much the forcing signal requires.

North now follows the order of choice of bids in "5-N-N" takeout, assist, no-trump. He has already signalled having no sure tricks. From here on he goes normal until he gets another signal.

He has no biddable suit takeout. He lacks adequate support for a rebiddable heart suit. That leaves him with no bid other than three no-trump. This being a game, both partners may now pass.

South knows that partner has some hearts. He will persist in playing this deal with hearts as trump. And he intends to go to a small slam. He was fishing for Ieaxs if he had a grand slam.

How does south know that north has some hearts? Not by what north said. But by what he failed to say. If north has no suit that is biddable, it is not likely that he has a suit.

At a slam in hearts by south, west led the diamond ace. It so happens that south can take all 13 tricks with careful play. No doubt you can see it before I say anything more.

Know what you are looking for and the hunt is easier.

The Movie Column

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

What would you do if a wounded political killer with a $1,000 price on his head was suddenly dropped into your lap

Would you help him? Or would you turn him over to the police?

Britain's ace director, Carol Reed, brilliantly exploits this dilemma in the latest J. Arthur Rank production to hit New York, "Odd Man Out."

"Odd Man Out" is a fast-moving melodrama of the Irish Republican Army laid in Belfast sometime early in the last war. It deals simply with the dying hours of Johnny McQueen (James Mason), severely wounded in a mill robbery during which a cashier was killed.

The general pattern of the story is an old one and follows, to some extent... Hollywood's "The Informer."

But Reed goes at it from a different point of view. He isn't interested in the political background of the Irish struggle — only in the effect it has on innocent by-standers.

Chaplin's Philosophy

Charlie Chaplin's "Monsieur Verdoux" also is a thoughtful job but it displays a great deal of muddy thinking on the part of the gifted pantomimist. Chaplin, in outlining the career of a French Bluebeard, comes up with a gallery of characters who are perhaps the most selfish lot of people ever to appear on the screen. Not a hint of generosity "breaks through the bitter lack of humanity character is looking for the main chance to clean out a place in society at the expense of his, or her, fellows.

Solution?

Although "Monsieur Verdoux" has far wider implications than "Odd Man Out," some comparison can be drawn. In the latter picture, the issue is left open as to whether human beings are basically generous or whether they are purely selfish... Each is an interesting theme with our on lives and times... Both are worth seeing.

AT THE BELLE — Lovely, sparkling Ingrid Bergman and Cary Grant are separately in love in RKO Radio's tense romance and intrigue, "Notorious." Alfred Hitchcock produced and directed the suspenseful romance. Claude Rains, one of Hollywood's better actors, hardly famed for his dramatic characterizations, heads the distinguished supporting cast. (Adult Entertainment.)

AT THE CAPITOL — Jane Russell, that Outlaw girl, and Louis Hayward, star in "Young Widow," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program the musical "If I'm Lucky," starring Vivian Blaine, Perry Como, Harry James and Carmen Miranda.

Documentary Films Seen by 11,000 at Sydney's Royal Easter Show

(Written for The Canadian Press)
By LEONE KIRKWOOD

Sydney Australia (CP)—Canadian documentary films shown to Australians attending Sydney's 10-day Royal Easter Show were favorably received.

The film programs, staged every hour, covered every phase of Canadian life—agriculture, social planning, industry, education, sport, history art and music.

Films portraying Eskimo and Indian life seemed to be the most popular. People leaned forward in their seats and gasped as they watched Eskimos eating raw fish or Indian women carrying papooses.

Every season saw all seats filled with additional people standing around the walls of the basement room of a big showground building containing the Empire displays.

At the end of each screening a few Australians hunted up Canadians who were on hand and quizzed them about Canada. Many of the inquiries were from mothers whose sons trained in Canada under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Farmers asked questions about the number of Canadian farms with electricity and Canada's wheat acreage.

Some inquired about working conditions in Canada and one trained nurse asked if she could carry on her work in Canada if she visited Australia's sister dominion.

But Australians weren't the only ones asking questions.

Practically every session at least one Canadian, now a resident of Australia, approached Canadian film people to talk of the homeland. Some of these Canadians had been in Australia only a year, others had come out before the First Great War.

One woman of uncertain age indicated her disapproval of the Canadian accent by remarking to a film attendant: "My dear, you must try to learn the English language while you are in this country."

It is estimated at least 11,000 Australians saw the Canadian documentary films and the majority expressed interest and approval.

Finds Daughter Gas Fumes Victim

Windsor, Ont., May 6 (CP)— Returning home from work on the night shift Alex Lytwyn early today found the body of his five-year-old daughter, Caron Ann, victim of coal gas fumes.

Police said she had apparently been dead about five hours.

Lytwyn found his wife Olga, 25, lying in a semi-conscious condition on the floor of a back bedroom a few feet from the bed on which their daughter's body lay. She was able to give only meagre details of the tragedy.

The father told police he had checked the furnace about 1 p.m. yesterday before leaving the house. When he returned about 1 a.m. he noticed lights burning in the front room and the front door ajar.

A feeble groan from the bedroom led him to his wife. She said she had fallen in the dining room and had halved her mouth. Then she had heard the baby's cries and had struggled to the bedroom where she collapsed.

Mrs. Lytwyn was revived by a fire department emergency squad and was removed to hospital where her condition was reported as serious.

DIXIE WALKER AND PAT MULLIN LEADING HITTERS

38-Year-old Walker Was Supposed to Have Tough Fighting Off Youngsters

New York, May 6. (AP)—Dixie Walker of Brooklyn, a dependable swatter with a fine .439 spring average, and Pat Mullin of Detroit, whose .425 mark indicates a return to his pre-war form after a dreary 1946 season top the major leagues in batting after three weeks of play.

The 36-year-old Walker, who was supposed to have a tough time fighting off younger aspirants for his right field job, has collected four doubles in his 18 hits and has driven in 13 runs. Only one less than New York's Johnny Mize, the National League leader.

Thirteen points behind Dixie in the average columns comes Pittsburgh's Frank Gustine, much improved ball player at .426 with Tommy Holmes of Boston, rounding out the .400 club at .404. Bob Elliott of Boston, .377 and Bill Rigney of New York, .375 are others in the first five.

Rangers Dispose Of Demarco And Joe Cooper

New York, May 6 — (CP) — New York Rangers of the National Hockey League today announced the outright sale of centre Albert (Ab) Demarco of North Bay, and defenceman Joe Cooper of Winnipeg, to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

Demarco, 31, was acquired from Boston Bruins early in the 1943-44 campaign. He hit his stride with the last-place Rangers in the 44-45 and 45-46 season when he tallied 54 and 47 points respectively but this year he was unable to click during the Ranger drive for a playoff berth.

He finished the season with 9 goals and 10 assists for 19 points.

Cooper, 33, joined the Rangers in 1936, was traded to Chicago Black Hawks in 1939 and returned to the New Yorkers last season.

BOBBY FELLER MAKES FATHER HERO IN BOOK

Elder Feller Always Able to Put Rapid Robert Back on Right Road

By LARRY MATHEY

Cleveland, May 6. (AP)—"Strikeout Story" is not implicitly the autobiography of rapid Robert Feller—it could be titled, more appropriately: "Bill Feller and son."

For the lean, sun-tanned Iowa farmer, who received the first tan "below the neck of my overalls" on a Florida vacation with his famous son, is the real hero of the excellent book written by baseball's strikeout king.

Time and again during major crises which threatened to blight the career of the Cleveland Indians' fireballer, the elder Feller appeared on the scene and calmed the seething spirit of the schoolboy star with a few words of homespun philosophy.

"Pitching baseball is like pitching hay—you just have to stick with it," counseled Bob after the hurler set newspaper pages screaming by expressing the fear that he had "lost my fast ball" at the age of 19.

"Look here, son," Bill Feller added. "It's like driving a fast trotting car. After you ride in it for a while it doesn't seem to be going as fast as it was in the first place. That's the way it is with you." Lifted over another psychological hump by his father, younger Feller then proceeded to fan the batters and resume his climb to fame.

Dedicated to the memory of his father, Feller's "absorbing story" is a dramatic, sometimes humorous, account of the young hurler's hopes and fears as he flashed like a meteor from the skinned diamond on his father's farm into major league stardom at the age of 17.

With severe self analysis, Feller gives the "inside" story of 1940, the year of "black bitterness" when the Indians rebelled against the sarcasm of their manager, Oscar Vitt, were labelled "no hustlers" and lost the pennant by one game.

CANADIENS BEAT 7-3 BY ALL-STARS

New Westminster, B.C., May 6 (CP)—National Hockey League All Stars defeated Montreal Canadiens 7-3 in a slow final game of a three game exhibition series key series here last night, which saw many fans leave before the game ended.

Ted Lindsay sparked the All Star attack with two goals and as many assists while linemate Pete Horeck marred one goal and two assists. Max Bentley whipped in a brace of counters on relays from brother Doug and Joe Carveth rapped in a single-ton to complete the All Star scoring.

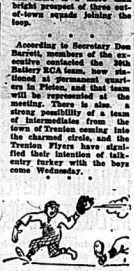
By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Things are beginning to loom a little brighter along baseball's waterfront, insofar as entries in the Belleville baseball situation are concerned, and the special meeting called for the City Hall on Thursday night might produce some surprises. At the moment the Canadian National Railways "Veterans" Point Anne and Zanders are sure fire entries, and there is a most than bright prospect of three out-of-town squads joining the loop.

* * *

According to Secretary Don Barrett, members of the executive selected the 20th Battery RCA team, that stationed at permanent quarters in Kingston, that team will be represented at the meeting. There is also a strong possibility of a team of intermediates from the town of Trenton coming into the charmed circle, and the Trenton Flyers have notified their intention of talk-entry turkey with the boys come Wednesday.

* * *



A six-team intermediate league should do well this coming season, and the out-of-town entries will as they always do add a thrill at the box-office. The Picton Army team which escorted our Toronto softball diamonds last season, was deemed too strong for the "Spanish League" and the boys, it appeared, seemed doomed for the addition of a year with the exception of a few exhibition tilts. However the BSA extended an invitation to join the loop here and they should make things interesting for the local muhballers.

* * *

The meeting was called for 7:30 Wednesday evening and all team representatives are urged to be present. There is a lot of work to be done and those warm days are around the corner—as it won't be long now.

* * *

If the six-team intermediate loop materializes, and the new eight-team Intermediate League rounds out a schedule, there should be plenty of softball in the village this year. Not forgetting the Kiwanis group which will embrace three series this year, and which is getting under way at the present time. According to Kiwanis officials Ed. Sherry and Fred Downey, the tilts will boom for the youngsters this year, and a little support, moral, financial and otherwise will not come amiss.

* * *

"It was the biggest swindle since the Asiatic Dome Scandal" shrilled Phil (The Voice) Lawson, in the Memorial Arena dressing room last Friday night. He was referring to the wrestling match in St. Louis a short time back when the "Whipper" Billy Watson was dethroned by Lou Thesz, a native from the home-village of the Cardinals, who sneaked the Whips crown from his glossy locks, in what "The Voice" termed an "unfair decision."

* * *

Out of the dim and somewhat dusty past comes a newspaper clipping that was a sports page of a Toronto newspaper way back when hockey was played by men and had no similarity to the glorified basketball that is part and parcel of the game since the rotary-mind injected new-fangled ideas of speed mixed with "youth and experience."

* * *

* * *

The game went to forty minutes overtime with Picton reaming home two goals in the extra period to win 7-5. Trenton Intermediates also played that night and lost a close game to Port Hope in the latter rink by a similar score. On the Trenton team were: McGittis, goal; Croft, point; McGaw, cover-point; Cummings, rover; Fletcher and Powers, wings and Armstrong, centre. Commenting on the latter game, the columnist of that day said: "Port Hope surprised the natives by defeating Trenton 7-5 at Port Hope. Trenton rushed a shot but the lively work of three Port Hope Juniors won the game for the Port. Fletcher, the Trenton centre, had his shoulder broken by a hard body check and his loss demoralized the team."

* * *

And apparently they had referee trouble in those days, too. A printed despatch from Belleville says: "The executive, management and players of the Belleville Intermediate hockey team, take exception to the telegraphed reports from Belleville regarding the work of Referee Harvey (Si Sproule. They say he was fair in every respect and a very competent official and suggest him for the return' game in Trenton on Monday night." He were a member of the barefoot brigade with cheeks of tan" in those days, so perhaps some of the oldtimers in this hamlet will recall the circumstances surrounding the above despatch.

* * *

Jim Fellwell, brother of Hipsman Mayor Frank Fellwell and a former football star both here and in Belleville, is in town for a few days. Jim looking fit as a fiddle, coached the Varsity Juniors grid squad last year, and did a right noble job, for he couldn't get any dope out of the big fella as to his plans, but he would be a welcome addition to the boys who still have hopes of an intermediate football squad here this fall. With Don Hayek, Western U backfield star, and Jim available—well a guy can dream, can't he?

THREE BOXERS CHOSEN

Toronto, May 6 — (CP)—Three boxers were selected from results on an 11-bout card last night to represent the Toronto Lion's Club in the Canadian amateur boxing championships at Fort William later this week.

Those chosen were Billy Graham of Toronto, Bill Goulding of Oshawa and Jack Duggan of Petrborro.

Graham was a surprise loser to Chuck Gilbarson, Quebec feather-weight champion, in three rounds. Goulding won what was advertised as the main bout over Mike Zaduk of Guelph, fighting at 145 pounds. Duggan took a three-round decision over Walter Morrison of Montreal, fighting at 165 pounds for the Ontario Athletic Commission Trophy.

CAHA DELEGATES END CONVENTION IN HARMONY

Organization Acts as Peacemaker Between British and Scottish Puck Interests

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, May 6 (CP)—Harmony prevailed along the world amateur hockey front today as an outcome of the 30th annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at which Canada acted as peacemaker in settling settlement of a dispute between English and Scottish puck interests.

Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton, brought a roar of approval from the delegates to the C.A.H.A. meeting in yesterday's final general session when he announced that the two British factions had "buried the hatchet". Dr. Hardy said that the two leaders involved—John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, secretary of the British Ice Hockey Association, and Festus Moffatt, president of the Scottish Ice Hockey Association, had "parted on friendly terms".

Earlier in the four-day meeting, Moffatt said in an interview that the Scottish body would never "submit to domination" by the B.I.H.A. nor would his group join the British organization as long as "control is vested in the hands of one man and only one man—Ahearne."

Dr. Hardy told the meeting that Moffatt and Ahearne had agreed to further meetings about the possibility of the S.I.H.A. joining the B.I.H.A. The Scottish body, through such a step, would gain affiliation with the Ligue International de Hockey Sur Glace and would gain the right to certain players from Canada.

A. N. Pickard of Regina, the new president of the C.A.H.A., said: "They say here that there was "no possibility" that Europe would seek to gain control of world amateur hockey through the L.I.H.G.

Complete Autonomy

Pickard said that Canada and the United States were assured of complete autonomy within the framework of the L.I.H.G. "by the terms of our affiliation with that body." Dr. Hardy also stressed, in a statement issued especially to counteract any impression Canada might be allowing hockey control out of her hands, that "there is to be no interference whatsoever by any European or British body in the hockey affairs of the C.A.H.A. and the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States.

Here are some of the major points brought out at the annual meeting:

Secretary George S. Dudley of Midland, Ont., intimated that Canada might not have a hockey team in the next Olympic games. Although he didn't mention the reason, it would hinge obviously on the fact that the C.A.H.A. and the Olympic definitions of an amateur are far apart.

George Hunter, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, said that Ontario might launch a "super senior series" of teams from larger cities which would be sponsored and which would play for a cup of their own. They would not engage in the Allan Cup playdowns.

Details of a new amateur-pro financial agreement were disclosed, calling for the C.A.H.A. to get a sum of $30,000 next year as payment for players turning pro. Last year the C.A.H.A. received a lump sum of $20,000. The money next year is to be paid on the basis of $2,000 from each of the six national hockey league clubs and $1,000 from each of six national hockey league clubs and $1,000 from each of 18 minor pro teams.

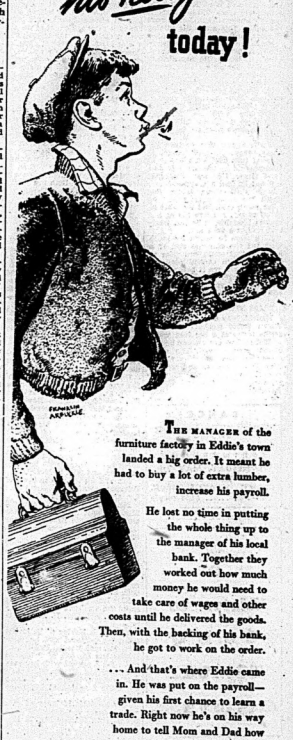
Eddie started his new job today!



THE MANAGER of the furniture factory in Eddie's town landed a big order. It meant he had to buy a lot of extra lumber, increase his payroll.

He lost no time in putting the whole thing up to the manager of his local bank. Together they worked out how much money he would need to take care of wages and other costs until he delivered the goods. Then, with the backing of his bank, he got to work on the order.

... And that's where Eddie came in. He was put on the payroll—given his first chance to learn a trade. Right now he's on his way home to tell Mom and Dad how much he likes his new job.

King Matched To Meet Rizzo On May 12th

(By The Canadian Press)

Entries for the Dominion amateur boxing championships to be held in Port Arthur May 8 to 10 swelled to 47 last night as out-of-town contenders arrived at the lakehead city. Among arrivals were Frank Almont, Ken Mosher, Doyle Kane and Bill Brenner of Vancouver.

A bout between Arthur King of Toronto and Hamilton Whitney Rixon, postponed by a finger infection on the left hand of the young Toronto Negro welterweight fighter, will go on at Maple Leaf Gardens May 12, promoter Tunney said Monday.

The Canadian Ladies' Open golf championship will be played at the Toronto Golf Club Sept. 15-20, Mrs. M. E. Howe, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union, announced in Toronto yesterday. Ladies' inter-provincial team matches will be played at the same course Sept. 12 and 13.

Simcoe Stars will not play this year in the Michigan - Ontario Ladies Softball League, despite a previous announcement to that effect, manager Mike Houser said yesterday. He said his team would compete in the Inter-city Ladies' Fastball League, with Brantford, Hamilton, Guelph, Kitchener and St. Thomas.

Howie Meeker, Toronto Maple Leaf right winger and a candidate for the National Hockey League rookie award, took time out from his Stratford railroading job yesterday to drop into Maple Leaf Gardens and talk about his next season's contract with managing director Conn Smythe. Result of the talk, as reported by both parties, was a laconic "objective reached."

Bill Cowley, Boston Bruins' centre-ice star, held a dinner meeting in Ottawa that competitive sport is his idea of the answer to Canada's juvenile delinquency problems. That sport is competitive was borne out by his statement that "a fellow has to do today is skate fast, shoot hard and keep his head up . . . or he might get it knocked off.

Halifax, May 6 — (CP) — A well-built fighter who once banged Bob Pastor through the ropes at Boston in 1939, but lost on an alleged "home-town" decision, started his comeback campaign in Halifax with a defeat.

After a four-year layoff, 32-year-old Terrance (Tiger) Warrington of Liverpool, N.C., once holder of the Canadian light heavyweight and heavyweight crown, met Clovis Bailey of New York who outfought and outpoxed the stewer Warrington to win a 10-round split decision.

After it was all over Ace (Halifax Chronicle) Foley commented:

"For a fellow who hasn't fought for a long time . . . Warrington put up a pretty good fight . . . the Liverpool veteran took few chances and seldom attempted to fight back."

Before the bout it was predicted Warrington would again go into retirement if he lost. But the Tiger has announced he will fight again.

Two-ton Turtle

With the fishing season in full swing the tales of one that didn't get away have started to trickle in.

From the sports editor of the Weekly Windsor, N. S. Tribune comes this different one:

"The other day Fred Hake went fishing up the valley and pulled out what looked like a 10-ton gas carrier without the treads. It was a turtle. Fred put her in the trunk of his car and had to keep her in low all the way up the mountain hill. It's still was a big Fred was thinking about making it into a trailer. Fred . . . because quite attached to the turtle . . . At first it acted kind of sulky and wouldn't come out of its shell. Fred dangled an eight-cent chocolate bar in front of the main entrance and the bar disappeared faster than sold for five cents.

"The turtle went off his feed after a while and wouldn't even come out for a hamburger with ketchup on it. So Fred took him back where he came from. But he is still kind of worried.

"He looked so peaked," Fred declared, "I should have fattened him up before turning him loose again. He might get drowned."

(Foot-note): The turtle weighed 63 pounds.)

HORSEMEN WILL SPLIT DIFFERENCE WITH THE O.J.C.

Vote for $1,350 for Minimum Purses at Meeting to be Held May 17th

Toronto, May 6 — (CP) — By a vote of 210 to 13, members of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association last night voted to offer a concession to the Ontario Jockey Club in the long dispute over minimum purses which already has resulted in the cancellation of the Greenwood Racing Club's meet scheduled for the Woodbine Park here May 9-12.

The Horsemen long have been demanding minimum purses of $1,500 at the Toronto tracks, whereas the Ontario Jockey Club and its associated Greenwood Racing Club refused to raise the minimum above the 1,200 provided in the Dominion books printed some time ago.

On advice of the H.B.P.A. directors, the Horsemen's meeting decided to offer to the O.J.C. a compromise proposal of minimum purses of $1,350 thus splitting the difference between the present $1,200 and the demand of $1,500.

Directors of the O.J.C. will be officially notified of the decision today and are expected to meet Friday. No one in authority would venture a suggestion as to whether the compromise would be accepted by the track. If the track refuses, the horsemen will review all moves to enter horses at the O.J.C. meeting scheduled for Woodbine from May 24, with the exception of the King's Plate set for the latter date.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 6 — (CP) — The racing faithful should be able to pick out a winner at Belmont Park this week without worrying over mosquito bites. For if there are any mosquitoes left at the sprawling Belmont plant, a Saratoga Springs (N.Y.) DDT fogging service will blush furiously and defiantly stalk horses probably will turn purple . . . After a week of laying down a DDT screen, the fog machine sponsors assert the only "scratching" will be done on the entries . . . Shot out of the small machine under high pressure which results in the fog, DDT particles, said to be 1/64,000,000th of the size of a drop of water, float down and blow up into every nook and cranny. The results they make say, is a microscopic film deadly to mosquitoes and flies for weeks but harmless to man and beast.

In fact it is claimed, the horses can eat the grass thus treated and not come in any later than usual . . . to complete the job for crews sprayed 56 Belmont barns, 1,700 stalls; 22 cottages of owners, officials and jockeys; numerous storage buildings; manure pits; the grandstand; and 453 acres of Belmont land.

International Derby?

When Tudor Minstrel, winner of the two thousand guineas at Newmarket, England, goes to the post in the Epsom Derby June 7, he probably will be the shortest favorite since Flying Fox, started in the race in 1899 at odds of 2 to 5 . . . Impressed by the Minstrel's eight-length victory in the Guineas, Britons have knocked him down to 2 to 3 for the grueling 1½-mile classic . . . If he should come through and beat the King's Bibe Train, Tudor Minstrel could claim a place among the year's best three-year-olds of the world. Some owners, who favor international racing now that plane travel for horses has settled down to routine, would like to see the Epsom winner matched against the Kentucky Derby winner, Jet Pilot, for say — a $100,000 pot.

COMPROMISE IN FUNDS FOR BROADCASTS FOR RUSSIA

Washington, May 6 — (AP) — A compromise that would give the state department $10,000,000 for its "Voice of America" broadcasts to Russia and other European countries was in the wind today as reports were that an appropriation for that amount had been agreed on tentatively at a meeting between Congressional leaders. The House of Representatives Appropriation Committee previously had refused funds to continue the programs.

Rain Costing Club Owners Plenty Of Money in Young Baseball Season

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If it doesn't stop raining soon those deep furrows on the foreheads of the baseball magnates are liable to become permanent. This is time of the year when hope springs eternal with the fans.

Then the customers are ready and eager to beat a fast pace to the ball parks. They want to get a look at the newcomers and their old favorites and get a chance to root for club with a first division chance as that baseball estate most likely won't be too permanent especially when the loaded clubs begin to hit their strides.

Rains which washed out the entire New York Giants' series with Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs at the Polo Grounds has estimated to have cost the club around $150,000. It is figured that at least 120,000 fans, excited by the Giants sweep of the three-game set with the world champion St. Louis Cardinals would have witnessed the games. Also the initial National League New York-born appearance of Hank Greenberg at the Polo Grounds wearing a Pittsburgh uniform was expected to attract many persons.

The steady second division finishing Chicago White Sox, suddenly finding themselves enjoying the luxury of a first place outfit were hit hard by the postponement of the games at Comiskey Park. The loss of a Sunday date when the Chicago fans were highly excited over the team especially hit them right between their eyes. There aren't many who believe the Sox will remain up long with the elite and now is the time to, cash in on it.

In all there have been 46 postponements in 21 playing dates. There have been 27 washouts in the National League and 21 in the American.

The entire card was drowned out yesterday including the scheduled night game between the Cards and Braves at Boston.

Double Charges Against Juveniles As Against Adults

Toronto, May 5 — (CP) — Two juvenile gangs were rounded up by Toronto police during the weekend and stiffer than in charges laid — just double the charges against adults as headquarters reported a weekend free of major crime.

Eight boys ranging from 10 to 13 years of age were arrested and among the charges were 11 against each of the eight concerning the robbery of freight cars on an east siding.

A garage used by a gang of three juveniles as a hideout for stolen goods was discovered and police found a large quantity of articles varying from doctors' instruments to bicycle parts.

CHAPTER 8

Hill was no doubt very busy week ends with Drusilla Bayne and her crowd. If she telephoned him he could look as though she were trying to interfere with his life. Or he might misunderstand and think she was trying to get him back.

April wondered what Hill thought of her sudden career, and if he listened to her program. He might have sent her a little note of congratulation when she made her debut, April thought. It would have been a nice gesture.

She often wondered why Hill's wedding to Drusilla Bayne was so long delayed. She was sure Hill had got engaged to her on the spur of the moment the night she refused to go celebrating with him at the air port, and was little apalled when he came too and realized what he had done. April didn't believe Hill could care in the least for a woman of Dru Bayne's type. She was so blaze and unscrupulous and selfish and grasping. But she was very amusing socially, and gave wonderful parties and knew just her popularity.

There was little doubt in April's mind that her ex-husband would have a very difficult time getting away from Dru if she made up her mind she wasn't going to give him up. The fact that Dru was so little money would make absolutely no difference to the platinum blonde.

Dru had taken care of the little matter of finance with those bearded husbands who had been compelled to pay more than dearly for their few months of her hectic society. All three had enjoyed seeing themselves in the headlines, or they wouldn't have been quite so generous 'Blond Bombshell'.

The Hunter-Lorraine School of Music and Dancing was growing rapidly, although April was unable to give it much attention. Tony and Fanya Haven worked like beavers side by side with Gay, and it was beginning to look as though some day the school might make money. The ball room dancing department was growing very rapidly as Long Island couples who had admired Tany and Tony as a team on the stage joined to take lessons from them. It was all very encouraging to Gay and April who had staked their last dollar on its success.

One day in late November, April was hurrying down Fifth avenue doing her early Christmas shopping. She was wearing a new squirrel coat and a gay little lip stick red feather hat which was part of her new personal appearance wardrobe. Her cheeks were pink from the cold wind and she never looked better in life. It was fortunate she was looking gay and at her best.

For suddenly she looked up, and there, coming out of the Virginia Club was Hill. He stopped, getting his bearings swiftly and grinned:

"Aren't you Miss Lind, the radio star? Haven't I seen your picture in the paper?"

April felt as though her knees had turned to wax, but with a great effort she matched Hill's nonchalance.

"I am Miss Lind," she smiled giving him her hand to shake. "Your name please?"

"Thantatopsis Hamenburger Garbageovitch," Hill grinned. "Do you ever go some place and have a cocktail with a strange man, madame?"

"Oh, frequently," April's heart skipped a beat. "I'd trust you anywhere. You have such an open face."

"It's taken a lot of punishing around the chin lately." Hill smiled crookedly. "Maybe that's why it's open."

Hill wondered just what he meant: She thought better to ignore it, Hill took her arm lightly.

"Let's go back into the Virginia Club," he said. "It's very quiet today. It'll be like old times dashing in there for a cocktail. We'll find a corner to ourselves."

"That'll be grand," April felt a lump in her throat.

She followed him with her small feet taking long strides to keep up with his long legs. Hill was looking pale she decided, and thinner. As if her might be worrying a little. April didn't quite know whether to be glad or sorry that he didn't seem in the pink. Perhaps too much night life was catching up with him.

When Hill had seated her in a far corner of the cocktail lounge where they were entirely alone, and they had both ordered dry Martinis he said, looking at her closely:

"You're certainly appearing healthy, Miss Lind. Being a radio star seems to agree with you."

"You could go to bed," April smiled. "That always helps. You never could sleep very well standing up, no matter how hard you tried to keep from leaving a party."

"Don't kid me," Hill sounded a little impatient. "I've got indigestion, too."

"If you will eat too many eggs," April reminded him, still trying to put it all on a plane of light banter. "No doubt that's what makes you a trifle yellow around the gills. It always did."

"Okay," Hill grinned weakly, "I guess I am eating too much ham and eggs at that. It's because I run into any old place. That's the first thing a hungry man in a hurry thinks of."

April felt her maternal instinct welling up inside her but she downed it with a mighty effort. She almost found herself suggesting that he come out of Douglaston for one of Hyacinthe's dinners Sunday so that he would get at least one decent home cooked meal. But her better judgment told her that this might be a mistake. He would either misunderstand her motive, or he might start something.

"Aren't you going to inquire about your son?" April asked then when Hill stared silently at the table cloth.

He said without looking up, "Yeah, how is the little guy, behaving himself?"

"He's a very good boy most of the time," April picked up the cocktail the waiter had set before her, "And he's growing like a weed."

Hill raised his glass: "To your howling success, Miss Lind. Long may you star wave."

"Kenny has missed you, Dad!" April's voice caught. "You should see him oftener. But I suppose, you're pretty busy."

"I think you know why I stay away", Hill drained his drink hurriedly and motioned for the waiter to bring another round.

"No I don't understand how you can stay away from your child so long," April looked at him over her glass.

"Do you think it's easy," he avoided her pain reproachful eyes. "After all, I'm not altogether callous-ed, you know. Kenny belongs to you now. At least that's what the courts say. Seeing him and realizing I have nothing further to do with his life is a bit hard to swallow sometimes."

"Oh," April said blankly. Then: "But you're his father, Daddy. Nothing can change that. What has happened between us doesn't make him any the less yours."

Hill laughed shortly. "You should have heard our conversation the day Hyacinthe brought him out to the apartment," there was bitterness in his voice. "You wouldn't understand why I've made myself scarce. To have your son say 'you're not my Daddy any more. We deserved you!' How would you like that? Could you take it?"

April bit her lip. Tears that were very near the surface.

"I'm so sorry," her hand stretched out and covered his in a gesture of comfort. "So terribly sorry, Hill."

Suddenly Hill's manner changed and he said truculently: "You look all broken up! You're looking very prosperous though. I'll say that much for you."

April realized that her success had Hill bitter. He would have been much happier to have met her when she was having bad luck and looking like it. It would bolster his own ego.

She did not answer him, merely sipped her cocktail and tried to look grim, even if she was almost ill inside. It was much more difficult than she had realized it would be to sit opposite her one time beloved at a familiar table in the Virginia Club. There before her was the same dear face, and the same tall strong body that had been her world for so long. But no longer did it longed to her. There was even the same deep barlione voice that had always stirred her when she heard it. But they who had been so close were a million miles apart.

Suddenly Hill asked: "Well how's old Millionbucks? Still clipping dividend coupons and telling you thither and yon, I guess."

April straightened and gave him an indignant look.

"You couldn't be referring to Curt De Witt, could you?"

"The same. The stuffed shirt!" Hill's face relaxed into smiles uncertainly. "Why I t didn't know you two were that chummy! Has you were jealous of Mr. De Witt."

"You know damn well I am," Hill picked up the second Martini and gulped it down. "Why should'nt I be?"

"You've no right whatsoever to be," April said coolly. "I've been a very good friend. That's all."

Hill's jaw hardened. "Well you certainly had me fooled, lady. I'll have sworn on a stack of Bibles you didn't have anybody else in mind when you went to Reno to divorce me."

April eyed him stormily. "And why shouldn't you still believe I had never looked at anyone but you until I was free?"

Hill laughed shortly. "Now, darling, after all I was at the airport when yo ucame down the gangplank hanging on to the guy. You wouldn't get that friendly with just anybody, I'm sure. I'm certain we didn't number Curt De Witt among our old friends."

April gritted her little teeth to keep from screaming at the man who had been her husband. She had never been quick tempered, but Hill was bringing out the worst in her.

"Think exactly what you want to think," she said icily, her face growing pale. "It was a bit of a surprise to me to see your engagement to Drusilla Bayne announced a few hours after I came back to. It didn't take you long to find someone else either. But then you always were showing judgment and better taste than I have. After all, Curt De Wit is a perfect gentleman."

"I suppose Dru isn't a lady," Hill's face reddened.

"I only know," April shrugged maddeningly, "what I read in the papers."

Hill motioned to the waiter for a third Martini. Then he put his elbows on the table and surveyed April's lovely ensemble and said:

"Well, you certainly feathered your nest darling." It must be pretty swell for an ambitious unknown singer who has just brushed off a husband who is a failure to get a sponsor into with her divorce decree."

"I'm very fortunate to have landed a sponsored program out of a clear sky," April admitted honestly, "and knowing what Hill meant. "I'm just as surprised at my good fortune as you are. It was just one of those lucky breaks that come once in a life time."

Hill laughed shortly. "You don't have to put on that act for me, I know who owns a controlling interest in Grandmother's Lavender Soap, my pet."

April's eyes widened. "Who?" she asked blankly.

"Do you really want be to go through the motions of enlightening you?"

"Tell me," April said tensely.

"A stuffed shirt by the name of Curt De Wit." "Surprise, surprise!"

"That isn't so," she half rose from her chair. "You're just saying that to be funny."

Hill looked at her sharply. From the expression on her face he knew beyond a doubt that April had not known until that moment that Curt De Wit owned a controlling interest in the company that sponsored her broadcast.

He said, a little confused: "I'm not trying to be funny. It's the truth. De you mean to tell me you really didn't know?"

"On account of honour," April got up, feeling giddy with the shock of what she had just learned. "I still don't believe it."

Hill rose looking suddenly apologetic.

"You haven't been very nice to you darling, have I?" he asked conjicitely, "But I guess you understand why I'm sore. I've been hurt you. I'm sorry. But I'm so damn jealous of that guy De Wit I see red when I think about him."

They walked, toward the door and April fought for self control.

"I'll forgive you," she smiled crookedly at him, "if you forgive me. I'm thinking Dru ain't no lady. I guess neither of us are perfection." She held out her hand. "So long, Daddy, Daddy. Come to see your son whenever you feel like it. You're always welcome."

Tears blinded April's eyes as she went down the avenue to find her parked car. Before her broadcast she must go home and learn the truth from Gay. Was Curt really her sponsor? Had it all been a conspiracy?

Gay was surprised when April arrived at the apartment in time for dinner. She would have to rush right back to her nine o'clock broadcast.

Kenny was getting his bath, yelling gleefully and sailing his fleet of little boats in the tub. They were training him to take his own bath and get into his pajamas without help, starting him early on the road to independence. Kenny loved playing grown up and although it took him a long time to put his clothes on had mastered dressing even to buttons and tying his shoes.

Gay was surprised when April dis'got go into the bath room to see Kenny but called on her way to her room.

Heavy Showers Bring Further Delay in Seeding

(By The Canadian Press)

Heavy rain general over Ontario today, no let-up today, brought further delay to seeding operations which were already two weeks behind normal and saturday four weeks behind last year. The farming picture in Middlesex county was called "the worst in many years" and other rich farming districts were little better off. In Essex, Lambton and Middlesex, where many other farming areas of the province, water was standing in the fields, and low lying pastures and crops were flooded. It was pointed out that the last dry day was May 1, a day of good dry weather would be needed before farmers could get busy on the land.

Some feed shortages have been reported in parts of central Ontario although fall wheat, alfalfa and clover wintered in excellent condition.

The Day in Parliament

Today:

The Commons considers government estimates.

The Senate will sit.

Yesterday:

The Commons heard Resources Minister Glen and Finance Minister Ilsley say that Ontario would be eligible to bring their families to Canada from China; heard Hoover and Green (PC — Vancouver East) say Japanese Canadians (ie Canada) heard suggestion that the government table a full-time immigration minister; heard Fisheries Minister Sinclair say there is a shortage of Canadian and U.S. fishers led to the removal of Swedish embargo on canned lobsters; heard Labor Minister Mitchell say published suggestions that there had been Nazi sympathizers among Polish troops brought to Canada; heard Revenue Minister Ilsley say there is a recent increase in price of B.C. lumber was caused by the fact that there is a balance in lumber supplies.

The Senate did not sit.

Premier Terms Communism Godless Religion

Cornwall, May 6—(CP)—Premier Drew said last night that it was "essential in this country that we take a stand against the possibility of undesirable doctrines ever gaining power in Ontario and interfering with the rights of the province."

In an address to a public meeting sponsored by the Cornwall Board of Trade the Ontario Premier urged Canadians to study the British North American Act and the history associated with the federal system of government and to fight for democratic principles and combat the "fearful possibilities of the communistic doctrines."

Terming Communism a godless religion, he urged Canadians to become militant against it added: "What we need in this nation is a vigorous understanding of what the Communists are trying to do, and an equally vigorous assertion of what type of government we want.

"As far as Ontario is concerned, it is utterly impossible for a central government to deal with the province. It is impossible for any central government to deal with the individual citizens of any province. We in Ontario know this from experience for it is the only method left for us to maintain our administration. Hence the great province."

"This country needs the decentralized administration under the federal system of government and continued independence of the provincial taxation powers."

Rotarian Croll Tells How Guests Should be Met

Rotarian Harry Croll, one of those rare humans blessed with a delightful sense of humor, turned what at first thought to be a more or less dry piece of club philosophy, into a highly entertaining, humorous, yet thought-provoking twenty minutes of informative oratory at the Rotary luncheon on Monday.

Rotarian Croll, who is district supervisor for the Metropolitan Stores, spoke to the club on "How Rotarians Should Meet Their Guests." He likened the procedure to that of selling an item of merchandise; "a single sale." "Salesmanship," he said, "is composed of three parts; the approach, showing of values and the closing of the sale. These are the three essentials to the success of the negotiation." Service, he added, was something not worth anything but which has untold values.

It was amazing, he went on, to notice how service had changed within the past year. The saleslady never long ago, was told on to approach a customer until he or she had the article in hand. A chain story now urges sales by instructing their sales staff to ask the potential customer "May I wait on you, please?"

Service Deciding Factor

"Service," he said, "is the deciding factor in many communities where values are the same, merchandise the same. Years ago, the merchant greeted the customer at the door, called him by name and inquired about the family. That was success, the proper approach."

"Often the failure to show values and comparison means failure," Rotarian Croll said. "The value of a man has often been quoted as worth his weight in gold." The average man weighing 145 avoirdupois or 121 pounds troy has a value in gold of $78.- 500, or an income of $75 per week, if his weight is judged in gold.

The junk value of the same man is, he has enough water in him to make one batch of home brew; enough lime in whitewash one chicken coop; fat to make four bars of soap; iron to make one corkscrew; phosphorus to make 2,000 matches; potassium to fire a gun once, and enough sulphur to kill the fleas on the family dog. In other words the drugstore value of a man is exactly 98 cents.

Guests at Rotary and other service club luncheons fall into two categories, the speaker pointed out. The first is the guest of a member and the second a visiting Rotarian. The member will look after his own guest, but the visiting clubmen is the one the club members should take care of, and look after.

Clubs Too Cold

Some clubs are too cold. They have the tendency to form cliques; talk about their own business and forget all about the visiting clubman.

"We should make it a point to not only shake his hand but tell him about the club's activities for they are the values of the organization. His first visit to the club is all-important for it is then that he forms his impressions. We cannot be too nice to him. We should see that he meets as many members as possible."

He inquired about the family. That was success, the proper approach."

"In the closing of the sale make it a point to make him feel that we are glad to have him. Hold him a warm good bye and to extend a cordial return invitation. Then you will have a satisfied customer and an impressed guest. It is the duty of every member of the club to make all guests feel at home."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Grant Sperling with club thanks expressed by President Bert Howard.

White's of Bloomfield

White's—Mr. J. Megginson and Mrs. J. Brown were Wednesday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. A. McGee of Stirling.

Choir practice was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley on Friday evening.

The sale of Mr. William Linn of Bayside, was postponed from Friday afternoon to Monday afternoon due to inclement weather.

The sympathy of this community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis and family of White's Church and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Curtis and family, of Johnstown, in their loss of their mother, Mrs. Jonas Rourke and Mr. Rourke.

SIR ALBERT BUSSAU DIES

Adjudicator, Prof. Emrys M. Jones (left), head of the University of Saskatchewan drama department, discusses community theatre progress with Mrs. Arthur Brickenden of Simcoe, who directs the Simcoe Little Theatre's offering of Bro them in Arms, and Gwendolyn Blair, director of Blithe Spirit.

Britain Bound To Underwrite Sterling Losses

By SYDNEY GAMSELL

London, May 6 — (Reuters) — To defend Britain's balance of payments, the Labor government seems bound to adopt the device of taking or underwriting sterling losses in order to save or earn hard currencies.

This may affect Britain's trade with Canada and the Argentine, but it is likely to be of most interest to the United States.

A pointer is the recent decision to buy no more American aircraft for the main Empire routes, even though present British types are admittedly uncompetitive, and even though it will be at least three years before enough sufficient long-range British aircraft are available.

Politically, this is a simple case, since Washington cannot charge discrimination. Economically it is obscure, since it may well cost more dollars than it saves. Yet, it has been accepted as inevitable.

Future cases may be economically more simple, but politically obscure. For example, if Britain urgently needs American jeans, and if her sterling export costs are few per cent out of line, it is being argued in high Industrial quarters that it would be better for the government to take the five per cent sterling loss and get 95 per cent of the jeans instead of none of them.

On long-range contracts for capital goods the policy may be described as export insurance rather than export subsidy.

No industrialist can underwrite his long-range production costs against such possible government policies as the withdrawal of the food or steel subsidies. The only entity which can underwrite government policy is the government, and since the loss is contingent, rather than actual, the system might be operated as export insurance rather than export subsidy.

Anyway, something on these lines seems to be coming, particularly for business with Canada and Argentina. An opinion in London is that there simply is not enough gold in the world to balance the world's (and specifically Britain's) accounts with the United States on Washington's definitions of multilateralism and non-discrimination. But that with Canada and Argentina Britain can, must and will square her accounts.

The London weekly, the Economist, observes that a first-class dollar crisis "is absolutely certain next year," partly because, although today's "fantastic" prices of Britain's exports "can not possibly endure," the world-wide slump in the prices of primary products "which will be Britain's salvation," may not occur in time.

Motor Boat Racing Outlined By Lloyd Hicks

The Men's Club of Tabernacle United Church held their final meeting of the season in the newly decorated recreation room, the project they had undertaken, all members having the satisfaction, that it was a good job well done. A vote of thanks was extended to Capt. Buchanan, Don Stanton and all the members who were responsible for the completion of the room. After the splendid dinner which was served by Miss Ethel Horton's group of the W.A. Mr. Lloyd Hicks, past president of the club, gave a talk on motor boat racing in Canada, the regatta sponsored by the Rotary Club.

Ford Produced First Motor.

Henry Ford produced the first two cycle motor to drive a boat in the year 1890. From then up to the present time boats and motors have been improved to a speed of 90 miles an hour in the limited speed classes, with a speed of 124 miles an hour in unlimited classes, Gar Wood and Gar Malcolm Campbell owning the only two boats in the world in this class. These two men will race for the world's record on the Detroit River this summer and expect to attain a speed of 150 miles an hour.

All racing under the American Power Boat Association, which is divided into thirteen regions, Eastern Canada is No. 13, which include some of the fastest boats in the world, with 10 race meetings. Mac McClintch, president, was chairman at the meeting, and asked the members to bring in their new progressive ideas when the club opened up its fall and winter program.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Hicks by Rev. Mr. Harback for his very interesting address.

FATHER CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED MURDER

Passing Motorists Rescue Three From Blazing Home

Family Near Stirling Taken Out in Their Night Attire

Stirling, Ont. (Special) — Three people, one of them a crippled 25-year-old girl, were rescued from the blazing farm home of Fred Martin, four miles northwest of this village shortly after eleven o'clock Tuesday night, by the quick action of passing motorists.

Ray Sine and Stanley Royal, neighbors of the Martins, were returning home when they saw flames shooting out from the roof of the Martin home. They leaped from the car in which they were riding and rushed into the blazing building to waken Mrs. Elizabeth Cassidy, 50, of Springbrook, mother of Mrs. Martin; Miss Jessie Martin, an invalid, and Clifford Leure, cousin of the Martins, who resided with the family.

Royal and Sine assisted the elderly women and the girl from the house, bringing the latter to safety in a wheelchair. The trio was clad in night attire. There were no injuries.

Modern Frame Home

The house, a modern frame structure with brick veneer, part of Sine Post Office, on the fifth concession of Rawdon Township, was completely destroyed by the fire which is believed to have originated in the attic. The Martins were away at the time.

The Martin home had been entirely remodelled a short time ago and was completely equipped with modern conveniences. No other buildings were damaged by the flames.

Neighbors rushed to the scene of the blaze but due to the rapid headway made by the flames were unable to save the building. An organ, a radio and a quantity of maple syrup were salvaged from the lower floor of the house.

The loss is partly covered by insurance. Mr. Martin stated today he will rebuild immediately.

"Slasher" Murder Trial Continues In Windsor Court

Windsor, May 7 — (CP)—Trial of 19-year-old Ronald George Sears on a charge of attempted murder in the butcher-knife stabbing of Joseph Gelencser, 50, continued today with the possibility of an early ruling on the admissibility of statements police said were made by the youth.

Yesterday, as the trial started, Gelencser pointed to Sears and identified him as the "stranger" who walked with him in a riverfront park area the night of last July 5, made certain proposals and stabbed him in the back.

But Lloyd Lauzon, a taxi driver who took Gelencser to hospital after the attack, quoted the wounded man as saying he did not see his assailant.

The Ontario Supreme Court jury, excluded yesterday when Crown and defence counsel started argument concerning the police statements, was to be recalled today at 2 p.m.

It was on the basis of Sears' alleged statements that the Ontario Appeal Court last month quashed his conviction on a charge of slaying Sgt. Hugh Blackwood Price. Sears had been sentenced to be hanged.

The youth, who was molested by a pervert when nine years old, is alleged to be the "slasher" who also killed another man and wounded three, including Gelencser. The Crown charges that Sears attacked each with knife and pervertia.

Lauzon said in cross-examination yesterday that Gelencser, while being taken to hospital, gave no sign he was wounded.

"He said he was walking by a bush and all of a sudden he got a blow on the arm—he's not his assailant, and the next thing he knew he had a knife in his back."

Tourists Cutting Into Fish Supply Says Speaker

Toronto, May 7 — (CP)—Needs for an extensive conservation program to protect Ontario waters from the ravages of anglers was voiced by C. Aubrey Walkinshaw, former president of the Toronto Anglers' and Hunters' Association in an address here yesterday. He claimed that the influx of American tourists during open fishing season was dwindling game fish supplies.

Ontario must stand much more fishing than it is at present getting when United States and resident anglers, Mr. Walkinshaw told the Toronto Kiwanis Club.

"Mass and muskellunge fishing" he said, "had already shown declines and we would have to be a definite program of propagation and conservation if sport fishing was to continue."

"There are 85,000 private aircraft in the United States and 100,000 persons learning to fly," he said. "The area from Jamaa Bay to Nipigon is already crowded with Americans who come into that territory by air."

Neighboring states such as Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ohio were spending enormous sums on wildlife conservation, Quebec had a five-year plan, and similar action was contemplated in Ontario, he declared.

In addition, Quebec and some of the western provinces had done an excellent job in teaching their residents the value of handicraft articles for sale to the tourist trade. He added there should be a rational balance between the things we have for sale and those taken out of the country," if the fish and wildlife resources of this province were to be maintained.

Oil Slick and Clothing May Be Clues to Plane

Undetermined Contact Has Been Made With Anti-Sub Equipment In Gulf of Georgia

Vancouver, May 7 —(CP)—Searchers seeking the missing Trans-Canada Airlines transport which disappeared with 25 persons aboard nine days ago, reported today finding items of clothing and an oil slick in the waters of the Gulf of Georgia close to where an "undetermined contact" had been made with anti-submarine detection equipment.

The frigate H.M.C.S. Antigonish made the "contact" after a wide sweep in the gulf off the southeast coast of Gabriola Island.

Preparations for diving operations were underway, but it was likely work would be possible before noon, when the tide is slack, because of rocks on the bottom and the strong currents close to shore.

The Antigonish left a floating buoy to mark the "contact" spot and today diving tender No. 1 and the big ocean-going tug Hendrickson took over the hunt.

Before actual diving operations start, the Hearthertun must complete soundings. Deep-sounding equipment will be used to determine the depth of contact.

Willie Francis To Die Friday

New Orleans, May 7 (AP)— The Louisiana Supreme Court refused to overturn the second attempt to electrocute Willie Francis, and the lawyer said he would make no further attempt to save the life of the seventeen-year-old Negro, scheduled to die Friday.

Francis escaped death May 2, 1946, when the state's portable electric chair failed to function after the switch was thrown. Both the Louisiana and United States Supreme Courts previously refused to prevent a second attempt to electrocute him, which Francis claimed would be "cruel and unusual punishment."

CHEW WALKS 150 MILES TO FILE DAMAGE CLAIMS

Manila, May 7 — (AP)—Simbag Simsamag, chief of an Ilocano tribe, came out of the jungle today and filed a $500 war damage claim. Simsamag said he had been walking in three days the 150 miles from his home in mountainous northeast of Manila. He made his claim for a carabao, a type of water buffalo, and for a house he said American soldiers burned during the fighting.

Armenian Faith Healer Imported To Cure Son of Calif. Millionaire

By RALPH DIGHTON

Palm Springs, Calif., May 7 — (AP)—A millionaire oilman's pet latrial home became the scene today of an attempt by Tibetan Hagiolan, bearded young Armenian faith healer, to cure the wine problem of his wealthy son.

The estate of the father, Kirkor Arakelian, is a sprawling affair and an who came to California and turned grapes into figs, dates and prunes, at $25,000,000, is known as "dream of the desert."

There his son, Vaughn Arekelian, 37, ill with epilepsy and related ailments since he was struck by a bus as a boy of nine, lies unaware of the Tibetan-Armenian's arrival. Of Arakel, 20-year-old uneducated mechanic who reputedly has effected miraculous cures by prayer alone.

Arak arrived in Los Angeles yesterday after a 10,000-mile plane hop from Cairo, financed by the elder Arakelian who said he has spent $250,000 in unsuccessful efforts to heal his son.

Another son, Diran Arakelian, 45, said that if Arak can cure Vaughn "my father probably will build a memorial in the form of a faith healing center, open to the people of the world."

The lanky first read of Arak a year ago and sent a London agent in Iran to investigate. Hagiolan sent for Arak after being satisfied about the validity of his cures, Diran said.

"I have seen other cases similar to his, many cases undoubtedly worse, and I am sure I can help him," Arak said on his arrival.

The Armenian, with piercing black eyes, long hair and a silky beard, was wearing a hood and a cape fastened at the throat with two large silver engraved pins. He was also wearing blue serge trousers and a pair of loafer shoes.

Spokesman of Arak's party, Col. Sumbat Yeghiazarian, Iranian army officer and a doctor of medicine, declared that many cures in Iran.

"I examined the patients before and after the treatment" said the colonel. "All he does is touch the patient, then he says a prayer in his behalf and asks the patient to think and believe in the prayer as spoken. As a medical man I will think that these cures." They are authentic. Whatever he is doing is through the inspiration of God."

Ottawa Citizens Angered Over 'Olympic Incident', Barbara May Return Car

Montreal, May 7 (CP)—Barbara Ann Scott may be able to keep her sleek maroon-colored convertible automobile given her by her native city of Ottawa after she won the world figure skating championship, but a statement last night by Avery Brundage, president of the United States Olympic Games Committee, only added to the general confusion.

Brundage, the man who started it all, said in San Francisco, California, that there might be "extenuating circumstances" which would clear Barbara Ann of violating amateur rules in accepting the car as a gift from the city. But he didn't make clear whether it was right for her to keep the car, or whether her announced intention of returning the car to the donors would allow her to retain her amateur status.

The part that puzzled most people was that first Barbara Ann was told by amateur authorities when the car was presented on her return from Stockholm that she could not accept the gift and now Brundage fails to explain if she would be allowed to keep the car or just be allowed to compete in the Olympic games because the car was returned.

Said Brundage: "My personal opinion would be that if the girl accepted the car after being told that it would be all right—she have heard all that was given this advice by 'a competent authority'—such an extenuating circumstance might clear up the matter."

NO INTERFERENCE BY RUSSIA IN SUDAN DISPUTE

Stalin Tells Bevin Russia Appreciates British Position in Middle East

London, May 7 (AP)—A government source said today that Prime Minister Joseph Stalin assured Foreign Secretary Bevin that Russia would remain neutral in Britain's dispute with Egypt over revision of the British-Egyptian treaty and the future status of the Sudan.

Egypt has announced that she will ask the United Nations Organization of the treaty question, which she claims is purely internal affair of Egypt's complaint against British.

Stalin, the informant said, "appeared appreciative" of the value of Britain's position in the Middle East as a base.

The source said Stalin declared that he did not consider Britain's interests in those areas to be in conflict with Russia's interests.

In reply to a question the informant said there was no suggestion that either Stalin or Bevin defined for each other "spheres of influence" in their countries in the Middle East.

He added that a "shift of emphasis" was developing in Britain's attitude toward some easing in European countries, especially toward Poland. This shift was reflected in the case of Poland in the British government's decision to sign a long-term month-old financial agreement with that country.

The decision came after Bevin returned from Warsaw "fairly optimistic" that Poland was desirous to develop better political relations with the west. Bevin, the informant said, seemed to be satisfied that Poland was gradually doing many of what he called its "less democratic aspects" of government.

He said Bevin also received an assurance from the Polish government in Warsaw that Polish soldiers in Britain who chose to return home would get jobs and that they would not be victimized. As a result Bevin was reported anxious that as many Polish soldiers as possible should leave Britain for their homeland.

PREMIER DREW WANTS RENEWAL OF CONFERENCE

Claims "Secret" Diplomacy With Other Provinces to Effect Tax Agreement

Ottawa, May 7 — (CP)—From Premier Drew of Ontario, the Dominion government has had evidence today that he wanted a renewal of open Dominion-Provincial conference on taxation rather than the present method of "secret diplomacy" with the provinces.

Premier Drew, Ontario's door wide open for more tax agreement negotiations, told the Ontario Progressive Conservative dinner here last night that the Federal government was "guilty of practicing political treachery by secret deals and secret pacts behind closed doors."

At the same time, he denied specifically reports that Ontario and Ottawa have been negotiating at below-cabinet level for a renewal of discussions. This came after a Montreal newspaper had a similar denial from Premier Duplessis of Quebec on behalf of his province.

Took Sideswipe at CBC

Mr. Drew, speaking to the Ontario Young Progressive Conservatives, devoted almost all of his address to a hot attack on the Federal government's methods of negotiating tax agreements, which he described as "a unitary system of Federal structure and a possible dictatorship and a unitary system of government."

He assaulted, too, what he termed "the attempt" by Cabinet members against the original control of the British North America Act. And in passing he took a sideswipe at the CBC as a "propaganda" agency for the Dominion government.

The Premier accepted the government with "seeking by force and by pressure" any key to political blackmail" to move in on provincial fields of taxation "permanently."

He declared his government would not sign a temporary agreement with the Dominion which did not assure that any subsequent permanent agreements would be acceptable to the peoples of all provinces.

Ontario would not be satisfied with "pious verbal assurances" that the Dominion was not trying to establish permanently a system of provincial subsidies.

NON-CONFIDENCE MOTIONS MADE IN BUDGET DEBATE

Opposition Claims Not Enough Relief Given From Indirect And Nuisance Taxes

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 7 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott's week-old budget which forecast 29 per cent cuts for nine out of ten income taxpayers drew criticism from opposition party spokesmen in the commons today mainly because of its failure to provide relief for the 2,000,000 or more Canadians who do not earn enough to pay income taxes.

Firing the opening guns in the annual budget speech debate, spokesmen for the three main opposition parties expressed their views on what should have been done, and two of them — the Progressive Conservative and the CCF—moved non-confidence amendments with motions of non-confidence in the government.

The lack of relief from indirect "hidden and nuisance" taxes was the main target for the spokesmen — J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative financial critic and member for Muskoka-Ontario, M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader.

Mr. Macdonnell speaking heatedly because of a throat ailment which kept him in bed until a few hours before he began concluded with a non-confidence motion which contended in part that the budget offered "no relief from the oppressive burden of indirect taxation" and "no sustaple necessities that compose the family."

Increased Cost-of-Living

All these taxes, he said, directly increased the cost-of-living.

His motion also criticized the government's failure to call to-gether the Dominion-Provincial conference and for failure to give encouragement to those engaged in the development of natural resources" especially mining and agriculture.

He was fined $50,000.

Three in Family Of Toronto Man Found Wounded

R. S. Easson, Businessman, Gives No Reason For Action

Toronto, May 7 —(CP)— Arrested early today with a smoking 45-calibre revolver in his hand, Robert S. Easson, 53-year-old Toronto businessman, was charged with attempted murder after his wife, son and daughter were found wounded by gunshots in their home on Yarborough Avenue in northwest Toronto.

He was remanded a week when he appeared in magistrates' court. Police quoted him as saying: "I have a reason but I don't intend to put it down on paper."

Police said Easson, owner of a string of Toronto clothing stores, had been in ill-health for several weeks and under doctor's care.

Abdominal Wounds

Mrs. Easson, 55, and the son, 30-year-old Gordon, are in serious condition with abdominal wounds. The daughter, 25-year-old Mabel, suffered an elbow wound.

Police said that Corporal William Nichol, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer lives next door to the Eassons, was awakened by the shots and, after two daughters, both unharmed, ran from the house.

When he entered he found Easson holding a revolver. The police account said Easson appeared dazed, offered no explanation and submitted quietly to the corporal: "I guess I went haywire."

Emergency operations were performed in an effort to save the lives of the mother and son. Police said the wounds were so severe little hope was held for their recovery.

Neighbors Shocked

Neighbors said they were shocked by the affair. They described Easson as a homebody man with a deep affection for his family. He was kind, and gentle and generally popular, they said.

"It was the finest person you could know," one neighbor said.

Lorraine Easson, 20, one of the two daughters who ran to safety, told police she arrived home shortly after midnight and had something to eat in the kitchen. Then she was asleep in her ground-floor bedroom and the first she knew of her family were upstairs.

About 1:30 a.m. the sound of a shot awakened her. Her sister, Louise, 18, also awoke. The girls called to their elder sister, but she was missing. As Louise and Lorraine left their bedroom to investigate, their father entered the bedroom.

Easson asked the girls to turn on the light. As Lorraine reached for the switch she noticed her father had a gun in his hand.

Almost simultaneously, the father fired a shot through the floor just inside the bedroom doorway.

From the bottom of the stairs, Gordon Easson called to Lorraine and Louise to run. They raced down the stairs and found Gordon and his father lying on the floor. Police said Mrs. Easson told Louise and Lorraine to hide and they ran through the kitchen to the back porch where they remained until Cpl. Nichol appeared.

Railway Expects Greater Flow Of Western Grain

By JOHN LESLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 7 — (CP) — A greater volume of western grain will move to market over the Canadian National Railways lines this year than the railway was able to handle last year.

That prospect was indicated to the House of Transport Commissioners yesterday by Stanley F. Dingle, C.N.R. chief of transportation, as he testified in the railways' application for higher freight rates.

Though he declared the C.N.R.'s equipment shortage was still acute and likely would continue through this year, Mr. Dingle agreed with a suggestion by Saskatchewan counsel M. A. Macdonnell that it would be able to handle more than last year's 158,-431,000 bushels of western grain.

The railway official had declared earlier the company still was unable to provide enough freight cars to meet the potential flow of grain from the prairie fields.

Mr. Dingle also told the Board it was likely the C.N.R. would have 15 per cent more locomotives this year because of its shortage of rolling stock for freight.

The railway company had handled a record of 1,911,229 cars and the available traffic this year would be even heavier, but Mr. Dingle said he did not think the car would be able to handle all the business offering.

TWO TRAINMEN KILLED

Bristol, N. B., May 7 — (CP)— Two trainmen met death yesterday as a result of derailment of the Canadian Pacific Railway freight train one mile north of the C.P.R. station in Bristol, Carleton county village.

The dead: Vinal Thornton, 55, of Woodstock, engineer, and Robert Ketch, 22, Aroostock Junction, fireman.

Engineer Guy S. Downey, 57, Woodstock, suffered a fractured ankle, leg injuries and possible rib fractures. He was admitted to hospital at nearby Bath, where doctors reported his condition as fav-

New U.S. Fleet Will be Designed For Attacking Cities and Land Bases

By ROBERT M. FARRINGTON

Washington, May 7 (AP)—The Navy Department is slowly unfolding the blueprints for a basically new fleet, designed for attacking cities and land bases rather than fighting other ships.

What the fleet will look like some months from now remains to be seen. The best information available to us now points to something like the following:

Instead of the battleship, a huge, fast, heavily armored missile ship that can take a pounding from long powerful attacks on cities and industrial centres hundreds of miles from the coast the Navy is currently converting two big ships to fire guided missiles.

Instead of a cruising ship firing a barrage of big rockets in bombardment of land areas.

Instead of the carrier, a fast big aircraft carrier to launch aircraft to destroy enemy missiles aimed at the United States and to launch planes that may be employed as a "coastal defence" several hundred miles off home shores.

Instead of the destroyer, "an attack-killer" class which would have high speed, automatic-firing guns, and plenty of anti-submarine equipment.

The navy may become specialized for cargo carrying, scouting, attack, ice patrol and stem-weapon launching.

The Navy is experimenting with proposed conversion of existing submarines to cargo and troop carriers and to Arctic jobs.

The Senate yesterday completed a comprehensive study of the Navy to spend $30,000,000 of its funds on two experimental submarines.

Meanwhile, W. John Kenney, assistant secretary of the Navy reported the planning of radical changes in warship design and power. "The future ship may have few exposed personnel and instruments. It is quite possible that no man will be in sight at battle stations during action."

Kenney said that the types will incorporate lessons of the atomic bomb test at Bikini and missiles.

Instead of a Navy Department official said the "limited" expedition to the Arctic Ocean, Canadian-American weather reporting station near the magnetic pole.

It was recalled that reconstruction Minister Drew announced in the House of Commons in Ottawa last March that the Dominion plans to establish nine new weather stations in the Arctic within the next three years. The Canadian minister said at the time that the United States would assist in establishing the stations.

PRESENCE OF MIND SAVES COMPANION

Presence of mind of a fellow worker probably saved the life of Clifford Channell, Wellington trucker, the other day.

Channell was attempting to engage a heavy trailer to its tractor, when the latter went out of control and quickly backed up on the unsuspecting Channell. The unidentified friend quickly leaped to the tractor and twisted the steering gear. Channell's clothes were torn by the fender between the two vehicles. The garments had to be cut away before he was released from his precarious position.

P.U.C. Passes Resolution On Gas Plant Issue

"The Belleville Public Utilities Commission is prepared, to comply with the request of the City Council as required to the closing of the Gas Plant as of December 31st, 1947 but would express the opinion that one of the measures that should be taken is the submission of the question to the ratepayers at a time and place to be decided by council and that the ratepayers be given a vote if they are willing to authorize the Commission to dispose of the gas properties as they may see fit." This was a resolution passed by the Commission at their regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon and will be sent in to the council for their consideration.

The Purdy East sewer was also discussed and the manager O. H. Scott was authorized to inform the council of the Commission's position in this matter. A letter was received from the Ontario Hydro Power Commission approving the new street lighting system for the business streets of the city at a cost of $97,300.

Due to Backward Weather Only 10 Per Cent of Seeding Completed in Hastings County

At a time when normally the vast bulk of the spring seeding would be completed, because of cold and wet weather only from five to ten per cent of the seeding is yet done in Hastings County according to A. Gerow, Representative A. O. Dalrymple of Stirling.

Only a very few farmers have thus far been able to get much sowing done and this only where there is light land or where the fields are high and rolling.

"Some farmers have done a fair amount of seeding," stated Mr. Dalrymple, "but considering the entire county less than ten per cent is completed."

Although it was admitted that a great deal depended upon the type of land, the agricultural representative believes that low lying ground is now so soaked with water that it will be too late for the sowing of oats, even granting that good weather follows. The season was also getting late for the sowing of barley, although there is still ample time for buckwheat.

In view of the backward year Mr. Dalrymple believes that farmers might go in for hybrid corn. There is a slight variety of hybrid corn more feed per acre could be grown than either with barley or oats.

Despite the backwardness of the season there is still an acute shortage of farm labor with very few persons willing to go into agriculture. Employment service manager D. Melville at the present time has 27 applications for farm help but little prospect of filling any of them from available labor supplies.

Polish veterans are popular with Hastings county farmers and Employment Manager E. H. Reed stated he could place 25 such veterans immediately, although approximately 1,100 additional Polish veterans are expected to come to Canada it is not thought that any will arrive before the end of May.

M.B. Dulmage, Former Newspaperman Of Belleville, Dies in Owen Sound

Marcus B. Dulmage, associate editor of the Owen Sound Sun-Times, and a former well-known Belleville boy, died quite suddenly in hospital in Owen Sound last night. He was in failing health for several months and was 72 years of age.

To many old friends in this city and district the announcement of the death of Mr. Dulmage will bring much regret. Although born in Ameliasburg township, Prince Edward County of U. E. L. stock, he came at an early age with his parents to reside here and he was always considered "an old Belleville boy." In his younger days he was attracted to the printing trade and entered the employ of the Daily Intelligencer, which was conducted at that time by the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell. He possessed aptitude for the work and made rapid progress in the technical knowledge of the trade. Eventually he sought a larger field of endeavor and worked on newspapers in New York and Michigan. In 1908 he became composing room foreman of the Guelph Herald and in 1912 he became a member of the editorial staff of that paper. Twenty-three years ago he accepted a position on the editorial staff of the Owen Sound Sun-Times and filled with ability the position of associate editor up to the time of his death. He was a good newspaper man and was widely known in newspaper circles throughout the province.

Mark Dulmage was an enthusiastic sportsman and was especially interested in baseball. In his early days in Belleville he attended the game and he was one of the main movers in the forming of the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association of which he was secretary for a number of years. As he advanced in age his interest in the game did not wane and while living in Guelph and later in Owen Sound he was an enthusiastic leader in baseball and other sport activities. Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order while in Guelph and in later years had been particularly active in the Eastern Star of Owen Sound.

For many years he was a member of the Library Board of Owen Sound and served as chairman for a time.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Helen Mitchell of Guelph; three sons, Elmer Dulmage, now engaged in newspaper work in New York City; George Dulmage, City Editor of the Peterboro Examiner, and Allan Dulmage, Night Sports Editor of the Windsor Daily Star.

The funeral takes place in Owen Sound on Thursday where interment will take place.

Overseas Wheat Export off 20 P.C.

Winnipeg, May 7 (CP)—Overseas wheat exports fell from the 3,500,000-bushel level of two weeks ago to 2,800,000 bushels last week, the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada reported today.

Cumulative overseas wheat clearances for the present crop season, are 125,200,000 bushels lighter than shipments during the comparative 1945-46 period, the commissioners' report added.

Current ocean grain shipments, however, exceed those of the last crop by fairly substantial amounts for oats, barley and rye.

Primary farm marketings, meanwhile, almost double returns of the previous week, totalling 4,500,000 bushels. Farm deliveries for the season now top the 271,000,000-bushel mark, compared to 206,000,000 bushels during the comparative period a year ago.

Total wheat shipments from the Lakehead to eastern points last week rose from 4,100,000 bushels to 6,100,000 bushels. Substantial gains were also recorded for oats and barley.

Four millions bushels of wheat were unloaded at Lakehead terminals last week for a substantial increase.

Speaker Stresses Importance Of South American Market For Canadian Holstein Cattle

The importance of the South American market for Canadian Holstein cattle was stressed before members of the Prince Edward County Holstein Breeders' Association at their annual banquet by Harry Hayes of Hayes Ltd., Holstein breeders.

Argentina cattlemen were interested in Canadian Holsteins for one reason, only. Their Argentina cattle have better necks, backs and hips but they want better udders and easier milkers. "Other countries are copying our standards. Possibly in winter we have to feed our herds more but they would never accomplish the purpose in Ontario as well as he was Premier.

He also told the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club that a Communist-promoted Federation of Labor Youth had stirred up the juvenile protests against the price increase in chocolate bars to 8 cents.

Premier Drew urged study by all Canadians of the purpose of communism and of organizations such as the Federation for Reconciliation, the Women's League for Peace and Democracy and "others with vague names" which took advantage of well-meaning people anxious to aid a worthy cause but to their failing into the Communist pattern.

Urging a dynamic democracy, he upheld cadet training as a method for inculcating a basic sense of responsibility as citizenship. Its purpose, it got away "from this mawkish nonsense" which would say that youth should be allowed to follow its own bent without being taught the advantages of the Canadian heritage.

Russia Most Aggressive

He contended that Russia was the most aggressive-minded nation in the world, and urged an understanding of the Communist Party's purpose, namely to foment armed revolution for the establishment of a Soviet state.

He assailed "wholly-minded people such as Henry Wallace and his counterparts in Canada" who generally with all good intentions, played the communist role, often without knowing they were doing so.

"Have you ever seen a more fantastic piece of nonsense," he asked, "than Wallace's recent statements in England?"

Wallace had alleged that Churchill was working for war with Russia. If it had not been for Churchill in the German war "Henry Wallace would not be free to move around and talk this nonsense today."

He said Churchill who had warned against German aggression before the last war. Canada should recall those warnings and her own convictions that she would never again help a dictatorship prosper or win.

The democracies were standing ready and in their readiness they were pro-Russian. If they had stood firm once, the German people might have freed themselves from nazism, If they stood firm now, there rested in them the "one hope the Russian people have of freedom," of throwing off their Communist dictatorship.

Drew Declares Anti-Cadet Move Is Communist

Ottawa, May 7 (CP)—Premier Drew charged yesterday that Communist activities were behind efforts to abolish cadet training and asserted that they would never accomplish the purpose in Ontario as long as he was Premier.

He also told the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club that a Communist-promoted Federation of Labor Youth had stirred up the juvenile protests against the price increase in chocolate bars to 8 cents.

Premier Drew urged study by all Canadians of the purpose of communism and of organizations such as the Federation for Reconciliation, the Women's League for Peace and Democracy and "others with vague names" which took advantage of well-meaning people anxious to aid a worthy cause but to their failing into the Communist pattern.

Decisions Will Be Announced In Two Weeks

New Delhi, May 7 (CP)—Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Indian Moslem League, today forecast that decisions concerning the whole of India were should adopt."

likely to be announced in a few weeks, as it was reported that another attempt would be made to get Indian parties to talk over their differences.

"I pray God that during the few weeks now ahead of us pending the final announcement, both sides will do their best to save the people from the destruction of life and property," Jinnah added.

"When the final announcement is made we shall be free to do so."

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, vice-president of the Indian Interim Government was to leave tonight for Simla, where he will be the guest of the Viceroy, Viscount Mountbatten.

News of the impending departure coincided with a report that the Viceroy was planning new round-table talks with Congress Moslem and Sikh leaders, to break the political deadlock as India heads for independence.

As the result of a conference last night between Jinnah and Mohandas K. Gandhi, their first since 1944, the two were agreed to do their best in their respective spheres to maintain peace between the Hindu and Moslem communities.

The two failed, however, to reconcile their political views—Jinnah standing fast for the establishment of an independent Moslem state of Pakistan, while Gandhi, who is a powerful influence in the predominantly Hindu Congress Party, remained insistent on a United India.

Barbara Ann Says She Would be Glad To Keep Her Car

London, Ont., May 7—(CP) —With a roguish smile that belied my "peeve" Barbara Ann Scott said here today that she would be "glad" to keep the sports auto she received from her admirers city of Ottawa after winning the world's figure skating title — if it is all right with the Canadian Olympic Committee.

Commenting on the latest statement of United States Olympic Games president Avery Brundage to the effect that there might be "extenuating circumstances" which would allow her to retain the car without violating Olympic rules, she told The Canadian Press:

"I would like to understand, it is only the Olympic body that is contesting my amateur status. I believe that I could keep the car and compete again in the world championships (not the Olympics) but I would not want to do that unless all the circumstances were cleared up."

"I would like," said Barbara Ann, "to represent Canada in the Olympic Games if they want me on the team, so I will accept their final decision."

Wm. Underwood Demonstrates Self Defence Methods

William Underwood, who has been in the city for some time holding classes on self defence with members of the police, fire and other departments, gave a demonstration before members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly meeting at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday. It was apparent that none of the members wished to strut their stuff after watching the way Mr. Underwood took care of his pupils without taking off his glasses.

How well he instructs his pupils was exemplified when a young girl weighing not more than 107 pounds, handled both Mr. Underwood and his assistant with ease and only after taking one course of lectures. The members sat starry-eyed as Mr. Underwood demonstrated the various holds that can be applied to the toughest thug and bring him under control in the matter of seconds. He has been doing this work for some years and has taught Provincial Mounted Police and also the Rangers of the United States. His method is the use of the Chinese Tactics used in the Second War along with other deviations of his own makeup. The demonstration was instructive and interesting and it is understood some of the members are going to take a course from Mr. Underwood. Leaves town.

The speaker was introduced by Len Dandeno and Angus Duffy expressed the appreciation of the club. Ted Schwab, vice president of the club, presided at the luncheon due to President Jack White being unable to take plainly having a number of teeth extracted. Vic White led the community singing. Geo. Barnes and his house committee passed out book marks with Kiwanis crests to those who have had birthdays since the first of the year and these presentations will continue when other birthdays of the members roll around.

Flyer Says He Can Plant Wheat Field Within Inches From the Air

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 7 (CP)—Squadron Ldr. James Nelson, D.F.C. who was born in Colorado and remembers his uncle's prairie farm near Winnipeg, says he now can plant a field of wheat from the air and "place the seed within inches if the wind is less than 30 miles an hour."

Nelson piloted a two-engine Miles Aerovan plane which flew over the sugar fields of F. W. Tomkins, Apsthorpe, Northamptonshire, in April and sowed 90 acres of wheat and oats on land too wet for ordinary machinery to work.

Tompkins and agriculture ministry observers were satisfied with the way the seed appeared to take.

to land but further checks will be made to see the results when sprouts shoot up.

Nelson told the Canadian Press that he was "completely sold" on air-seeding. He did not think 2 pounds had been wasted.

"It's easy for the pilot, for we have developed our equipment to the point where you are not flying near stalling speed, which would be uncomfortable when you are just over the treetops," said Nelson.

"The provincial figures we have indicated from the air was about 10 to 20 per cent more expensive than when normal methods are used. I see no need why a plane on the Prairies of Canada or the United States would be a place

"I've Struck the Balance Between NOW ... and THEN"

"Future income for the family! . . . That was my big worry, until the London Life representative helped me to strike a balance between today's needs and tomorrow's.

"How did we do it?

"First, we figured out the income my wife and children would need if anything happened to me. Then we decided what my present assets should earn if invested in sound securities. The difference determined the amount of additional insurance I had to buy. It's a great relief to have no worry about the family's future—and there's enough insurance to care for me too, if I live to retire."

The London Life has arranged life insurance estates for more than three-quarters of a million Canadians. The benefit of this experience can be yours by having a London Life representative get in touch with you.

What Tourist Industry Means

Tourist week is being observed in Canada with the double object of focusing the attention of the public on the value and importance of the visitor industry of the dominion and also of impressing upon all Canadians, particularly those engaged in catering to them, how important it is to offer the best possible service and accommodation to the travelling public.

The visitor is very grateful for the service rendered him and officials quite warm-hearted letters to those who have helped to make his visit pleasant. That is natural, for when on an outing men and women throw off many of the cares which infest their lives and are responsive to the kindnesses which they receive.

Last year the tourist industry was worth about $212,000,000 to Canada and the outlook is bright. A large number of visitors leaving even more wealth in Canada.

Expansion of tourist accommodation and improvement in the qualities of the facilities offered the country's guests are emphasized in the official Information Bulletin of the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity says in support of this that "improved sleeping quarters, better sanitation and better food in general are needed in all resort areas. Canada's travel industry can be greatly expanded in the years to come but we must provide the high quality of accommodation and catering for which our visitors are willing to pay."

That American visitors are appreciative of the courtesies and treatment shown them known by everyone. There is proof in a letter which a tourist says that when travelling in Canada "he is overwhelmed by courtesy and as long as Canadians keep it up American cars will cross the border in droves."

The season is drawing near when touring visitors will be found in every part of Canada on their annual vacation. They are ideal advertisers of Canada's beauty and other attractions and of the hospitality they experience when on their annual holiday trek. This Continent is fortunate that there is so vast an area between two oceans and from the Gulf of Mexico almost to the frigid north where visitors can go. The people know this and therefore they travel, taking in on their jaunt as many as possible of the points of appeal of the country.

R.A.F. Starts Work on War History

The United Kingdom Air Ministry in London recently announced that, owing to the fact that it will be some years before the full official history of the war is published, arrangements have been made for a preliminary history of the war in the air, 1939-45, to be written under the joint authorship of Denis Richards and Hilary St. George Saunders. (Mr. Saunders was the anonymous author of such war-time official best-sellers as "Battle of Britain" and "Combined Operations" and is the co-author of the well-known Francis Beeding Spy stories.

The aim is to produce a work which will combine accuracy and impartiality with wide appeal. As will be realized, official records in themselves, however complete (and there is a first-class collection) are inevitably lacking in the "human atmosphere" — qualities which it is very important to recapture if the history is to be more than a purely academic study. The Air Ministry therefore hopes to supplement its official records by collecting first-hand stories and accounts of conditions and operations from those who served in the Royal Air Force during the war.

Any officer, non-commissioned officer or other rank, of whatever nationality, who served with or was attached to the Royal Air Force during the period of hostilities is invited to write to the Air Historical Branch, Air Ministry, Whitehall, details of any action or event personally experienced or witnessed which strongly impressed him as typical of the spirit of the time or the conditions and atmosphere in which operations were conducted. Consideration will be given to all incidents reported wherever they took place — such illustrative conditions and operations in or over Europe, the Western Desert, the Burmese Jungle or the High Seas. The comparatively unimportant incident, if sufficiently colorful, may be as valuable as the account of a major operation.

All information submitted should be as circumstantial and as carefully authenticated as possible in order that it may be compared with official records.

By this means it is hoped to fix for posterity a memorable and faithful picture of Britain's great national wartime effort in the air.

Antarctica's Future

The friendly argument between Rear Admiral Byrd and Crusen over the strategic value of the Antarctica region and the possibilities of its future sovereignty poses some interesting questions. Development of the airplane, in which the United States has played a major role, and two world wars in which we have taken part in less than a quarter of a century, have changed our thinking as a nation. Most Americans have come to realize that whatever happens anywhere is of direct interest and concern to us, and anyone and no nation "is an island compleat unto itself but a piece of the continent, a part of the main," as John Donne wrote. Accordingly, as between the two Admirals' viewpoints on the strategic value of Antarctica, most Americans probably would accept Admiral Crusen's viewpoint that it is of probable importance. It would be a wise man who would say that any area of the earth or the seas that cover most of it is not a future pathway of the airplane or even a future battleground.

A program to which most Americans would agree, we believe, would be for the United Nations to establish some sort of trusteeship over Antarctica, unser which whatever wealth it may have, whatever its strategic value is a commercial airway or an air pathway for an international police force speeding to some area of the world to maintain the peace, would be held in trust for the peoples of all the world, and not exploited for the benefit of one country alone.—New York Times.

"A-Hunting We Will Go"

There was a time in England when about the worst thing an Englishman could possibly do was to shoot a fox. The extermination of these "vermin" — as the law classified them — was supposed to be left to the local gentry with their horses and hounds.

Now all this is changing. With every effort being made to increase British farm production, the government has decided that a policy of pest-control can no longer be left to John Peel and his kind. The ministry of agriculture is going after foxes with guns, and even with poison gas.

Jack Lord, M.P., a Yorkshire farmer, reported at this news, and urged the minister to keep up the good work until all the animals were killed and his constituents' chickens were safe. But the Conservative, Hamilton Hegg, one of the few "foxhunting men" left in the House, sided bitterly if it was proposed to celebrate by holding a hunt ball.

There was another time-honored phrase of English life.—Edmonton Journal.

Boon to Gardeners

A news item of probably greater import than appears at first glance was that telling of the invention of a mat with such gentle give that eggs could be dropped on it from an 11-storey window without breaking, says Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The scientists who developed this cushion were not specially interested in eggs, of course. They were seeking a means of taking some of the discomfort out of an airplane crash.

We hope it works in airplanes, but there is, we think, an even more important use for the new mat. One should be provided for every home gardener, for his wife to put under him along in July when he compares the results of his efforts with those pictured for him several months earlier in the seed catalogues.

Without hearts there is no home.—Byron.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1947, Edgar A. Guest)

HEART FOLLY

He went about and did and said
What heart suggested to his head.
He saw a hand stretched out in need,
And never questioned caste or creed
Or would his little gift be wise,
Or all the various hows and whys
Which reason prompts men to inquire.
He gave because the need seemed dire.

He listened to his heart and did
What sympathy and pity bid.
The graduates from wisdom's school
Considered him a simple fool
And called him other names much worse,
Because he had no sense of purse
And to another often gave
What for himself he ought to save.

He never had a great amount
Of money in his bank account.
His name was not in ledgers which
Record the ratings of the rich.
But, he had assets of content,
And love of friends where'er he went;
And it may be the Lord will find
The heart is wiser than the mind.

NON-CONFIDENCE

The C.C.F. sub-amendment, moved by Mr. Coldwell, referred to the government's failure to raise the basic income tax exemption levels and to make provision for "The vast bulk of the low our population who are compelled to live in incomes below the present exemption levels."

Mr. Low was followed by House rules from moving immediately — want of confidence motion. However, he said the intention of indirect taxes meant for those below the income-tax paying wage brackets, "nothing" except "higher living costs" for some months to come.

Many Speakers

Among other speakers in the debate were A. H. Dolan (Athabaska); G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West); E. E. Winkler (L—Queens-Lunenburg); F. B. McKay (CCF—Weyburn); and W. H. McMaster (CCF—Toronto High Park).

Prior to the debate, third reading was given to a bill repealing the Chinese Immigration Act and which drastically restricted the entry of Chinese into Canada. Also given third reading was a bill bringing the Bank of Canada and the Industrial Development Bank under provisions of the Canada Evidence Act, which outlines what documents may be accepted in evidence in court cases.

Position "Worsened" Claim

Initiating the budget debate, Mr. Macdonnell said the "great class" of the community that was affected mainly by indirect taxation found their position "worsened" as a result of the budget.

The liquor interests, he was bound to have a difficult time now because of a "shaking out of price" and a lack of "equilibrium" in the price line. Mr. Abbott had already alluded to "difficulties which he sees only too clearly."

He expressed regret that the excess profits tax, due to end next June 30, had not been abolished immediately. The tax had increased business to "fabulous" at a time when it should not hold back. He felt that something also should be done to help certain of our industries.

Mr. Coldwell described the budget as a "big business budget". He estimated that personal income tax would be collected to total $70,000,000 compared with cuts of $275,000,000 in corporation and sales taxes.

He urged immediate repayment of the refundable portion of income taxes collected during the war.

Mr. Low said the government erred in its Canadian generality to tackle the problem of "hidden and nuisance" taxes which would total $1,045,000,000 of government revenues this year.

Consumer 'Goat' Charged

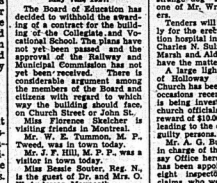
These were the taxes which were responsible for the steadily rising cost of production. They were applied at various stages in the manufacture and assembly of consumer and capital goods and were generally "grandiloquent" in effect upon prices. The ultimate consumer was the "goat" who had to pay them.

He estimated that through the reduction of these levies $100,000,000 could have been cut from revenue in the first year of the budget.

Mr. Fraser contended that the government's method of achieving a surplus had not been ethical because it had "built" account profits from the disposal of war assets which were sold to the taxpayers themselves.

The administration never would achieve a "real" surplus until it ceased the "extravagance" which had prevailed here in the various government departments.

Finance Minister Abbott may say he had cut income tax rates by an average of 20 per cent but by a comparison with 1938 tax tables showed that the taxpayer still was far from the 1938 level of taxation. And today the cost-of-living was far above 1938 levels.



MRS. SCOTT

He gave the opinion after being told that Barbara Ann's mother, Mrs. Clyde Scott, had announced the car would be returned to the donor because of her pretty 18-year-old daughter would not be ruled ineligible for the 1948 Olympics.

Depends on Ruling

Whether Barbara Ann keeps the car will depend on the ruling of J. S. Ridgeon, president of the International Olympic Committee at Stockholm, who requested the Canadian Olympic Association to forward a report on the case. Ridgeon's decision will fulfil his objection to the skater accepting the gift with the president of the international body.

A statement by the Canadian Olympic Association after a closed meeting here yesterday said the committee had brought to the attention of Dr. Ridgeon "the specific rules regarding amateur status, and has asked for a ruling whether that Barbara Ann would take steps to return the automobile and avoid, especially, placing to the capital from a visit in Stockholm."

The committee expressed the "sincere hope" that the present "eligibility" of Barbara Ann for the 1948 Olympic "and also her amateur status as a skating artist" had been a complete record."

Barbara Gives Statement

At Lindsay, in confirming that the car would be returned to the donors, Barbara Ann said "I would be glad to keep the car and lose a chance to bring honor to Canada in the Olympic games."

The skater said earlier she thought the "American way to get rid of me for the Olympics, is to make me pay for bringing in the Sims position (on one side and without a saddle), relaying in any such position the child prefers, so that flow in nasal passages will be moved and infantile rattler than toward throat.

COMMON SENSE IN NOSE DROPS

Let a baby or young child get coryza and react as a baby or child should react to the irritation of the presence of mucus or watery secretion from the nose, and there is a natural tendency breathing back to the throat—by coughing—and some ignorance of well meaning folks, unfortunately, is likely to infer that the poor kid is threatened with pneumonia, so the cold is settling on his lungs—and heaven help the poor kid then, if no doctor is at hand to protect the little one from malpractice.

The maltreatment to which unfortunate infants and tots with coryza are subjected including (1) excessive clothing and excessive bed covers which has ignorant and superstitious imagine will keep cold from penetrating the victim's chest—at any rate, that is the nearest I can come to understanding why the mothers do such things to ailing children; (2) overheating the house or the bedroom and excluding fresh air strictly according to the advice of the old fogy grandmother who is applying all sorts of nasty and uncomfortable things to the new baby's throat and chest; (4) dosing the child with various medicine disguised as "cough medicine."

The cough of coryza (acute inflammation of lining of nose, acute "catarrh" or running nose) is "cold in the head" to the layman—occurs especially when the child lies on the back, and so it often seems to the inexperienced parent in the hour or two after the child goes to bed. But such cough is a common symptom of simple coryza when the patient is up and about, especially when the individual has a poor posture, that is, carries his head down, chin out, instead of keeping chin, always tucked inside of an imaginary collar.

The safe and sane treatment of acute coryza in infant and child, in my opinion, as follows:

1. Isolation until the nature of the illness becomes apparent. This means keeping the child away from other children and away from the child, and mother or nurse wearing a gauze mask or the more comfortable Silvercrest mask as described in booklet "Colds" (for copy send 25 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address).

2. Let baby or child in bed, lying prone (belly down) rather than supine (on back) or lying in the Sims position, (on one side and without a saddle), relaying in any such position the child prefers, so that flow in nasal passages will be moved and infantile rattler than toward throat.

3. See that the room where child's feet feel warm to your touch and use the lightest clothing or bed covering that will keep the baby comfortable—and if the feet feel warm you know the baby is warm enough.

4. No artificial heat to sleeping room. Open windows for proper dressing.

5. Wide open windows all night if necessary to exclude strong wind, snow rain—use sash curtains for shade, as sunlight is a health.

6. No medicine unless your doctor orders it.

7. Feed no cough medicines! Will anyway, only Tool Proof. Some medicines, if any—including Dr. Doctor Brady's Home Made Tool Proof Cough Medicine are given in the Cri booklet.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is the largest inland city in the United States?

The answer to this question depends on the definition of "inland city."

Some use the term in the sense of "not situated on navigable water." In that sense Indianapolis, capitol of Indiana, which had 387,000 inhabitants in 1940, is the largest inland city in the United States, for the White River on which it is situated is not navigable.

In the same sense Mexico City, which had about 1,755,000 inhabitants in 1940, is the largest inland city in the New World.

Mexico City was once known as "the inland city of the Incas." It is nearly 7,500 feet above sea level, but it lies in a mountain-encircled depression or valley from which flowing water can't get. When Cortez invaded the Aztec capital it was situated on an island in a lake and his army had to build causeways to reach it. Although the ancient lake bed has been drained and there are no longer necessary, the city still has a swampy foundation and suffers from occasional disastrous floods by engineering works.

But the greatest accumulation of navigable water is hardly a correct basis for determining what an inland city is.

The word "inland" has a special meaning of "inland" is "remote from the sea" or "in the interior," and "inland city" is one not on or near the seacoast.

In that sense there are many large inland cities in the United States.

Chicago, which had 3,397,000 inhabitants in 1940, is the largest inland city in the United States and in the Western Hemisphere. Although Chicago is not on the seacoast, it is one of the important "ports" in America.

SHIELD BABY EYES

Even when baby is old enough for sunbaths, the eyes should be given special protection, say the health authorities. An infant should be shielded from direct rays of the sun until able to move about easily. Doctors suggest that the baby be placed, with feet pointing away from the sun, so that eyebrows and upper lids shield the eyes. It is also a good idea to line the hood of a baby carriage with some dull, preferably dark, material.

It Takes a Heap O' Baking!

(By John Gould in Christian Science Monitor)

A catastrophe of immeasurable proportions struck our happy home Saturday evening at precisely 5.45 o'clock, at which time our lady was removing the pot of beans from the oven, and the bottom dropped out of it. I can't stress too much the horror of the moment. I know of nothing in the history of mankind comparable to it.

We had fried eggs and bacon instead. We aren't sure just what happened. We think there was a fault in the pot, and as Saturday succeeded Saturday the constant addition of patina, essence, sheen and glory got to be too much for it, and the fault gave way and the bottom dropped out.

There was our baking of beans on the floor, running around gamely in their own juice, the shards sticking up around them like landmarks in the breakers, and my wife holding the handle of the pot in a halter and looking most helpless and forlorn. The handle was still attached to the neck and shoulders of the pot, but the pot was no longer a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

She said, faintly and with extreme evenness of tone, "The bottom fell out of the bean pot." It was even so. There had been a snap just as the pot cleared the floor of the oven, then a kind of swishing noise, and a splattering mushing. The pussycat came leaping toward the scene with investigative enthusiasm, and a swirl of steam enveloped her, at which she backed up ten feet and looked puzzled.

I scooped the beans up into a pail, dipped out the sauce with a ladle, mopped up all around the stove, and took our nice Saturday night beans down to the bean. When I came back the spider was on the stove, beans was in the air, and she was cracking eggs.

Naturally it didn't seem like Saturday night at all. Naturally a spirit of disappointment prevailed. Friday night she had picked over three cups of dried beans, put them to soak, and all day she had been tending them. She kept the fire going for them; she added water when needed. She took the cover off at half-past three and browned the top with a bonnet of salt pork. And by half-past five they were ready.

She blew the horn as usual, and we came in to wash up and comment dutifully on the fine aroma that prevailed—not only in and about the house, but for some distance around outside. We made a guesses as to what strange and delectable dish could be awaiting us this fine Saturday night, and we guessed roast beef, pork, pie, lamb stew, and even broiled halves of milk-fed spring chicken. Then we guessed beans, and meant it.

But the catastrophe I speak of wasn't just the loss of the beans. That was a disappointment only, an unfortunate accident that merely changed our plans. The catastrophe involved the pot itself. You just don't bake beans in any old thing, and it takes years and years to work a new crockery bean pot up into something that will bake a decent bean. Anybody knows that.

We had had this bean pot ever since we went to housekeeping. It was given us by a certain darling aunt of the old school who said, "By the time you have a family to enjoy it, it'll be fit to bake a bean in." She knew what she was talking about. The pores of a bean pot take on a mellowing, and it comes only from weekly bakings over a long, long time.

It takes barrels of beans, gallons of molasses, whole sailings of pork, bushels of onions, and months of blue moons to fire the quintessence into a good bean pot. The hand of the potter lacks the master touch. It takes the loving care of a mother to pick and choose only the right beans, and the right kinds of beans. It takes hot hardwood fires, and nothing in the oven at the same time—pinkin pies, sheaf of caraway cookies, johnny cake, and all such as that. It takes years, and none but the old, established families get the best-baked beans.

So the catastrophe struck, and the bean pot is a total loss. During this week we'll pick out a new pot at the store, and it will be shiny and clean and not worth a cent. Beans next Saturday will be just like anybody's beans. It will be away next fall before we can expect the new bean pot to start getting that look. I hope it isn't too long a summer.

WEDDINGS

WHALEN—WALSH

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of a pretty Spring wedding on Monday, May 5, when Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, P.A., V.G., M.C., united in marriage Rita Margaret Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Walsh, to Donald Joseph Whalen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Whalen. The wedding music was played by Reverend Sister Mary Silviana, aunt of the groom, while Miss Rose Marie Hamilton was guest soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white satin, styled with an intricately designed yoke of appliqued flowers, encircled with seed pearls. Her only ornament was a pearl cross and chain, the gift of the groom. Her fingertip veil was held by a headdress of orange blossoms, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, snapdenias and sweetpeas.

Miss Helen Walsh, of Lochlon, was her sister's maid-of-honour, and was gowned in pink sheer, with deep lace inserts. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

Mr. John Forster, of Belleville, acted as groomsman and the ushers were Mr. George Whalen, brother of the groom, and Mr. Austin Walsh, brother of the bride.

Following the nuptial ceremonies the wedding breakfast was held at the Dutch Mill Inn. The mother of the bride received the guests, wearing shell pink crepe with corsage of carnations and maidenhair fern. The mother of the groom assisted wearing a two-piece brown ensemble with corsage of Talisman roses. Later the guests repaired to the home of the bride's parents where a reception was held.

For travelling the bride chose a gabardine suit of heavenly blue, with white collar hat and black accessories. Her corsage was of white gardenias. After a wedding trip to Buffalo, N.Y., and Niagara Falls, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Whalen will reside in Belleville.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Don't Help a Man on With His Coat

Beeckman:

a man guest was leaving house the other evening... ked him put on his coat. After did this he informed me that is not proper for a girl to help man on with his coat. This rprised me because always, as ct of courtesy, I help any visitor on with his or her coat. Was this man right in what he said? — Carmela P.

Although your intentions were to be courteous in helping a man caller on with his coat, this man was right that it isn't proper for a woman to help a man on with his coat... unless, of course, the visitor is a cripple or a very elderly man who obviously would welcome your help. It's kind and polite for you to help a woman visitor put on her coat... but a man (except in special cases mentioned above) resents this unsuitable service. When a man caller arrives, direct him to where he is to hang his coat and hat... and when he starts to leave, let him get them and not offer to put the coat on his coat. Men feel very strongly about women serving them. It's either with you, or with your mother, after the church from the side door at the left of the altar, either with you, or following you.

Should Help a Bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should a bride help the groom with the wedding? If so, who should announce it?

W.M.

1. Yes, it is correct for you to be your mother's attendant... and this procedure is quite customary.

2. This would be proper... but it isn't necessary.

3. It is not proper for the best man to walk up the aisle with the bride and for the groom to walk with the matron of honor. The groom and his best man would enter the church from the vestry door at the right of the altar, in the manner customary at any type of church wedding. You and your mother may walk together up the aisle, or since you say you will be so few, guests at the wedding, my suggestion is that your mother enter the church from the side door at the left of the altar, either with you, or following you.

4. The bride's family sits in the pews at the left of the aisle; the groom's family in the pews at the right of the aisle.

5. Yes it is proper to send formal announcements of the marriage, and since the bride and groom are of a mature age you mention, they may make the announcement themselves.

Shower May be Given by All The Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A wedding shower is to take place in a few weeks I am going to be the maid of honor. I want very much to plan a shower for the bride-to-be. Would it be proper for me to ask the brides-maids to join me giving the shower?

Betty Lou

Yes....this is proper, and customary.

Hint To "Her Children"

If you daughters and sons are old enough to "take over" cooking the Sunday dinner on Mother's Day, why not plan a surprise menu....simple items, please, favorite of Mother and Dad.... do the marketing on Saturday (either from an advertised list from the family budget or from combined contents of your piggy-banks).... prepare as much as possible before church on Sunday....set the table prettily and effectively (centrepiece of Mother's favorite flowers, perhaps) and with a dainty carnation at each place).....cook the dinner....and plan every detail of the serving so that it is charmingly attended to by you. Here's a gift of loving kindness to touch a mother's heart!

Short Hair Down or Long Hair Up: Both are Stylish

The lovely coiffure of Actress Adele Jergens is just one idea of the many ways you can arrange your hair.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THE coiffure situation is interesting. There was a time in the past when good looks depended upon so many modes prevailed.

Once it was hair of pigtail proportions. Then it was the shingle bob, and the woman with long hair was regarded as a curiosity by the bobbed sisters. Now it's long hair upped, short hair pompaded, mid-length hair combed both up and down. Can you beat it?

Everybody is pleased And, a funny thing! Lots of young ladies with shingled hair are looking older and matronly, while some of the white-haired sisters are sticking to the three-inch cut and looking girlish.

If you're still among the curlies, refusing to sleek your tresses back, here's a single tip: Don't be scarcely a coil, you can tuck unexpected ornaments into unexpected spots in your hairdo. They make you a bit more decorative, often prove to be precisely the right touch.

Jeweled clips and combs and pins, crystal stars and crescent moons! Metallic flowers and ribbons you're wearing on our coat lapels. Artificial flowers, or real ones, if you prefer. But be canny about all this. Mustn't ever look overdressed. That's dangerous; may ruin the ensemble.

A Simple Effect

The off-to-the-side hair silhouette continues to make fashion news. We see a simple effect attained by sweeping all ends of the hair to the crown, whisking it high in a cascade of undualtions and large ringlets. Waved bangs smooth-sweep the cheeks forms distinguished arrangements. The psyche is here again in full force, getting larger and more pronounced all the time.

You can have a fling at braids, if you like, placing them around back of head crown fashion, or spike your upped curls with a huge bow of ribbon that will make you look like a little girl. There is no end to hairdo possibilities these days.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Hands Can Be Eloquent

There is no need to tell any member of the beauty-seeking contingent that hands should be kept scrupulously clean, the skin's surface velvety soft, and the nails in perfect form. Every woman knows that.

Any woman will regard with sorrow a pair of nails that have fallen below good-looks par. She hates to have them appear scrubby. The hard-working housewife does not find it easy to keep her hands from looking old and worn. They must be anointed daily with a soothing lotion and, at least once a week, they should have a five-minute massage with a heavy, healing cream.

With hands, as with faces, expression is a big item. Perhaps you don't realize that charming hand behavior can be cultivated, that graceful movements and pretty poses are possible to any woman who will give a little thought to the matter. One incentive is to keep them in perfect condition. If the hands are not white and soft, one has an impulse to hide them.

The hands are a means of communication. They betray secretly, do a come-hither, as do the eyes. With the first finger lifted, the others curled, they threaten. They express distress when put around the nails. Or they twist a strand of hair, even pull at a near lobe. Some women massage the inner surfaces of their fingertips with their thumbs, keeping up a continual movement. A physician tells us that it is not easy to break this habit, though it can be done / He explains that because of the highly developed sense of touch, the nerves in the fingertips are extremely sensitive. If one is in a highly nervous state, the fingertips are in a state of irritation and unrest.

He suggests frequent manicures, so there will be no hangnails to fuss with. This will also keep the nail eaves smooth and even. Keeping the nails in perfect order is also a factor toward curing the nail-biting habit, which is disgusting and also a menace to the health.

Strong, capable hands have a beauty of their own. No woman need be ashamed of hands that are large, if the knuckles have spread a bit through devotion to home and family. Inert hands that give you a cold, clammy clasp, may signify timidity, or lack of cordiality, but they also signify the need of fresh air and exercise to get sluggish blood streams on the job.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Young Man Who Destroyed His Own Happiness

A day or two ago I made the statement that the person who pursues happiness by letting innocent others suffer in order to examine his behavior almost always misses out the loser; that, in the end, he usually finds that he has only succeeded in defeating his own ends.

And I promise to tell you about a letter which illustrates this point.

Here, except for a few sentences, neither the writer asked me not to print, is the letter, from a boy of 19:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:"

"The romance between myself and a girl of my own age lasted six months. It was very passionate—too passionate—and I'm very sorry it happened. I think it is because of this that I lost my love for the girl. I have the greatest respect for her, please believe me, but I do not love her any more.

"Can you suggest any way that I may regain my love for her? I know she still loves me. I really want to love her again as she is a wonderful girl."

There, dear boy, is a previous column of mine in which I advised: "Don't tease yourselves by saying" he says: "That statement cannot be over-emphasized as this letter proves."

Now here you see a boy and girl who decided to discard standards of conduct in which they had undoubtedly been reared in favor of self-indulgence. Of course they thought this would make for great happiness although the boy does not say so, they probably imagined themselves deeply in love and planned eventual marriage. That is the way most young people justify themselves in entering such an affair.

And now see what caine of that impulsive substitution of desires for ideals. Instead of bringing them lasting happiness, it wrecked such happiness as they already had. The boy has lost his love for one girl, and, since she, he believes still loves him, there is nothing but heartbreak ahead for her.

Had these two had sufficient character to hang on to their standards they would still be happy in their original comradeship. And if it was, in fact, anything more than a temporary boy-and-girl enthusiasm, they might have gone on to that eventual marriage. As the thing stands now, whatever feeling they had for each other is likely to gradually peter out, until their friendship becomes a closed chapter of their lives which they would prefer to forget. Or, more sadly still, the girl, who continues to love the boy who has ceased to love her, will presently resort to accusations and reproaches until the whole business ends in a violent climax of misery and bitterness that will leave permanent scars on both sides.

No matter how much this boy may wish, as he says, to regain his old feeling for the girl, it is hardly possible that he will be able to do so. For the real point in his case is that he felt for her not love at all, but merely a strong physical attraction added to a measure of admiration and respect. And once the physical attraction had been satisfied, it burned itself out, leaving nothing of the emotion he mistook for love. The only way he is unable to "love her again," as he puts it, is because he never actually loved her in the first place.

See what I mean? When I said a couple of days ago that jn throwing over self-control and self-respect one usually defeated one's own ends?

So long as one holds those "old-fashioned" ideals, girls, if for no other reason than that the man who commands you to discard them may be the very one who later discards you.

THE LURE OF LACE continues its magic sway. Black lace of a Chantilly type is used for a beautiful evening frock, a sleeveless model, with bodice snugly buttoned from the high neckline —with its upstanding turn-back collar—to the slimwaist. The full skirt is caught up into tiered pouffs in back.

A SENSIBLE FASHION —one which at first glance seems rather extravagant—is the white fur jacket. Sensible because it goes with practically everything from morning till night! Waistline carecul broadtail is used for a very handsome jacket, 30 inches in length. It has, Byronesque collar, seven self buttons closing the slim bodice, and is very flared over the hips and in back. The hemline dips deeply in back. Pockets at hips; cuffs on easy sleeves.

A FAVORITE fabric this season is beautiful, cool, pure silk shantung and in navy blue is used for a handsome dress and matching jacket. The simply fashioned dress is treated to a spray of flowers above and below the waistline which is embroidered in chalk-white tiny beads.

CONTRAST in materials marks some of the new hats. A neat little, off-the-face sailor of rustic straw is piped in green velvet. For trimming it has an upstanding spike of handmade colorful flowers, including daisies and calico. Veiled in cobwebby brown lace veiling.

BIG DETAIL marks little toppers. Patou helps doubtless the need for a handsome little topper with felt seaming at the high-placed notched revers; for the slanting, oversized flap pockets; and for the notched sleeves.

GO-ANYWHERE print frocks are very much to the fore in fashion—nice frocks that have a fine balance between the simple and the dressy. A circus print in black, green and red, on white, is used for a silk crepe frock made with rounded shoulder yoke; double capelet sleeves; buttoned-down-the-front, softly-handled bodice; and a skirt which has a cluster of side pleats.

VERY SOON we hope that designers will be utilizing a new tulle made of nylon and said to be water resistant and flame-proof. The tulle has a permanent finish.

GOOD MANNERS

Girls' Don't Help a Man on With His Coat

Dear Beeckman:

As a man guest was leaving our house the other evening I helped him on with his coat. After I did this he informed me that it is not proper for a girl to help a man on with his coat. This surprised me because always, as a matter of courtesy, I help any visitor on with his or her coat. Was this man right in what he said?

Carmela P.

Although your intentions was to be courteous in helping a man caller on with his coat, this man was right that it isn't proper for a woman to help a man on with his coat....unless, of course, the visitor is a cripple or a very elderly man who obviously would welcome your help. It's kind and polite for you to help a woman visitor put on her coat....but a man (except in special cases mentioned above) resents this unsuitable service. It's a man caller arrives, direct him to where he is to hang his coat and hat....and when he starts to leave, let him get them and take care of putting on his coat. He'll feel very strongly about women not trying to help in such a circumstance....and apparently this man is such a "rugged individualist" that he didn't mind telling you straight about this, probably figuring it was for your own good!

Plans For Her Mother's Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother, who is in her middle fifties, is to be married again, and we are anxious to make this small wedding correct in every way. Will you please help us by answering the following questions?

1. I am the oldest daughter, and Mother wants to have me at her only attendant. Is this correct....and customary?

2. Is it customary to have someone give the bride in marriage at this type of wedding? To me it doesn't seem necessary or correct. Do you agree?

3. Should the man walk down the aisle with the bride, and the groom walk with the matron of honor? If so, which couple goes first? And does the woman walk at the right of the man?

4. On which side of the aisle does the bride's family and the groom's family sit?

5. Since the wedding is to be such a small affair, will it be correct to send announcements after the wedding? If so, who should announce it?

W. M.

1. Yes, it is correct for you to be your mother's attendant....and this procedure is quite customary.

2. This would be proper....but it isn't necessary.

3. It is not proper for the best man to walk up the aisle with the bride and for the groom to walk with the matron of honor. The groom and his best man would enter the church from the vestry door at the right of the altar, in the manner customary at any type of church wedding. You and your mother may walk together up the aisle, or since you say there will be so few guests at the wedding, my suggestion is that your mother enter the church from the side door at the left of the altar, either with you, her attendant, or following you.

4. The bride's family sits in the pews at the left of the aisle; the groom's family in the pews at the right of the aisle.

5. Yes it is proper to send formal announcements of this marriage, and since the bride and groom are of a mature age you mention, they may make the announcement themselves.

Shower May be Given by All The Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In a wedding that is to take place in a few weeks I am going to be the maid of honor. I would very much to take a shower for the bride-to-be. Would it be proper for me to ask the bridesmaids to join me giving the shower?

Betty Lou

Yes....this is proper, and customary.

Hint To "Her Children"

If you daughters and sons are old enough to take over cooking the Sunday dinner on Mother's Day, why not plan a surprise menu....simple items, please, favorites of Mother and Dad....do the marketing on Saturday (either from an allowance from the family-budget or from combined contents of your piggy-banks)....prepare the food as much as possible before church on Sunday....set the table pretty and effectively (centerpiece of Mother's favorite flowers, perhaps) and with a white carnation at each place)....cook the dinner....and plan every detail of the serving so that it is charmingly attended to by you. Here's a gift of loving kindness to touch a mother's heart!

A Young Man Who Destroyed His Own Happiness

A day or two ago I made the statement about a person who pursues happiness by letting impulse, rather than ideals, determine his behavior almost always comes out the loser; that, in the end, he finds that he has only succeeded in defeating his own ends.

And I promise to tell you about a letter which illustrates this point.

Here, except for a few sentences which he asked me not to print, is the letter, from a boy of 17.

Dear Miss Fairfax:"

"The romance between myself and a girl of my own age lasted six months. It was very passionate—too passionate—and I'm afraid I was to blame. I think it is because of this that I lost my love for the girl. I have the greatest respect for her, please believe me, but I do not love her any more.

"Can you suggest any way that I may regain my love for her? I know she still loves me. I really want to love her again, as she is a wonderful girl."

Then, referring to a previous column of mine in which I advised: "Don't tease yourselves by petting," he says: "That statement cannot be over-emphasized as this letter proves."

Now here you see a boy and girl who decided to discard standards of conduct in which they had undoubtedly been reared in favor of self-indulgence. Of course, they thought they would make for great happiness. Although the boy does not say so, they probably imagined themselves deeply in love and planned eventual marriage. That is the way most young people justify themselves in entering such an affair.

And now see what came of that impulsive substitution of desires for ideals. Instead of bringing them lasting happiness, it wrecked such happiness as they already had. The boy has lost his love for one girl, and, what is more, he believes still loves him, there is nothing but heartbreak ahead for her.

As the thing stands now, whatever feeling they had for each other is likely to gradually peter out, until their friendship becomes a closed chapter of their lives which they would prefer to forget. Or, more sadly still, the girl, who continues to love the boy who has ceased to love her, will presently resort to accusations and reproaches until the whole business ends in a violent climax of misery and bitterness that will leave permanent scars on both sides.

No matter how much this boy may wish, as he says, to retain his old feeling for the girl, it is absolutely possible that he will be able to do so. For the real point is that what he felt for her was not love at all. It was only the strong physical attraction added to a measure of admiration and respect. And once the physical attraction had been satisfied, it burned itself out, leaving nothing of the emotion he mistook for love. That is why he is unable to "love her again," as he puts it: because he never actually loved her in the first place.

See what I meant when I said a couple of days ago that enthroning over self-control and self-respect one usually defeated one's own ends!

So hang onto those "old-fashioned" ideals of mine if, for no other reason than that the man who persuades you to discard them may be the very one who later discards you.

11,700,000 Passengers Daily Carried by London Buses, Trolleys

By STUART UNDERHILL

London, May 6 (CP)—Millions more people seem to be doing millions more things in London than ever before. Wherever the average Londoner goes he finds other average Londoners ahead of him, beside him and behind him.

Last year, for example, the London Passenger Transport Board, which operates the subways and buses and trolleys, carried an average of 11,700,000 passengers daily—this compares with an average of 10,400,000 before the war. Rolled up into a year long total it comes to 4,250,408,000 passengers compared with 3,782,098,000 in 1938-39.

Last year a fair portion of these travellers—3,000,000 to be exact—found their way to the zoo at Regent's Park. This again was a record; 500,000 more visitors than in the best year before the war.

Sunday afternoon is the favorite visiting time for the zoo on a fine day a queue of several hundred is waiting at each entrance as the gatekeepers slam up their windows and start to collect shillings and hustle the crowds through.

Kid's Corner

The children's zoo lures its hundreds. It's in a corner of the main zoo and is forbidden to adults unless they are accompanied by children.

Strangers to the set-up get a shock when they walk through the gates and are nearly bowled over by an attack from the boisterous goats or sheepy sheep that trot about at large, skillfully evading the pursuit of clutching youngsters.

All around are pens, mostly occupied by domestic animals, although in one case a wistful-eyed fox named Freddie runs restlessly back and forth.

Then Home

As the afternoon wears on more and more people abandon their cautious rounds, queueing for tea or soft drinks, or dropping onto benches and delving into shopping bags of little suitcases for sandwiches and buns.

Amid a certain amount of tearfulness and impatience the trek for home begins and the cleaners start their hopeless task of collecting litter. They know, it will be back as bad as ever on Sunday.

Mother Happy Over Baby She Adopted

Toronto, May 7 (CP)—Take it from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Farm of Niagara Falls, Ont., adopting a baby right smarts from Great Britain is "wonderful." That's how they became the adopted parents of 10-month-old Andrew David Adams, whom they saw today for the first time upon his arrival from overseas.

"What a baby!" Mrs. Farm exulted. "He weighs 24 pounds, has blue eyes and wavy brown hair. Who could ask for anything more? I'm the happiest mother and I'm sure I've got the happiest baby."

The Day in Parliament

Today:—

The Commons continues the budget debate.

The Senate will sit.

Tuesday—

The Commons heard Progressive Conservative and CCF speakers move motions of want-of-confidence in the government in opening of the budget debate; heard J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive financial critic, say the budget offered no relief from indirect and hidden taxes; heard M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader say the budget was a "big business budget" and failed to plan for the future of Canadians; heard Solon Low, Social Credit leader, criticize lack of budget provision for those below the income tax paying wage bracket; gave third reading to a bill repealing the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1930 and another bringing the Bank of Canada and the Industrial Development Bank under provisions of the Canada Evidence Act.

The Senate gave first reading bill; heard Senator James Murdock (L—Ontario) call for a full investigation of the spread to the government's main control of milk prices between producers and distributors.

Oliver, Lewis Main Contenders For Leadership

Toronto, May 7 — (CP) — The names of a Grey county farmer and a Brockville lawyer figured most prominently in speculation yesterday about whom Ontario Liberals are likely to name as provincial leader of the party at their convention here May 15 and 16.

Most observers look on the farmer, 63-year-old Farquhar Oliver who is House leader of the Liberal opposition in the Ontario Legislature, as the most probable choice for the position left vacant after the Ontario general election of 1945 by the resignation of Mitchell F. Hepburn who decided to quit politics and "listen to the great grow."

Others said that the lawyer, Don Lewis, 46-year-old veteran of two wars and former mayor of Brockville stood out as the strongest of the dark horse possibilities.

Will Have Large Field

Indications are that the convention will have a large field to pick from. Mr. Oliver and William Gunn and Allan Lamport of Toronto all have indicated their names will go before the convention. Mr. Lewis has not made any announcement but it is reported that he will be nominated. Another possibility is Colin Campbell, Toronto mining consultant who resigned as Ontario Minister of Public Works in 1939 to go to war.

Two other men — both lawyers — have announced they will not be candidates. One is Harry S. Hamilton, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a former Federal member and a former president of the Ontario Association, who was looked on for a time as a strong possibility. Another is John Robinette of Toronto whose name was mentioned at one stage.

Second Time in Four Years

This is the second time in four years that Ontario Liberals are meeting to choose a successor to Mr. Hepburn. In 1943, after his sudden resignation as premier and party leader in 1942, they picked Harry C. Nixon, a Brant county farmer who has been in the legislature since 1919.

Mr. Nixon resigned in 1944 and Liberal members of the legislature chose Mr. Hepburn as their House leader. He was named party leader on the eve of the 1945 provincial election by a caucus of members of the leaders and defeated candidates. But the Elgin county onion farmer gave up the leadership after his party suffered defeat in the 1945 election and he lost his home riding of Elgin which he had previously carried in two Federal and three provincial elections.

Mr. Oliver entered politics as a United Farmers of Ontario candidate in the provincial election of 1926 as a 22-year-old protege of Agnes Macphail. He won election in his home riding of Grey South and has been re-elected four times since.

Entered Cabinet in 1941

He entered Mr. Hepburn's Liberal cabinet in 1941 as minister of public works and welfare and resigned in 1942 along with Mr. Nixon, his close friend, over the manner in which Mr. Hepburn passed the premiership on to Gordon C. Conant, now Master at Osgoode Hall.

Mr. Lewis, a native of Brockville, is not as widely-known as Mr. Oliver. He was defeated in Leeds riding in an attempt to enter the Dominion Parliament, but he has strong support from Eastern Ontario Liberals who are actively promoting his cause.

Mr. Lamport is a Toronto alderman and a former member of the Ontario Legislature. Mr. Gunn is a former party organizer and a former Federal candidate in Toronto.

Much Poverty Apparent in Eire But Nobody Seems to Worry Much

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Eire, with the world's biggest brewery, cannot meet her home demand for stout . . . Northern Ireland, heart of the linen industry, hasn't enough tablecloths and sheets . . . Scotland is famous for whisky yet Glasgow bars are dry . . . the England of juicy roasts takes one-third of its small meat ration in corned beef.

Shortages are the one thing Republican Eire and the monarchial United Kingdom both suffer and it's one of their few surface similarities. For even in the field of shortages there is a difference in that Eire suffers less.

Dublin looks different from Belfast, Glasgow, London or any United Kingdom city. It has a continental air reminding of Brussels, a skyline of church steeples, narrow curving streets, hundreds of bicycles on downtown streets; and the continental style of driving (blowing the horn at every intersection, keep moving and pray).

Poverty More Obvious

Eire has more obvious poverty. Barefoot children go to city schools; small boys in tatters beg in the streets; shabby women, carrying babies, demand "a penny for the child" — and swear if they do not get it. Nobody seems to worry much. "Poverty is almost a holy occupation as in India," one Dubliner said.

Eire has rationing as has the United Kingdom but the public attitude is drastically different. The butter ration is down to two ounces and government officials admit the main reason is that they cannot control the vastly increased quantity of butter made by individual farmers who used to sell milk to creameries.

Eire's Open Black Market

In the United Kingdom the blackmarket exists but it is an undercounter activity not seen by the casual visitor. Contrast every Dublin newsboy who shouts the name of a paper, sidles up to passersby and croaks "want to buy clothing coupons?" Police can't miss the blackmarket traffic but shrug it off, saying it "does no one any harm; why get high blood pressure?" Only occasionally is there a prosecution.

Eire is living 25 years ago. While the people of the United Kingdom are up-to-the-Second World War and talk mostly about post-war economic problems and shortages of food and fuel, Irishmen with the same difficulties vie best to tell stories of the 1916 Easter week rebellion and the days of battling against the hated "black-and-tan."

Customer Always Right

But pedaling is more noticeable during a quick trip from London through Dublin, Belfast, Glasgow and return, than the appearance and demeanor of the people. Men, women and children of Eire are more volatile than those in the United Kingdom. They look more cheerful regardless whether they are rich or poor. And as for courtesy — well, the men directing the British tourist drive could do no worse than study the Eirean treatment of the customer.

Unbelievable as it must sound to other parts of the British Isles, the customer in Eire is almost always right.

Sit south at a slam in hearts and take all 13 tricks. West leads the diamond ace. You can do it with a little patience All it takes is to be as expert as you are capable of being.

Just a minute, now. Take stock of your resources and liabilities. If the opponents are untalented while you are studying this, tell them bluntly to go and get a radish or something.

Quick as a flash you can see only one thing to worry about. It is the third spade. So, to avoid losing four fast to saving that lone spatula. Go ahead and do it.

Your south hand can trump the ace of diamonds lead. So far, so good. Now you have queen and jack of diamonds in dummy. And opponents have only one higher diamond; the king.

If east has the king, you are sitting pretty. You can lead dummy queen through east. If he covers, you trump. Your dummy diamond jack is then good. So is your ace stuff your south third spade.

When you lead dummy diamond queen suppose east does not cover. Shift promptly to a club. And you have an idea that east has the king. Know why? Because with ace and king, west usually leads the king.

Of course, this ruffing entering the dummy hand twice So, look for the spade situation there. See them? A small trump to the nine. Later, a small return to the jack.

Bridge is a matter of planning far in advance. Wish somebody would keep reminding me of it in a bridge game.

The Movie Column

BY RON GADSBY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It's hard to say what her husband thinks about it, but Brenda Marshall is coming out of a two-year retirement and is about to give back to the kleig lights the full benefit of her face and figure.

Miss Marshall, who, if you han believe the press agents, has been slaving over a hot stove and doing the family washing in giving up the heartache to take a leading role in a western epic entitled "Whispering Smith." Opposite her will be Alan Ladd, the shot-in-the-pants actor well famous for his ability to slug his classmates in the eye.

In the picture, Ladd will play the soft-spoken sheriff whose guns do most of his talking for him. He undoubtedly will win Brenda by a more or less one more that virtue has its reward.

It seems that Brenda, who is really no great shakes as an actress, looks her best against an outdoor background and "Whispering Smith" will provide lots of it for her particular brand of beauty.

It was the great outdoors that gave a lot of young Canadians a chance to get acquainted with Brenda back in 1941. Remember the Cagney-Marshall epic they called "Captain of the Clouds," a mostly done pancake piece set to tell the world of the glories of the R.C.A.F.

Many of the scene were taken at North Bay and still more at Uplands, outside Ottawa. O corporal in the photographic section of the R.C.A.F. was assigned to take publicity shots of the movie company at both places and for about a month, Jack Miller of Toronto, enjoyed the jammiest set-up ever afforded any corporal in any air force.

He travelled to North Bay, took pictures of airplanes, Brenda, scenery, Brenda, Alan Hale, Brenda and Jimmy Cagney. He was one of their party for a month and when he came back to the barracks, he gave the low-down.

There just weren't enough adjectives to describe how he felt about Miss Marshall. Beautiful, wonderful personality, swell, etc., etc. He didn't get down to earth for a week.

It is nice to know she is coming back to the films. A girl like that shouldn't have to do dishes anyway.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Africa Speaks"

Paul L. Hoefler, who led the Colorado-African Expedition in filming "Africa Speaks", which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre beginning Thursday says, "The lion is temperamental and the most formidable of all animals encountered on the veldt. He is not afraid of anything. He is certain, fiend and dislikes, but knows nothing of fear. The lion never seeks a battle with an elephant, but will fight one rather than run away.

"In order to get close-ups of these ferocious beasts, we tricked them by means of what they loved all of our equipment at a spot on the veldt where the lion was wont to prowl. Here we erected a boma, an uncovered corral of thorns, in which everything and everyone was concealed, leaving a peep-hole for the cameras. Lions dislike thorns and usually will not pass a thorn barricade. However, the most certain thing about lions is the uncertainty of what they will do, and they have been known to leap, mainly for spite, a thorn wall to get at its occupants.

"We laid the bait of meat about 18 feet in front of the boma and anchored it so that the action would take place where the cameras would catch it. Their investigation procedure upon approaching our position was to circle the boma several times, examining it. They were aware that we watched them, but they kept a safe distance from the thorns. In order to get by-play, we sometimes teased the lions—we had the carcass of a dead zebra to a 200-foot wire cable which was attached to a truck. This moving bait attracted the animals and through this method we were able to get many interesting pictures.

"To make lions climb trees we placed bait in the branches. Despite all watchfulness, there is no absolute means of protection in the wastes of Africa. Danger is creeping, crawling everywhere and at any moment a lion or a reptile may strike one down before his companion can lift a rifle."

Paul L. Hoefler was not always an explorer. He started life in his native city of Spokane, Wash., as a newspaper reporter. He drifted to Galveston and decided he could become a motion picture cameraman.

Senator Claims Too Big Spread In Milk Prices

Ottawa, May 7 (CP)—Senator James Murdock (L-Ontario) told the Senate yesterday he didn't believe farmers got the financial return their work entitled them to and called for a full investigation of the spread of milk prices as between producers and distributors in Canada.

While recognizing the price as a provincial responsibility, he maintained that the millions of dollars the Federal Government paid out in milk subsidies and in family allowances gave Ottawa a direct interest in the subject.

He moved that the Senate's Natural Resources Committee "ascertain by official inquiry how much the milk-producing farmers of Canada secure for their product less than five cents a quart and how much the milk collectors and distributors secure better than 10 cents a quart."

Senator J. J. Donnelly (PC-Ontario), chairman of the committee of reasons, said such an investigation would cause "great expense," mixed farmers would have to be called to Ottawa to testify at a bad time, and the Ontario Commission had probed the whole subject and would report next month. However, if the Senate passed the motion, the committee would do all possible to fulfill its requirements.

Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) said, in a general way, he supported any "effort to attack the cartel which I suspect is engaged in the distribution of milk."

Col. Drew Says Canadian Radio Is Not Free

Ottawa May 7 (CP)—Declaring Canadian radio was not free, Premier Drew of Ontario said last night the Federal Government's very great propaganda power was "due to the radio network it controls."

The Premier, who had a recent brush with the CBC over some uncensored and unsongratulatory remarks about that organization he made over the air at a Toronto CBC dinner, spoke to a dinner of the Ottawa Young Progressive Conservatives. His CBC reference came after he had completed a broadcast section of his address.

"One of the first means used by any dictatorship to prevent free speech is to control radio," he declared.

"It is absolute nonsense to suggest radio in Canada is free," he added, "when a government controlled corporation not only controls programs but prepares its own as well."

The free-lime given to political parties he termed "rationed bits of freedom."

When a public man had something to tell Canadians, he was restricted to 15 minutes.

In the United States, "loose-mouthed" Henry Wallace, former vice-president, was "allowed to propagate his nonsense on the air" and this was a good thing. It gave the people a chance to assess it.

'Fireman' Hugh Casey Proves First-Class Relief Hurler For Dodgers Since Season Started

Has Appeared in Seven Games Saving Four and Winning Twice

— By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

John McGraw always maintained that one of the prime requisites of a championship club was a first class relief pitcher. Following the logic of the immortal leader of New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers already should have one leg on the National League flag. For where is there a better "fireman" than huge Hugh Casey of the Brooks?

A check of the last few years bears out McGraw's theory. Only last year, the world champion St. Louis Cardinals boasted a pretty fair relief cracker in Murray Ted Wilks who went through the season unbeaten registering eight triumphs in relief.

In 1945 it was the effective relief pitching of Rap-Prim (Ellis) which made the championship possible for Chicago Cubs. In '44 it was the Brooks won their first flag in 21 years because of the timely emergency work of Casey who won 14 and lost only four that year.

Of the Dodgers' first 13 games this season, Casey has appeared in seven. Four of them he saved for others and twice he was rewarded with the victory.

His latest time yesterday at Ebbets Field when he took over the mound duties in the seventh inning and held the Cardinals scoreless in the three remaining frames to emerge with a 7-5 triumph.

Two Tied for Second.

Chicago and Boston moved into a tie for second place, two games behind the brooks when the Cubs squeezed through with a 3-2 victory over the Phillies in Philadelphia and the Braves made their home night inaugural a success by blanking Pittsburgh Pirates 4-0.

The Cubs had to come from behind with two runs in the seventh to win, while the Braves bolstered the four-hit pitching of Johnny Sain, won in easy fashion. Harry Brecheen, purchased from the Dodgers last Saturday, was the loser.

Cincinnati won its first victory in the current eastern swing by trouncing the Giants at New York 11-6. Although forced to seek relief in the eighth, veteran Bucky Walters registered his 102nd big league mound victory. Lead Shrinking.

Chicago White Sox saw the American League lead shrink to a half game when they dropped a 2-0 game to the Philadelphia Athletics while the Tigers were shading New York Yankees at Detroit 3-2.

The Sox slapped a four-game losing streak for the Mackmen as well as the four-game winning skein of the Tigers.

Although pasting Allie Reynolds for 12 hits, the Tigers had to score single runs in their last three innings to win.

Big Ted Williams rang a merry tune ringing out two homers and a single to beat Boston Red Sox to a 6-5 11-inning triumph over the Browns in St. Louis.

MONTREAL HOLDS ALL THE EDGE ON STAMPEDERS

Royals Need Only One Game to Capture Allan Cup and Senior Title

Toronto, May 7 (CP)—Montreal Royals had all the edge on Toronto Stampeders as the two great senior amateur teams prepared for tonight's fifth game of their best-of-seven series for the Allan Cup and the Canadian senior hockey title. Montreal leads 3-1, needing only one more victory to wrest the title from the westerners.

Calgary faces the task of winning three straight games if they are to retain the Canadian title they won a year ago over the old Hamilton Tigers, who were this season were eliminated by Montreal in the east final.

The only time in this final series when Calgary played it close, in contrast to their usual wire-open style, they won. But the westerners are sold on the defensive game and don't expected to play that way tonight. Manager Jack Arbour of the Calgary squad says their style they're accustomed to and he doesn't think they're going to change to score single runs in their last three innings to win.

Big Ted Williams rang a merry tune ringing out two homers and a single to beat Boston Red Sox to a 6-5 11-inning triumph over the Browns in St. Louis.

CHIPS

OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

ABIDE TO THE YOUNGER FELLOWS . . .

Listen, kids, over in England there are a number of little blokes like yourselves, who love to play games with their idea of a Saturday afternoon's fun as the game of softball or baseball, but when it comes to football they are setting up stumps and using a piece of board for a bat and whatever they can get for a ball, so they can play a spot of cricket.

Be that as it may. The fact makes no difference. They are kids just like you. They have their pals and their chums. They are young, eager, and looking forward to that you have had since the day you were born, and the chance to be left free life with the privileges that are their right to inherit.

But unlike you, they have passed through something which, please God, you will never be called upon to know, a lot of them were born amid the rumble of bursting shells and death pouring from behind the iron curtain of high-explosive skies, the sire of many of them, father and mother. Their daddies, a lot of them, died in the trenches and of war on the continent, or in the air battles or the bloody rubble of their homes after the Luftwaffe had completed their fiendish work.

The "playgrounds" of many of these kids have been the ruble-filled streets of the cities and towns in which they live. Some of them do not know the sweet fresh smell of growing grass. Their washed earth; the sweet-smelling pleasure that comes of wading in a creek with a bamboo pole for a hook. But they are not complaining. They are just like you and me because they know little else.

Today these little chaps and girls, like their parents and relatives are going through another harrowing experience. They have very few clothing. Food is hard to get. They are subsisting on an items just like they did in wartime. A lot of them have to huddle together in bed at night to keep warm. For there is not enough coal either fuel to go around. They go to bed in the dark, for there is not enough electric light.

They can't play with their dads and mammas in bright lights at week-end visits to homes. They can't spread the fannies on the floor and have their dads join them in reading the experiences of Dick Tracy, Steve Canyon, Mutt and Jeff and other famous characters. They don't know whether they will get that much needed milk the next morning.

And the most of them are going to school thinly-clad. They have not warm coats, sweaters, or windbreakers to wear. The snow has been very deep over in England. These steel little fellas plunged through icy drifts in threadbare clothing and badly worn shoes—or stayed home because they was no dry and stormy for them to go out.

This is where you can help these British youngsters of your. Ask father or mother if there is one of your old sweaters, windbreakers or overcoats around the house. You know, the kind you wore this playing shinny, football, or baseball last year. We'll bet you might find quite a few of these garments which have been laid aside. Ask mom to have them patched up, and cleaned. Then package them and get them ready for the clothing collection for the British Relief Letter which falls on May 14. And when the garments are ready write a note to that brave little guy overseas, who deserves everything you have and but has not had the chance. Scribble a few words of courage to him. He'll appreciate it, and you will get an answer back. How about it kids?

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

The boys of the Belleville Collegiate Institute are disposing with the softball side of the student body on Thursday night, and have arranged a show that is full of fun which should be highly entertaining. There's not a girl in the cast and the bobby-sox brigade of the school will be out front cheering their heroes on to football glory, instead of joining in the behind-the-footlights fun.

As we mentioned before the show is neat — but not gaudy. It will be a merry mixture of music, mirth and muscle, guaranteed garnished with artistry and ability. "The Clubbed Foot Night" and that is exactly what it is. The beardless ones (most of 'em) have gathered together a program that sees the vocal and instrumental talents; Paderewskis; Carusos; Dennis Days; and the muscular gymnastics that bespeak not only hours of intensive rehearsal but natural ability. It reflects a more than passing degree of credit on teachers and instructors.

There'll be high bars in music and muscle. There'll be solos, pyramids, the parallel bar quartets; trampoline demonstrations; group gymnastic numbers; mat work and not the least of all, the comedy in the fine hand of the school. Twenty numbers all told and not a dull moment. The only way to appreciate it is to see it, so that you may tell us we satisfied and very appreciative.

Kingston Ponies of the Border

Baseball League to play their 1947 home games in McGaffin Stadium on Wednesday, May 14, according to the official schedule released a few days ago. The Ponies face the Geneva squad and repeat again on Thursday, May 15, when they go to Watertown and are back home on Saturday against the same team.

In, the Monday columnar story of the Holiway family, the name of Bill Holiway, is "Toots" was inadvertently inserted instead of that of Brother Bill Holiwby. Bill went overseas during the early dark days of the war and remained until the bugles blew the cease fire.

Coach "Speedy" St. Louis announced yesterday that the first practice of the Kiwanis baseball league team will be held tonight at the Kiwanis Playgrounds, corner of Bridge and Bleecker Avenue. All juniors desirous of trying out are requested to get in an appearance, as early practices are all-important. The practice tilt will start between 6:30 and 7 o'clock. Everybody out lads, and make this year's squad a champion one.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, May 7 — (CP) — Although the hockey and curling are still echoing, the hockey clan is already reminiscing about the season just highlighting the incidents which slipped by almost unnoticed in the heat of battle.

Scotty (Leader-Post) Melville huddled with Chicago's acrobatic goaltender Emile (The Cat) Francis and one of the more facetious cases of bruising black Hawk defenceman Johnny Mariucci was the anecdote that emerged.

The scene was the Chicago Stadium the night of the famed brawl between Hawks and Detroit Red Wings. Referee King Clancy was caught by the whirlpool of players as well as a punch on the nose by a spectator.

Mariucci was lodging loud and vociferous complaints with Clancy and after one particularly vociferous one the King said:

"Mariucci, I don't see a "C" on your sweater — you're not the captain. I don't see an "A" on your sweater.— you're not the acting captain. Another word out of you and I'll wheel you off."

Mariucci knew — for the moment — when to stop and skated away silently.

But when Clancy called another penalty against Chicago Mariucci was in full cry.

Clancy had only sooner said, "I warned you" when the Eveleth, Minn., boy whipped up that pout of his sweater and there pencilled carefully on his underwear were the words "Fan me."

Clancy grinned and his thumb, which had begun to move in the direction of the cooler, dropped to his side.

Melville tells another one involving Canadians' general manager-coach Frank Selke, coach Dick Irvin and Jack Hamilton, president of the Regina's Queen City Gardens.

Hamilton provided the Montreal hockey club mentors with canvas bags for the stack of bills which spouted into the box office at the Gardens the night of the opening game of the Canadien-N.H.L. All Stars wrestling bout and offered to drive them to the station when they were hopping off for Calgary.

As they stepped out of the Gardens into the darkness Selke regripping the canvas tighter—muttered: "Fespers, what a place for a stickup!"

Hamilton, whose car was parked nearby, replied that hoped that they were in Regina and not Montreal when a figure appeared between them and the car.

Guarding the Saskatchewan's capital is honest, Hamilton whispered. "I'll go ahead; if anything happens you two better get out fast."

Then he strode toward the figure. It was the night watchman.

HAMLIN SCORES FOURTH STRAIGHT FOR THE LEAFS

Toronto Tallies Runs in Two Innings to Win by 5-4 Count

(By The Associated Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs continue's pitching department rose to the fore yesterday as Jersey City's Little Giants fell victim to Montreal's rookie righthander, Erwin Pallen, hurled shutout. In the only other game, Toronto's sophyed righthander, Luke Hamlin, twirled six-hit ball to chalk up his fourth straight victory.

Pallen, pitching leading Little Giants to a 14-0 whitewashing of the Red Wings, was garnered as many hits as the entire Toronto team. In all Kraut drove in four runs and scored three himself.

Pallen, Brooklyn chattel sent down for seasoning with Montreal, scattered 6 hits as he bolted the Royals 15 a 4-0 victory over Baltimore. The Royals made only four hits themselves but took advantage of five walks given up by Ray Poat and Les Mueller to score their runs.

Wildcats also cost Syracuse a 5-4 defeat by Toronto as the Maple Leafs took advantage of 5 walks given up by Dixie Howell to produce two big innings for all their runs. Walks and hits them tally three in the third and two in the sixth.

Plenty of Speed In Preakness For Jet Pilot

Baltimore, May 7,— (AP)— All 14 possible starters in Saturday's richest horse race in the world — the 59th Preakness — had their names banging at Pimlico today, and backfence gossip was that Jeepy winner Jet Pilot won't be longsome at the finish.

The speed horses from the Derby, and such others with early "tick" as King Ranch Colonel and Cornish Knight and Mitymite, who won the Survivor Stakes here yesterday, will be trying out at the Pilot from the opening gun this time. Another that might be added to that list is Contest from the Texas King ranch.

All the above in this heat — which will carry a record of 1411-140 grunt at 1 1-16 get to the post — also are making plans to get light and there and look Jet Pilot in the eye.

With all this in prospect, and the possibility that there'll be so many front-runners in this mile-and-three-sixteenths, no one will be left behind to bring up the rear.

Barbara Given "Frat" Pin Of Western College

London, Ont., May 7 (CP)—Barbara Ann Scott was the toast of the fraternity boys here yesterday and she also loved it. That's what the members of the Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity said too after they honored the diminutive World's Figure Skating champion at a tea dance where she was presented with a "Frat" pin by president John McNee of London.

Ottawa's pretty skating champion had accepted the title of "Sweetheart of the University of Western, Ontario" after winning the world figure skating title at Stockholm and she arrived here today, with her mother, as guest of the fraternity.

Tonight Barbara Ann was guest of the London Skating Club and Mrs. Charles Ivey at a dinner, afterwards going on an old-fashioned hay-ride—her first—with the boys of the fraternity.

The two-day visit of Miss Scott and her mother, during which they are house guests of president-designate Dr. E. G Hall of the university, ends tonight after they attend the Dominion Drama Festival performance.

Alternate Yearly Allan, Memorial Cup Game Series

Norman Dawe, elected vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, in Quebec yesterday, said the present system of alternating yearly in the East and West Allen Cup and Memorial Cup finals would stand. He was commenting on a defeated motion at the Association's meeting that the Allen Cup final be held two years in the West and one in the East and the Memorial Cup two years in the East and one in the West.

Leo Durocher, suspended for a year as manager of Brooklyn Dodgers, said Tuesday in Brooklyn he had received notification of reinstating to the club at the end of his banishment period. The Lip told reporters he had kept to the letter the terms of baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler's edict of suspension.

Jimmy Foxx, one of baseball's "greats" of a few years ago, said yesterday in Miami he would wind up his playing career there Thursday. He won the American League's most valuable player award with the Athletics in 1932 and 1933 and again with Boston Red Sox in 1938. He was the League's leading hitter in 1938 and 1938. Jimmy's ball career covered 24 years.

The royal and ancient golf club of St. Andrew's Scotland, unofficially acclaimed as birthplace of the game, had water trouble this week. The British Walker Cup trials are due th start on Thursday and recent rains have flooded the bunkers. The local fire brigade may be asked to pump them dry for the tournament.

Stylianos Kyriakidis, Greek runner who won the Boston Marathon in 1946 and finished tenth this year, yesterday asked for United States visa to send athletes from his country to the 1948 Olympic games in London. He said the laid which gave the Olympics to the world faced the possibility of staying out of them because of a shortage of equipment destroyed in the war.

Three Fort Erie merchants Tuesday donated trophies to be presented to the leading pitcher, leading batter and most valuable player in the newly-formed city team intermediate softball league. Canadian entrants in the loop are Fort Colborne, Fleet Aircraft of Fort Erie and King Edward Hotel.

William Charles Nicholson, 62, of Vivian, Que., one of the famous "Little Men of Iron", of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association Hockey team that defeated Winnipeg for the Stanley Cup in 1902, died Monday in Miami. He was also goalkeeper of Montreal Wanderers at one time.

Bowl-O-Drome Mixed League Winners Feted

The Lorne McDougall Insurance Associate Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Mixed Leagues played at the Bowl-O-Drome last winter, was formally presented to the winning team at a banquet held in the Dutch Mill on last Tuesday.

Mr. Lorne McDougall, donor, formally presented Mr. Walter Moore, captain of the Mayflowers, winners of the 1946-47 loop championship, with the handsome silver trophy.

Members of the team are: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hardwick, Miss Jean Moore and Mr. Jim White. Members will receive miniatures of the trophy.

Mr. McDougall in making the presentation congratulated the winning team, and went on to say that he, as an old bowler, was behind competitive sport. He liked the fact that ladies were interested and that they would continue on.

Prior to the banquet members of the league enjoyed bowling at the Bowl-O-Drome, thanks to the courtesy of manager George Barnes.

Sports Shorts from Britain

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 7 (CP)—Decision of the government-appointed national arbitration tribunal in raising the maximum winter wage of professional footballers from £11 ($44) to £12 and the maximum summer salary from £9 (about $36) affects only 150 of the 3,000 players in the four divisions of the English League.

First-division clubs which draw weekly crowds of 40,000 to 50,000 are practically the only ones who pay the maximum scale of £12 in winter, £9 in summer.

Silver-haired Jimmy Fay, players' union secretary, was "overjoyed" at the new but the point that tickled him most was the tribunal's grant of £7 as the top minimum winter salary, with £5 for summer play—the first time in history a minimum scale had been set.

"The fixing of the minimum means that at least footballers have been placed on a basis of security," he said. "The award means that after a long struggle any footballer can take up the game as a career which will guarantee a comfortable standard of living."

The new wage scale boosted the players' grant of £7 as the £2 since start of the 1945-46 season, is effective in August.

But settlement of the months-long dispute between the union and Football League is seen as a start to general improvement of conditions for the men who attract a total of 41,000,000 persons in all parts of the country.

Fay, who has battled for improved wages and conditions since 1929, now has plans for a pension scheme. The union argues many players are forgotten at the end of their playing days and are left with no money-making careers.

James Guthrie, players' union president, hinted action may also be on the question of players-transfer fees. He said "it is wrong for players to be bought and sold without them benefiting from the deal."

Ladie Medley of Toronto Greenbacks football team, finds Canadian soccer a little "robust".

The former Tottenham winger who married a Canadian girl, went with her to Canada to make a career and joined the Toronto club, has written to friends in England of his playing experiences.

"If you think second-division soccer is robust, you should see this over here," he wrote. "I've got a lovely black eye to remind me of it now."

Jockey Reg Black received a louder-than-ever ovation when he piloted home Lord Grimthorpe's Fortina in the Cheltenham Gold Cup, premier event of the Gloucester race meeting. His automobile broke down four miles from the course and Black ran the distance to reach the track in time.

Little Benny's Note Book

I sneezed all of a sudden while ma was reeding her new mistyry book, and she said, Do you have to startle a person just when an unistpecting caracter is about to be hit from behind at the bottom of the page, for land sakes?

Well jiminy, all that wasn't any ordinary sneeze, I said, and ma said, I should of known it wasn't that's exactly what I'm objecting to.

I mean it felt like an allergic sneeze, I bet I'm allergic to something. I said, and ma said, Now dont talk so rediculus, you've been sneezing all your life, from time to time, so why should it suddinly mean you're allergic?

Well gosh, ma, everybody's being allergic to some kind of dust nowadays, I said. Puda Simkins is allergic to the dust off of flowers, and G wizzickers look at Lucky Leroy Shooster, I said, and ma said, What about him?

Why, he's allergic to the dust off of feathers, so he cant sleep on pillows with feathers in them, and he dont even have to go errands to the market any more on account of all the feathers there, the lucky guy, I said, and ma said, it sounds very improbable, and anyway why should it affect your normal sneezing?

Because that's the second sudden sneeze I had today, and the first one was in school, I said. So I bet you anything I'm allergic to school dust. What's your opinion, teacher, ma, I said, and ma said, I'm not in a betting mood. If you're allergic to anything, it must be to not getting enough sleep, judging by your slow and rediculust attitude tonite I bring in the morning. So it might not be a bad idea to try adding 1 hour to bed earlier, if you really want to pursue the matter, she said.

The result being I didn't pursue it.

CHAPTER 9

"Come in a minute Gay, I want to see you."

Gay laid down the book she had been reading on the divan and followed April.

"I had cocktails with Hill," April began. "I met him on Fifth Avenue in front of the Virginia Club."

"I thought something had upset you," Gay said. "But I guess you had to bump into him sometime. New York is a small town when you're trying to avoid somebody."

April sat down on the edge of a chair still wearing her fur coat. Her hands were tense in her lap. Gay sat on one of the beds. Suddenly April asked:

"Do you know who owns a controlling interest in the Grandmother Lavender Soap Company?"

Gay gasped. "Why do you ask me that?"

"Don't evade," April said impatiently. "Just tell me the truth. Who is my sponsor?"

Gay sighed: "I suppose you had to find out sooner or later. But we'd hoped you wouldn't. Curt didn't want you to know."

"Then it's true what Hill said," April got up to walk the floor. "I guess everybody knew but me. You can imagine how I felt this afternoon when Hill told me that Dr Witt owned most of the stock. He said it must be nice getting a sponsor along with my divorce decree."

"The heel!" Gay exploded. "I hope you told him plenty."

"It was too astonished to say much of anything," April threw off her coat nervously. "I just got up and hurried home." She laughed shortly. "What a fool you've been not to have known sponsors don't just fall off trees into unknown fingers just so you'll pay them so much money."

Gay said soothingly: "Sit down darling and let me explain it all to you. Please don't get all stirred up about it. I suppose you're going to blame me for deceiving you too. I only did it for your own good."

April sat down, twisting her hands in her lap. "Oh, I know you wouldn't do anything to hurt me if you knew it, Gay. But this is a terrible shock."

"Here's the story in a nutshell" Gay began. "Dr Gay Curt De Witt called me and invited me to come over to town and have lunch with him. He said he wanted to talk about something regarding you. We met at the Engineers Club, and he asked me if I thought you had a recording voice that could go places if you had a sponsor. I told him I was certain of it."

"Then he told me he had bought a controlling interest in Grandmother's Lavender Soap and asked me to work out a plan to get your name mentioned and help him put it over without your suspecting he had anything to do with it. I went to Harley Jones, and you know the rest."

"Yes, I know the rest," April sighed. "I fell for it hook, line and sinker. Why I didn't suspect Curt, I don't know."

"It was the only way of helping you," Gay's eyes were troubled. "He knew you would be couldn't bear to see you worried about money when he has so much."

Avery liked a single woman, April smiled shakily. "And I dare say everybody who knows Curt is my sponsor thinks I am one."

"How could they?" Gay exploded, "Don't talk rot. After all, Curt just gave you the opportunity. Your singing brought in the fan mail. The sales of Grandmother's Lavender Soap have doubled since you went on the air. You've certainly paid your way. You don't owe Curt De Witt anything."

April said uncertainly. "I guess you're right. I have earned my salary, haven't I?"

"You certainly have," Gay assured her. "But you are working on a sales commission basis you'd soon be a millionaires. Curt was talking about it just the other evening when you were dressing. He thought when you signed your next contract you should sign on a commission basis."

April sighed with relief: "That makes me feel better, I have made good, haven't I? That helps me to feel not quite so much like a kept woman."

Gay breathed easier. It had all blown over much sooner than she had expected. She had thought April might be a great deal more difficult, with her deeply ingrained Virginia pride.

"Nobody but Curt would have thought of helping in just this way," April said then, smiling. "He is a sweet thing, isn't he? He gives so much, and asks so little in return?"

"That's my pet. And if you had the sense you were born with you'd marry the guy before someone else gets him. You like Curt De Witt don't come by the dozen these days."

April's eyes were gravely thoughtful. "I guess you're right. I think my mind is almost made up to marry him. He's been so good to me. I'd like to make him happy."

Gay jumped up excitedly: "Darling! Do you mean it?"

"Almost," April smiled wistfully. "I'm certainly weakening. I thought I could never believe in any man, but I can't imagine Curt ever changing, can you? He seems so reliable."

"No," Gay shook her red head. "He's the only man I've ever seen that I'd bet on. To meet a man with his qualities and a bank roll beside, is my idea of a heavenly break. Do you really think you might marry him, April?"

"I'm afraid so," April sighed, "if I keep on weakening. He's breaking me down with kindness." She got up. "If we don't have dinner right away, I'll miss my broadcast."

At dinner Gay asked: "Are you going to tell Curt you know he is Grandma? I wouldn't for awhile. I think he'd rather believe we still had you fooled."

"I think you're right," April said. "I think I will wait."

That night Cherry attended a party in the penthouse of the wealthy playboy, Si Winters. At least the newspapers still referred to Si as a playboy, although it was generally known he would never see fifty again.

In the afternoon Winters had taken Fifi Du Bois to Georgette for some gowns, and Lola and Cherry had madded some of their most expensive numbers for the occasion. Lola and his new flame. Lola had met him at the races at Saratoga the year before and he had invited her to call on him how she and Cherry happened to be invited to attend the party he was giving for Fifi after her opening at the Silver Moon that night. Fifi was a fan dancer from Paris.

Cherry was thrilled with the idea of attending a party at the Si Winters penthouse, as she had read often of his escapades and how generous he was with his friends. No one in New York entertained as expensively as Si. Brett Hobart and Lola's friend Tom Harrington had been included in Si's invitation.

Madame Georgette had loaned Lola and Cherry two of the most lavish evening gowns and wraps in stock to wear to the party, and she expected them to bring in new business from the Winters crowd in payment.

Cherry with her golden hair was in a severe black backless clinging chiffon, and Lola wore equally ravishing with her cash, in green chiffon. Before the party they went for facials and new hair do's to the Gaston of Paris Salon.

Cherry rode up in the elevator to Si's penthouse in their ermine wraps, no two decorators of the four hundred could match their aristocratic beauty or ability to wear clothes.

The party was in full swing when a butler announced Lola and Cherry. Si greeted them with usual warm nature, and led them to where Brett and Tom waited for them at the bar.

"You lucky stiffs!" Si had an arm around both their small waists when he took them to their seats. "How do you manage to get the two most beautiful models in New York? Brett, you get tired of these two little boys put Pop Si on the top of your list."

It was exactly as Cherry had pictured it, and her full red lips were parted with excitement and wonder. To think that she was now listed among the charmed inner circle that was invited to Si Winters parties! She decided he was really arrived. Pat Hastings and Virginia seemed very impressed.

A little later Lola suggested when Tom and Brett had wandered back to the bar and they were in a powder room:

"Let's poke around and see the rest of the place. Isn't it positively fabulous?"

"It's amazing," Cherry giggled. "I'm so excited I could die." Let's take a look from the terrace it we can find it. I don't want to miss anything."

Lola opened a door leading into the gymnasium, chatting as they looked around:

"Si just threw over Patsy Lloyd for Fifi, Patsy is a photographers model. Nice Kid. But I guess he got tired of her. The papers said they were engaged, but I don't know, I haven't seen Posey in a long time. She's sort of a quiet kid. I don't know how she got mixed up with Si. Maybe she loved the guy. He is sweet, even if he is getting a bit antique."

Lola missed her compact. "I'll be back in a second," she told Cherry. "I guess I left it in the powder room."

Cherry walked down a corridor and opened another door. A blast of cold air told her it led to the terrace. Then Cherry heard a voice.

"Stay away from he, don't come near me," a girl was saying almost incoherently. "I'm going to jump! You can't stop me!"

Cherry rose where she stood. She couldn't have made a sound to save her life. For the one poised on the railing of the terrace only a few feet away was a small figure.

It seemed hours to Cherry before her brain began to function so that she could move or cry out to the girl standing poised on the edge. Death ten floors below. Cherry's white face was a mask of horror.

Finally reason took the place of her fear and she found her voice to say as soothingly as possible:

"No, no you mustn't, Let—let's talk about it first. Wait—wait."

Slowly Cherry's trembling knees took her closer to the little coatless figure standing with her evening gown blowing wildly in the night breeze. Instinctively Cherry picked up the fur coat that had been thrown in a heap at the girl's feet. The girl watched her with wild unseeing eyes, and

NBC Fades Out Hope For Five Seconds

Hollywood, May 7 —(AP)— Radio network was invited again last night by one of its high-priced comedians, Bob Hope, and by him the silent treatment, briefly.

NBC quietly faded Hope off the air for about five seconds after he said to his guest star, Frank Sinatra: "I will be seeing you tomorrow night, Frankie, on your show."

A National Broadcasting Company spokesman said the action had been slated to delete the name of another network from his script but during his dialogue Sinatra heard the comic leading up to his reference to cut him off. Sinatra's new show will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting System. The NBC spokesman said it is their policy to avoid mention of other radio networks.

Barbara Ann At London — Barbara Ann Scott, now centre of a controversy concerning a car given to her by the City of Ottawa, is seen as she arrived by air in London, Ont., yesterday to be crowned "sweetheart" of the Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity. Left to right are Mrs. Clyde Scott, Barbara Ann's mother; John McRae, president of the fraternity; Mrs. E. G. Hill, wife of the president-elect of the University of Western Ontario; and Barbara Ann.

BARBARA ANN SCOTT MAY RETURN CAR TO CITY OF OTTAWA

A. BRUNDAGE

MAYOR LEWIS

SIDNEY DAWES

F. N. A. ROWELL

The executive committee of the Canadian Olympic Commission is meeting behind closed doors in Montreal to discuss whether or not Barbara Ann Scott, world champion of the women figure skaters, has jeopardized her chances of skating in the 1948 Olympics because she accepted the gift of a shiny new car from her home city of Ottawa. Avery Brundage, of Chicago, president of the U. S. Olympic Committee and member of the International Olympic Committee, has admitted he started the trouble when he called to the attention of J. Sigfrid Edstrom, of Sweden, president of the international committee, the matter of Barbara Ann's acceptance of the car. Mayor Stanley Lewis, of Ottawa, said Barbara Ann knew nothing of the gift, and that it came as a surprise to her. He quoted F. N. A. Rowell, a member of the Canadian Olympic Commission, as saying the gift had been approved. "The question of Barbara Ann Scott will come up at our meeting, and we will decide then what to do," said Sidney Dawes, new head of the Canadian Olympic Commission, who replaced the late J. P. Mulqueen. "I have nothing to say about it until after the meeting," he added.

Police Surprise Stenographer

Toronto, May 7 —(CP)—Police gave a Toronto stenographer the surprise of her life last night when she went to a police station and reporter someone had stolen a male acquaintance's car along with her purse, gloves and a parcel.

A sergeant led the girl to a nearby garage. Inside were, the car, purse, gloves and parcel. Then the officer told her the car was not owned by her friend but had been reported stolen. Police had recovered it.

Body of Youth Found Near Arden Shot Through Head

All Means of Identification Missing From the Body

Kingston, May 8 —(CP)— Investigation is under way today into the death of an unidentified youth, whose body was found Wednesday night on a farm north of Arden. He had apparently been shot through the back of the head by a bullet from a .22 rifle. It is believed he had been dead since Sunday. All identification was missing.

Lying beside the body was a .22 rifle identified as one taken from the store of C. W. Thornton of Arden during a break-in April 27. Two other guns taken at the time were missing. The body was surrounded with canned goods, cigarets, chocolate bars, also identified as part of loot from robbery. Mr. Thornton's missing sleeping bag beside which the body was lying, was covered with blood.

The dead youth is about five feet eight inches tall. It is believed he is between 19 and 23 years old.

He wore a soldier's uniform. His pockets were empty and the disc had been removed from identification bracelet on his arm.

The body was discovered in a cedar grove about 50 feet off a laneway which leads into home of Wilfrid Steele. Investigation is made by Willard Whitelock, a farmer who lives near by. He had gone through the bush as a short cut to board of neighbor whom he wanted to borrow a saw part.

Residents said the theory was that two persons took part in the Arden robbery.

Coroner C. C. Whytock of nearby Sharbot Lake and Provincial Police from Kingston have launched an investigation.

An autopsy performed by Dr. W. G. Hay, Queen's University pathologist, established that the trouble in the head had been fractured by the bullet which passed through the brain and lodged in the right cheek. Dr. Hay said that in his opinion the youth died Monday night.

Arden is 50 miles northwest of Kingston.

Judge Dismisses Action Against Milton Reynolds

Toronto, May 8 (CP)—Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven yesterday dismissed an action brought against Milton Reynolds, United States ball-point pen inventor, by Mrs. Gertrude M. Pickard of Toronto, on a claim that a contract to manufacture pens in Canada had not been carried out. Reynolds denied having any such contract with Pickard.

Mr. Justice Treleaven said that Pickard was "working for himself, hoping for a big fish, using small bait" and dismissed the $170,000 breach of contract action.

"Broadly speaking, Pickard hoped to get control of Reynolds to considerable lengths to get it," but was not asked to notify the defendant that he could supply the facilities for the manufacture of the pen in Canada," said the Judge, who heard the case in non-jury Assize Court.

Churchill Wants Downward Revision Britain's War Debts

London, May 8. (AP)—Winston Churchill joined the ranks of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton today in demanding a downward revision of Great Britain's war debts.

They he asked in a speech should Britain 'be the only debtor country in the world while those she had rescued and those she had conquered go into the future without having to draw the terrible chain of war debts behind them?"

Dalton set the keynote for a government drive for a reduction of British foreign obligations, calling for a scaling down of British war debts to U.S. when Tuesday night. Churchill in a ceremony at which he received the freedom of the City of Darlington, said: "When I consider how we defended and rescued these countries, I certainly feel that the question of liquidating some of these war obligations, which are quite different from commercial transactions, ought to be brought into the general line of lend-lease, that great bill of President Roosevelt, the most unsordid act which history records, and by all in the war together share sufferings and burdens and go equally into the realities of peace."

BRITISH HOUSE ARGUES DRAFT CUT ALL NIGHT

Votes 368 to 18 To Accept Amendment Reducing Service Of Draftees to One Year

London, May 8 (Reuters) — Weary, unshaven and bleary-eyed members of parliament left the House of Commons just before noon today after celebrating the second anniversary of VE-Day by breaking this parliament's record for a long sitting.

They met at 2:30 p.m. Friday and nearly 21 1-3 hours discussing the committee stage of the National Service (consumption) Bill. When they adjourned they had only disposed of just over half the clauses set as a target by Defence Minister Shinwell.

The Commons voted 368 to 18 to accept a government amendment cutting draftees' service from 18 months to one year. Winston Churchill angrily denounced the cut as intended to "placate" the Labor Party but the Labor members welcomed it.

Shortly before dawn the night members summoned to vote appeared without neckties and their hair ruffled and shoe laces untied. They had been sleeping in odd corners inside and outside the Chamber.

But in the Chamber women members showed they were as tough as the men. Some of them sat through the whole session.

When the final divisions were nodding, sprawling and showing obvious signs of wear, Labor's Harold Davies stood up and in a reverberant voice declared, "now I'm ready to vote for bonus up." The House became alert.

He then read from an education report and quoted a passage from Milton.

The House nodded and sprawled again as soon as he had finished.

During the night the opposition made several attempts to get the debate adjourned.

Although the debate had beaten its own record, set up in June last year, by 48 minutes, it was not short of battles long-drawn over. The Commons sat for 41 1-2 hours in 1881.

Outstanding figure in the House was Winston Churchill as Frank Soskice in immaculate white tie and tails, whose quips exited quiet comment. At 4:30 a.m. he left the Chamber and returned 40 minutes later freshly shaved and clad in well-pressed morning suit.

Slump Hits House Building In Toronto

Toronto, May 8 (CP)—High construction costs coupled with lack of suitable sites have contributed to a slump in house building in this city, plagued by housing shortage.

Building commissioner K. S. Gillies gave these reasons yesterday as he announced that only 75 applications were made in the past four months for the 1,215 permits to build new houses. The corresponding 1946 figure was 125.

On the other hand, he revealed that applications for commercial construction due to rehabilitation were increasing. Permits were issued for this type of construction to the value of $6,170,000 from Jan. 1 to April 30, compared with $4,880,000 in the 1946 period.

GEN. MACARTHUR BRANDS REPORT AS "ABSURD"

Claims He Did Not Guarantee To Hirohito Defence Of Japan By U.S.

Tokyo, May 8 — (AP) — Gen. MacArthur today branded as an absurdity a widely published report that he had told Emperor Hirohito the United States would guarantee the defence of Japan.

In a special statement, the Supreme Commander said the future defence of Japan would depend upon the provisions in the peace treaty.

The report, coming from authoritative Japanese sources, said MacArthur had given the pledge at Tuesday's meeting with the Emperor.

"If such statements have been attributed to me," MacArthur's statement continued, "their absurdity is so evident as to warrant no serious comment."

Until a peace treaty is signed, the general said, the security of Japan is "an obligation assumed by Allied nations and entrusted to their occupation force."

Afterward, MacArthur added, Japan's security may largely rest with the "United Nations or some similar collective agency" in which "the United States might well have a special interest in the maintenance of the strategic, geographic location of Japan in relation to the Pacific defence."

The report had not been published in Japanese newspapers, although it was printed widely abroad. Japanese editors said its story had been held up by American censorship.

ROWE LASHES OUT AT GOVERNMENT, CRITICIZES C.C.F.

Claims Quickest Way To Bring Depression Is to Talk About Possibility of One

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 8 (CP)—In a double-barreled attack on the government and the C.C.F. Party in the Commons yesterday, Hon. Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin - Simcoe) criticized the government's 1947-48 budget and warned CCF members that one of the quickest ways to bring on a depression was to talk continually about the possibility of one.

Saying there was nothing more "fearsome than fear," Mr. Rowe said the C.C.F. Party would hasten a depression by its continual talk about an economic recession. He made this statement after charging the government with "inefficiency, waste and extravagance" and with making "very little progress" in the way of normal and perhaps disturbing days that lie ahead.

The one-time conservative cabinet minister spoke in the budget debate as successor to Senator Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) charged the government with spending no plans on how it it would ward off a depression. Mr. Thatcher spoke yesterday.

The debate, resumed shortly after the House opened, was preceded by a statement from Prime Minister Mitchell that several hundred Polish soldiers now living in Canada within the next two weeks and will be put in touch with provincial authorities to serve as farm labor.

In the Senate already began of the government's main control bill and three Liberal members joined in an attack on continuing restrictions against Japanese citizens in Canada. The Senators were Arthur Roebuck (L — Ontario). Senator T. A. Crerar (L—Manitoba) and Senator W. Buchanan (L—Alberta).

Canada Second To U.S. in Atomic Development

McNaughton Announces $150,000 Grant for Research

Toronto, May 8 (CP) — Science now knows that from a few pounds of uranium and thorium energy may be released in amounts capable—if it can be properly used—of heating or lighting a large city for months, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton said today.

The evidence clearly shows that the possibilities for beneficial peaceful uses of atomic energy are "very substantial indeed," the chairman of Canada's Atomic Energy Control Board said in an address prepared for delivery to the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Gen. McNaughton added that it seems to be the consensus of those best informed "that the application of atomic energy in special circumstances may come within a decade and that large scale harnessing of atomic energy for coal-derived power may require several decades."

Atomic Power May be Reality Within Decade

Hope Fades For Early Recovery Of Eleven Bodies

Malartic, Que., May 8 —(CP)— Hope faded today for early recovery of the bodies of 11 gold miners trapped here April 29 in No. 4 shaft of the East Malartic Gold Mines.

Edward Futterer, chief consulting engineer in charge of recovery operations, said no progress has been made in the 24 hours up to noon today. It was reported extensively yesterday that the tenacity might be brought out of the mine "within 48 hours."

"It is in the hands of gods," Futterer said. "We thought yesterday we might get the water all out of No. 4 shaft and get into the shaft, where the bodies are, within 48 hours. But the two big pumps we brought into operation are not yet in full operation and we are unable to report any progress in the last 24 hours.

"We can't say now when we'll have the water pumped out and when it is pumped out we have no idea when we will be up to the level in No. 4 shaft. Any hope that we might get the bodies out so far or three days seems to be gone. No person can say when it will be."

Soft Music Soothes Pre-Surgery Patients and Helps to Conquer Fear

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 8—(CP)— Soft music, "Tea for Two" or "Blow Top Blues" — it's too rousing," the nurse told a young war bride awaiting anesthetic surgery at the Manhattan Beach Veterans' Hospital. "Hillbilly or waltz?" she asked. A waltz it was.

This latest innovation — music soft and sweet — is being used with great success to relieve the heightened sensations induced by fear of surgery. The idea is not new. Dentists have long ago experimented with it with excellent results.

The result has been so successful at Manhattan Beach Hospital that every veteran undergoing an operation there can pick from a long list of favorite songs for the ether.

Several veterans found "operation" a small pleasant surprise because they couldn't hear the dull clink of the instruments for the music's routine operation. Many found the soft strains of a Strauss waltz united their nerves during local anaesthetics.

Doctors at the hospital, believed to be the only veterans installation in the United States where music can get an aesthetic operation, are so keen about the idea that they believe that music will become an integral part of every operating room in the near future.

Police Blotter

Taxi Fare Departs Without Goods

Just what connection there is between a mantel radio, an overcoat and a child's doll is what a driver for Poole's Taxi is trying to figure out. The above articles were left in the taxi by a passenger who disappeared when an officer of the law put in an appearance. According to police it is believed the articles discovered in the taxi were stolen.

Car Masked Man

Mrs. H. S. Rollins, Church St. reported to police that Wednesday evening she had been confronted by a masked man while returning to her home. She reported the incident to police giving a description of the man. Officers cruised about the Church Street area in the police cruiser and although catching sight of a man fitting the description given by Mrs. Rollins, the man disappeared down a railroad track.

Cash Donations to British Flood Relief Badly Needed; Practically None Received

The British Flood Relief Campaign in Ontario ends on May 15. By that time the resident of the province will likely have contributed tons of clothing and substantial amounts of cash for the stricken burdened people of Britain.

Wednesday, May 14 is the date of collection of clothing for Britain in Belleville and surrounding residents have already packaged last Sunday's and are awaiting the collectors' trucks Funds Weak, However

But cash donations to purchase vitally needed food for the under-nourished Britishers are as equally important as clothing. Donations have been very slow to come into city banks and The Ontario Intelligencer Office.

There are many people no doubt who will not be able to give garments to the Campaign. They can, however, dip into their purses and contribute small or large amounts of cash. But to date, the cash donations have been conspicuous by their absence.

There is not much time left. As was said before the campaign closes next Thursday, May 15.

Food Scarce

Food is very scarce in Britain. Vital foodstuffs are practically impossible to get. Every cent collected by Canadians will be devoted to the purchase of these, urgently needed food supplies for British Isles and their parents.

Mr. Fred Deacon, of Deacon Brothers Ltd., here, who recently returned from Britain, stated in an interview, "If there is anything Canadians can do for the British people, it is to send parcels of food. It is needed as much as ever in wartime But the important thing is to "Do it now."

And Mr. Deacon, who travelled extensively through the British Isles knows whereof he speaks.

Act Now

The Flood Relief Campaign Committee asks the utmost confidence in the residents of the city. They feel that one more, the appeal for cash and the manitarian cause will not fail on deaf ears.

One dollar will work wonders for the hungry stomachs of war-burdened Britishers.

So if you haven't contributed your cash donation, do it now. Leave it in any bank or at The Ontario Intelligencer. You will be given an official receipt on the spot. And all contributions are tax-exempt.

Labor Party Retains Seat

Jarrow, England, May 8 (Reuters)—The Labor Party today retained the seat in the Jarrow by-election, caused by the death of Ellen Wilkinson, with a reduced majority.

Voters at this shipbuilding town, described by Miss Wilkinson as the "town that was murdered" returned William Alfred Fernyhough, ex-miner and Trade Union official, with 20,584 votes against Conservative William Scott's 13,078 and Independent Socialist Leonard Moody's 1,114. The Labor majority was 7,618.

London, May 8 —(CP)— A new civil servants' organization, drawn from employees of the postal department, and called the "Postal Service Recreation Association" has been formde here with G. W. Southcott as president.

Kiwanis Party At the 'Centre' Much Enjoyed

The "County Pair" arranged by the top-quarter roster of the Kiwanis Club under the chairmanship of Jack Boan and his co-chairman Mrs. Harry Brown was held at the Kiwanis Centre last evening and it was probably the best of the many social gatherings that have been held. It seems that the energy of the committees are nearly exhausted as to entertainment but Jack and his able cohorts put on a real show and the thanks of the club were tendered to the President Jack White at the conclusion of the program.

Admission was nothing but it cost a lot to get out. Coppers were the order of the day as change and bingo, numbers and crown and anchor were given a great play. The hardest working member of the corps was Bob Murdock, who called the penny throw game and he paid out his little candy bars like a veteran. A very exciting as to whether the pennies covered the spaces. Alderman Ford did a rushing business with the "Old Army Game" as did Ralph Chung With the Wheel. As usual bingo received the greatest play with Harold Bateman and Harold Carruthers calling the numbers. Dave Price was Master of Ceremonies.

Gummed up Works

The assembly then proceeded upstairs where a dance was conducted with Bill Hawie at the piano. Later a "caller" arrived and with Don LaFrance on the violin a real old fashioned square dance was held but Jimmy Cowan was inadvertently left to gum the works and Tommy Carruthers was not much help. The highlight of the evening came when Jack Both released on the dance floor a small porkerwith instructions that a woman had to catch it. Mrs. Bessie Marsh must have been practising for because she easily snared the piglet but was compelled to let it handsome compact for her effort. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Clapp won the pot in the guessing of the cake a flashlight and Mrs. Clapp a bouquet of roses.

On arrival at the door the ladies were given a number and the men had to buy the lunches and then have lunch, with the lady whose number was in the box. This was a grand way to mix the crowd up and at the same time provide a great deal of amusement. Mrs. Bessie Marsh was again lucky when she held the winning ticket on a blanket donated by Don Stanton. Wally Warner donated the ice cream and Aubrey Coe sent down a few cases of party wear which enjoyable and the members are looking forward to another gathering that will be directed by the second quarter of the roster.

Industrial Commission Asks Options be Taken up on Docter Property for Industrial Site

City progress toward the taking up of options on the Docter property to the east of the corporation, 60 acres of which has been recommended purchased as an industrial site for industry wishing to locate in Belleville, was the principal topic of discussion at the regular meeting of the Industrial Commission held Wednesday evening.

Seven members of the commission were present, including Chairman Robt. A. Pringle, G. A. Freeman, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Lorne McDougall, Harry Rollins, Mayor Frank Pollwell, Alderman Claude Tice and C. H. Scott, public utilities manager.

In starting discussion on the industrial site project, Chairman Pringle pointed out that the Industrial Commission had recommended the purchase of the project and the ratepayers at the last municipal election had voted the sum of $25,000 for this purpose. Options Expire May 15th.

"The options on this property will expire May 15th and it is now up to the city to take up the options and supply the necessary funds," he said.

Mayor Pollwell returned that the by-law for the purchase of the property was being prepared.

Upon completion of the purchase of the property it is intended that a railway spur line will be built to serve industries which might locate there and also to serve the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Corporation.

President Welosser said.

Chairman Pringle welcomed G. A. Freeman, Chamber of Commerce president, to the meeting, pointing out that the commission would be glad to do anything to assist the chamber in any way.

In reply Mr. Freeman expressed his appreciation to the commission and assured that more is being done toward attracting industry to Belleville than many of its residents appreciated.

Representatives of the local commission will make a trip to New York City with the view of interviewing American industrialists who have plans of establishing branch factories in Canada. The trip will be made around June 1st it was stated.

It was voted that the Industrial Commission place an advertisement in Fraser's Canadian Trade Directory.

THIRTY BODIES AWAITING BURIAL DURING STRIKE

Employees Of The City Of London Take Over Protection of Policeman

London, May 8 — (CP) — More than 30 bodies lay awaiting burial and garbage collected in streets and courtyards as the strike of employees of the City of London continued today.

The strike began over promotion of a fish market policeman and eventually involved street cleaners, grave diggers, and many others employed in the milk-square section of London that contains the financial district, law courts, newspapers and the Billingsgate fish market, seat of the trouble. The strike began last week.

The cemetery official said yesterday 25 to 30 bodies were awaiting burial up to that time and the undertakers' ministry expressed concern both as to the bodies and the garbage collection.

Sailors have been put to work loading and lowering the pictures que Tower Bridge to prevent the strike affecting traffic on the Thames above the main dock region. Bridge attendants also are affected.

Meanwhile more coal mines were to be reopened today following breaking of a wildcat strike of power workers which made underground work impossible.

Motorist Fined $20 and Costs For Careless Driving

Found guilty on a charge of careless driving, John J. Stewart, Picton, was fined $20 and $22.35 costs in county Magistrate's Court Thursday morning by Magistrate T. T. Wills.

The accused originally was charged with dangerous driving as result of a motor accident just east of the city when the car which he was driving went out of control and over several times on the highway. The charge was later reduced to careless driving. The accused was represented in court by Fred L. Ward, K.C., of Picton.

Court proceedings were of a comparatively short duration as with Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan being confined to his home through illness, several of the cases listed for the docket were laid over until another court.

A charge of dangerous driving against Ernest M. Lucas, Belleville, was laid over until Monday, May 12., at Marmora, while Edward O'Shaughnessy, city, up on a theft charge, was also remanded with bail being set at $200.

Louis Lahorre, Trenton, paid $17.50 on a careless driving charge and an additional $4.50 for failure to produce a driver's permit.

Rising Waters In New Brunswick Watched Closely

Fredricton, May 8 (CP)—Inhabitants of the St. John River Valley watched the rising waters of the 300-mile stream apprehensively today as leaden skies continued to dump a cascade of rain on already drenched New Brunswick.

However, the weathermen predicted that the heavy showers would cease later today and be followed by a cold front over most of the province.

At the provincial capital the water level passed the 20-foot mark above the summer low and it still was rising more than one inch every hour. There were similar reports from Woodstock, 60 miles upriver, although the Meduxnekeag, which flows into the St. John at that point was receding.

There were no reports of serious damage but many cellars of homes along the river banks were flooded.

Icebreaker on Way To Release Freighters

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 8. (CP)—The 10,000-ton icebreaker Mackinaw today was reported on the way to help release ten big lake freighters held fast in an ice jam in Lower Lake Erie. Some of the ships carry cargoes of automobiles bound for Buffalo and other United States ports.

United States coast guard spokesman described the ice jam as the greatest since navigation opened a month ago and the heaviest in years.

They described the ice mass as jammed so heavily in some sections that it is "clear to the bottom." Early reports from the district of Niagara River the jam extends 20 miles ot into Lake Erie.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 8 —(AP) — Oils, spurred by bright earnings expectations, led today's recovery in today's stock market although gains were failed to edge out of the losing ranks.

Before the bell sounded desirable blocks, dealings were relatively slow from the start. While gains of fractions to a few points or so were well distributed near the fourth hour, numerous losers persisted.

Standard Oil (N. J.) pushed up about two at the best to a 1947 top. General Motors opened off 1,700 shares, off 1, then steadied.

Laggards included Chrysler, Bethlehem, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, Glenn Martin (at a year's low), American Telephone, Dow, Du Pont and U. S. Gypsum.

Distillers Seagram, with a gain of 1/4 at 21 3/4, was the exception among Canadian issues marked by fractional losses. McIntyre gave up 1/4 while Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker each eased ½.

Health Minister Martin Speaks At Deseronto

Deseronto, Ont., May 8. (CP) —The issue today is not between peace and war, but between peace and the destruction of mankind, Health Minister Martin said in an address here last night.

Speaking at the annual spring dinner of the Deseronto Chamber of Commerce, he said the aim of modern statesmanship was to bring about amicable settlement of disputes.

"It is the belief of the people of the world that makes a success of all institutions.

Canadians should consider themselves citizens of the world, he said. Canada held a place among the nations of which all Canadians should be proud. To keep that position and to make a contribution to the world necessitated co-operation between the provinces.

Directing part of his remarks to Nelson Green, chief of the Mohawk Indian band at nearby Tyendinaga Reserve, he said the federal government would fulfill its obligations to Canada's Indian population.

MACLEAN TAKEN TO PRISON

Hamilton, May 8 (CP)—Donald MacLean, 69-year-old former employer of the Hamilton Street Railway Company, was in prison at Kingston Penitentiary to serve a five-year sentence.

He was given concurrent sentences as an accessory after the fact in the torso-slaying a year ago of his son-in-law, John Dick, and for stealing money and tickets from the Street Railway Company.

As he was led out of Hamilton's Barton Street jail he told a detectives:

"I have five years ahead of me and I guess I'll have to make the best of it."

WOMAN TEACHER IS BOSS AT 26 OF 82 SCHOOLS

Regina, (CP) — Only woman school superintendent in Canada, 26-year-old Marion Scribner, in charge of 82 schools in the southwestern ranchland of Saskatchewan, is considered "one of the boys" by her colleagues.

Probably the youngest person in the Dominion to hold such a post, Miss Scribner became the Gull Lake School superintendent last July after four years as principal at Wapella, Sask. Previous to that she spent four years at the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, graduating in arts and education.

While attending a course in education with 59 male superintendents of the province last winter, the men treated her as an equal, the attractive brunette said in an interview here.

Intent, despite childhood on becoming a teacher, Miss Scribner said she "always knew women could be satisfactory school superintendents as 85 per cent of the teaching personnel of the province is women."

Before she took over the duties of supervising Grades one to 12 in schools in the province, women teachers were invited to "apply for higher administrative posts," she said.

"Being young and a woman would seem to have been a disadvantage in getting teacher cooperation in the Gull Lake area," said Miss Scribner who comes from Fillmore, Sask. The response of the ratepayers and trustees had been "more than gratifying" and she "enjoys the work very much."

Although at first she missed the contact of the classroom, she realized that she had the opportunity to "more accurately have a finger on the pulse of education."

Urging more publicity on educational problems, Miss Scribner writes a column on such matters for the Gull Lake weekly newspaper.

Wren Now Editor Of Frontier News

Timmins, Ont., (CP)—Georgina Murray, former reporter on the Timmins Daily-Press, now is an editor in her own right. Her frontier newspaper ,the Alaska Highway News, reaches some 1,000 subscribers every week.

British Columbia-born, Miss Murray comes from a long line of newspaper men. She has the pioneering spirit that was common to Canadian women a century ago and that fits right into the fast-growing, fabulous north country.

Nine years ago she was acting social editor of the Daily Press. Then she moved to the CBC and from there joined the W.R.C.N.S. While she was in the Navy, her father started the Alaskan Highway News. It was printed in Vancouver and flown north to Fort St. John in the northernmost corner of British Columbia.

But as soon as Georgina was out of the service, the printer's ink in her blood began to boil. She set out to learn the linotypers and set up a printing plant. Early in 1946, the first issue of the News came off the presses in Fort St. John.

Today she is telling the story of the impending boom period for Canada's new north country. She is busily engaged in convincing big business men and advertising agencies of this boom and points to the rapid growth of her newspaper as indication of the rising prosperity in Canada's northwest.

A graduate of the University of California in 1935, she started newspaper work in Lillooet, B.C., her home town, and was one of the first women correspondents in the British Columbia Legislature press gallery.

Gordon Selfridge Of London, Dies

London, May 8 —(AP)— H. Gordon Selfridge, Wisconsin-born founder of a London merchandising fortune, died today at his home. He was 85.

In 1909, however, he established the first department store in Europe — Selfridge's on Oxford Street, London — and soon became known as "The Marshall Field of England."

His death came after a short illness of bronchial pneumonia, at his home in Putney, fashionable residential district of southwest London.

For three years after Selfridge opened his London store, he had an uphill climb, frequently his competitors predicted that his efforts to "Americanize" British merchandising methods would fail. But the criticism redounded to his benefit as publicity, and Londoners flocked to the only store in which they could buy a pin or a gramophone.

Two Years Ago and Now

Two years have passed since on May 8, 1945, Germany surrendered and the most devastating war in history, World War II ended in Europe, was officially at an end. Three months later her partner in aggression, Japan, gave in.

In these two years since Europe started out on the work of reconstruction, there has been the evidence on every hand of the effect of the titanic struggle on every phase of the life of nations and of the people who had which came to the hands of the peoples of the world when the guns ceased fire in Europe has been stupendous and the intensity of interest in the events of the two years indicate how deeply the world was affected by war.

On this day a veteran might ask himself what one of his fallen comrades would say and think were he able to come back to see the great accomplished since that momentous day of the war's end.

No other war in history so shook the world. Death and destruction on a vast scale had been wrought throughout these six years of strife. In the first sudden silence which greeted the close of hostilities, a man who had given up his life in the struggle for the maintenance of freedom and right would live in the full knowledge that peace, at last, had been achieved.

Today it would be different. He might witness the guerrilla struggle in the mountains of Greece. He might hear the ugly sound of a riot in Trieste. Elsewhere there might be a political execution. And almost everywhere, hunger.

Despite two years of peace Europe is still in a grievous state, he would see.

He would find that the countries had fallen into two distinct groups, one under influence of Soviet Russia and the other aligned with the Western Allies. He would find old hatreds still reigned and new suspicions gathered.

The two arch-types of fascism were dead —Mussolini, certainly so and Hitler almost beyond a reasonable doubt. Many of the war criminals were dead, having been executed for their deeds.

But, why, he might wonder, if the rest of the defeated people had seen the error of their ways, was the great outcry directed in Germany only a few weeks ago against the destruction by Britain of the defences of Heligoland. Were they thinking how difficult it might be to refortify? And how about ugly demonstrations against British troops in Italy short months ago?

Perhaps then he might turn his attention to the hope that he knew would find that the Britain who stood alone against the enemy before the tide of war turned was not enjoying the richly-deserved fruits of victory. Economic problems have her after her six years of stupendous effort and now even the elements had dealt a crippling blow in the bitter winter and flooded spring just past.

But perhaps after all this he might still have hope. There was the unalterable fact. The war had ended. That meant something. Nations feel keenly the strain of conditions that raged for so long and will continue to feel it. The mighty impact of the embattled nations in the war years left results it will take long to repair. In that he sees a hope that the world in its knowledge of what war tears down has had the sad experience that will cause it to be heedful and avoid any repetition of such a tragedy.

At this time the memory goes back to the men who fought and conquered and to those who gave their full measure of loyalty to truth and freedom and won an immortality of fame for their deeds in preserving the rights of man and mankind against tyranny, and aggression. If one who gave all on the field of battle, in the air, or on the sea, could come back he would find returned men striving their best efforts to the solution of the numerous problems at home for the reconstruction of the world along the lines of a durable peace, he would see them occupying places of honor and trust, performing their daily task and playing their manly part in the life of their country. These veterans having played their glorious role during the war are playing their part in the time of peace as a veteran can do.

Crippled Children Colony

A colony is being developed in Australia, where crippled children are being mentally equipped to take their place in society. It is a 26-acre "farm hospital" at Campbelltown, New South Wales.

The children who go to the farm home make mental and physical progress that astounds everyone. They learn to do things for themselves and are encouraged by the company of children who have similar handicaps. They live, go to school and play with other crippled children in the best possible conditions.

The farm was established in 1939 when a two-story home and farm land was donated by the New South Wales Society for Crippled Children. During the war, staff shortages were a handicap, but an ambitious set of blueprints is now becoming a reality. Most of the produce to feed the children is grown on the farm.

Physiotherapists treat the children on the farm, and take them to city doctors. Plans provide for a resident doctor and dentist. The children have a resident school-teacher appointed by the Department of Education.

Wanderlust

Come spring, come wanderlust.

We like to think of Henry Thoreau, who, when asked if he had travelled much, replied, "I have travelled widely in Concord."

There, it seems to us, is the solution to this perennial wanderlust — to adventure out into the familiar and find the unknown in the known. Thoreau's Concord neighbor, Emerson, who shocked the scholars of Harvard by telling them:

I ask not for the great, the remote, the romantic; what is doing in Italy or Arabia; what is Greek art, or Provencal minstrelsy; I embrace the common, I explore and sit at the feet of the familiar, the low. Give me insight into today, and you may have the antique and the future worlds.

And it was Thoreau himself, who derived the word "saunter" from "Sainte Terre," or Holy Land, so that a saunterer, he said, was one who made every walk a pilgrimage to the Holy Land that lies about us, hidden from the dull, habitual eye.

It was not isolationism or provincialism the Concord writers taught. Their thoughts were world-wide. They knew more than most scholars about the antique and future worlds.

But they knew that wanderlust is only the heart's desire for a new heaven and new earth that have nothing to do with geography, says Christian Science Monitor.

New Port in Africa

A great new harbor is to be built in Tanganyika at a cost to Britain of $16,000,000. This will replace what is now only a tiny native village on a lonely lagoon.

The site was chosen by a commission of United Kingdom dock experts sent out last month to survey the territory as the best point of serving the big ground-nut producing areas now being developed in this part of Africa. Their recommendation has been accepted by the United Kingdom government and work is to begin at once on a plan which will provide a port capable of almost unlimited expansion and big enough to shelter the largest ships, remarks U. K. Information Office.

Profitable Utilities

Edmonton's five utilities continue to make a noble contribution to the financial health of the city. During the coming year they are expected to turn in nearly $1,211,000 to the city's treasury, within some two thousand dollars of last year's contribution.

The utilities pay two taxes to the city—a franchise and property tax, $445,000, and a five percent revenue tax, $388,000. After paying these, they expect to have a joint surplus of $377,000, and this goes to the city also, Edmonton Journal remarks.

An accessory which will be seen at the British Industries Fair is the "Preset" clock device which, when set at the required time, will switch on the radio at any moment desired and switch it off when the selected programme ends. It can be added to any AC radio set.

MUSCLE AND MIND

Some tasks there are that strength require.
Their sole demand is bodies stout.
But strength at common rates men hire,
For it's abundantly about.

But those with strength alone content,
As delvers life-long will remain;
Their years at wearying labors spent,
Their dreams of fame and fortune vain.

Who would the greater stations earn
And high in men's esteem would rise,
Must early show the will to learn
And grow by study to be wise.

Boy, gather knowledge while you can.
Get all that school and college teach,
And when you've grown to be a man
The heights of glory you may reach.

UNSOLVED MYSTERY

Rangoon, May 8 — (AP) — The loss of the 1,030-ton ship Sir Harvey Adamson, which disappeared in the Andaman Sea off the Burma coast three weeks ago with 250 persons aboard, was written off Wednesday as another "unsolved mystery of the sea."

"We may never know her fate and that of her passengers and crew," a high naval officer said "A strong southeast hurricane was blowing at the time she signalled and if she hit trouble any wreckage soon broke up and was never be found."

Kitchen Theatre Popular Spot In Unique Library

BY JEAN THOMPSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto (CP)—On an old treasured chair, a reader sits in Toronto's unique in Canada for the simple reason that it is a house—not a building especially constructed for the purpose it serves. Step inside and there is a living room full of furnishings, the rooms are lined with books, a kettle is in a picture gallery and back kitchen a stove is there.

Grown-upe work in it all day, but it really comes to life in the afternoon and on Saturday when children come to get books and put on stories on the stage.

Only librarians keep even more youngsters away from Boys and Girls House of the Toronto Public Library. An annual circulation of 118,000 for the house itself is not to be sniffed at for the metropolitan area by 33 children's sections in 25 branch libraries, public schools and settlements supervised from the main house.

Begun as an experiment 18 years ago when the library received about $1,000 more than an eye to future expansion, the informal, unregimented atmosphere of a home was to be maintained at home. Specialization and departmentalization in the large room have permitted the development of circulating, reference and picture collections and a separate picture collection and study room.

Theatre Is Popular

Dramatization of Grimm and Andersen fairy tales, of Pinocchio and Robin Hood jam the Kitchen Theatre to capacity of 150. The children love it.

There was the solemn, silent four-year-old who, when told Kitten in "Three Little Kittens," "How did you get on?" he was asked.

They said I was the best," he whispered.

"What did you do?"

"I purred."

Children are free with comments, either to the librarians or each other.

"I am renewing this book because I like it, because I read it yet," said one seven-year-old.

"The best stories in the whole world are in this house, in the library," said another small boy looking over the animal story section.

The library's stock has been built up by a fundamental group of books to which are added new titles as they appear in their worth. This discrimination fosters the development of preferences in reading. The house's circulation is divided roughly into two-thirds fiction for boys and non-third fiction, and high-calibre fiction at that—right book and the right child together is a great and rewarding job.

ROWE LASHES OUT

Joining in the budget debate in the Commons Mr. Rowe said that, in effect, the whole question whether the government was taxing in proportion to the national income, or whether the proportion was over-taxing, despite the fact that the national income was now higher than before the war.

The current taxation was now 20.48 per cent of the national income against a ratio of 8.55.

Mr. Rowe said the government's total tax reduction this year would be $250,000,000 or seven per cent rather than the approximately 14-per-cent cut which Mr. Abbott announced was the effective this year in personal income taxes.

The total reduction in taxes dropped to 10 per cent when one took into account the fact that close to 50 per cent of the people now in burden was indirect levies.

Mr. Rowe said the "little man" had not been given a fair deal" in the budget, with indirect taxes 50 per cent higher than in pre-war years. The budget offered practically no relief to men in the low income brackets.

There was no relief for those who did not make enough to pay income taxes. The group hardest hit by the 10 per cent cut in personal income taxes, he said, were those in the low income brackets, who did not make enough to pay income taxes. The group hardest hit by the 10 per cent cut in personal income taxes, he said, were those in the low income brackets, who did not make enough to pay income taxes. WINS DIVORCE . . . SHE'S STILL HIS SECRETARY

The question: "Can a wife be her husband's secretary?" was given a new twist in Chicago's Circuit Court when Mrs. Ruth Cole, 34, received a divorce decree from her husband, Glen, 36. With the decree came the following stipulations: (1) he would move from their home; (2) he would pay alimony and support for their three children; (3) that she would continue her work as his secretary and (4) that his visits to their home would be of a strictly business nature. Mrs. Cole, LEFT, is shown taking dictation from her husband, RIGHT, while their children, Gilbert, 15, James, 2, and Ronald, 14, look on.

liam Shoniker, of Trenton. The Nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Dean D. A. Cullnane.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was very lovely in her gown of gleaming white satin, fashioned with a train. Her floor length veil fell from a headdress of lilies of the valley, and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and bouvardia, with stream-ers of white satin.

Miss Eileen Jordon was her sister's maid-of-honor, gowned in orchid taffeta with matching shoulder-length veil and carrying a nosegay of Sweetheart roses and sweetpeas; while Miss Dorothy Jordon acted as bridesmaid wearing a gown of jonquil yellow taffeta with matching shoulder-length veil and a nosegay of Sweetheart roses and sweetpeas.

The groom was ably supported by his twin brother, Mr. Gerald Shoniker and by Mr. Patrick Jordon, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Mr. John Delvah and Mr. Patrick Brummeld.

Organ music was played by Miss Marie MacDonald and during the offertory Mr. Edward Brown, of Belleville, sang "Panis Angelicus" by Cesar French, and "Schubert's Ave Maria".

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McNab, 138 Lorne Avenue, uncle and aunt of the bride. The bride received in a gown of flowered sheer with a corsage of Talisman roses and the mother of the groom wearing a black and white print ensemble and a corsage of yellow roses.

A buffet luncheon was served to the guests, when toasts were proposed to the bride, by Rev. Dean Cullnane and Mr. J. J. McNab, to which the groom suitably responded.

For a wedding trip to Western cities the bride chose a tailored suit of poudre blue with navy accessories and a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Following their return Mr. and Mrs. Shoniker will reside in Kingston, Ont.

Hamilton Speaker Addresses Youth Fellowship Session

"The Gospel is not only a printed word on white paper but it is living Power—it is Christ in the heart," stated the Reverend Clarence Sawyer, of Hamilton, as he addressed the closing session of the Christian Youth Fellowship of the Bethel Church of St. United Church.

The speaker, who is leader of the Youth for Christ movement in Hamilton, and is a gifted musician, pianist, writer and composer, held the large audience in the grip of his magnetic personality and the forthright earnestness of his message as he told of the power of God to save from sin and being made in the youth gatherings held in Hamilton and Toronto.

The Apostle Paul declared that the Gospel was the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes, and he was not ashamed of it," pointed out the speaker. "Paul was so full of the Gospel and so proud of it that he opened up his heart and told the Roman people of the Roman governor.

"I wonder why it is that so many Christians are ashamed of the Gospel of Christ. Perhaps it is because there are too many inconsistencies in their lives. They are powerless to lead others to a saving knowledge of Christ because they have not given God a chance to fill their own hearts.

"Many people make a decision for Christ and then sit back comfortably, assuring themselves that they are saved from hell and everlasting condemnation. But salvation is a day by day experience," stressed Mr. Sawyer. "We need to be saved from sins every day. If we let Him, Christ gives us the victory over personal habits, bad temper, malicious tongues. Full salvation means more than ninety per cent, of your best, not ninety-nine and ninety-tenths.

"People like it when I talk about a hopeless drunk being saved but they don't like it so well when I talk about them being saved from selfishness, gossiping meanness, quarrelling and the like. There is no one who knows your religion better than they your wife. If salvation does not make you a better husband, a better wife, a better carpenter, giving all the time and energy you owe to your employer, it isn't good religion."

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Mr. Eric C. Naylor, president of the Belleville C.Y.F. The opening prayer was given by Mr. A. E. Haw and Mr. Arnold Bigley read the Scripture lesson. The C.Y.F. chorus, under the leadership of Mr. Stan Lessels, sang "Hail Emmanuel" in an arrangement that permitted full scope for the excellent voice of this group, the shading of tone and the balance of the parts being particularly beautiful. Enjoyed also was a vocal trio by Grace Barker, Barbara Barker and Marjorie Ingram. Little Janice Kiser captivated the hearts of the hearers as she sang "Jesus Lives". Several very pleasing selections were played by the Salvation Army quartet. Miss Dorothy Mitchell, C.Y.F. accompanist, gave her usual sterling performance at the piano.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Make This a Contest Or Test With Eddie.

Where a man and girl who are engaged to each other find themselves getting into arguments, neither one willing to give in, it seems to me the two had better stop and think things over very carefully before going ahead with their plans to marry. For if they do not care enough about each other to want to make each other happy before marriage, it is not likely that they will be very considerate of each other afterward.

A letter from an engaged girl tells of having reached such a deadlock with her fiance over the type of wedding that she would have. She says:

"I am a girl of 22 engaged to a sailor. We are supposed to be married next year. If he gets his discharge from the Navy. But now I don't know whether we will be or not.

"You see, I want a church wedding and to get married in white. He doesn't want it that way, and says as long as I want a church wedding, he'd better look around for some other guy. He always tells me he loves me even more than his own mother, but I keep thinking that if he loves me as much as he says, he would get married the way I want. Do you think I should get married the way he wants or the way I plan next?

"Eddie"

Now, since "Eddie's" young man has told her that if she wants a church wedding, she had better look for som other guy," her choice would seem to be between getting married his way or not getting married at all, rather than between his way and her way.

But it seems to me it would be a very sad commentary on the type of love these two have for each other if it is not strong enough to stand up under such a trivial strain. But if that is the case—if these two feel that the way they are married is more important than getting married itself—then I think it would be better to call the whole thing off. If there is going to be such a contest of wills a time when two people would normally be most anxious to give in to the other, it would not be long after marriage when they would find themselves in the midst of recurrent and thoroughly stubborn quarrels.

However, perhaps things are not quite as serious as they seem. Perhaps this girl should begin by just not apply, right now, a little of the diplomacy and tact she'll need when she has become a wife. Let her ask herself this question: Which attitude am I going to take in the inevitable disagreements that are bound to arise between two human beings who are married to each other? Am I going to insist on having my own way, no matter what the point at issue may be, or am I going to yield on trivial issues and work out important ones with patience and intelligence? Any sensible girl, of course, will choose the latter course. So let's take it for granted that this girl is sensible. What then should be her course of action?

First, let her remember that almost all prospective bridegrooms hate the idea of a formal wedding. It makes them feel silly and self conscious to be in the centre of all that fuss—or, rather he'd be slightly off-centre, since the bride is naturally the focal point of the performance. Most men can't see why they and their girls should not steal off quietly and be married by a nice inconspicuous Justice of the Peace.

Next, having made an honest attempt to understand this male attitude toward weddings, and especially their own weddings, let "Eddie" consider, very carefully, whether this is a trivial matter in which she might yield to her fiance, or whether it is one that she thinks really important. If it is so important that she does not want to give it up, then

All 'Round White Coat

By PRUNELLA WOOD

RKO's famous designer Renie made this white wool coat for Barbara Hale to wear in "The Pretender's Fortune", but it can be added to any woman's wardrobe, coat insurance the year 'round for an that the most severe weather, and for any occasion from a luncheon date in the dinner in a long dress, by night ... and in town or country. The best part is that the most flattering to a woman) of a trunch coat are borne out here, but the buttons are definitely non-reg, being sculptured circles of what looks like yellow gold.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Outfitting the Beauty Kit

If a woman had to start from scratch to collect toiletries, and all the little items needed for good grooming and keeping in form generally, she would have considerable shopping to do. It is surprising how many different things one needs just to make one's face, hands and hair pretty and decorative. The only time we realize that fact is when we pack up for a journey, and overlook some little jar or gadget.

To combat time, weather and atmospheric dust, two creams are necessary, a light one for removing make-up and allying the blistering effects of harsh winds and strong sunlight, and a heavy emollient for nightly tapping which no woman in her forties should ever be without. Each soap must be carefully selected; all soaps are not congenial to all skins. Bubble baths are a real joy and a comfort. The wise woman will buy her powder puffs by the dozen, so she will always have a clean, fresh one handy.

Powder, rouge and lipstick in two shades are desirable, one outfit for day time, one for the time when the bright lights are on and a little more coloring is necessary. Almost every woman resorts to manicures these days to make her lashes a bit darker. The blonde girl simply cannot get along without her eyebrow crayon. Also, there is the eyebrow brush to keep the little hairers marching in neat straight lines.

Consider how many times a commercial you need to give yourself a manicure! A long, thin flexible steel file, one for the time shaping, emery boards for the final grooming. An orangewood stick for the purpose of cleaning the eaves and flushing up cuticle that clings to the nail's fabric. Nail white or a white pencil to form a neat line under the eaves. Curved, needlepoint scissors to snip off horrid little hangnails that pop out to disturb you, no matter how much care you take to prevent them. Then there is cuticle cream, polish, polish remover and cotton, to be used in case the polish flows onto the flesh at the sides of your nails.

You, of course, have been collecting these things through the years. The instruments are indescribable, but ointment, polish and polish remover don't last very long, much longer may be required.

There is the matter of brushes. They are items that dig into the beauty budget. Buy the best that you can afford because poor ones are next to useless.

You need a narrow brush made of firm bristles set in groups for the care of your hair; a hand brush to be used before you give your finger nails a manicure; a firm-bristled brush for your bath, since a loofah leaves little effect upon dead skin scales which should be removed if the skin is to function normally.

Starting from scratch to collect toiletries would be a considerable job.

Let's see how clever you are "Eddie!" It will be a good omen for your marriage happiness if you can swing this successfully.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Mother's Day

May 11th

Mother's Day, the second Sunday in May, is set apart as the day for the celebration of Mother's Day made by the Methodist Church "to provide the best means of honoring mother." The resolution urges that "through some statistical kindness, visit, gift, letter or telegram to express in some fitting manner our love and appreciation for the beautiful family ties."

The "Proclamation" by the beautiful, sentimental words that Julia Ward Howe wrote in 1872 that belong to the observance of Mother's Day.

The second Sunday in May has that a deep and personal significance ever since "Dad" when a Philadelphia woman, Miss Anna Jarvis, started the idea of Mother's Day. As she outlined her lovingly-dedicated plan, the observance of Mother's Day Miss Jarvis made three decisions. First she decided on the day . . . it should be Sunday. Then she chose the second Sunday in May "for then the grass would be green and the flowers coming". And then she decided on the emblem for Mother's Day, the white carnations, chosen because in the front yard of the family home in West Virginia, her mother had planted a garden of white flowers her favorite flower. There was no practical reason for her first choice of a white carnation . . . it was a flower most men would be willing to wear, and it would stay fresh for a long time in a buttonhole.

"I want to live. There is so much good work for me to do." In these brave and good words of Miss Jarvis was the seed of the inspiration that led to the founding of Mother's Day. These words, with their powerful faith in courage and in "good works", remained always in the loving heart of her daughter, became guiding star. The star that was to lead to the founding of a Day that was to be a memorial to a great mother. A Day that was to be a memorial to all mothers.

It is interesting to note that in designating the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day, a "national flag holiday" did it was a proud day for Miss Anna Jarvis when President Wilson proclaimed to her the part with which he had signed the bill.

In a long-ago May, the May of 1832, Thomas Carlyle famous Scottish author wrote a letter to his mother that seemed to be prophetic that May was to be the month chosen for Mother's Day. "My dear Mother", the letter began, "you will find here a bonnet of imperial chip, or simple chip, or Real chip, or whatever it is, which I hope will arrive safe and be found to suit you. I wish it were fifty times better for your sake! it would still be the most feeble testimony of what I owe to your kind affection, which has followed me unwearidly through good and evil fortune and darkening and threatening all the days of my existence, and which I trust Providence will long bless me with as the blessing of us both. . . . If I can ever either thing I do beg that you will let me know; there is not anything in which I can spend a portion of my money so advantageously. It would be a fine thing indeed to you and

Transport Snarls Are Severe Drain on Britain's Dollars

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 8 —(CP)— Things are more important than people to the United Kingdom's over-worked, run-down railways.

Grimy coal trains take priority over crack passenger expresses. Cross-country and suburban passenger services have been cut by 10 per cent to facilitate movement of freight.

And lower speeds for all trains may soon complete the problem because roadbeds cannot be repaired as quickly as they run down.

This is the legacy of seven years' of war and post-war "austerity" conditions, but as the shortage of ships and commercial aircraft can be blamed on the war. At sea and in the air, however, there is another difficulty: a serious loss of earnings of foreign currency that would help the United Kingdom balance its unfavorable trading accounts.

The February industrial shutdown was a transport crisis almost as much as a coal crisis. If every ton of coal could have been moved where it was needed when it was needed, industry could have got by with no calamitous disruption.

Roadbed Problem.

But the railways are short of manpower, rolling stock, and timber and steel for roadbed repairs. The first two shortages are gradually being overcome. The roadbed is the biggest long-term problem.

Before the war the railways used 4,300,000 wooden ties a year; since 1939 they have had only 3,000,000 annually. The backlog now is nearly 10,000,000 —and to wipe off the arrears even in five years would require 6,000,000 ties in 12 months.

"There is not the slightest chance of carrying out a program of this magnitude, or indeed anything approaching it," says G. R. Strauss, parliamentary secretary to the transport ministry.

"It may be necessary to restrict railway speeds in 1947—a prospect which must cause concern, but safety must coms first."

Almost 12,000,000 tons of British shipping were lost during the war. This was partly offset by new construction and purchase, but today the deep-sea merchant navy is only 14,000,000 tons compared with 17,500,000 in 1939 — and a big proportion is war-built "utility" vessels, neither as economical nor as suitable as the specialist craft which made British the world's greatest sea carrier.

A fleet that used to be a significant wagner of foreign exchange now is earning only a small favorable balance, at a time when the United Kingdom's own import program is reduced.

Must Build Ships.

"If we were importing at a higher level, we should be incurring heavy foreign exchange costs for shipping as well as for the imports themselves," says Prime Minister Attlee in last month's economic White Paper.

"Therefore we must build more ships. The shipbuilding industry is of just the same importance as an earner of foreign exchange as industry producing entirely for export."

The target for 1947 has been set at 1,350,000 tons—one-quarter more than last year. A ship a day is being launched from British yards and the gap is gradually being closed.

There is no lack of orders, either from home or foreign buyers, although building costs are about double pre-war. But the shortage of steel, timber and delays in manufacturing component parts from scarce materials threatens to put the 1947 target out of reach.

Civil aviation, another possible earner of foreign exchange, is in worse position. British airlines have to fly United States aircraft because no suitable British planes are ready for service.

Concentration on war planes while Germany was forbidden to turn out transport aircraft for all the Allies left the United Kingdom far behind in the post-war civil aviation race. Supply ministry spokesmen say it will be 1950 or 1951 before money-making British planes are available for long-distance routes.

Meanwhile, government-owned lines must use dollars for American aircraft or fly unsuitable British planes at a loss.

Synod Expresses Disapproval Law Observance

Kingston, May 8 — (CP) —The Anglican Diocesan Synod of Ontario Tuesday expressed disapproval of what it called the lax observance of Sunday.

It passed a resolution introduced by Rev. J. Grant Sparling of Belleville which said:

"The (Social Service) Committee views with alarm the disregard of Sunday as the Lord's Day by various social organizations which arrange picnics weekend conferences and the writing of military examinations. It is suggested the clergy give attention to this in a positive way by setting forth in frequent sermons the place of Sunday as a day of worship and rest."

Plan Brief History Of British Air War

London (Reuters)—A preliminary history of Britain's war in the air—pending publication of a complete official history which may not come for several years —will be written by Denis Richards and Hilary St. George Saunders ,the air ministry announced.

Saunders has written many of the official "best sellers" of the war, including "Battle of Britain," "Bomber Command", "Combined Operations" and "Coastal Command". He is the Honor of Cousins librarian.

Richards, a member of the ministry's historical branch, has been in charge of a staff engaged on preliminary narratives of the war's air history.

13,030 Farmers Obtained Funds Under Loans Act

Ottawa, —During 1946, 13,030 farmers obtained loans totalling nearly $10,000,000 under The Farm Improvement Loans Act. A report covering the first full year's operation of this Act was tabled in Parliament by the Minister of Finance, Honorable Douglas Abbott.

Loans are made through the 3,1000 branches of the chartered banks for the improvement and development of farms and for the improvement of living conditions on farms. The interest rate is 5 per cent simple interest per annum, and loans may be made for periods up to ten years. The legislation aims at assisting particularly the average farmer who in the past has not always been able to obtain bank credit for farm improvement purposes.

Farm implements and farm trucks account for $7,488,347 of loans made during 1946. These loans represent an actual sales volume of approximately $12,500,000. From information available it is reasonable to assume that practically all farm improvement sales in Canada requiring financing are now being financed either through loans obtainable under The Farm Improvement Loans Act or through regular bank loans. The result should be a substantial saving to the farmer, not only in the purchase price of his farm implements but also in finance charges and interest rates previously prevailing for this type of financing.

Included in the total are loans to 1,008 farmers to clear and break an estimated 50,000 acres of new land, mostly in the pioneer sections of western Canada. Loans for foundations and breeding stock accounted for 303 loans totalling $190,577.

One of the most important classes of loans is that for the construction, alteration and repair of farm buildings including farm dwellings and separate houses for farm help. As the supply of material and labor becomes more adequate, it is expected that loans for these purposes will be greatly expanded.

Robber's Girl Companion Freed Of All Charges

Montreal, May 8 (CP)—Freed of all charges, Florence Pelley, 23, was led sobbing from a Montreal courtroom yesterday after Charles Henry Hackman the youth with whom she fled to Sudbury, Ont., pleaded guilty to a charge of armed robbery of $14,000 from a Montreal shipping firm.

Hackman, arrested in Sudbury last Saturday for the payroll holdup of his employers, Lenham-Morrow Company, also pleaded guilty to a charge of conspiring with an unknown person to commit armed robbery. He will be sentenced May 14.

Formal charges of conspiracy and armed robbery were laid against Miss Pelley but Judge F. P. Enright ordered them withdrawn at the request of the crown whose counsel said he was satisfied the girl, could not be held responsible for either charge.

"WE THANK THE LORD, FOR OUR DAILY BREAD"

Little children occupants of the "Children's Camp" near, Heidusnadhaza, Hungary, say a prayer before partaking of some food, consisting of soup and bread, for lunch. The "children's city" is a camp where hundreds of Hungarian children, orphans, live and work and play together in perfect happiness and harmony. The camp is a former military camp which has been turned over to the authorities for use solely for the children. The "city" is administered by the children themselves. The burgomaster is a boy of 14 and the chief of police is only 15. The cider children also make toys and embroidered articles which are sold by an organization representing the children. Several such camps have sprung up throughout the devastated country.

Recommendations For Control Of Tomato Blight

(By The Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture and the Tomato Processors of Ontario)

Owing to the serious outbreak of Late Blight of Tomatoes in 1946, it is recommended that growers protect the plants in the seed beds by spraying or dusting and also be prepared to spray or dust in the field.

Seed Bed

Spray or dust, depending on equipment available, with a fixed copper. For spraying use such compounds as Copper A Compound, Cuprocide, C.O.C.S., Bascop or Tricop (Tri-basic copper, sulphate). For dusting use such compounds as C.O.C.S. or Trox. Follow manufacture's directions.

Be sure the plants are thorough covered, including the undersides of the leaves. Spraying is more effective. If a high pressure sprayer is used, do not bring the spray nozzle closer than 4 ft. to the plants.

Apply the first spray or dust when the first true leaves are well formed. If transplanting is done before the first true leaves are well formed, delay the first application for about one week after transplanting.

Repeat applications every 7 to 10 days. The last application should be made 3 or 4 days before planting in the field.

Field

It is recommended that all tomatoes be planted in rows 6 ft. apart with the plants 1-2 ft. apart in the rows. This will greatly facilitate spraying when necessary.

Late Blight may be controlled in the field by spraying or by dusting; spraying is more effective, the fixed coppers indicated above for use in the seed bed.

To be effective the spraying or dusting must be done in such a way as to thoroughly cover all above-ground parts of the plants, including both sides of the leaves.

Apply the first spray or dust when the disease is first reported in the districts Continue applications at 7 to 10 day intervals especially during periods of cool, wet weather. Prolonged periods of hot, dry weather retard the spread of the disease and hence the intervals between applications may be lengthened. Arrangements are being made to inform growers when to begin spray or dust application.

NOTE—Be sure to destroy all plants not used in the field because they may be a source of the disease.

Plants suspected of being diseased and requests for further information should be sent to:

Department of Botany, O.A.C., Guelph, Ont. or Dom. Lab. of Plant Pathology, St. Catharines, Ont. or Dom. Lab. of Plant Pathology, Harrow, Ont.

LORD TEYNHAM JOINS FRONT BENCH IN LORDS

London, May 8 — (Reuters) — Lord Teynham, retired Royal Navy captain and twice decorated veteran of the Battle of the Atlantic, accepted an invitation to join the opposition front bench in the House of Lords. Lord Teynham, chairman of the transport Committee in the Upper House, has just concluded a series of speeches throughout the country opposing the government bill to nationalize inland transport.

Rural Sidewalks Recall Boom Days

Outlook, Sask. (CP) — The boom bubble which burst in this central Saskatchewan town at the turn of the century, is being visualized again but the wind has shifted from railways to irrigation.

Situated on the South Saskatchewan River about 40 miles south of Saskatoon, Outlook was once expected to be another Chicago but Saskatoon, old-time residents say, "got there first with the most bridges over the river."

Today, its 700 residents have high hopes with talk of plans for a large dam near the town as the centrepiece in a huge irrigation project by the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration.

The original boom started when the Canadian Pacific Railway, pushing across the Dominion at the beginning of the century, preached Outlook. Hundreds of workmen filled the town constructing a bridge across the river. But when the bridge was finished, the population dwindled and ideas of another Chicago faded.

An example of the former high hopes is the fact that taxes on two elevators and a grain buyer's house one mile from the outskirts of the present town, are paid to Outlook for they are officially in the town's limits.

There are also paved sidewalks, laid out then, surrounding still-empty fields. At one time the sidewalks abounded around empty fields while the business section was serviced with boardwalks.

The town was re-assessed for the first time last year and as an indication of the change in values, the assessment on one piece of property dropped from $1,400 to $250.

Earthworm Farm Run by Veteran

(Veterans Affairs)

A Winnipeg veteran, ex-Sergeant Michael Diamond, raises worms for a living. Earthworms. And while it may not be glamorous occupation, it's certainly paying him dividends.

Michael Diamond sells his worms to the domesticated variety, from $18 a thousands up, and has more orders on hand than he can at present cope with. In addition, he sells earthworm egg-capsules and earthworm castings. He receives orders and enquiries from all parts of Canada, and his customers include farmers, horticulturists, fish hatchery operators, and amateur gardeners.

Experts in the agriculture field today acknowledge the earthworm as being the most indefatigable worker on the farm, states Diamond. It plows, harrows, and cultivates 24 hours a day, it can produce all the vital soil minerals needed to transform a barren piece of land into a luxurious garden.

TOKYO HAS AN ELECTION NIGHT

For the first time, Japanese citizens get the thrill of a democratic election night and turn out in their thousands to watch the bulletin boards on which the returns were posted as they came in to Tokyo. It was the first democratic election, when the little Mikasans were permitted to have a voice in who is to represent them in the Diet. This scene was photographed outside the office of Asahi, one of Japan's greatest newspapers.

SOLUTION FOR OVERCROWDING

Toronto, May 8 — (CP) — A suggested solution for overcrowding in separate schools came last night from deputy-reeve Oliver Crockford of suburban Scarboro township. Opposing a $600,000 expenditure for an addition to Scarboro Collegiate, he proposed that children be permitted to leave day school at 15, take jobs and complete their education at night classes. His suggestion came at a public meeting discussing a vote May 17 on the addition.

Boards of Trade Want New Road Or Will Secede

The Pas, Man., May 8 (CP) — Despite the unofficially expressed opinion in Federal circles that it can't be done, representatives of four northern Manitoba Boards of Trade have decided to explore the possibilities of seceding from the province and rejoining the northwest territories.

The decision was reached here last night at a joint meeting of the boards of Flin Flon, Sherridon, Cranberry Portage and The Pas.

Delegates indicated that if the provincial government takes immediate steps to guarantee construction of a highway from The Pas to Flin Flon, thereby providing direct road connections between the northern and southern parts of Manitoba, the Boards of Trade are prepared to forget about secession.

But if the desired highway construction is not provided for—the Manitoba government failed to make such provision at its recently-concluded session—every avenue which might result in secession would be explored.

Donald McEachren told the meeting that the Flin Flon Trades and Labor Council—representing 80 per cent of the 1,200 employees of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company there—would consider joining Saskatchewan if a return to the northwest territories could not be achieved.

Two members from each of the boards attending last night's meeting will be appointed to investigate the secession question thoroughly, with another meeting likely to be called at a later date to review the findings.

Happy, healthy faces at the table enjoying cooking and baking with the extra flavour

Baking with that special extra flavour that's tops with every member of the family is more than just a matter of chance. Quality ingredients must take first place in a wise homemaker's recipes for, aside from their health value, they do away with costly kitchen failures.

That is why Canadian housewives prefer Crown Brand Corn Syrup—famous for its quality and delicious flavour for nearly fifty years.

Crown Brand Syrup is a favourite in so many ways!—as a spread on bread or toast—on waffles or pancakes—in a glass of milk—as a topping for puddings and ice cream—as a sweetener that gives your baking that extra flavour to delight the tastes of the whole family.

"We appreciate your loyalty to Quality."

Burrard's Inlet Being Searched For Missing Plane

Vancouver, May 8 — (CP) — A chunk of twisted metal snagged on the end of a fisherman's line last night directed searchers for a missing Trans-Canada Air Lines plane with 15 persons aboard to a spot in Burrard Inlet, just seven miles beyond the Lions Gate bridge which marks the entrance to Vancouver's harbor.

Latest in a long series of possible clues to the fate of the twin-engined Lodestar, the eight-inch square piece of metal was hauled up by Gordon Wilson, former R.C.A.F. maintenance man, at Eagle Harbor on the north shore of the inlet after his line snagged repeatedly.

From his service experience Wilson said he was certain the object was aircraft metal but he was unable to identify it as of a type used in the construction of Lodestars. Search officials turned it over to British Columbia provincial police to be held for examination by T. C. A. and R. C. A. F. technicians.

The shift in the 10-day search followed yesterday's fruitless examination of a rectangular area of Georgia Straits by naval craft and a personnel after an underwater contact by anti-submarine equipment, a new oil slick and a piece of cloth that might have come from the aircraft were discovered.

The painstaking foot-by-foot study of the spot eliminated another of the clues that have switched the attention of the searchers to various areas of southern Vancouver Island and the lower mainland. Radio contacts, flashing lights and suspicious patches on mountain - tops were tracked down and ultimately discarded.

Attempted Murder Charge Ready For the Jury

Windsor, Ont., May 8 — (CP) — The case of Ronald George Sears, on trial for attempted murder of Joseph Gelenczer, was expected to go to the jury today, both Crown and defence having completed yesterday their evidence in the charge which arose from a series of knife slashings in Windsor parks during the past two summers.

Gelenczer was the last of five men attacked with knives along the riverfront in the past two summers. Two of the attacks were fatal, resulting in the deaths of Sgt.-Hugh Blackwood Price and another man. Gelenczer was one of three who were wounded.

The Crown has contended that the 19-year-old Sears was responsible for all the attacks in what is said was a campaign of accused, victim of a sex attack in his youth, against men whom he believed were perverts.

Sears was convicted last autumn of murder in the death of Sgt. Price and sentenced to hang, but the Ontario Court of Appeals quashed the conviction in ruling inadmissible statements Sears as said to have made to police.

Sears still faces a murder charge and two charges of attempted murder, besides the attempted murder charge in the present Gelenczer case.

Mr. Justice G. A. Urquhart yesterday ruled that the accused's statements were not admissible.

The Crown's case was highlighted by Gelenczer's identification of accused as the "stranger" who stabbed him in the back. But Lloyd Lauzon, taxi-driver who took Gelenczer to hospital, testified that during the trip Gelenczer told him that he had not seen his assailant.

RISING DIVORCE RATE INDICATES WORK TO BE DONE

Welfare Agencies Treating Problems After They Happen, Says Speaker

By KAY ELY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 8 (CP)—Canada's rapidly rising divorce rate clearly indicates that welfare agencies have not reached their objective of preventing family breakup, Charles Young of the Montreal Federation of Community Service said last night during a session of the Canadian Welfare Council's annual meeting.

"The agencies are still operating on the level of treating problems after they have happened," Mr. Young added "but prevention should be their aim."

At a dinner meeting earlier Merrill Krughoff, of Community Chests and Councils Inc, New York, told the 300 Canadian representatives attending the convention that social welfare is getting to be "big business" and the time has come to advertise the profession.

The American welfare executive urged the revamping of private agency boards which he said "still look like a group of people from one side of the tracks doing good for a group of people on the other side of the tracks."

During a discussion following Mr. Krughoff's address A. M. Kirkpatrick of the Y.M.C.A., Windsor, asked whether "preventive" services would be the ideal method of getting away from the charity stigma.

At another session recreation directors for public and private welfare agencies heard Bruce Ward, head of the recreation division for the Toronto Welfare Council mention the great need now existent for organized activity among four - to - eight - year - old children.

He said the Toronto council now was studying a "backyard recreation program" and that it hopes to locate one backyard in every city block which these children can turn into their own playground.

Much of Britain Still in Ruins On Anniversary

By STUART UNDERHILL

London, May 8 (CP)—No joy bells ring in Britain to mark today's second anniversary of the end of the war in Europe. No reminders are needed and they conflict with the government's sober-sided campaign of "work to want."

In the two years since Britons set aside gas masks and started pulling down air raid shelters, they have had so many reminders that peace doesn't bring prosperity and contentment that they are almost incredulous when the news is other than bad.

When the war ended many Britons seemed to feel that the Allies, particularly the United States, would tide them over the reconstruction period lith Help of all sorts. They soon realized that apart from substantial loans, recovery would have to depend on their own efforts.

The world knows the story of the obstacles which have blocked that recovery: shortage of almost everything including vital coal and materials required for a big building program and the worst winter weather in memory.

Thus it is that two years after the war has been removed from the battle, much of the country still is in ruins and many essentials still are hard to get.

In some cases, rationing is worse than it was during the war, particularly where food is concerned. The standard of living certainly has declined; the cost has gone up.

But under all the complainings and apologies for the state of the country, the observer still finds is pretty proud of tig tight little isle. That faith is one of the imponderables that must be weighed against the depressing array of gloomy statistics.

Labor Minister Confident In Ontario's Future

Kitchener, May 8 —(CP)— Labor Minister Daley said yesterday that despite talk of a depression he was confident in the future of Ontario. He described his department's approval of an expenditure of $54,000,000 — an all-time high — on new construction projects as reflecting faith in the country, "particularly in Ontario."

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers Association that the labor situation in the province was "very good" and that with regard to strikes he felt if "things are going to happen" they usually happen before this time of the year.

He termed as illegal the strike at the Stratford Woodenware Plant, and said it was in direct violation of the existing agreement and recognized as such by the union executive who have been endeavoring to get the men back to work.

The minister said union security was one of the things causing trouble today but that in his opinion it was not something which could be acquired or imposed by legislation. It depended firstly on the ability of the union to demonstrate its value to the workmen and secondly on the employer's willingness to co-operate.

Earlier he said that he considered Ontario's legislation "satisfactory" and that any changes made would be of a minor nature. He condemned the breaking of labor - management agreements and said that in the event of such action the government's only recourse was to declare the strike illegal. This was poor comfort for an employer whose plant was closed or for workers whose pay cheques were stopped by the strike, he said.

MAYHEM MORGAN HAS OWN BRAND OF BUFFOONERY

By E. M. CHANTLER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

"Awake, citizens! This is Henry Morgan!"

And with that we introduce the saga of a sachem of broadcast buffoonery.

As Henry will shyly admit, few if any of radio's mirthmen can match his brand of sophisticated and at times, barbed humor—one that jibes and jostles national affairs and national sponsors alike.

To begin, Morgan fooled his parents by being born the day after April Fool's day, 1915, in New York City. He lays claim to "mixed parentage, man and woman."

He entered radio via a laundry chute in 1932 as a $8-a-week page boy with a Gotham station. Tired of impressions tossed at him by irate laundresses, he became of the youngest announcers in the industry. He was 17 1-2 years old, earned $18 a week and looked fine in long pants.

In the late adolescent days that followed, Henry became stage-struck. Particularly so after wistfully following the teary tribulations of "Shallmar, the Key Guard's Sin." Charlie Martin, who had a stock company at the radio station, figured the experience would do Morgan's thespian good. Henry agreed. Henry went to work for Martin —briefly.

Hired and Fired

About this time, Henry began casting covetous glances at the green hills—and greenbacks—of the networks. He yearned to be a newscaster. He was hired as one—and fired all within five weeks. He never could reach a broadcast on time—an unfortunate ailing that dogged him no end in later years.

Morgan began to travel. He was on his way up. He went to Philadelphia. The Quaker city was just as amazed as he when a local station offered him a job—signed off at night, announcing the names of everyone around at the time. They of course, included the janitor, elevator operators and cleaners.

But his old trouble struck again. He was late for broadcasts. He was fired.

Morgan turned his faith on adversity and landed in Duluth, Minn., where he emceed a show entitled "Strictly Masculine." He also managed to punch inches own show—"Turnip"—oops we mean "Rutabaga." It had sound effects. He didn't last long. Next came Boston.

In Boston Morgan surreptitiously read a couple of books, including "Anne of Green Gables" and went back to work. This time with his own program—"House Party"—which included a male quartet. He was coming up. In his free day time he attended law school. Some say he just wanted to study libel law. Then his old trouble again. Instead of cutting classes, he cut a broadcast one night to take his law examination. He didn't pass but he was fired.

The circle ended and again Morgan was in New York. Station WOR hired him to announce dance band remotes, a friend of it. He kidded around. Program directors weren't impressed. Finally, they pulled the boner of the century. They gave Henry his own program. Hah! they thought they had heard kidding!

Early in 1941 he enlisted. In the United States Army and in 1945 resumed his "Here's Morgan" on WJZ. Now he has his new half-hour comedy program, "The Henry Morgan Show." He has a sponsor, too. They and his listeners hope he's old ailments—oh, no! Morgan, let's not be late again!

VACCINATE HER PONIES

Scunthorpe, England (CP) Police threw a cordon around a Scunthorpe hotel after they learned that a man suffering from smallpox was in the bar. They rounded up everyone in the bar and all persons who had been associated with the man—about 70 in all—were vaccinated.

ONTARIO "TEENERS" HELP BRITISH PALS

Scores of teen-aged boys and girls across Ontario who are definitely "hip" on the subject of clothes are not forgetting their pals in flood-stricken Britain. Organized by Ontario youth groups, in co-operation with the I.O.D.E., "Teens for Teens" is collecting clothing which will be turned over to the Ontario government's two week British Flood Relief Campaign, which began this week.

Remembering that when they think of "fashion," their British brothers and sisters are thinking of clothes in terms of "ration," they are digging out all their serviceable surplus slacks, jackets, skirts and sweaters—as well as extra pairs of "bobby" sox and stockings—to contribute to the drive. Objective of the campaign is to collect four million articles of clothing—one from every resident of Ontario—as well as quantities of non-perishable foodstuffs.

Also co-operating on a wide scale in the drive are the youngsters in primary and secondary schools who are contributing their garments through special drives being conducted in all Ontario schools.

Halt Trams As Protest

Sydney, Australia, (CP) — Trams and buses in Sydney came to a halt one day recently while their crews observed a minute's silence for a fellow-conductor killed on duty.

The minute's delay was more than a tribute to a dead man. It was also a protest against what are called "footboard trams," similar to one on which the conductor met his death.

These trams have a footboard along each side and conductors move up and down the boards to collect fares while the trams are in motion.

Frequently conductors are knocked off the footboard by passing trucks or cars. In case of fatal injury, all other trams in Australia's largest city halt for a minute at the hour when the victim's funeral starts.

Transport officials say footboard trams are becoming more dangerous because many Sydney streets are narrow and crowded and commercial vehicles are wider than before the war.

The advantage of this type of street-car is its speed in handling peak-hour crowds. The tram has six or eight compartments each with an entrance on either side.

Sydney has more than 1,000 footboard trams and their average age is 20 years. In addition, Sydney has a suburban railway service partly underground, double-decked buses and trackless trolley buses.

There are plans to abolish the footboard trams, but it is estimated it will take about 15 years to get them out of service by replacement with modern vehicles.

Rationing Stays In New Zealand

Gisborne, N.Z., (CP)—Rationing of the four food commodities still fully controlled in New Zealand—meat, butter, tea and sugar—is likely to continue for the rest of the year at least.

Supply Minister S. G. Sullivan, states that rationing of butter will continue as long as the need for fats in Britain is of vital concern. It appeared that the need would continue until early next year. The general impression in the trade is that meat rationing will also continue until Britain's meat supply position has been considerably eased.

Present rations in New Zealand are: tea, two ounces per week; butter, six ounces; sugar, 12 ounces; meat, 24 cents worth. Although the latter is a considerable restriction for New Zealanders, who before the war were the world's largest per capita meat eaters, it is not so severe as it sounds. Meat is cheap in New Zealand and many types of meat, such as hare, bacon, sausage, and kidneys, are excluded from the ration.

Numerous other foods, although not on a regular ration for adults, are subject to various forms of control. It is forbidden to sell cream to the public and eggs are in such short supply that at times only a small weekly ration for children is available.

WILL PROTECT INTERESTS

Ottawa, May 8 — (CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King said yesterday in the Commons he would "be the first to do every thing possible to protect" the interests of Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa, world figure skating champion.

He was replying to Karl Homuth (PC — Waterloo Smith) who asked if the government had or would cable Canada's representative on the Olmpic Games committee to see that Miss Scott's interests were not affected by the controversy that has arisen as a result of her acceptance of a motor car from the city of Ottawa.

London (CP)—A United Kingdom firm has produced 'what' is said to be the first low-wing two-seat tandem glider ever built. The design incorporates a dual control centre-wheel undercarriage, dive brakes and longitudinal trimming.

Southern Korea May be Assisted By Administration

Washington, May 8 (AP)—An approaching administration plea for perhaps $75,000,000 to strengthen southern Korea confronted the United States Congress today as the House of Representatives entered the voting stage of its fight over helping Greece and Turkey resist communistic domination.

After two full days in general discussion of the $400,000,000 Greek-Turkish aid bill, the House turned to specific proposals for restrictions ETAIONthen ETAO restricting the program, and changing its terms. Chief among the amendments likely to be put to a showdown test before nightfall is one to shift the burden to the United Nations.

To a hushed House near the close of yesterday's debate democratic leader Rayburn of Texas cried out against a return to "isolationism."

In impassioned tones, he declared: "God help us, God help this world, if we do not accept our responability to help countries that we do not want to be smothered by communism."

From across the aisle, where the Republicans have been divided on the issue since it first was posed by President Truman nearly two months ago, representative James Wadsworth (Rep.—N.Y.) voiced the answer of those in Republican ranks who have lined up behind the administration's expanding foreign policy.

"I am convinced," Wadsworth said, "that when we defend liberty the world over we are defending our own liberty. This measure is a forthright declaration in the support of righteousness."

TASMANIAN DEVIL IS WELL NAMED

Looking like something out of a nightmare is this Tasmanian Devil, one of two brought to the Bronx Zoo in New York from Australia. Officially called a "Sarcophilus Harrisii" it has a head big enough to fit a lion and a mouth even more grotesquely out of proportion. The body belongs to an undersized pig and ends in a long, hairy tail. It will eat any kind of meat. Zoo officials say it is as mean as it looks.

Canadian Olympic Committee Taken To Task by A.A.U.

Ottawa May 8 (CP)—Allan M. Hern, president of the Eastern Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union, today strongly criticized the Canadian Olympic committee for failure to consult the A.A.U. before opening the question of the amateur status of Barbara Ann Scott because the figure skater accepted the gift of an automobile from the city of Ottawa.

"When the Canadian Olympic committee was asked if the presentation of the car to Barbara Ann was all right the so-called big shots in Montreal turned right around and dumped the problem on our doorstep," he said "Now, when the question has been revived, we haven't even been consulted."

He explained that Sidney Dawes, president of the Canadian Olympic committee had said his organization was not concerned about the matter and would accept the ruling of the A.A.U.

Prof. Nelson Hart of London, Ont., National A.A.U. secretary, decided the matter was under local jurisdiction and, "after studying our rule book we decided it would be all right for the city to give Barbara Ann the car.

"Now without consulting us at all, the Olympic committee has apparently decided to take the question into its own hands. We're not going to change our decision now—we're standing pat. If this affair was not under our jurisdiction, the Canadian Olympic committee should have over-ruled our decision at the time—not two months later."

ENJOYS PERFECT DAY

Low Weisl, who as Brooklyn property came to Montreal, from Fort Worth in the Texas League, today boasted the distinction of being the first International League batter to enjoy a perfect five-for-five at the plate.

The five-foot, 10-inch shortstop connected for two doubles and 3 singles to support pitcher Jack Banta in his initial victory of the season, an 8-4 triumph over Baltimore Orioles in the only game played in the circuit.

Banta went the distance and gave up eight hits.

Johnny Podgajny, first of four Baltimore flingers, was charged with the loss.

Residents Not Disturbed By Flooded Area

Hull, Que., May 8 —(CP)— Residents in the flooded area of nearby Gatineau Point use rowboats and rubber boots going to and from their homes, but they aren't disturbed much by the high-water condition of the Gatineau River.

"A flood here is accepted as something that's bound to happen" said one veteran inhabitant. "We get one every year and prepare for it ahead of time."

Some of the homes were completely surrounded by water today as the river continued its rise of 1½ inches since yesterday. It now is 13 feet above normal summer level.

Flimsy wooden catwalks join some of the houses to dry land, but many residents keep punts tied to the front door step. Only one small cottage on the Hull side of the river had been seriously damaged and some outhouses were afloat.

Fire Chief Theodore Malaonenueve of Gatineau Point said the river had not yet reached its peak.

Timber operators reported that log drives had not begun on the upper reaches of the Ottawa River. Some lakes were still frozen in Northern Ontario and Quebec, and one official said there was "an awful lot of water" still to come before the rivers assume their normal levels and currents.

Booked on Charge Of Attempting To Kill Legislator

Oklahoma City, May 8 — (AP) —A tall veteran of the Southwest Pacific war ended his freshman term as an Oklahoma lawmaker in the county jail today, accused of trying to kill a fellow legislator in a wild shooting affray on the floor of the State Senate.

State Representative Jimie Scott, 35, was booked on a technical charge of assault with intent to kill after he pumped a bullet into 64-year-old State Senator Tom Anglin in the Senate Chamber yesterday, fired a second shot that went wild and then fled, only to be captured and disarmed in the Senate washroom.

The prisoner told police the shooting stemmed from a recent divorce obtained from his former wife and her subsequent move to enforce a property settlement. Anglin's law firm represented the woman.

Scott insisted he fired only after Anglin threatened to kill him and started to draw a gun.

Anglin, prominent in state politics for more than 30 years and acting governor of Oklahoma on several occasions, suffered a deep flesh wound in his left hip but physicians at University Hospital said his condition was not serious.

The wounded man denied he had threatened Scott or was even aware of any animosity between them.

At Hildenville, Scott's former wife, who has taken back her maiden name of Irene Tucker, likewise declared she was unaware of any antagonism between the two men. She said she intended to come to Oklahoma City to "stick by" Scott because she still loved him and had never desired the divorce.

"BE NO FUNERAL" DOUGHTY BRITONS NAIL DOOM TALES

By JOHN BOLPHINE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 7 (CP) — A mass of gloom-and-doom predictions has brought predictions overseas that Britain's day is done, but some of the world's most noble-browed men consider comparing's long-term future as good rich.

There is no inclination here to minimize the tremendous problems to be solved before peacetime prosperity can be attained. The February industrial shutdown—its effects will be felt for a year—pointed up the dangers so no one can ignore them.

This series has described the crippling shortages that must be overcome; shortages of coal and electricity, manpower, raw materials, modern factories, food, homes, transport and dollars.

Spokesmen for Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government have veered recently from subdued optimism to heavy pessimism in their public statements. Even Attlee warned in his economic White Paper that without more coal, more and better distribution of things and more exports "we may never restore the foundations of our national life."

If is a melancholy outlook, but not necessarily the final fallout. Intended to Frighten

Dire forecasts from government sources must be read with the political situation in mind. They are intended to frighten—to bring back the Dunkerque spirit that saved the United Kingdom after France fell in 1940.

Underlying the surface foreboding is a firm conviction that the United Kingdom's ultimate will win through. Business men want to build new factories; the backlog of industrial construction is an indication of confidence in the future. So is the firmness of the stock market's industrial section.

Opposition criticism of the government has been mainly that Labor has been putting too much stress on Socialist policy, not enough on overcoming present emergencies. But the argument has been that this program is delaying the attainment of prosperity, definitely not that prosperity is forever out of reach.

"There is no foundation for the suggestion that the die has already been cast, that the standard of life is doomed to decline, that this great nation must now go down to poverty and impotence", said the thoughtful Times of London. "Overseas friends, whose sympathy has been ready, can rest quiet. There will be no funeral."

"Can we maintain and increase our standard of life, or must we reduce it?" said Attlee in a radio broadcast. "I believe that we can maintain it and in course of time raise it, provided that we organize intelligently, make full use of science and invention, avoid waste, and above all work well."

May Get Worse

Everybody admits recovery will be a long process and most admit that conditions may get worse before they get better. Lord Layton, chairman of the News Chronicle and head of the production ministry's joint production staff during the war, reminded the House of Lords of Winston Churchill's 1941 ultimatum for munitions output:

"Next year, nothing at all; second year, very little; third year, quite a lot; fourth year, all you want."

The picture as I see it," Lord Layton said, "is that the country is not much more than half-way back to normal in terms of time."

That is the optimistic view; most business men expect a long, hard struggle. But the United Kingdom there is little of the "calamity howling" about the country's long-term prospects that has been heard in the United States.

And Lewis Douglas, the new United States ambassador who is a top-flight executive and once was President Roosevelt's budget director, does not share the negative view. The ambassador's long-term forecasts, he told a London press conference, are based on statistics, which always ignore the "incomprehensible" such as the courage of a people, their industry and their capacity for sacrifice.

"I have complete confidence in faith in this country," he said.

"There may be a tedious period, but the sun will shine again. Britain will be herself in the end, and she will recover much of her traditional position in the world."

When that American representative of the people of these islands would agree.

COMMITS SUICIDE

Mayor of Havana, Manuel Fernandez Supervielle, holder of Cuba's second highest executive post, committed suicide with a .45 calibre revolver he borrowed from a police guard at his suburban villa. He killed himself because he could no longer bear the public anger at his failure to name good his campaign pledge to give Havana an adequate water supply.

SCENE WHERE PALESTINE PRISON BREAK TOOK PLACE

A comprehensive view of Acre Central Prison, Palestine, scene of one of the greatest prison breaks of modern times, when Jewish underground forces staged a daring raid and liberated 227 Jewish and Arab prisoners. The prison, built in the days of the Crusades, is 20 miles north of Haifa. Dove Bela Grunzig, underground fighter, was hanged there recently. This photograph was made by Robert Nicolai, of Middlotian, Ill., former U. S. paratrooper, who was imprisoned at Acre for three weeks after his capture by the British while serving as a member of the crew of the Ben Hecht, refugee-running ship. The arrow in the photo shows where the underground raiders made their entrance and came through the Arab cell block (3) to reach the cell block (1) where Jewish underground captives were held. Blasted two grilled windows to release the men. Across the courtyard (centre) are the kitchen, showers and laundry (2). At least nine of the raiders were captured. Nineteen of the escaped prisoners were recaptured in a few hours, and an intensive hunt is on in the hills northwest of Galilee for the other escapees.

Tries to Pick Up Message From Mars on Set

By ROBERT GEIGER

Washington, May 7 —(AP) If Mars is trying to communicate with the other planets by radio, Grote Reber figures he should pick up the message.

For several years Reber has had a fantastically intricate radio receiver specially designed to pick up celestial messages.

So far, however, he's heard no-strains of a Martian soap opera, a senator's speech or even a dot-dash signal.

Reber, a radio engineer, built his queer listening station near his home at Wheaton, Ill. He came to Washington today to see the Institute of Radio Engineers about it.

While listening for a message from Martians is his hobby Reber does serious work, too, studying the weird radio waves that come from the sky.

"Stuff is just cosmic noise," he told a reporter. "What makes it nobody knows. But it definitely is of natural origin, due to some disturbance in cosmic space."

Some scientists believe this noise, which exists almost constantly, may come from an atomic disturbance far out in space.

Reber and A. E. Covington of the National Research Council of Canada at Ottawa, a physicist, said in an interview that the listening device can be trained at the Milky Way, at the sun, at Mars and that ultra high frequency radio waves are received.

POPULAR CANADIAN "SPORT"

Just like any father and son in Canada and the United States, President Miguel Alleman of Mexico and his son, Miguelito, Jr., sit down together and read a comic section, also appearing in a new York newspaper. They're shown in the President's suite at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, as Mexico's chief executive found time to relax from the rigorous schedule he's been following since his arrival in the U. S.

PAINT MISSING LETTERS ON HAMILTON SIGNS

Hamilton, Ont., city council is having its headaches with hundreds of new signs placed on city streets. After the signs were up it was noted somebody had forgotten to put north, south, east and west after respective streets. So now almost all the signs have to be taken down so city employees such as Pat Bleakley, above, can paint in the missing letters. In one picture the signs are shown as is — in the other the E for east has been painted in and Miss Bleakley signifies all is well.

Many Donate Rare Type Of Blood for Mother

Cleveland, May 8 (AP) — Answering a radio appeal sandwiched between programs of two comedians, donors with a rare blood type Thursday night came to the rescue of a 7-year-old war bride giving birth to her first baby.

Mrs. Christine Lore, 20-year-old wife of James Lore, veteran of the Normandy invasion, was losing blood when she arrived at a hospital Tuesday expecting her first child. Her blood was the rare BRH negative type and hospital calls to the American Red Cross and other institutions succeeded in obtaining one pint.

Radio station WTAM then volunteered to broadcast an appeal during a 30-second intermission between programs of Bob Hope and Fibber McGee.

"You should have seen our switchboard blossom out in lights as soon as the 'message went on the air," said a hospital attendant. "We couldn't count the calls. There must have been more than a hundred."

Three pints of the precious fluid were rushed to the hospital. Mrs. Lore gave birth to a son — and both mother and baby are reported "doing fine."

FIRST BOTTLE CONVINCED HIM SYNTONA IS GREAT MEDICINE

"Cleared up Stomach Gas and Indigestion from Which I Formerly Could Get No Relief," Says This Man. Appetite is Improved, Free of Headache and Dizziness.

MR. FRED R. KELLY

"For a number of years I suffered with stomach disorders and could get nothing to help me, but the very first bottle of Syntona convinced me it is a great medicine," said Mr. Fred R. Kelly, 503 Duke St., Preston, Ont., in a recent report.

"My chief trouble was with gas and indigestion after my meals. The gas pressed on my heart so that it sometimes seemed would not allow it making me feel distressed for hours after eating. I would feel tired and short of breath. Many days my appetite was so poor I didn't feel like eating. I was subject to frequent headaches and dizziness.

"In one short week Syntona has done me more good than anything I ever used before. It cleared up the gas and indigestion so that the bloated, distressed feeling is gone and my appetite is greatly improved. I haven't had any dizziness, headaches or nerves in the last week. I recommend Syntona and I notice that my sleep at night is more sound and restful."

If you are troubled with stomach disorders such as those described by Mr. Kelly and if as a result you feel tired, headachy, nervous and rundown, why not give Syntona a chance to help you, too. Made from the pure liquid extracts of 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots, Syntona is pleasant to take, acts quickly, effectively.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

U.S. TERRITORIES ARE STILL DENIED ENTRY INTO UNION

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, May 8 —(CP)— Rejection by the Newfoundland National Convention of a proposal to send a delegation here to explore the idea of joining the United States brings to mind three American territories which have yet to achieve statehood.

Alaska, purchased from Russia in 1867, and Hawaii and Puerto Rico, acquired in 1898 are still administered as territories under governors appointed by Washington.

Representative Melvin Price ((Dem.-Ill.) has placed the situation of the three territories before Congress in an exhaustive speech on the situation which he said "calls for disposition of the question one way or another in the near future."

The House committee on public lands has unanimously approved a bill granting statehood to Hawaii but that is no assurance it will be enacted by Congress, or that it will be considered in the House and Senate. President Truman has warmly endorsed it.

Hawaii, well organized, highly developed and prosperous community, is ready for statehood if any of the three are. It has paid into the United States treasury in federal taxes more than has been spent on its development, apart from military expenditures.

In 1945 federal revenues from Hawaii amounted to $173,990,227. The Alaska case desperately another matter, and there is a similar desire in Alaska although perhaps no so well-founded a claim.

Hawaii has a population of 500,000 of which one-third are Caucasian. Another one-third are Japanese but these point with pride to the Federal Bureau of Investigation report that not a single act of sabotage or fifth column activity occurred there before, during or after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Alaska, aroused by its newfound importance as a strategic outpost in wartime, and by the miracle of air travel which has brought it within six hours of mainland United States, recently voted two to one for statehood. Prefer Independence.

Puerto Rico has a small minority clamoring for statehood but the strongest element there if for independence. Unlike Alaska and Hatwaii, Puerto Rico is not a completely organized territory and does not pay federal taxes.

Most ilt governor is appointed by Washington and the bitter resentment against this fact was only partially appeased when President Truman recently appointed a native, Jesus T. Pinero, to that office.

All three territories have delegates, one each, who sit in Congress and may take part in the debates but may not vote.

Sentiency about admitting these territories to statehood seems to be caused by an ingrained reluctance to admit countries not geographically attached to mainland United States.

If admitted each would have two senators in Washington and one or more representatives. The fact that each would have two senators has been a delaying factor because in the minds of some congressmen that seems too much weight to give them.

Since the union of the original colonies, into states the procedure of adding states has been the formation of a territory with the implication that statehood would follow in due course. That procedure has been followed with all mainland territories. The last additions were made in 1912 when New Mexico was admitted Jan. 6 and Arizona Feb. 14. Oklahoma was admitted in 1907.

Madoc

Hon. Harold Scott Special Speaker At Club Meeting

Madoc (Special)—Hon. Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, was the speaker when more than one hundred members of the Madoc Community Club, with their wives and friends, were present at a banquet prepared and served by the members of Oakdale Rebekah Lodge No. 194 on Friday evening, when the tables were beautifully decorated in a color combination of pink and pale green; with cut flowers, small ferns and colored candles adding greatly to their attractive appearance.

Guests at the head table were: Hon. Harold Scott, Mrs. Scott, Mr. George White, M.P., Mrs. White, Mr. C. I. Ross, president of the club, and Mrs. Ross. Following the toast to the King, the president welcomed the Honorable Minister, the ladies and members.

Miss Anne Nickle delighted the gathering with two solos, contributed in her usual charming manner. As Mrs. White capably introduced the guest speaker, the Hon. Harold Scott, who gave a very informative address dealing with every department of "Lands and Forests" under his supervision, which included game and fisheries. The hunters present will not have to consult their calendars in the Fall, as Mr. Scott informed them that the Monday nearest the 8th. of November has been set aside as the opening date for deer hunting during the next three years.

At the conclusion of the address many expressed a wish that the speaker had continued for a longer time. Mr. John Bristol voiced the appreciation of all present and Mr. J. W. Hulin wholeheartedly supported the motion. Mr. Archie Kincaid delighted the audience with his ever-able arrangement of "Golden Slippers".

Mr. E. T. Naylor moved a vote of thanks to the "Rebekahs", which was seconded by Mr. Kelvin Kincaid and Mrs. H. Hickswood, N. G., graciously replied. Two short arrangements of the popular songs, "April Showers" and "You Made Me Love You", were contributed by Mrs. Kenneth Nicol and Mr. C. I. Ross. Mrs. J. Grimrod acted as accompanist during the evening, the remainder of which was spent in dancing.

Mr. Jack Walton, formerly the manager of the Madoc branch of the Dominion Bank, and Mrs. Walton, were present and received old acquaintances.

Marmora

Golden Wedding Celebrated By Village Couple

Marmora (Special) — A goodly number of their friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gawley Monday evening, their golden wedding anniversary to enjoy a social hour and to present them with a beautiful blanket. At the appointed time, Rev. L. C. Ball made a few apt remarks followed by two choice poems, the one directed to the bride and groom of May 5th, 1897 and the other to the friends present. Master Ronald Wells made the presentation.

Mr. Ball then offered prayer, asking that the Divine favor be accorded this honored couple as they face the western horizon. The serving of refreshments closed a pleasant evening. Mr. and Mrs. Gawley were the recipients of many congratulatory cards and following the presentation both testified to the pleasure it gave them to have this association with their friends on this occasion which can happen only once in a lifetime.

Believes Migration Danger to Britain

London, (CP)—Cyrill Osborne, Conservative member of parliament for Louth, says that large numbers of middle-class young men who normally would supply technical and administrative staffs now are leaving the United Kingdom for the Dominions.

He suggested in the House of Commons that the government should act to keep these men at home to assist reconstruction, but Labor Minister Isaacs said he thought the shipping shortage restricted the number leaving the United Kingdom. The government felt the advantages of migration with the Commonwealth "outweighed the relatively small loss of manpower of this country."

Another member cried "Nonsense!" when Osborne said that if all the doctors who wished to emigrate were allowed to go there would be a danger of the new National Health Act not being worked.

Would Check Help Even From Grave

Diddlebury, Shropshire, England — Farmland from (Gaffer) Edwards, 74-year-old farmer, has chosen a graveside boundary for his burial ground "so I can lie with my head in Diddlebury and my feet in Chilmington."

Edwards, who reclaimed his 1,400 acres of farmland from scrub and bracken, said he had given full directions for his burial in his will.

"My men will be there to bury me," he said. "We have a little joke about that. When I told one of my shepherds I'd chosen the spot so that I could keep an eye on them, he said: 'We'll fix that, Gaffer. We'll bury thee face downwards."

Huntsman Finds Young Doe Helpless in Crotch of Tree

Marmora (Special) — Redmond Logan of Marmora had a trio of interesting experiences one day last week when back in his native Shanick near Fair's Bridge examining traps. In one he found a drowned black duck. On its left leg it carried a ring with this inscription. Notify Field and Wild Life Service, Washington, D. C., 717938 — 1944.

Later near the same spot he saw a fine doe with its head caught in the crotch of an overhanging limb of a tree. The doe had been swimming Beaver Creek when it got caught thus. Its antics caused 'Red' momentarily and then he thought to release it by using his axe to chop the limb." No sooner had he cut it, than the doe took a few jumps before extricating herself from the crude yoke. 'Red' later in the day had the experience of witnessing three other deer swimming the water of Beaver Creek so concludes they must be plentiful in that part of Marmora township.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

Reaping Richer HARVESTS!

Last year the value of Canada's field crops was double that of 1939.

TODAY'S ACHIEVEMENTS in agriculture production are matched by those in manufacturing and the development of natural resources —creating new opportunities for Canadians in every sphere of activity surpassing those of any previous peacetime period.

While our world importance as a food producer continues to grow, we have become also one of the greatest of industrial and commercial countries, with peacetime accomplishments maintaining our new war-won position.

With the railway opening the West in the 80's, the development of the famous wheats, Red Fife and Marquis, and the extension of the grain-growing area steadily north, Canada became the world's great wheat exporter.

A flourishing agriculture has always been the basis of Canada's expanding economy. First farmer was Champlain's Louis Hebert. Ontario's great agricultural development began with the arrival of the U.E. Loyalists.

Canadian farmers answered the challenge of World War II by producing more food than ever for our allies. While maintaining the vital wheat yield, they supplied a great new output of coarse grains, fodder crops and oil-bearing seeds—and achieved spectacular increases in meats, dairy products and eggs.

C.P.R. Steamship Doffs War Paint

Victoria, (CP)— The Canadian Pacific Railway steamship Princess Joan, pride of the British Columbia passenger service fleet, has been refitted and refurbished, with a proud war record, will return to civilian duties, June 1.

The Kathleen was a sorry sight when she returned here last year after five years carrying troops and serving as hospital ship in Oriental and Mediterranean waters. She survived 250,000 miles of war travel.

She is quickly being restored to condition. Decks worn thin by thousands of hob-nailed boots, have been replaced; 300 new staterooms near completion and a de luxe ballroom and horse-shoe luncheounter are being built.

SWEDES AND TB TOTS

Stockholm (CP)—A sanitarium near nice, France, for 500 tubercular children will be equipped with furniture, linen, blankets, medical and surgical equipment from Sweden, reports the Swedish Red Cross. The sanitarium has been granted $35,000 for furnishing and equipping.

LURE OF WHEELS

Ottawa (CP)—Old-hands at army headquarters here say love of machines, power and things mechanized has replaced lure of the uniform as major drawing card for recruits.

"WOULD NOT CHANGE JOBS..."

GARNET RICKARD, Bowmanville, Durham County, farmer, 30, winner Reserve Grand Championship for oats, Chicago 1947, operates one of best seed cleaning plants in Ontario, has been president of many agricultural societies, active in county affairs, is on Advisory Board Dominion Seeds Act.

MR. RICKARD says: "I would not change jobs with anyone. National prosperity still rests with Canadian farmers. The primary need is farm research, soil improvement, war on weeds and better seed grain. That with better profits, farm living standards can be raised and young people attracted to rural Canada rather than lost as emigrants. Organized farmers are making the farm future much more secure."

Many of the players in a duplicate tournament are looking for trouble. All-tables play the same hands. So, aiming for the highest score, a pair often strives to do something unusual.

Deals that belong in a trump suit often wind up in no-trump. This is for the extra ten points paid for a no-trump trick. And each pair gets one match point for each pair they top.

Numerous fancy bidding and re-pulled for the sake trick or two they may produce. Some of these stunts really pay off in quite a number of cases.

I am thinking of a deal that came off not long ago. Here it is:

NORTH
♠ A K 10
♥ A K Q J 10 2
♦ A K
♣ A J

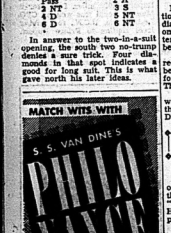
WEST	EAST
♠ 9 6 3	♠ Q 7 5
♥ 9 8 6 5	♥ 4 3
♦ 9 8	♦ J 7 6 5
♣ Q 10 8 6	♣ 7 6 5 4 2

SOUTH
♠ 8 4 2
♥ 9 3
♦ Q 10 5 4 2
♣ K 9 3

The bidding at one table went like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 S	2 H
2 NT	3 S
4 D	4 H
6 NT	6 NT
Pass

In answer to the two-in-a-suit opening, the south two no-trump denies a fine trick. Four diamonds in that spot indicates a good for the suit. This is what gave north his later ideas.



Five no-trump is the convention that asks only for kings. If diamonds in response signals only one kings. So, north lost interest in a grand slam. He had to be content with a bid of six.

There is a small slam in a red suit, north figured there may be in no-trump. Anyway, he left for the extra points in no-trump. This, south became the declarer.

All other suits having been bid west led a club. South figured the cute play for taking 12 tricks. Dig it out of there.

The Movie Column

By RON GADSBY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It hasn't received the acclaim of "The Jolson Story" because the theme isn't as honeyed, but "The Man I Love" is proof that Hollywood can make an honest picture.

It is the story of a hard-boiled gal with a slight voice who likes to sing, but who, like many night club people, yearns for home and the fireside. Ida Lupino, who looks just "hard" enough for the part of singer Petey Brown, plays the role to the hilt and never once do you forget what she is supposed to be.

The picture, filled for adults, is a beautifully written piece, in its first and last scenes but never slips.

Unlike "The Jolson Story", the rich lovely songs are presented without fanfare and fit with complete honesty to the trail of the plot. Who wouldn't thrill to "Why Was I Born", "Just My Luck", "If I Could be With You", "Body and Soul", and "The Man I Love".

Lupino uncorks a voice that is throaty, a little cute but satisfying for the songs she sings. She takes you back to Helen Morgan —remember the tiny piano-singer? —and she does it beautifully.

All through the picture you can't forget you are watching real people, talking as people they are supposed to be, talk.

And still they do it. They still insist on peddling outrageous "B" productions to Canada, an otherwise perfect afternoon. With this above mentioned film the customers were forced to sit through a "Who Dunnit" the odor of which still leaves mephitic memories.

Barbara Ann's Conscience Clear In Auto Fuss

Accepted Car on Understanding Gift Had Been Cleared by Canadian Union

Toronto, May 8. (CP)— The international hullabaloo over Barbara Ann Scott's amateur status died down today. The pretty 19-year-old Ottawa girl who won the world's women's figure skating championship at Stockholm said on arrival in Toronto last night from London, Ont., that her conscience was clear as regards the gift by the City of Ottawa of a sporty yellow motorcar.

The gift from their Ottawa home-town fellow citizens would have aroused the ructions that it did. The president of the International Olympic Committee, J. S. Edstrom of Stockholm, had inquired of the Canadian Olympic committee about the motorcar and apparently he was acting on advice of Avery Brundage of California, head of the American committee.

Barbara and her mother carefully explained that they accepted the motorcar on the understanding the gift had been cleared with officials of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Association so far as Barbara's amateur status was concerned.

Will Return Car

In the heat of the argument both suggested that the issue had been raised in an attempt to bar Barbara from the 1948 Olympic games. Barbara and her mother heartily concurred in the statement that the motorcar would certainly be returned to the donors if it was going to interfere with Barbara's entry in the Olympics.

"My conscience is clear," said the diminutive skating star as she reached Toronto last night.

Solemn Owl Washes As Pastor Preaches

London (CP)—A tawny owl stared placidly at the Sunday evening congregation at St. Peter's Church, Piccadilly Circus, while the vicar, Rev. Clarence Mayo, introduced him. Then—he began washing himself.

"I thought it would be a good idea to have birds around at the service," the vicar explained.

With Strix, the owl, was Tinkerbell, a wild canary. During the service she chirped hopped onto a pew, inspected the occupants, pecked at the carpet—and went to work on the church flowers.

Cressida a falcon, wounded and captured with her master at Tobruk was prevented from attending the service through illness.

RICE RIOTS SPREAD

Shanghai, May 8 — (AP)—Rice riots spread through Shanghai today and most food shops refused to open their doors.

In one instance, 200 Chinese stormed a shop after the owner said his supply was exhausted and carried away 32 bags of rice.

One other shop was broken open, but the city-wide strikes police arrived before crowds could reach the rice stocks.

The price hit a new high of 360,000 Chinese dollars ($20) a picul (133 1/3 pounds). 10,000 police above yesterday's record figure.

SPORTS EDITORS TAKE RAP AT AVERY BRUNDAGE

Suggested Car be Traded for 1948 Model Until Girls Barbara After Olympics

(By The Canadian Press)

Sports editors across Canada in a collective outburst yesterday condemned the fine for Barbara Ann Scott's gift car — but they tossed the biggest bundle of verbal brickbats at Avery Brundage, president of the United States Olympic Committee, who referred up the fow over the pretty world skating champion's acceptance of the gift from her native Ottawa.

At London, home town of thirteen-man Nelson Eddy of the Canadian Olympic Committee, Jack Park of the London Free Press described the committee of "scurrying to appease Uncle Sam" Americans "cousins" and would have gained much more prestige by making Barbara turn down the car. He added that "Brundage has nothing to do with amateur policy in Canada."

Britt Jessup of the North Bay Nugget, another who thinks Brundage's check up on U. S. competitors is unlimited, asked: "The car should be traded in on a 1948 model which can be presented to Barbara Ann after she wins the Olympics, Eh?"

Ivan Miller summed up things for Ontario in the Oshawa Times: "Let's stop being so darned sensitive, Canada, it is up in arms over the controversy involving Barbara Ann Scott and Brundage, and rightly so."

Some gentle Australia comment:

Rex McLeod, Guelph Mercury: "If there is any suspicion of graft it should be directed toward Canadian amateurism's chief, Brundage."

Hank Ronson: "The whole thing smacks of nothing but jealousy on the part of the U. S. Olympic president." George Carver, Belleville Ontario Intelligencer: "Brundage appears to be seeking an easy way for a U. S. figure skating championship." Chick Appel, Stratford Beacon-Herald: "The incident is a glaring illustration of how officious some amateur officials can become. Surely we could well prosper without their meddling." Bill Dunn, Brantford Expositor-Times: "If only spelessly clean amateurs can compete in the Olympics there might be a terrific number of second-raters in British sport yet." Matt Dennis, Chatham News: "Beware, Barbara! Don't become a snide person or you'll be declared a professional by Mr. Brundage."

George Campbell of the Oshawa Times-Gazette: "It's about time the sports writers of the North American continent got together and put the blast on these 'badgers' who carry on from event to event, a trip to the Olympics (with all expenses paid) but at the same time want to set themselves up as authorities as to what constitutes amateurism. . . . We have a complete new 'Olympic committee' every four years, and it's about time at least of one can be passed around."

Eddie Chandler Taken to Jail In Venezuela

Brooklyn, May 8 (AP)—Eddie Chandler is the young pitcher who spent a few hours in a Venezuelan jail because he wouldn't pitch for the baseball club owned by the New York Yankees.

Starting this weekend, during Brooklyn's National League series at Philadelphia, Chandler will make his starting debut against Ben Chapman's Phillies. He was more worried about getting out of El Calaboso in Caracas.

"I was playing winter ball in Venezuela when I got a wire from Branch Rickey," he explained. "He told me I might be suspended and fined by the commission if I played after March 1. I showed the wire to the promoter and my manager. They said, 'just put on a uniform and come out to show the fans you are here.'

"Along about the seventh inning our pitcher was getting the bumps and they asked me to pitch. When I said 'no' they bundled me up in a car and took me to the police station. I guess if they hadn't won the game eventually I might be down there yet. I got a $10 fine and that was all. They let me out and I'm never going back again."

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 8 (CP)—For years amateur athletic officials have been likened to the wasp—everybody critical of them but nobody doing anything about it . . . the criticism centres around the conservatism of the amateur bosses—from local chapters to Olympic committees . . . latest athletic stars to run into the Jovian anger of the almon pure bosses are Pauline Betz and Sarah Palfrey Cooke, the tennis stars, and Barbara Ann Scott, Ottawa's pride in the figure skating world. . . Polly and Sarah were suspended for defending the very "amateur" expense money was awarded by the United States Lawn Tennis Association. . . Barbara Ann is threatened with suspension from next year's Olympic games for accepting an automobile from her worshipping home town after she had won the European World and North American Titles.

Old Old Story

The feud of sports writer with amateur stuffiness goes back a long way . . . Jimmy Ronald, he was Jim Thorpe, the Carlyle Indian who won the Pentathlon and the Decathlon in Stockholm before the First World War — only to be booted out of amateur competition when it was learned he had taken a few dollars for playing a baseball game years before . . . . . other noteworthy cases were Eleanor Holm, the back-stroke swimming champion who was tossed off the 1936 United States Olympic team for drinking champagne, the Olympic committee's ruling that Glenn Hagg, the Swedish runner, for working in a sporting goods store, and the feud between the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Ligue Internationale de Hockey Sur Glace . . . The C.A.H.A. only last February got straightened out with the I.I.H.G. on what constitutes an amateur. It's rumored that the L. H. G. made considerable concessions.

Contest Board Refuses to Reopen The Entry List

Indianapolis, May 8 (AP)—The 33 race drivers who withheld their entries in the 500-mile motor speedway race which pays demands for $150,000 purse instead of $75,000 were yelled probably will not compete in the May 30 classic.

The American Automobile Association's contest board has refused to reopen the entry list before qualifying time and also has refused to approve a 200-mile national championship race in Milwaukee May 30.

However there was a possibility that some of the holdout drivers, including some of the country's top-ranking racers, might enter the speedway race on speedway terms but pilots of cars already entered before the qualifying trials begin May 17.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Operation Olympic, a public relations job, the part of Radio City Broadcasters of the A.A.U. to prevent blacklisting Barbara Ann Scott, Canada's pride in figure skating, from participating in the Olympic Games next year, is receiving plenty of attention. From Chicago comes the following item:

Miss Barbara Ann, who crowned the grievous wrongs heaped upon her by automobile from her native village of Ottawa by whisking the world's figure skating title at Stockholm, was slated for relegation to the sidelines.

Canadians, especially the sports-writing fraternity, are up in arms at the action of Ottawa is seething with anger and rightfully so. Stanley Broadage appears to be seeking an excuse to keep the United States Olympic figure-skating championship. The "technicality" smacks plainly of sour grapes for there is definitely nothing on the U.S. horizon that can even compare with the beautiful Canadian champion, let alone take away her title.

• • •

Confidentially . . .

• • •

And in passing, we wonder if Gretchen Merrill, the fallen Back Bay United States champion, who finished third in the world's figure-skating competition behind Barbara Ann and the British champion, and who was very much absent in the Empire championship, will be eligible for the Olympics. Wanna bet?

• • •

Belleville wrestling fans have seen a few of the super notch wrestling matches during the past several months but it took—as it does the very best in a century to top the next Friday's main bout at the Memorial Arena. Manager Wild Bill Gerow has got John Katan and Whipper Billy Watson of the two top British Empire wrestlers will fight it out here. Whipper Watson's British Empire championship will be at stake and the match can be counted on to produce one of the most exciting evenings that fans around here have had in many a moon.

• • •

Katan, bigger and rougher than ever, smashed his way through Australian rings last season and built himself a reputation as an Empire title challenger that Watson simply cannot ignore. On top of all he accomplished "Down Under", Katan roared into the arena here two weeks ago and gained another big notch in his list of wins by a victory over Earl McCready.

• • •

Now Katan (with the possible exception of Big Mike Sprague) is the hardest challenger Whip has to face. Honest John is well past his youth but you'd never know it by the way he can twist and slug an opponent into submission. Katan has two deadly holds, his "Uncrossed-ocus Chin-Lock" and his punishing "Standing Load-Lock". If he can get either of those grips on Whipper it will mean the British Empire Championship will change hands then and there.

• • •

Lou Newman the powerfully-built weight-lifter and wrestler from San Francisco will be introduced here on Friday's card. Newman has been selected to test the new mat that let the tremendous Hy Lee "The Ozark Giant." Lee is reported to weigh close to three hundred pounds, all of it bone and muscle. The Giant is from the Ozark Mountain's in Arkansaw and according to the tales they tell in the Southern sporting circles is unbeatable.

• • •

This very unusual mat character Hy Lee the Ozark Giant who wrestles here in the semi-final match against Lew Newman on Friday night is likely to stir Belleville mat fans as they have seldom been stirred before. Lee is no big shot, outside of Iron Tallus the fans here have never seen so much mat muscle on the hoof at one time. Christened Rob't E. Lee the tremendous young man from the Ozark Mountains in Arkansaw soon earned the nick-name "Hy" and once he got out into "the civilized world" they added the sobriquet "Ozark Giant."

• • •

Hy Lee's match comes on before the British Empire Championship battle between the titleholder Whipper Billy Watson and his bitterest rival John Katan whom Referee Reeve of the Toronto Telegram always refers to as "The Calgary Eye-Opener." Katan spent sometime in the Canadian West before it settled at Palermo, Ont. and western fans still maintain an acute interest in the big Can - Ukranian wrestler's matches.

• • •

Perhaps the grimmest and most punishing wrestler Billy Watson could choose to tackle Katan has taken part in some o the most gruelling matches the fans of this city have ever seen. Now after two years of waiting Katan will get another chance at Watson and the Belleville Athletic has always claimed that Whipper won the crown un-fairly and that he, Katan, should be the rightful holder. Well, Katan will have his chance on Friday night and see if you can make your claim stick. We don't think you'll have the most sympathetic audience in the whole world but that has never bothered you here.

• • •

Four teams two of them from Point Anne, will form the nucleus of the Belleville Softball Association, it was learned at a meeting of the executive last night in the City Hall. The Ox Point squads, with the Canadian National Railway War Veteran team and the Belleville Juniors are said to be definite entries with a strong possibility of Consolidated Air Ferez and the Picton Army Air entering the mushball fold.

• • •

A lot of wrinkles were ironed out at the meeting which was in charge of Ossie Wills the new prexy, Mr. Thibeault in the chair. Highlite of the session which was featured with plenty of discussion are a protest against the appointing of Messrs. Don Thomas, Ken Colling and Jack H. Calver was named, with protest fees quoted at $25. This should give the boys time to look up all the official squawk goes into headquarters.

• • •

Affiliation dues were set at ten bucks, the same as during the figure of last year, and the deadline for teams to get in on the official mushball swim was set for May 17. Incidentally, teams were requested to file names of umpires to date, the officials to be subject to the scrutiny of the powers-that-be. And while on the umpire subject a motion that the fees of the man's pad be paid three dollars each, was defeated and an amendment that the plate umps get three simoleons and base' bloke two, was carried.

• • •

A new departure was the endorsed motion that any member of executive can play, coach manage a participating team. And back to that umpire question for the nonce, each squad must pay its own arbiter Transportation will be supplied by the home town team. And, the umps will be nonplaying personel for all league games.

• • •

All teams in the association will select the diamond they wish to play on for their home games. It was also decided that all games will be played on the Memlie Field. The loop is sponsoring an illustrated program which fairly sparkles with feature stories, pictures etc. The mushball mag will be distributed free at all seasonal and playoff games. Highlight will be a breezy article by Jim Coleman, Toronto sports columnist.

• • •

Outstanding news item of the session was the announcement by Harold Bawden who will master-mind the new Canadian National Railway Vets squad, that brother Johnny will come out of two years retirement and attempt a comeback on the mound. The CNR Vets, will have an outstanding pitching staff if Johnny makes the comeback, but will successfully, for on the Railway mound will be the veteran Jim Hunter, and effective Marty Halloran. The rest of the squad will be formed of such veterans as Herbie Henn, Jimmy McGirr, Leo Geyer, Tim Hunter, Alfie Rowbotham and others, "Red" Carson has the coaching assignment, and may find himself injected into an occasional game.

• • •

Frank (Silent) Sedore of will Branch Rickey one of the Pi. Lynx squads, and silbuesh he did not produce a nominal roll, stated that he had three outstanding infield's and the promise of an 'out-of-town star to round out a quartet. There was nothing to report about the Belleville Juniors, former Ontario champions, but it was intimated that the team will be headed by its former ace hurler Don Boyle. The second Point Anne team, it was hinted, will be composed of young players, and sponsored by a union organization.

REPLACE RUINED BOATHOUSE

Fort Francis, Ont., (CP)— A $10,000 boathouse to replace the three destroyed in the tornado which struck this northwestern Ontario town last June, will be constructed by the Federal government. It will house boats belonging to the Indian Affairs Branch, the R.C.M.P. and the Public Works Department.

Vancouver, May 8. (CP)—At nearly every golf tournament some Junior sensation pops up briefly, puts all the best divoters to sorry shame and then "is heard no more."

Vancouver claims the latest golfing junior genius. He is 17-year-old Bill Mawhinney—but coast linksmen swear he's no "flash in the pan".

Ormy (Vancouver Sun) Hall expects Bill to romp off with the British Columbia Junior Golf Championship this year and then tackle—and probably carry off—some of golf's choicer senior laurels.

Hall says Mawhinney has all the shots—a long hitter, a steady iron game and careful short play—and he must have for "Giant-Killer". Mawhinney walked off with the Vancouver match play open championship last week.

Victims of the par-busting exploits of the beardless wonder included Stan Leonard, often rated Canada's greatest golfer, Lyle Hurschman, B.C., amateur champ, and a couple of British Columbia's better professionals.

Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell thinks the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, so far as sports coverage is concerned, should stick to drama.

Hen's ire was raised by the failure of the CBC to carry the Allan Cup final.

After prodding, he says, we got the Grey Cup (football), an oil company gave us the Stanley Cup and we may even get the King's Plate this year, but the Allan Cup, the Canadian Senior Hockey championship—with cup games played since 1872—was not aired.

McConnell says there is no excuse for the CBC. There was plenty of notice when the present series would be played and where, he added.

CHAPTER 10

Cherry prayed that she would not vomit and fell to the street below before she got her hand on her.

"Here," Cherry said, her teeth chattering, "let's put your coat around your shoulders. It's horribly cold. You—you'll catch an awful cold. Here, I'll help you."

Suddenly Cherry with all of her strength, flung the coat around the girl's shoulders and struggled to pull her from the railing. The dazed girl seemed to realize that Cherry was trying to keep her from carrying out her purpose and with a wild cry tried to fling Cherry from her.

But Cherry, with a strength born of fear, held on grimly, and soon the two girls were in a death grip, their screams riding the wind and reaching to the street below.

Officer Brannan, directing traffic on his beat a half block away looked up suddenly and saw the drama that was being unfolded above the terrace so high above his head. At first he thought his eyes were deceiving him. It must be two young dancers, he said to himself himself would two fools be carrying on like that on the railing of a terrace? Nobody could get that drunk.

Forgetting the traffic, Brannan ran toward the building, calling to a plain clothes man passing by to send for help.

After what seemed endless hours to Cherry, she had managed to pull the two girls near safety, and for several seconds they fought madly over the terrace floor. Cherry saw a small table with an iron base on it out of the corner of her eyes and moved toward it, fighting as she went.

Suddenly, clinching her teeth, she dropped her arms from the panting, screaming girl and brought the vase down on her head. The girl fell heavily at her feet. Cherry staggered back-ward wheezily, fainted, falling in a little heap in the doorway.

It was Lola who returned and found Cherry lying there. She had fallen.

"Cherry!" she screamed, "What has happened? What's wrong?" She knelt and shook Cherry frantically, but had the presence of mine to pull her inside and close the door. Then she ran to call for help. Lola found Si Winters at the front door with a breathless policeman.

"What's going on out on your terrace, Lola?" the officer demanded. "Two women—fighting like wild cats on the terrace railing?"

Lola understood what had happened to Cherry. Her hand went to her mouth in a gesture of fear. She turned to her dazed host:

"Oh—Cherry must have seen it. She—she's fainted. C—come quickly. I—I had gone back for my compact. I—"

"Cherry who?" the officer wanted to know. "Was she a woman?"

Lola shivered: "She must have been. We were on our way to the terrace. I had left my compact in the powder room. When I got back—Cherry was lying in the door."

The officer pushed Winters aside. "There's something funny goin' on here, don't let anybody get away Winters. You wait here."

Si walked stiffly to the bar and picked up a drink.

"Listen everybody," his voice shook when he had gulped the glass of brandy. "Something has happened. The police say no one can leave, I'm sorry."

Several girls screamed. Brett Hobart sat at Si's elbow. Si said under his breath:

"You'd better go in to the master bedroom and see your girl friend. Two girls have been fighting on the terrace, Brett. She must have witnessed it. Lola Hitchcock found her in a faint in the terrace door."

Brett said wildly: "Oh, Hell! I've got to get out of here, Si. If I get mixed up in this thing my old man will take away every cent I've got. I've been in enough trouble as it is."

Si gave him a withering look. "You're going to run out and leave the kid in a spot like this? What kind of a heel are you? Aren't you engaged to her?"

"I am not," Brett declared, downing his own drink. "She's a swell fellow to play around with, but that's all. You know what my old man thinks of models!"

"I know what I'd think of you if I were your old man," Si Winters turned on his heel and walked away.

By that time several other members of the police and detective forces had arrived, but a butler showed Brett Hobart a secret way out when he gave him fifty dollars.

Cherry opened her eyes to find a policeman bending over her. She looked up at him dazedly:

"Where am I?" she asked weakly.

"You fainted," said the officer. "Take it easy till you get your wits about you. You're all right."

Lola stood on the other side of the bed crying frantically into her wisp of a handkerchief. The maid was wringing cold towels and laying them on Cherry's head. Suddenly Cherry, with a stifled scream, tried to rise up.

"That girl!" she said wildly. "She tried to jump off the terrace. I remember now. Oh, God! I—I had to hit her over the head. She—she's out there now. Do — something."

"She's on her way to the hospital," said Brannan. What were you trying to do, murder her? What were you two dames fightin' about?"

Cherry moaned and fell back, almost losing consciousness again. Lola cried:

"She never saw Patsy Lloyd in her life before. She couldn't have been fighting with a girl she didn't even know. You can't do anything to her!"

Cherry said weakly: "I opened the door and saw her trying to jump. I—tried to keep her from it."

"Well we'll find out more about that at headquarters," Brannan did not look convinced. "Perhaps Brett Hobart knows. You'll have to come along with me."

"You can't take her," Lola sobbed. "I won't let you! She hasn't done anything!"

"You're going too," said the officer. "So is your host and a few other guests. It'll be quite a party I'm thinkin' before it's settled."

Dazedly Cherry got up a little later, her legs shaking until she could scarcely take a step.

"May I call my attorney?" she asked the policeman. "I—I want to get home."

"You can have her called from headquarters, Officer Brannan took her arm. "When you know where you're going to be, and what charge you're going to be held on, if any. The desk sergeant takes care of that."

The next two hours were a nightmare of photographers and reporters and detectives. Lola broke down in Cherry through it all, snapping frequently at a particularly persistent member of the press, or a detective who seemed to doubt that Cherry was telling the truth.

Si seemed completely broken up over what had happened. In an interview he told reporters that Patsy Lloyd was "the finest kid 've ever known." She was different he said from most of the others, and he would marry her in a minute if it weren't for the difference in their ages.

He hadn't wanted to ruin her life. She didn't belong in a crowd like this, Patsy was different. No he wasn't engaged to Fifi Du Bois. It was only a publicity stunt to help her get a start in this country. Si would have said anything to clear the name of the little girl who had tried to end her life for love of him.

Worse than almost anything happening to Cherry was the message that Brett Hobart had run away and left her alone to face the police. She had been so sure they would be married. So certain that he wouldn't be able to live without her. Cherry had always been sheltered somehow, where men were concerned. Hadn't she been told all her life how beautiful she was, and how different Patsy's daughter. She wouldn't have dared do such a thing! She was just a model he liked to show off. Patsy looked like a million dollars, and because he got publicity for being seen with a girl from Georgettes. What a fool she had been!

A reporter had told her Brett Hobart denied even being at the party with her, asserting he had merely met her at the bar. They were only casual friends. Even the newspaper men tried to get her to say she would sue the celebrated Hobart heir for breach of promise, she could have screamed with humiliation. What a cheap person they must think her!

Curt De Witt was riding home from the annual dinner of his college fraternity when he turned on the radio in his car and heard the news of Patsy Lloyd's attempted suicide. A voice was saying tonelessly:

"Miss Cherry Lind, a nineteen year old model is being held by police for questioning. Miss Lind is the sister of April Lind, singer and radio star. Miss Lind hysterically denies that she tried to push Miss Lloyd from the terrace during a quarrel."

Curt called to his chauffeur:

"Stop at the next drug store where I can telephone, Mike."

In a booth he phoned April. She was weeping, when she heard his voice at three o'clock in the morning. He knew from her manner that she knew the worst of Cherry's trouble.

"I'll be over as soon as I can get a cab," he begged April. "I want you to keep out of it, dear. I'll telephone my attorney to meet me at headquarters and we'll see that everything possible is done for Cherry."

"Oh," April cried, "I feel I must go to her, Curt."

"You'll only let yourself in for a lot of unpleasantness." Curt said gently. "You can't help her any good. Gates Quill is the best lawyer in New York. We'll have her home in no time. You don't want to be photographed and grilled by a crowd of busy news hounds."

April awakened Gay and together they waited for further word from Curt De Witt. It seemed an eternity before he telephoned that he was on his way out to Douglaston with Cherry, but it was actually less than two hours. He had taken full responsibility for her release.

The morning papers blazoned headlines of the penthouse terrace scandal and the front page of every paper in New York was given to Cherry Lind. A frightened subdued Cherry whose puppy eyes held only terror and bewilderment.

She collapsed completely when Curt brought her home, and fainted again in April's arms. In the afternoon Patsy Lloyd regained consciousness and told the police that Cherry had been alone on the Winters' roof. She had received a slight scalp wound and was suffering from hysteria.

Gay and April put Cherry to bed while Curt De Witt phoned for his physician, Doctor Sylvester Harkness said Cherry was suffering from nervous shock, and that she would have to spend several days in bed.

Gates Quill the doctor and Curt's attorney it was arranged so that Cherry did not have to go again to Manhattan to appear at the police investigation into further details of the attempted suicide. That afternoon her statement was taken at her bedside, in the presence of Harkness. Cherry who was firm in his demand that the girl was not to be disturbed during a quarrel.

That afternoon her statement was taken at her bedside, in the presence of Harkness. Cherry who was firm in his demand that the girl was not to be disturbed during a quarrel.

Cherry hysterically demanded that all the papers be brought to her, and April decided she would be only more upset if she didn't get her wish. So, reluctantly they took them in to her bed, and Cherry began heedlessly and screamed at the terrified girl sent her off into fresh torrents of tears. But even greater than her shock was the horror that came to her when she looked at the beautiful young face of Patsy Lloyd smiling at her from every front page in New York. Suppose she had taken her own life.

Patsy had left a farewell note in her room for Si Winters telling him she loved him so much she couldn't live without him. And to please Cherry for fear what she was about to do. She asked him not to forget the wonderful times they once had together, and to keep the locket she was enclosing with her picture always.

There was another hysterical note written "To Whom It May Concern" in which little Patsy warned any young girl who thought she would find happiness and fame in New York to stay at home and listen to her parents.

"You will only break your hearts," Patsy had written dramatically in a childish hand. "Believe me, I know. Rich men have no use for poor girls." A woman reporter had found the notes on Patsy's dressing table.

Patsy had come from a small town in Pennsylvania only two years before. She had been fortunate in having a photogenic face that helped her to earn a living as a photographers model. Her black hair was a riot of curls and her eyes big and dark and sparkling with youth.

Cherry had left sedatives for Cherry, but everytime she aroused her eyes and began she Patsy trying to jump from the terrace would rise up and scream. April had been compelled to go over to her room to get ready for her broadcast, but Gay sat beside her bed almost constantly, holding her hand and trying to soothe her. Every few minutes Wyacinthe would come to the door and shake her kinky head sorrowfully, asking if there wasn't something she could do.

Late that evening a disheveled Pat Hastings arrived in his car from Virginia. He had driven all day. When Gay opened the door she was amazed to see the young attorney.

"Why Pat!" she reached out and put her arms around him. "It's nice to see you. Come in."

"How's Cherry?" Pat asked Whitely. "Is she all right? Do the police still have her in custody?

LUMBER SHIPPED OUT

Halifax, May 7 — (CP)— The Halifax Herald said in a dispatch from Truro, N. S., Wednesday it had learned from a reliable source that 7,000,000 feet of lumber, salvaged from the wartime desert military camp, is being shipped to Toronto and Winnipeg. It said the lumber was to be used for wartime housing projects in those areas.

MIXED WITH TOBACCO

Johnson City, N. Y., May 3 — (AP) — Coroner Donnelly Cox of Whitney Point gave this explanation as to how he was shot in the face:

A friend, Donnelly said, was smoking a pipe. Suddenly there was an explosion and a .22 caliber bullet struck Donnelly's face, causing a minor laceration.

Donnelly said his friend was unable to explain how the bullet became mixed with the tobacco.

Halifax Faces Problems Similar After First War

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, May 8 —(CP)— Two wars have changed the face of Halifax little and today the ancient port faces disturbing problems to find it to meet after the First World War.

The city, whose business section is built on a slope that rises steeply from the harbor to Citadel Hill, depends for much of its prosperity on its waterfront, now shabby after seven years of tremendous activity.

What is happening for a second time in 30 years is pointed up in the case of vessel movements. Shipping has dropped off more than 50 per cent since 1945 and harbor pilots have complained they no longer can make a decent living wage.

The closing of ship repair hammers in the shipyards and H.M.C.S. dockyard has been softened. Hundreds of workers have been laid off and knowing only one specialized trade—shipbuilding — have not readily found other jobs.

Haligonians for the most part do not attempt to hide the fact that sections of the downtown area are dilapidated. "During the last decade," reads the time nor the labor to fix things up," they say. "Now we can't afford it."

However, city council has planned an extensive clean-up campaign including construction of new streets, sidewalks and a housing program. The city's bicentennial will be held in 1949 and citizens want to see their town of its war-wear appearance by then.

One problem was partially solved with the ending of the war—the housing situation. It still is not good, but it's an eight-room apartment for every man, woman and child compared to what it was. The population has dropped from its wartime peak of some 100,000 to about 97,000. Most of the 30,000 who left were service men and their families.

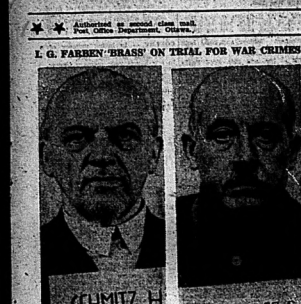
I. G. FARBEN 'BRASS' ON TRIAL FOR WAR CRIMES



Here are four of the top officials of the I. G. Farbenindustrie, great German chemical trust, who have been indicted by the United States on charges of fomenting and waging aggressive war, murder, slavery and mass robbery. It is alleged that cartel agreements between I. G. Farben and American companies prevented production of essential war materials in the U. S. until the U. S. entered the war. The accused ABOVE are Hermann Schmitz, chairman of the I. G. Farben board and director of the Bank of International Settlements; Georg von Schnitzler, director of home and foreign sales and military chief; Karl Krauch, Goering's special adviser on chemical production, and Heinrich Hoerlein, chief of chemical research.

BODY IDENTIFIED AS YOUTH FROM SAULT STE. MARIE

Police Officials Claim F. Desjardins Escaped From Training School In Toronto April 27

Kingston, May 8 (CP)—Police today identified as Fred Desjardins, 17, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., a youth whose body was found yesterday in a cedar grove near Arden, 50 miles northwest of Kingston, with a .22 rifle bullet in his head.

Formal identification was made this morning by Inspector W. J. Franks of the criminal investigation branch of the Ontario Provincial Police, who came here with fingerprints, after prints of the dead youth had been sent to Toronto.

Officials said that Desjardins escaped April 27 from St. John's Training School in Toronto where he had been serving a term.

In Toronto school officials said Desjardins was committed to the Institute twice within the past five years. He was serving an indefinite term on a theft charge when he escaped.

Brother Francis of St. John's School says here last night and said Desjardins escaped from the school Saturday night with a 16-year-old companion who is still at large.

He said the two youths left dummies in their beds to delay discovery of their escape.

Crown officials and police still refuse to identify the dead youth, the youth, found a few feet from a stolen sleeping bag and rifle which he had allegedly taken during an April 27 break-in at an Arden store, was killed by a gang of thieves or that he was a member of such a gang.

The khaki-clad body of the youth, who appeared to be between 16 and 17 years of age, was found fully dressed except for shoes by Wm. Whitelock, district farmer.

Police later rushed the shoes out of a pool in a nearby swamp.

Police described the youth as about five feet, seven inches tall, and weighing 145 pounds. On top of his body was an old scar which had healed in the form of a cross.

Recovery of Europe and Asia Depends on Reconstruction Rate Says Dean Acheson

Cleveland, Miss., May 8—(AP)—Germany and Japan were called the "great workshops" of Europe and Asia yesterday by Dean Acheson, undersecretary of state, who urged that their reconstruction be speeded.

Acheson said that "the ultimate recovery of the two continents largely depend upon such a policy and that:

"We are going to have to concentrate our emergency assistance in areas where it will be most effective in building world political and economic stability, in promoting human freedom and democratic institutions, in fostering liberal trading policies, and in strengthening the authority of the United Nations."

The Undersecretary of State spoke at the annual meeting of the Delta council, an organization of agricultural and business men.

He pointed out that the United States take a large volume of exports to private trade, and in world recovery and that it undertakes further emergency financing of foreign purchases.

London, May 9 —(AP)— A foreign office spokesman today denied Britain welcomed the proposal by State Undersecretary Dean Acheson that the United States increase imports to bolster international trade. He said the undersecretary's analysis of the world's economic problems was "both far-sighted and lucid."

Acheson said in a foreign policy address in Cleveland, Miss., yesterday that there could be no lasting peace or prosperity until the world recovered and proposed that the United States take a large volume of imports to increase international trade and follow a policy of making foreign purchases through further emergency financing.

While the foreign office spokesman gave blanket approval to Acheson's "far-sighted" the influential Times of London was more cautious in its newsroom and said the speech's "realistic analysis" demanded "urgency" might raise European hopes for "wise outcome of the debate over America's future world role." But it added that the undersecretary's proposal that the reconstruction of Germany and Japan be "speeded" quoted should was a controversial one.

FARMER MEMBERS HOLD SPOTLIGHT IN THE COMMONS

Ask Tax Reductions And Improvements In Existing Agricultural Policies

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 9 — (CP) — Representatives of farming communities held the spotlight in the Commons yesterday while they placed the troubles of their constituents before the government with appeals for tax reductions and for improvements in existing agricultural policies.

The appeals came during continued budget speech debate which was brought from business and labor representatives further criticism and some praise for the recently-announced tax changes.

Cal Jackman (PC — Portage La Prairie) and Joseph Burton (CCF —Humboldt) urged greater income tax relief for western farmers.

In the Senate, debate continued on the government's main control bill with discussion there now on objections to an order-in-council continuing restrictions against Japanese-Canadians.

Want Marketing Board

Dr. Wilfrid Gagnon, Mr. Michaud urged immediate establishment of a potato marketing board. He observed there was a wheat board for the marketing of wheat but that special products while an effective minimum or floor price was operating for practically all other farm products of any consequence. Potatoes were the only exception.

The result was that Maritime potato growers had to contend with the "implacable" law of supply and demand and were exposed to "very unfair" competition in marketing.

Seaway Project Bill Introduced In U.S. Senate

Cost of Huge Development Would Exceed $500,000,000

Washington, May 9—(AP)—Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep.-Mich.) introduced in the United States Senate today for himself and 14 other senators bi-partisan legislature authorizing construction of the controversial St. Lawrence seaway and power development.

The measure, providing for imposition of tolls to make the multi-million dollar project self-liquidating, also was introduced in the House of Representatives by Chairman George Dondero (Rep.-Mich.) of the Public Works Committee.

The legislation, virtually identical to that introduced in previous congresses, provides for the completion of the tolls feature, would authorize construction of a 27-foot channel from the head of the Great Lakes to the mouth of the St. Lawrence to permit access by ocean-going shipping.

It also would authorize construction of power-generating units in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence. An estimated 2,200,000 horsepower would be produced annually.

The power benefits would be shared equally between the United States and Canada.

Army engineers have estimated that total cost of the development would exceed $500,000,000. Both United States and Canada would share in the cost.

Russia Demands 400 Carloads Flour From Starving Romania

Washington, May 9. (AP)—A ton of wheat and 2,500 tons of beans.

In addition the United States has made available some 88,000 tons of corn for purchase by Romania, despite the urgency of demands from other countries this spring. Only today the Agriculture Department announced allocation of 9,000 tons of corn for shipment in May and June.

The American Red Cross is spending $23,500,000 for the food distribution, mostly in the form of corn, gripped Moldavia.

Officials said they cannot estimate how many tons of flour are represented by the 400 carloads being turned over to the Russian.

13 Freighters Held in Ice Jam

Buffalo, May 9 — (CP) — Thirteen lake freighters are firmly caught in a great mass of ice in the Lake Erie end of Buffalo harbor, the United States coastguard reported today.

The ice mass has caused the worst jam to clog the channel in many years. All the vessels are laden with cargoes and their decks can be seen billowing across the horizon as they struggle to break the ice and make headway. The U. S. coastguard station at Buffalo said that the ship had succeeded in breaking out of the harbor through the ice and water.

The giant ice-breaker, Macinac, still has not reached the scene, and it is thought that the ships may remain fast in the ice for some time.

Seeking to maintain their shipping schedules, nine large carriers have been using the Erie Belt and Tupello, leading from the harbor, in an attempt to skirt the thickest sections of the giant icefield, only to find that all other passes of ice on the outer edge, have formed a solid mass for a radius of more than two miles.

Officials estimate that it is said that the lost time caused by the ice mass will cost business considerable, shipping trade had been brisk since navigation opened nearly a month ago and that the cargoes of autos, coal, iron and grain, storage elevators, being carried.

Crop Outlook in Ontario Desperate Official Declares

(By The Canadian Press)

The crop outlook in Ontario—where field crops last year had a value of $223,000,000,—is desperate, an official of the Ontario Department of Agriculture said today of cold weather which has delayed seeding operations there for five weeks.

But even as he spoke of the serious situation which might develop if Ontario production of such vitally-needed cereal grains as oats, barley and mixed grain suffered, he said that the bulk of planting, an official of the Dominion Meteorological Office at Malton near here Toronto predicted warmer weather for tomorrow with temperatures of 55 degrees, 65 to 60 degrees in Southern Ontario.

But although the weatherman said a warm wave was in prospect, with Sunday to be warmer than Saturday, he added a sombre note of warning to fruit growers in the Niagara Peninsula and farmers with fruit trees in bud or small crops up.

Frost Danger Seen

"It looks as if the danger from frost will be more acute tonight than for several nights," he said. The last few nights temperatures ranged generally from 28 to 32 degrees. It looks as if they will run around 32 generally tonight but there will be little wind and there may be severe local frosts in low-lying areas. It may hit farms in hollows hard."

The agricultural official said the seeding delay would probably mean that Ontario farmers would turn to such late crops as corn, rye and buckwheat to make up for the unexpected drop in cereal grain acreage.

From scattered points in Ontario came reports that farmers welcomed the break in the weather. In the Galt area in Southern Waterloo county farmers hoped for a couple of days of warm sunshine so they could get on the land. Some did part of their seeding in the mild spell a week ago but most are three to five weeks behind last year.

Much Warmth Needed

Farmers in the Kingston district asking a long stretch of warm weather is needed if they are to overcome the handicap of a late start.

So far there has been no seeding in the North Bay area but it will start in another two or three weeks if the weather warms up. The Sault Ste. Marie district reported the first cheering weather news in two weeks with prospects for warmer temperatures. The unusual cold yesterday brought temperatures of 28 degrees, 40 to 50 degrees below the previous allotime low for May 8.

The weather threatened serious repercussions on crops throughout Eastern Canada.

CHURCHILL RESIGNS

London, May 9—(AP)—Winston Churchill resigned today from the House of Commons' powerful privileges committee, declaring that the previous withdrawal of Prime Minister Attlee and Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison had weakened the committee's authority. The committee adjudicated alleged offenses committed by or against members of parliament, and deals with questions affecting the rights of parliament.

Railway Crew Performs Nobly At Baby's Birth

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 9 (CP)—The crew of an Algoma Central Railway train faced an unusually complicated task out of the toughest assignments in the history of the road—and performed even more nerve-wracking than the day a mother gave birth to a cowcatcher and killed a passing wolf with an axe.

The baby woman from the iron mining community of Michipicoten, Mrs. Florence Wells, gave birth to a baby girl aboard the train Wednesday as it was some 65 miles away with Johnny Beattie, engineer, Reginald Gay playing the role of midwife.

They said help from Conductor John Dent and Mrs. W. Marshall, a nurse, who had been called by trainmen when they thought the event was imminent.

Unofficial reports on the situation were relayed along the railway line from the train's radio route and the whole lumbering community of Wells was kept up to the minute on the successful outcome. Mrs. Wells and daughter are doing nicely in hospital here.

Ten Months After Bikini Tests Ships 'Unsafe For Permanent Occupancy'

By ROBERT M. FARRINGTON

Washington, May 9 — (AP) — Ten months after the Bikini atom bomb tests the target ships still are "unsafe for permanent occupancy."

The United States Navy so reported today in announcing that most of the big vessels which survived the twin blasts last year will be towed without crews to Kwajalein and the west coast this summer for study.

Officials emphasized, however, the heavy radioactive contamination will not endanger the participations of either Pearl Harbor, San Francisco or Bremerton, Wash., where the studies will be carried on.

The announcement said the decontamination study is one of the navy's most important projects in preparing against atomic warfare.

The lingering radioactive effects of atomic bombs have forced a complete revision by the navy in ship design, navigation and fighting ideas.

The target ship top structures, especially such vital parts as radar masts, gun directors and the like, are highly radioactive and must be decontaminated.

Complete air conditioning and a complicated system of filters in the crew quarters will protect them from radioactive air and sea waters, the statement said.

All these changes add up to a ship shaped like a big submarine, but staying on the surface.

RONALD G. SEARS CONVICTED IN "SLASHER" TRIAL

Sentenced to 12 Years in Penitentiary After Jury Deliberates 7 Hours

Windsor, Ont., May 9 — (CP) — A Sarnia Codfi jury which deliberated almost seven hours last night convicted 19-year-old Ronald G. Sears of attempted murder in the knife attack on Joseph Gelencser, and the youth was sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary.

The sentencing was preceded by an argument between Crown Counsel Donald James H. Clark and Crown Attorney E. A. Weyer. Mr. Clark suggested that the verdict was a miscarriage of justice, then pleaded for a reformatory term. Mr. Awrey said that attempted murder was an offence punishable by a reformatory sentence and said "I don't think the jury intended to turned loose on the public for at least ten years."

Mr. Justice G. A. Urquhart told the jury: "I must thank you for what has been quite a task. I agree with the verdict. I think it is the only verdict on the evidence."

His lordship told accused: "In passing this sentence I do not take into account anything about the crime Washington has called. You are lucky you are not being charged with murder. This (attempted murder) is a serious crime. The penalty is life imprisonment."

Two Men Slain

His Lordship's reference to the "other slashings" was to three series of knife attacks made on men in Windsor's waterfront parks in the summers of 1945 and 1946. Two men were slain; three others wounded.

Sears was charged in all five cases. The crown alleged each time the youth, armed with a knife by a sex pervert when a child, had "slashing" instinct and thoughts against men he suspected of being perverts.

Good Catch 'Rats' In Midland Area

Midland, Ont., May 9 (CP)—A belief in the average run of muskrats along with exceptional early good rains, gave trappers in a 40 mile radius of Midland one of the best seasons in recent years Sam Cadesky, fur merchant, said here yesterday. He said more than 2,000 pelts had been taken in the area and that the trappers were paid an average of $2.65 per pelt. Many of the rats were caught during the five-day season extended from April 15 to April 20 to allow floods and other adverse conditions slowed up the muskrat run.

U. S. POPULATION JUMPS

Cincinnati, May 9 — (AP) — The population of the United States was estimated at 142,000,000 today by J. C. Capt, director of the Bureau of Census.

That shows a rapid increase over the 131,000,000 population in 1940.

12-YEAR TERM GIVEN PARMALEE FOR FORGERY

Pleaded Guilty to Forging Cheques on Ottawa Bank for $17,000

Ottawa, May 9. (CP)—Lucius Albert (Christmas) Parmalee, internationally-known forger, was sentenced by Magistrate Guy Strike today to 12 years—to run concurrently—on each of four charges of passing forged cheques totalling $17,000.

Parmalee, shortly after he made the haul at four Ottawa banks, pleaded guilty to the charges.

Magistrate Strike passed sentence after the small, sad-eyed little man, told the court in a low voice that he had passed cheques totalling $61,000 in the past 25 years.

He has passed bogus cheques totalling $1,000,000 in United States and Canada, he said, and had paid a penalty of 7 1-2 years in jail.

Parmalee also disclosed to the court that he had planned to "try his luck" in Australia after he had failed in Ottawa, and said the "banks were very negligent in allowing me to sign" the cheques.

Done Good Turn

He indicated that he felt he had done a good turn since the banks would be more careful in the future and "wouldn't be so easily fooled." However, he modestly denied he was an international forger and said he was a simple thing to-do. Anyone who had run "a bit of a bluff" could have done it."

Referring occasionally to his statements, he handwritten notes which he held in a shaky hand, Parmalee said he had passed a cheque for less than $33,000 "every year."

"Negligent and sloppy banking methods have made it possible for me to forge and duplicate things I have done during the past 25 years. As a consequence the press has wrongfully labelled me as a master forger and international criminal," he said.

"Why such publicity was given to a man with such a petty little kind I do not know, but it was altogether too much.

"They"—he waved his hand towards the press—"have based their reports on misconceptions and falsehoods which have been circulated, unfortunately with the intent of furthering their interests in the field of journalism."

Asked For Clemency

He asked for clemency "in view of my health" and said he hoped the rest of my life have committed any violence."

Following on his trail shortly after the banks reported the passings, the 58-year-old forger was picked up at the little railway station at Perth, Ont., by a detective sergeant of here, where they found him waiting for a Montreal train with a satchel stuffed with $17,400 in small bills.

Prison life will not be new to Parmalee, dubbed "Christmas" because he operated during the Christmas period disguised as a Santa Claus. He served 10 1-2 years in Canada and the United

Oshawa Plant Suffers $100,000 Fire Loss

Oshawa, May 9 (CP)—Flaming debris, shooting from a fire which gutted the three-storey rear section of the Oshawa auto parts and caused damage estimated at $100,000 here last night, set fire to nine threatened acres of Oshawa and East Whitby township farms.

The fire, fanned by dampness prevented house tops from ignition.

Firemen said the blaze, believed to have started in the rear of the building, was fed by piles of rubber tires, and rubber belting and drums. One of the worst in Oshawa since the Russet Block was demolished in 1944.

They said it might be two or three hours before the fire completely burned itself out.

People of Soviet Union Celebrate VE-Day in Thousands of Processions

Moscow, May 9 (AP) — The 193,000,000 people of the Soviet Union celebrated Victory Day today in thousands of processions, demonstrations and parades, highlighted by speeches, orders of the day and editorials which bore a distinct nationalistic flavor.

"Two years after victory," said the New Times in a leading editorial, "the peacemaking of international reaction are raging once more. The dangers of a new war, the danger of which we put it, keep the battle of hostility towards the Soviet Union at its highest point.

"The Imperialistic circles of the Anglo-American bloc are developing bigger plans for their expansion, plans for preparing for a third imperialistic war."

Nikolai Mulganin, Minister of the Armed Forces declared in an order of the day that Soviet armed forces had won the war and saved the peoples of Europe "among which are the German people," from fascist enslavement.

"The German surrender actually was signed May 7, 1945, at Allies."

Reach Agreement On Justice Costs

Agreement of a special committee of representatives from Hastings County, Belleville and Trenton as to the re-adjustment of costs of administration of Justice has been reached, it was announced today.

Under the new arrangement for payment of costs of administration of justice, the city of Belleville will pay $8,000 and the town of Trenton, $4,000, while the county will pay $19,088.61. Total net expenditure for administration of justice in the county in 1946 was $32,088.61 with the apportioning of costs being based on last year's figures.

Members of the county council at their last session asked that costs for administration of justice in the county be re-arranged when it was learned there had been no city adjustment since Belleville's city twenty years. Since then the number of cases handled has considerably increased. Under the old arrangement Belleville paid $6,000 annually and Trenton, $2,000, with the county paying the balance.

Various schemes for the division of costs were discussed at the meeting with county representatives urging that Belleville and Trenton assume $158,000 of costs. Trenton countered with a proposal that costs be apportioned according to the number of court convictions.

County representatives at the meeting included Warden A. G. Hawely, George Weir, Madoc; Eric Denyes, clerk, and Ross Bailey, treasurer. Belleville representatives were Alderman W. J. Clarke and City Comptroller, Harold Bateman, with Mayor Kenneth Cook, the town clerk, and Chief of Police Ross Lewis representing the town of Trenton.

Fred Douglas Gets Perfect Hand In Cribbage

Perfect cribbage hands have been recorded in headlines during the past few months, but local crib enthusiasts believe a record has been established in the city.

Mr. Fred Douglas, resident manager of the Garage Supply Company here not only held a perfect hand in the 'fifteen-two' in cribbage the other day, but it is the second "twenty-nines" he has held in his long cribbage career.

Mr. Douglas was playing with Mrs. Owen Atkins, Mrs. Douglas and Mr. Atkins when the hand came into play. He held the three fives and a Jack, and the "cut" brought up the fourth five.

In 1943, Mr. Douglas when a captain in the Argyll Light Infantry was playing cribbage with fellow officers in the mess at the Armouries. He held four fives at that time and the cut brought up the Jack to complete the perfect hand.

A "near miss" was registered by former naval lieutenant, Al. Wickerson the other night when he held, four fives in a cribbage game only to have a "tenpot" turn up in the "cut."

LUMBER EXPECTED.

Galt, May 9 — (CP) — A shipment of 12,000,000 feet of lumber, designated for the building of at least 1,200 homes for war veterans in Galt, Preston, Hespeler, Guelph, Kitchener and Waterloo, will arrive in Preston soon, M. G. Hipel of Preston, former M. P. P., said today.

Mayors of the mentioned localities and township officials are scheduled to meet tomorrow to discuss allotment of the lumber.

Travellers Hold 'Stag' Smoker At Point Anne

There was a "sound of revelry by night" at the Point Anne Hall Thursday evening when the Hotstove Club of the Commercial Travellers' Association held its annual smoker.

It was strictly a "stag" affair and a large number of the 'knights of the satchel' were present. There was that old time fellowship and camaraderie that only the commercial traveller knows and reminiscences and tall stories flew thick and fast.

President Tommy Wrightmeyer, of the Hotstove Club welcomed the guests with Secretary Wilbert Fowler of the Hotel Belvedere, Belleville, looking after the needs of the guests and the various contests and draws.

Frank Hockaday, clever ventriloquist, who is rapidly climbing to the top of the entertainment ladder in this district, and Ila Harron, "Willie McGee's", brought the house down with an uproarious performance. Hockaday's ability, humor and general personality was never better than at the Hotstove show and "Willie's" witty sallies at the expense of a number of the guests present, brought a well-deserved ovation.

Mayor Frank Follwell arrived at the party following the meeting at the City Council committee and formally welcomed the travellers to this district. In a brief address, he paid tribute to the value in business life of the commercial traveller, and "being a business man myself, I know something of their trials, tribulations and stories."

Worthless Mexican $10 Bill Passed For Bottle Coke

Artie Scott, West Bridge Street grocer, is temporarily out $8.53 and a bottle of pop as result of changing a ten dollar bill for a customer on Thursday. The customer bought the pop, received the ten dollar bill in payment and accepted the change in change.

But later in checking his till the grocer discovered the note taken in was a Mexican bill — worthless in Canada — as he was notified by his banker.

Police were notified of the incident with result that the young woman who passed the Mexican bill was contacted. She promised to reimburse the grocer.

Police Seek Information of Persons Responsible for Death of Infant

After a fruitless ten-day search for any clue which would lead to the identity of the person or persons responsible, Police Inspector Hayes today repealed for information from anyone which would throw light on the birth or death of the baby found in a culvert on Moira Street, West, on April 29th.

The dead body of the infant was found under the culvert by school children approximately ten days ago and since police have continued a thorough investigation into the matter.

Inspector Hayes today stated that after investigating the matter from every angle police have formed the opinion that the circumstances point to murder. Medical authorities state the male child had lived from 24 to 30 hours after birth. When found the skull of the infant was crushed with police believing the baby had been slammed against some hard object.

The opinion of police is that the mother of the babe was not attended by a physician at the time of the birth.

Two Readings Given By-Law Authorizing Issuing $25,000 Debentures for Docter Property

The by-law authorizing the issuing of $25,000 debentures for the purchase of the late Docter property to the east of the city as an industrial site, was given two readings, and passed by council at a meeting held Thursday evening in connection with the regular committee meeting. The by-law will be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval before it gets its third reading in council.

Later in committee meeting Alderman H. J. Clarke, as chairman of finance, was instructed to write a cheque in payment for the Docter property, 80 acres of which has been recommended purchased a site for potential industry. Price of the land will be $400 per acre.

Taking up the options on the property will be subject to the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board and satisfactory transfer of the property being completed to the approval of the city solicitor.

Fire Insurance Increased

Council recommended that fire insurance on the Docter house be brought up to an amount recommended as result of a recent valuation by the fire underwriters' assistor. Value of the city hall was set at $131,000, the fire hall $13,040; police station $23,211 and the city storage building $16,-

Plans regarding the agreement with the Canadian National Railways for installation of a railway siding at the Docter property proposed by the city were referred to the city solicitor to prepare a by-law.

The position of caretaker at the Docter property will be advertised with preference given to veterans, Archie Hill, former caretaker, who was compensated to be placed on the force to replace Constable L. Rump, who has left the force.

To Erect Seven Houses

Lots 43 and 50 on Dufferin Ave., and 46 to 50, inclusive on McDonald Ave., were recommended sold to Frank Dominelo with the agreement that he will construct within one year residences costing $5,000 on each of the lots. Cost of the necessary sanitary sewer will be assumed by Mr. Dominelo.

Alderman E. V. Follwell will represent the city at the Provincial Recreational Conference to be held in Hamilton on September 22-24-25, while council recommended concurrence in the agreement drawn up between the city, County of Hastings and Belleville Hospital Board relating to the adjustment of administration of justice costs.

Council also reversed on the keeping of honey bees within the municipality. This was initiated by the passing of a recommendation asking that the city solicitor prepare a by-law prohibiting the keeping of bees within the city limits.

8 Persons Given Assistance Escaping From Blazing Home on Cannifton Rd.

Eight persons, including an 84-year-old man, were forced to flee in their night clothing shortly before three o'clock this morning when fire of an undetermined origin swept through rooms at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bulpit, Cannifton Road, just outside the city limits.

Members of the local fire department answered the alarm and with the assistance of a bucket brigade which kept the booster tank filled, succeeded in controlling the blaze.

Forced to flee from the flames and from the dense smoke which cut off their escape by way of the rooms at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bulpit, Cannifton Road, just outside the city limits, were:

Mr. and Mrs. Bulpit, and Mrs. Bulpit with their four children, Mr. Joseph Bulpit, age 84, father of Mrs. Bulpit, and Mrs. Connors.

When smoke filled the upper story of the house and cut off their escape by the stairs the occupants of the dwelling raised a window and came out onto the verandah roof from where they were rescued by the fire department with ladders. The family was given shelter at the home of a neighbor.

Origin of Fire Unknown

Origin of the blaze which apparently started in the downstairs bedroom was not known, but firemen stated the blaze quickly swept up through the split and that the house was awakened by the smell of smoke. The fire department was notified from a neighboring home.

"When as result of the alarm we learned that lives were in danger, we did not wait to secure permission to leave the city," stated Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance. "The women folk and children just came out of the roof of the verandah when the fire department arrived."

Assistant Fire Chief Vance paid tribute to the neighbors here who got out in haste, although few in number, worked hard to keep the department booster tank filled with water from nearby wells and from the limits.

With an adequate supply of water firemen were able to control the blaze and confine the damage to the two rooms.

15 All-Welded Steel Tugs Built By Central Bridge, Trenton, Will be Transferred to China

Fifteen all-welded steel tugs built at the plant of the Central Bridge Company at Trenton will be transferred to China through UNRRA, it has been learned. The tugs will be used for river navigation.

The tugs to be shipped to China were built at the Trenton plant during the winter and will commence leaving about May 15 in units of two. Similar tugs built at Trenton during the war for the British Government won high praise for their performance.

Right other sturdy tugs built at the Trenton plant will also go to Brazil, Africa, Argentina and to other countries. A trial run of one tug just completed for service in Brazil was made on Saturday and proved very successful.

The facts of Central Bridge Company as a ship building firm is rapidly spreading and in future years it is expected this will be one of the major activities of the plant.

Prefabrication of steel for factory extensions and for bridges, is still a major activity at the plant. The company now has orders for steel for two extensions to the Massey Harris plant in Toronto; for a new plant at Sarnia; the new General Electric plant at Cobourg and for steel for a swing structure on the Murray Canal.

The company supplied all the steel for the new addition to the plant of Dowsz Coulter and Company (Canada) Ltd. at Trenton and has the contract for the steel for the new Trenton Memorial Hospital.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 9 — (CP)—Prices eased off in the final hour of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today for all groups except western oils. Profit taking in industrials was evident following about three or four days of rising prices and the group eased back for a majority of losses at mixed and near mixed unlisted week.

Volume was 462,000 shares for the first three hours.

In industrials the range broadened into losses of a point and more for several issues.

Western oils maintained firmness with gains of stocks advancing up to 50 cents for Royalite at $17.50. Golds and base metals showed losses included Bidgood, Buffadison, Cochenour, Falconbridge, Nickel, Kerr Addison, Macassa, McIntyre, Noranda, Pioneer, Wright-Hargreaves, Waite Amulet, Teck Hughes, Sherritt and San Antonio.

NEW YORK STOCK

New York, May 9. (AP)—Timid buying enabled scattered stocks to edge forward today but many market leaders were neglected in the losing trend.

Quotations generally after a quiet opening. There was a moderate comeback during mid-day and the direction was foggy near the fourth hour. Volume expanded a bit during the sell-off and contracted appreciably on the attempted recovery.

Attracting support were Standard Oil (N.J.), American Telephone, Kennecott, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, and U.S. Rubber.

McIntyre, with a loss of 3-8, was the heaviest loser among Canadian issues at mid-day. Hiram Walker was the sole gainer with an increase of 1-8. Dome Mines and Distillers Seagrams each gave up 1-4 while Canadian Pacific eased 1-8.

During March, the number of claims filed in 10 Unemployment Canada totalled 43,675 compared with 47,141 for February, and 53,681 for January. In March 1946 there were 50,706, applications.

12-YEAR TERM

States, he served three years in a California prison for forgery and later six more years at Kingston penitentiary for similar deeds.

Given Position

Emerging a free man about 1943 or 1944, he went to Waterloo, Que., and got a job with the Macdonald Metal Products Co., but lost it and went broke. It was then that Chrismas Parmaxes planned his last forgery coup, one he hoped would be big enough to buy a farm in Nova Scotia.

He came to Ottawa in March and "sized up" the banks. Then, May 1 posing as the Macdonald Company treasurer, bodily cashed cheques for $4,350 each in four downtown branches.

The tellers were fooled by Parmalee's expert air of confidence and the company cheques he presented, purportedly initialled by either the bank's manager or an accountant and signatures he had previously obtained by correspondence.

But one teller, got suspicious, checked an accountant and the alarm was given.

Second Attempt To Electrocute Negro, Succeeds

Ft. Martinville, La., May 9. (AP)—Willie Francis, a convicted robber-killer, walked 15 steps to Louisiana's portable electric chair today for an unprecedented second attempt to carry out a death sentence.

He sat in the chair at 12.03 p.m., C.S.T., shortly after he ate a final meal of fried fish, potatoes, bread, pickles and a bottle of pop.

It was the second time that the 18-year-old Negro had been strapped into the same chair. He walked away from it May 3 1946 when a faulty wire sent the lethal current into the ground rather than through his body.

The scene was the tiny redbrick jail in St. Martinville, where Francis was convicted of the 1945 holdup-slaying of druggist Andrew Thomas.

The switch was thrown at 12.03 p.m.

$36,000 Fine Imposed By British Judge

London, May 9 — (AP) — Percival George Arthur Harvey, wealthy 51-year-old business man, was sentenced to three months in prison and fined £9,000 ($36,000) today for conspiring with Polish money in a non-British currency area.

He was the first prison sentence and the stiffest fine yet imposed in Britain's stiff campaign to conserve her dwindling currency reserves. Scores of British tourists and travelling industrialists already have received heavy fines for similar offenses.

Mrs. Enid Harvey, 49, was fined £3,300 in a case tried jointly with Harvey's. Prosecutor F. D. Barry told the court the couple was not married, but that she changed her name by law three years ago. The court commented "for all purposes of financial penalty we can treat them as man and wife."

Harvey, a director of several companies, pleaded guilty to conspiracies charging that he exchanged £4,900 in British cheques for French francs on trips to various resorts in the south of France.

Mrs. Harvey pleaded guilty to exchanging £1,700 in cheques for francs in the south of France. Barry read a letter from her saying the money was used for gambling debts.

Still Endeavoring To Lower Water To Recover Bodies

Matlarric, Que., May 9. (CP)—Two weeks after 12 miners were trapped by fire 2,000 feet underground in the East Malartic gold mine, crews still were endeavoring today to lower the water level in flooded No. 4 shaft to recover the bodies of 11 men still entombed there.

Edward Futterer, consulting engineer, indicated today it will be next week at least before the bodies are recovered and even then said "no person can say when it will be."

"We can't say now when we'll have the water pumped out and when it is pumped out we have no idea what we will be up against in No. 4 shaft," he said. "Any hope that we might get the bodies out in two or three days seems to be gone."

Pumps which can carry off water at the rate of 750 gallons a minute were installed last night and are in full operation. Water is still above the 10th level where the fire began and the trapped men are believed to be 800 feet below that level.

The inquest into the tragedy, worst in Quebec mining history, will begin after the bodies have been recovered and a six-man jury will sit under Dr. A. Breau Seaso, coroner.

Members of the jury, all from Malartic, will be Laurent Phaneuffe, town manager, Arthur Robillard, grocer, Oscar Courtemanche, hardware merchant, Edgar Jolicoeur, miner, Paul Morin, accountant and Benny Cleman, store proprietor.

Jacques Miquellon, crown prosecutor for the Amos district, of which Malartic is part, will assist the coroner in the preparation and conduct of the inquest.

Pretty Daughter Of Ambassador Startles London

London, May 9 — (AP)—United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas' pretty daughter Sharman and her "apple hat" startled Old London today.

The pert, 19-year-old blonde from Arizona, hardly noticed since she arrived last week, invaded a Mayfair fashion show in a straw bonnet that brought "oooha" and "aaahs" from many a seasoned duchess.

Photo hulks flashed and, in matter of hours, London's millions knew that Sharman had arrived and also, according to one newspaper, that her "apple hat" was all the rage among the younger set in the United States.

An apple hat, in case they've escaped you, is a flat-looking straw something with a thingumatig on it. It looks a good deal like an omelette strewn with lettuce. The trade describes it as "a round, off-the-face hat with a tiny, ill-used brim in white straw, trimmed with navy ribbon and veiling and huge red rose."

Medical Centenary

On May 5, 1847, some 250 delegates representing more than forty medical societies and twenty-eight colleges met at Philadelphia to form what has ever since been the American Medical Association. A century later the Association has 131,590 members and 72,243 fellows. No other body wields greater professional influence. During the long decades when the Government was indifferent to the quality of food and drugs and the patent medicine man was in his heyday, the Association was a bulwark of protection, points out the New York Times. Quacks were pursued, educational standards were raised, cures were appraised, hospitals and schools were approved or disapproved, a dozen first-class medical publications, of which the Journal is the best known, provided indispensable purveyors of knowledge, nostrums were exposed as the frauds that they were, fads were ridded.

For all these blessings the public has reason to be grateful. With some of the economic and social policies of the Association we have disagreed. But certainly in intelligence, in education, in breadth of outlook it has few superiors. Surpassed by any other organization, because no other so carefully excludes from its ranks, the badly trained, the charlatans and the sectarians. We wish it another century of usefulness.

Canada's Aging Population

The age composition of the people of the United States and Canada is changing significantly. If, as calculated, within the next generation and a half, 30 per cent of Canada's population will be over 55 years of age, it is high time we began to understand more about it.

Social agencies soon become aware of changes which make life difficult for any group in our population. Thus the case-work section of the Montreal Council of Social Agencies appointed a committee on problems of the aged in the Fall of 1944. Its objectives were two-fold—one of self-education and joint study, the other to become the other, that of presenting recommendations for improved programs for the aged.

The report deals specifically with the problem as it affects the Province of Quebec, but as The Ottawa Citizen urges, there is need for all Provinces to face this growing problem and plan to meet it.

After a careful consideration of such problems as support, physical and mental health, social relations, and the care and treatment of the older population, the committee has made the following recommendations among others:

1. That instead of the present Dominion Old Age Pensions scheme (which provides in Quebec $20 a month to those over 70 who are eligible and in need), a Dominion system of old age insurance be inaugurated to provide adequate pensions for all those who retire from active work, men at 65 and women at 60, or even at lower ages.

2. That old age assistance for men over 65 and women over 60, or even lower ages, who are unable to work, be in need and are not covered by the insurance scheme or who need supplemental help, be financed jointly by the Dominion and the Province, under provincial administration. A minimum income of $30 a month would be necessary for a single person in urban centres.

3. That further consideration be given to the need for expansion of service for the aged in several directions:

Provision of staff for skilled foster home finding, as elderly people should be enabled to live naturally in the community with all age groups for as long as possible; counselling service for men in temporary difficulty but capable of working; sheltered employment with adequate remuneration; boarding homes suitable for elderly people; institutional provision for non-boarders, which would include food and occupational and recreational opportunities for social living; and recreational centres in various parts of the city, with programs fitted to the requirements of elderly people; and also at least one such day centre for men sleeping in refuges.

It is hoped that this report may mean the beginning of a program designed to increase public and official awareness of the significance of this problem, and of the need for planning on a much more adequate basis.

It would seem that there is a real opportunity for leadership on the national level for the Canadian Welfare Council on the one hand, and especially for the new Department of National Health and Welfare. Dominion participation in the Old Age Pension program would mean justice, if justification were needed, national leadership in dealing with what is — or promises to be — a major social problem of the Dominion.

What Are Natural Rights?

In the light of human experience up until their time, the enlightened minds of the great men who wrote the Bill of Rights of Britain, Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence, the Atlantic Charter, and the other great documents of freedom, defined the natural rights of man. These descriptions were based upon the religious literature and the religious experience of mankind.

It would be impossible to secure agreement among men on definitions of natural rights but there is a universal rule, which has been basic in varying forms in the philosophies and religions of all peoples, by which men, individually and collectively, avoid the invasion of the natural rights of any man. In our civilization it is known as the Golden Rule.

Inasmuch as law is important to compel character, co-operation and constructive citizenship, all law should be designed to ensure the maintenance of the largest possible zone of safety in which men may enjoy a maximum of freedom consistent with natural rights in obedience to the Golden Rule. The United Nations is seeking to establish such law for the world.—The Scene from Shingwauk Farm.

Etchings and Old Lace

At this season of the year, a sort of pause between the rigours of winter and summer's heat, we have an exquisite beauty. During the cold months they are severely black, but spring sunlight changes them to a warm darkness, with branches silver-grey, and almost feather-fine. Silhouetted against the sky, they remind one of such things as etchings and old lace.

As though to make fitting background for these trees, skies have grown soft. Gone are the bleak tones of winter, and in their place are smoky greys and gentle blues, changing at twilight to waves of color, soft and delicate as spring itself, which blend with the trees in a misty and moist earth to make one harmonious whole.

As one studies the faint outlines of trees, watching them merge into grey mist as day advances, one may think of Joyce Kilmer's wonderful words, "And all the while, opposite in the field, against the day's pale loss, His great heart sings, and His brown arms lift across the cross." Indeed, the trees are like crosses, with their arms lifted in supplication, whether realistically or not, to the Creator of all things.

Nature has a way of making us aware of the beauty around us, and we are grateful for it.

Canada's Part

Canada's part in the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration is a generous one. Our contribution to the fund is $1 per capita, and we have undertaken to supply 1,500,000 tons of foodstuffs, which is 15 per cent of the total. Canada has also undertaken to supply 15 per cent of the clothing, 15 per cent of the medical supplies, and 15 per cent of the transport vehicles.

Canada's part in the UNRRA is a generous one, and we are glad to see that it is so. Canada has been blessed with a bountiful harvest, and we have a duty to perform in helping those who have been less fortunate.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

May 8th., 1927

At a well attended meeting of the Canadian National Exhibition ball Club, which was held at the Y.M.C.A., the following officers were elected for the year: Hon. Presidents, J. D. MacMillan, Mayor Wilmot and N. P. North; President, Newton Thompson; Vice Presidents, D. Elliott; Secretary-treasurer, R. D. Adams; Business Manager, Robert Colling; Executive Committee: M. P. Duff and J. A. Cokers; Manager, William J. (Peeny) Mills. The new manager has been connected with the game in Belleville for many years past and his long experience and wide knowledge regarded as one of the leading baseball fans in this part of the country and his elevation to the position of manager will be warmly greeted in every quarter. "Peeny" has been partly responsible for the success obtained on the diamond by Fredby Goyer and Fred Williams, both of whom have hung up a table records. Besides being a great field general, "Peeny" is well liked by every member of the club and he is certainly the man for the job. In vacating the management to take up the duties of umpiring, the club loses a clever baseball man in the person of Fred Williams. "Walt" has been a real leader, and during the years he has been with the club has twice reached the finals for the Ontario Championship. His judgment has been a valued factor in placing the team on the pinnacle it has reached position. He with Ken Colling will handle every game in the Bay of Quinte loop. Walter will undoubtedly make a capable official and his long and close association with the Canadian National Club will be appreciated by a host of friends. Newton Thompson, the elected president of the club, is not new to Belleville baseball circles. He will handle the job with the same ability that the club made no mistake in selecting him.

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club the following officers were elected for the ensuing years:—President, Thomas Hilditch; vice president, D. B. Robertson; secretary - treasurer, Glenn Lowrie; Lawn committee: — Arthur McGinnis, Alfred Gillen and Jas. Tonks. The following skips were appointed: Thomas Ritchie, D. B. Robertson, W. H. 50 YEARS AGO

The honour of knighthood in Belleville has reached a serious stage when we are told on reliable authority that people would make first-class citizens, but that the honour is one they cannot get houses to live in, it is time for private capitalists to untie their purse strings and help along the city by building a few houses. Only in this way would create gilt edge investments for themselves.

Mr. Dan Derbyshire, M. P. Brockville, is in the city on business today.

Mr. J. C. Morgan, School Inspector, Deseronto, was in town today.

Mr. J. W. Johnson of this city is visiting her sister, Mrs. Fred Ketcheson, Talbot Street, Picton.

What does the city council propose to do — put a new surface on Front Street or just scrape it again. Surely now it is let it go! It is time we were informed in this matter.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who said: "Erring sisters, depart in peace?"

This seems to be a composite of several popular sayings but is not attributable in that exact form to any one person.

When the Southern States threatened to secede some people in the North would compel them to remain in the Union by force. Comparing Fred Williams' son's energetic attitude in 1832 with President Buchanan's weak attitude in 1860, they said, "Oh, for one hour of Andrew Jackson."

Others favored a peaceful dismemberment of the Union. One of these thought the withdrawal of the Southern States would be a good riddance. When Henry Ward Beecher was asked whether he thought the South would secede he replied: "I don't believe they will; and I don't care if they do."

But some thought that if the Southern States wanted to secede and govern themselves they should had no legal or moral right to prevent them from doing so.

In an editorial supposed to have been written by Horace Greeley the New York Tribune of February 1st, 1860, said: "If the Cotton States shall decide that they can do better out of the Union they have a right on letting them go in peace . . . We hope and trust we live in a republic whereof one section is pinned to another by bayonets."

On March 3, 1861, the day before Lincoln was inaugurated, Lieutenant General Winfield Scott, highest ranking officer in the United States Army, wrote: "Say to the seceded States, 'Wayward sisters, depart in peace'."

In "Years of My Youth" (1917) William Dean Howells wrote: "The North would not allow itself to consider seriously of severing the seceding States; and there was a party willing to let them go, with a swaggering, 'Well, 'Erring sisters, go in peace,' as if the secession of these, being thus delicately sanctioned, could not have the heart to go, even in peace."

FARMER MEMBERS

Mr. Drope said that under existing policies the consumer was paying more for butter, but the consumer was getting less. Cheese producers were not satisfied with the price they were getting. He said all the butter required in Canada could be produced in this country if the producers received a reasonable price.

Against Radio Fee

He urged the abolition of the $2.50 annual radio licence fee, the reduction of the postal rates and the elimination of nuisance and indirect taxes.

Mr. Burton said most farmers had agreed to the Anglo-Canadian wheat agreement, with its fixed prices, because they believed the price, fine generally would be held. Now, however, it became apparent that the feeding population had been betrayed."

Mr. Miller said he would like to have a system of taxation which would allow farmers, in assessing their farm tax returns, to make some allowance for the work of their wives and families. The tax bureaus in this province might also have been given an income tax form which the full income tax exemptions should have been given to farmers' wives' pensions and $2,000 for married persons.

Harry Jackman (PC—Toronto Rosedale) said the government had failed to provide adequately those taxpayers who make their income contributions through indirect taxes. He said that since the government was budgeting for a surplus this year it could have been "more generous and made them back after an addition to those in income tax rates.

Gordon Isnor (L—Halifax) said the fishing industry of Canada was the country for its proposed income tax increase. However, he felt that the 25-per-cent luxury tax could well have been eliminated from articles such as fountain pens, alarm clocks and other necessities.

RONALD G. SEARS

Sears was convicted of murder in the knifing of Sgt. Hugh Gilbert Lynch. The Ontario Court of Appeal Court quashed the conviction on the point of admission of confession of bombing the police. He is still charged with murder in connection with the shooting of Constable Jones and attempted murder in two others.

Testimony Attack

In the present trial, Gelencser's testimony and identification of Sears at his assailant was attacked strongly in court yesterday by Maj. Gen. C. F. Constantine-Davies. "The man swore he knew nothing about the knife incident. He also swore that his doctor forbade him to read the papers. The doctor later denied it. I submit he swore that he knew nothing about the knife incident to convince you gentlemen he had criminal mind. He went to the police line-up and picked out the accused."

The Crown Attorney said in his address to the jury: "There are only three things: Gelencser says this is the man who did it; the scientific evidence that the knife exhibit is identical to that missing from her home and the accused himself and on his hands we find a cut made on a day from his arrest, according to medical testimony."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALK

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this Newspaper.

RADIUM TREATMENT OF ADENOIDS

In school children large tonsils are more or less the usual finding—especially in boys. Children are examined in the late winter or early spring, with the age large tonsils there are generally some adenoids, too—that is, some enlargement of the pharyngeal tonsil, the mass of round cell or adenoid tissue of the same character as that of the faucial or top of the throat up out of sight behind the uvula or tip of soft palate.

Literally thousands of school children have been subjected to the crude atrocity known as tonsillectomy for such a condition—the main argument of the nearsurgeons being that it is better to have the tonsils out now before they cause serious trouble. Then the argument of these eager operators may be when something that gets contributing through the strocity I don't know. But I warn all parents to wait a little and then wait a few months before consenting to tonsillectomy in any such circumstances.

Mind, I do not say tonsillectomy (the removal of the tonsils) to remove every bit of tonsil) is never necessary or justifiable. Occasionally, but only rarely, it is necessary and should be done without a moment's delay. But I repeat in ninety-nine out of every hundred cases it is needless and unjustifiable in my opinion.

A considerable number of school children with large tonsils and adenoids, or adenoids, even though obviously not suffering from obstruction of breathing, do suffer from partial or total nasal obstruction of the opening of Eustachian tube from middle ear cavity into pharynx or that part of the throat back of the nasal chamber. This often of course is perhaps so slight that it escapes attention, but if or when teacher or parents notice the child is too frequently asking that they repeat their remarks, it is time to have the child's hearing tested and ears and throat examined by the physician.

In most instances of moderate deafness in a schoolchild from adenoids, if there is no evidence of obstruction of breathing the best treatment is radium or radium treatment—which of course is painless—the mere exposure of the adenoidal tissues to the emanations of radium.

This produces some reaction—the child may become slightly more deaf and the gooe more stuffed up for a week or two after the treatment. Then, gradually the provemeit ensues and the better hearing becomes apparent to all.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Drunk or Crazy?

How can a fine, robust, well educated man who used to be his 36 never drank or smoked suddenly start drinking to excess, neglecting his family and his business?—Mrs. (Mrs.) Mary.

Answer — It sounds insane, but sometimes it is. Any sudden self decline to submit to medical care perhaps you should ask the doctor to have some qualified medical examiners to determine whether he is insane—before it is too late.

No Sunshine

Being an inside worker I do not get much sunshine here in Maine, during the fall winter and spring. Can't buy vitamin D here without a doctor's prescription. (L.A.M.)

Answer — At best vitamin D is but a feeble substitute for sunshine. Take at tablets of calcium phosphorus, vitamin D, iodine, thiamine and riboflavin that is supposed to supplement your fat diet, as described in the booklet, "Healthy Folks and Old Folks" — for copy send stamped self addressed envelope.

Better Hear The Rules

Many readers do not complain about a wait of two or three hours before they reach a query, but when a month passes without an answer they become anxious and angry.

This is to explain that:

Every week the mail has steadily increased in the last few years, perhaps due to absence of many people from civilian service, and now that we are better off less anxious the mail doesn't decrease—on the contrary it continues to increase.

Second, it is quite evident what is the matter: The majority of correspondents either do not read the instructions printed with this column frequently or do not understand the meaning of such words as disease, diagnosis, treatment, etc., or else choose to think the rules apply to them.

The mere mechanics of receiving, sorting, opening and answering all these letters which do not run into dollars is laborious and time-consuming. And it is unfair to those who read the rules and mind the rules and rate consideration, for it robs them of the time we should have went to give so I appeal to all readers who like this column to conform to the rules governing letters and answers.

Canibal

I am very fond of raw beef and raw pork that has been kept for several weeks in freezer. Is it all right to eat raw meat? (G.H.L.)

Answer — No. Raw beef or undercdone beef is not as dangerous, but raw or undercone pork may contain the larva of trichinosis which is serious and sometimes fatal infestation of the larva of tapeworm — of course beef may contain tapeworm larva but the beef tapeworm is comparatively harmless.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BAKING A MOUNTAIN OF A MOLEHILL

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am getting married in a few months, and the fellow I am marrying is always asking what became of a picture of myself that I had when he first met me. He wanted me to give him the picture when first met, but instead I gave it to another fellow. He didn't know this, and I am afraid he will find it out now.

He says there is no reason for him not to have that picture, since I am going to be his wife, and I don't know what to do. Do you think it would be terrible of me to ask it back from the boy I gave it to?

"Jergens"

Dear "Jergens":

This is what I would call making a mountain out of a molehill in other words, a very trivial matter for you to be blowing up into such a problem.

There would be nothing out of the way whatever in asking for the return of your picture. If you feel your fiance is not going to be satisfied unless he has it, if the other young man is a gentleman, he would accede to your request promptly, when you explained the situation.

On the other hand, it also seems a small thing for your fiance to make an issue over. Is he such a jealous type that you are afraid he would be angry because a boy who used to be a friend of yours has your picture? Can't you simply tell him that you gave the picture to so-and-so long before there was anything serious between the two of you? Maybe he is just curious because you are acting so mysterious about it, and if you told him frankly what had become of it, that would be all there was to it, as it should be.

Some Dancing Lessons Would Be A Good Idea

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a boy 16 years old. A prom is coming up in my school and I wish to know if I should had much experience dancing, or in dating girls.

I have been thinking of inviting a girl who lives in the next town. I have seen her very frequently and have always stopped to talk to her, but I have never taken her out, I would like to know if it is all right to invite her to the prom.

"Anxious"

Dear "Worried":

Certainly it is all right to invite this girl to your prom. Such an invitation would be a very good way to start having her.

But if, as you say, you're not very good at dancing, it might be sensible to get a few lessons before the prom, so that you'll feel perfectly at home on the dance floor when the big night comes. You wouldn't want your girl to find you stumbling all over her feet, would you?

You don't have to go somewhere and pay for lessons, either. Haven't you a sister or some other relative who would be willing to help you brush up on your dancing, with the aid of radio or record player? Or an obliging girl friend? You'll have lots more fun at the prom if you're sure of yourself as a partner, and you'll make a better impression on your guest, too.

Don't Waste Love On Someone Who Doesn't Want It

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl 18 years old, and the fellow I love is 20. I met him three years ago, while he was in the navy. We got pretty serious in our letters, and he finally asked me to marry him.

At that time I was in the 11th grade, and I said I would marry him as soon as I graduated. He didn't want me to go on and graduate.

My mother didn't like him, and in order not to have her nagging at me about him, I stopped writing to him. That was a year ago last February. But two months ago, I did write him again, and he answered. He asked me to answer his letter and I did, but I have never heard from him again. I love him very much, and I'd like to know if he has another girl, but there is no other fellow for me.

"Heartache"

Dear "Heartache":

Yes, I can suggest something for you to do. But I don't believe you'll do it.

I suggest that you stop cheapening yourself by wasting your affections on a young man who doesn't seem to want them very much. And I suggest, further, that you stop telling yourself that there is "no other fellow" for you. You can make yourself believe anything you want, you know, and if you tell yourself the truth that there certainly will be someone else for you one of these days egd that it's silly to cry and live in air castles—instead of building up a romantic daydream, the first thing you know you'll be as indifferent to this man as he apparently is to you, and you'll be perfectly happy about it, too.

A Problem For a Doctor

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a fine young man, and plan to marry him this fall. But I'm worried because I have not told him that there is insanity in my family. One of mother's two brothers is in an institution, and the other has been in and out of one for years.

Should I tell this young man about this? I'm afraid of how he would feel about it. "Anxious"

Dear "Anxious:"

This is a very distressing problem that you are facing, and I think it is one that you should talk over with your family doctor. You might ask him if you and your fiance could come and discuss it with him together. That would seem to me a wise thing to do.

It would be somewhat risky, I think, to marry this young man without telling him about the situation. He would be almost certain to hear about it, one way or another, after he had become a member of your family, and then he might feel more upset because you had kept him in ignorance than he would be if you were frank beforehand.

An unfortunate family inhibitance is not necessarily the hopeless fate it used to be considered. Modern medical research and knowledge make it possible to handle many predispositions and trends much more successfully than in the past. But in order to do so, it is very important that people understand their problem, be guided by advice and suggestions that doctors can give them. And a couple who plan to be married should work together in such a matter.

His Girl Is Jealous—Largely His Own Fault

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years old, and have been going with a girl 18 for over a year. We have been seeing each other only a single night since we met, and are quite infatuated with each other.

Recently, all she has to do is see me talk or look at another girl and she gets quite angry and won't speak for awhile, or else she mentions some fellows I'll say make me jealous. She says she wants me to forget about them, as the girls I know, even my good friends. Just give them a quick hello and that's all.

I don't flirt with other girls at all, and I tell her this, but she doesn't believe me. But I believe her when she says she doesn't look at other fellows. I don't think I should give up my close girl friends on her account. What should I do about this?

Dear "L.G.L."

In the first place it seems very foolish to me for a young man and a girl to see each other every single night to the exclusion of all other friends, especially when they are not even engaged. And even engaged people, in my opinion, act much more wisely when they keep up with other friends and interests, to a reasonable extent, instead of wrapping themselves up in each other's personality so completely that they lose all perspective about the relationship.

Because the two of you have done just this, you are apt to come to think that she "owns" you, and resents your appearing to have the slightest interest in anyone else. Undoubtedly she is a type that is predisposed to be jealous, but, just the same, you are a good deal to blame for her present attitude for having concentrated so exclusively on her.

If you don't intend to marry this girl, then you'd better make it clear right now—and you should have done it long ago—that you're a free agent, and not only girl's exclusive property. If you do plan to marry her, you're going to find yourself in hot water, rather often, I'm afraid, unless you come to a mutual agreement that the rules of common sense, and not the jealous possessiveness of either of you, shall be your guide in your friendships.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY KEX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 9—(CP)—Spring has come and the housewife has forsaken the canned vegetables of winter for the more colorful vitamin-rich garden produce now showing on all markets.

Asparagus appearing more plentifully than enough just boiled and served with butter, but those seeking variety in the diet might try preparing this vegetable by the Chinese method.

The cooked asparagus tips are dipped in a dressing made from one part vinegar and two parts salad oil, and seasoned with salt and pepper. Few ways of preparation bring out the true rich flavor of this plant.

It's the genie of the kitchen, this new pressure saucepan which sees vegetables prepared and cooked for dinner before the kettle is even boiling for tea.

Whole meals within half an hour to boil the old-fashioned way are reached in 15 or 20 minutes from the time the pressure is registered on the gauge.

There are different types of pressure cookers, and some reach a higher boiling temperature under pressure with consequent shortening of the cooking time. Whatever the type used, the housewife should remember that compressed steam has great potential power and home economists of the consumer section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, warn that the instructions accompanying each of these utensils should be followed to the letter.

Tougher cuts of meat, quickly tender when cooked by pressure saucepan, and the consumer section advises that the average size pressure cooker, which formerly took anywhere up to four hours to cook when boiled, requires only 55 minutes under pressure.

Here is a recipe for Fresh Tongue, — the pressure cooker way.

Ingredients: One fresh beef tongue 3-3½ pounds); two cups water; two cups vinegar; one diced carrot, one-quarter cup vinegar; two tablespoons granulated sugar; two teaspoons salt.

Wash tongue well and put water in the cooker with vinegar which must be placed. Add other ingredients and cook 55 minutes after gauge shows cooking temperature. Let tongue cook in liquid, then remove skin. Slice tongue and small bones at the root end. The quantity serves five to eight persons.

"Keep medicines where children cannot reach them," warn health and welfare department heads.

Chocolate-colored, sugar-coated pills and tablets attract the little ones because they look like goodies. Such medicines, if not taken according to medical prescription, may be dangerous and can be deadly to infants. Public health leaders in Canada have known many fatalities have occurred because these "bitter candies" were left about by careless parents.

Make Up Your Eyes Carefully

Actress Marguerite Chapman has lovely appealing eyes.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHAT'S your technique with mascara when you groom your eye lashes? On that detail of make-up many a girl does not come up to beauty requirements. If she has slap-dash methods her face is bound to be messy; carefully-executed make-up proves that that is often the case.

Before you pick up the little brush, take a long, deep breath, count ten and hope for the best. Then roll out your magnifying mirror—every girl should have one to keep in her sewing sessions—and make a neat, clean job of it.

Cake Form

If you use the solid, cake form of mascara, dip the brush in water let most of the water drain off, then rub it over the little fringes on the curtains of your eyes. If you will let them dry after the first finger of your left hand you will be able to distribute the coloring element evenly. Then open your eye, brush gently with a clean, dry little brush to remove any clots that must be done just so if the sacred mat is to have a finished, groomed appearance. Brush upward at the inner terminal of the forehead arching, sweep downward at the far end to form an attractive arched line. If you use a crayon instead of mascara, do quick little flicking strokes to give the fringes slant. You won't need to touch the white skin underneath. The shafts will pick up the pigment and artifice will not be apparent. Not that we have artifice much any more ,but it is just as well.

Eyelashes, if they are to remain long and curly and survive through the years, should have a little attention every night. The shafts are not long-lived like the hairs on your head. They come and go. They are of more gossamer than coming if you are afflicted with sties or have the bad habit of rubbing your eyes.

Have at hand a small bottle of mineral oil. Apply some every night of your life because the growth thrives on it. Also the lubrication has a pleasing gloss that makes your eyes shine out like stars.

Three-Act Farce Ably Presented By Sr. A.Y.P.A.

Two full hours of facetious entertainment was the reward of the audience who filled Christ Church parish hall last evening, when a three-act farce "Look Who's Here," was ably presented under the auspices of the Sr. A.Y.P.A. of that parish.

Rev. J. G. Sparling introduced the cast as follows:

Cast

Jennie, the maid, Elsie Trotter; Lynnan Winchell, head of the house, Murray Nacon; Estelle Winchell, Lynnan's wife, Margaret Kelly; Tommy Rotanah, an old pal of Lynnan's, Charles Tilbrook; Aunt Alice Bainbridge, Mrs. G. Meades; Jimmie, the delivery boy, Junior Newman; Rose Stanford, Jean Lambe; Irene Andrews, Audrey Stewart; Grace Sterling, Thelma Macdonald.

The young people entered whole-heartedly into the spirit of the story in which some present embarrassing situations arose and uncomfortable complications developed as the result of the exaggerated importance placed upon circumstances of the past.

Much credit is due Mr. George Meades, Superintendent of Sr. George's Sunday School on Station Street who directed the players, and to whom, on behalf of the cast, Mr. Sparling expressed appreciation.

The play is being presented again this evening.

Elegant Tea Gown

By FRUNELLA WOOD

No admiral's side ever had a rarer display of sparkle gold braid than this extremely feminine tea gown, designed for leisure with glamor at home. The braid loops over the left shoulder, passes beneath a braid trimmed self belt to cross to the right hip, where it turns in ota tasselled tie. The effect is one of peacock blue jersey with a dull finish, like suede, and it has gathers centred at the back, from shoulder yoke and waistline to give fullness while maintaining a slim silhouette.

Rev. D. C. Amos Delivers Talk On Niemoeller

Stirling (Special) — Choosing as his subject a recent address delivered in Trinity United Church in Toronto by Rev. Martin Niemoeller of Germany, Rev. D. C. Amos of Bridge Street United Church spoke at a meeting of the Women's Association of that church, said in part:

"Rev. Niemoeller spent eight years in a concentration camp in Germany. He is now in Canada bringing a message of the power of Jesus Christ among German Christians. When Hitler came into power in Germany, the whole Christian structure trembled and with it our understanding of the church. Then it was that Rev. Niemoeller and the German Christians discovered that the presence of the Lord makes a church.

Mr. Amos was introduced by Rev. R. W. Barker.

Mrs. Walter Elliott, president of the W.A., conducted a devotional service and a short business period. Mrs. Nora Weaver and Mrs. Ernest Munroe were appointed delegates to the W.A. convention to be held in Manor during May.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. A. Armstrong, and Mrs. H. L. Fair welcomed the visiting societies.

Musical numbers were contributed by Mrs. J. Pryse of Carmel and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver of Mount Pleasant in a piano duet; while Mrs. M. J. Black and Mrs. Cecil Macklin rendered a vocal duet with Mrs. Harold West as accompanist. Rev. R. W. Barker favored the audience with a fine rendition of "Moonlight and Roses" and several girls joined in a chorus with Miss Lois Weaver as accompanist, all of which added much to the afternoon's enjoyment.

Mrs. Bert Jeffs of Mount Pleasant and Mrs. Harry Brown of Carmel, voiced the appreciation of the visitors for the hospitality of the St. Paul's ladies.

Afternoon tea brought to a close a very profitable afternoon.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Treatment for oily skin

Commonest of all beauty vexations is the complexion that always looks as if it had been fried in butter. The sebaceous glands, necessary to keep the skin from flaking, are all out for overproduction. They go on spouting, these little oil wells, defying the efforts of the powder pad to put on the dull finish. There is only one remedy, though. Take oily epidermal coat does not wrinkle as early as the dry one. A young woman won't find much solace there, but older women will.

The sensible thing, of course, is to find the cause. Rarely too much fat in the diet as any dermatologist will tell you. If you have a nose that shines like a good deed in a naughty world, make a vow that you will avoid cream, pastries, and foods that are cooked in deep fat. Use butter sparingly on your bread. Clear soups are better for you than cream soups. Cheese tastes as good with a soda fountain; ice cream is not your beauty friend.

Begin the day with orange or tomato juice. Every day eat a green salad. Drink plenty of water. The daily bath with warm soapy water, and friction with a heavy brush, is helpful. It helps the skin all over the body to function as an organ of elimination.

Oily complexions need moisture to the skin surface. Use them sparingly; never let them remain on overnight. One can apply a light cleansing cream for the removal of make-up, then have a soap and water scrubbing. Soap is a help, but every particle of the suds must be removed. The slightest deposit on skin or hair will increase the oily appearance.

After the bedtime face washing, rinse with warm water, then with cold, and dry gently. Dissolve a teaspoonful of ordinary baking soda in a cup of warm water. Dab it on with pledgets of cotton, let it dry. In the morning use cold water freely to stimulate circulation and bring good coloring, then apply witch hazel.

The compact rouge is more desirable than a creamy variety. Avoid the application with powder. There is a difference in the consistency of these fragrant cosmetics. Some have an oily base. Which makes them desirable for use on the dry skin, others are light and fluffy, flattering to the complexion that is inclined to carry a film of oil.

But don't overlook the fact that the real cure will be found in a fat-free diet. There is a reason for overactivity of sebaceous glands; it is found in viands that are rich in fats. No sauces, no dipping into the cookie jar, no cream.

Don't forget that the real cure will be found in a fat-free diet.

South became declarer at a contract of six no-trump, showed into it by his north partner. North could not be blamed for slam desire. But his no-trump decision was because it was in tournament.

The opening lead from west was a small club. As is customary with a good player, south stopped to study his chances and what his opponent may be going to do it faster than others. But all do.

There is a possible spade loser and heart loser. And with such a lead, entries to the south hand are kind of scarce. That is, if he is counting on them for the future.

Dummy played club Jack and held the first trick. The two top diamonds were led and used up. So was the club ace. The idea was to enter south for using diamond queen and club king for ruffs.

The problem was to get into the south hand. That was possible if an opponent ran with heart king on the first lead of that suit. So, dummy slapt forth heart queen to see what would happen to it.

East shot up with heart ace and the king or lose it on the ace. If he does or lose it, dummy can stop to lose a spade. So, east hopped in with the king, hoping he can still get a spade trick.

It makes no difference now what east returns. Either in the next trick or later, south can get in with a heart to the nine. This gives south his chance to lead diamond queen and club king.

On these, dummy sluffs the jack and ten of spades and there is nothing else to it. Of course, such a play will not always be so lucky. But where there is a way, a player must have the will.

The Movie Column

By RON. GADSBY

Those rooting for the success of English films—and who isn't—will be interested to know that every existing long-run record for the showing of a movie in New York City was broken by the 47-weeks showing of the Laurence Olivier Schneider production of Henry V.

The records speaks volumes for the success of English films which have became the seventh—should we say, thinking industry in the United Kingdon monetary returns, both domestic and foreign.

Doubtless, Olivier is one of the greatest living actors, and his supporters will thrill at the news that he has begun production of the Shakespearean play, "Hamlet". The choice role of "Ophelia" will be played by Jean Simmons, 17-year-old beauty who had a minor role in "Johnny in the Clouds" when only 15.

Jean is living with her family near the Denham studios and goes regularly to a neighborhood school. The J. Arthur Rank interests are grooming her for big things and consider her one of their brightest prospects.

And speaking of J. Arthur Rank ,he will visit Toronto on May 17 for his "first holiday in seven years". His visit will be short but he will take time out to address the Century Bible Class of Timothy Eaton Memorial Church. Somehow, thanks to Hollywood, you don't associate film producers with Bible Classes but Rank is a leader in his church in London.

The perennially favorite story of Robin Hood will once more be revived in a production to be entitled "The Prince of Thieves". Jon Hall will play Robin Hood with will ultimately win the beauteous Maid Marion (Patricia Morison). It is only fair that each generation of kids gets a chance to revive the exploit of the famous bandit of Sherwood Forest.

Billy Southworth of Braves Appears to Have Landed Flag Spark in Elliott of Pirates

Hard-Hitting Third Baseman is Clouting the Apple at .375 Clip

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Billy Southworth, manager of the Boston Braves, tried seven ex-members of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals in his lineup last year and wound up in fourth place.

This year the spark in his quest for a Boston flag comes from the seventh-place Pittsburgh Pirates of 1946—Bob Elliott.

Southworth, who led the Cards to three straight pennants, still is surrounded by some of his St. Louis Champions, but the big gun in the drive which was climaxed yesterday when the Braves moved into a virtual first-place tie with Brooklyn and Chicago has been the fine all-around play of Elliott.

The hard-hitting third baseman, in addition to playing a near-perfect game at the hot corner, is currently hitting at a .375 clip and is among the leaders in runs batted in and extra base clouts.

Playing against his former mates yesterday, Elliott banged out four hits in as many times at bat to lead the Braves to a 12-5 win over the Bucs in Boston.

The Cubs swept a double header from the Phils in Philadelphia, each by one-run margins. After winning the opener 2-1 behind the nine-hit pitching of Hank Wyse, the Bruins staged a six-run eighth inning rally in the nightcap to overcome an early Philadelphia lead and went on to win 8-7.

Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, hero of the 1946 World Series, pitched the Cardinals to a 7-5 victory over the Dodgers in the first night game of the season at Ebbets Field.

Boston Red Sox moved within a half game of the top in the American League by defeating Chicago White Sox 3-0.

Philadelphia Athletics handed St. Louis Browns their sixth straight defeat 5-3 under the lights at St. Louis. Henry Majeski, who won Thursday's game with a homer, drove in two runs to help Phil Marchildon of Pentanguishene, Ont., gain his second win and first against one defeat.

Ace relief pitcher Ken Trinkle won his third straight game with the help of Frank Hoberg Thomson as New York Giants came up with three runs in the eighth inning to subdue Cincinnati at the Polo Grounds 7-4.

Cornish Knight Will be Starter In Preakness

Cornish Knight, owned by F. P. Taylor of Toronto, is one of the 12 starters for the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico Park, Baltimore, Pet. Pilot, although winner of the Kentucky Derby a few days ago, is not favored to win the classic as Phalanx, who finished second to him.

Jimmy Fox, who hit 537 home runs in 24 years of organized baseball, retired from the game yesterday at Miami, saying "I was born 10 years too soon," in reference to the salaries paid to Major League ball stars today. Jimmy hit 58 homers in 1932 to almost break the 60 record mark for a season set by Babe Ruth.

Brampton claims to have the most lacrosse players per capita of any town in Canada. Two teams entered in every series of the Ontario Lacrosse Association and in three minor leagues, there are more than 300 boxla players in approximate population of 6,500.

Babe Ruth who started his baseball career as an orphan in a Baltimore Industrial school, said yesterday in New York he was established as baseball's kid and assist American youth to achieve good character from participation in sports. The fund will be administered by several leading Americans and the early Philadelphia lead went on to win 8-7.

Dundalk has organized a team for box lacrosse, with Thomas Stephens president of the new club. Organized lacrosse has not been played in the town for several years.

The Frontier Golf League of Fort Erie, operated for four years, is to be revived and the season will open June 15 with one Canadian team, Erie Downs Golf and Country Club, and three western New York clubs, play will continue to Aug. 24.

Tony Golab, Hanz Christian, Jake Dundon, Bernie Mitman, Bill Dalton, Cam Switzer, and last year's captain Leo Seguin were the seven members of the 1946 edition of the Ottawa Rough Riders who turned out last night at a get-acquainted session of the team to welcome newcomers Tom Lindsay and Doug McCaig to Ottawa and others who're looking for jobs for the season.

Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians ball club promised March 29 at a birthday party for Bob Feller, 28, that he would bring the whole population of Newcomerstown, O., Cy's hometown, to see the opening play, Thursday he announced the day—June 11—and 4,564 will get a free trip and a free ball game.

Montreal Canadiens Defeat All-Stars 8-4

Tacoma, Wash., May 9—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens opened their two-game exhibition series with National Hockey League All Stars with an 8-4 victory before 3,000 fans here last night. Second game will be played here tonight after which the teams break off their 14-game western tour.

Leading scorer was Reay of the winners with two goals and an assist. Bob Fillion, also of Montreal, picked up a goal and two assists while Jimmy Peters, Buddy O'Connor, Leo Gravelle, Maurice Richard and Murph Chamberlain tallied for the others.

MINIMUM PURSES FOR O.J.C. MEET WILL BE $1,350

Horsemen and Track Operators Split Differences in Order to Let Meet Go

Toronto, May 9 (CP) The horses will be off and flying when the starter's bugle blows for the first race of the Ontario Jockey Club's meeting at Woodbine Park May 17.

The dispute over minimum purses between the club owners and the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association was settled with a compromise agreement yesterday. The dispute lasted long enough to cancel the first scheduled Canadian race meet of the season, but it was settled in time for the O.J.C. meeting which will wind up May 24 with the 36th running of the historic King's Plate.

The horsemen, otherwise known as the H.B.P.A., long held out for minimum purses of $1,500 at the Toronto tracks but the O.J.C. directors held firm and the Greenwood Club whose meet was cancelled, refused to raise the listed minimums of $1,200.

The compromise offered to accept minimum purses of $1,350. The O.J.C. held stakeover Saturday the Ontario Jockey Club agreed to raise the minimum to $1,350. In order that everybody in the horsemen split the difference.

Agreement now is in preparing for negotiations with other Ontario tracks—Thorncliffe, Long Branch and Dufferin at Toronto; Hamilton, Fort Erie and Stamford. Fort Erie for the management of these tracks haven't scheduled with the Horsemen's Fort Erie and Stamford are being asked for minimum purses of $1,200; the others for the same minimum conceded by the O.J.C. or $1,350.

W. E. MacDonald, legal adviser for the Ontario division of the H.B.P.A., after being notified of the O.J.C.'s decision to raise purses said last night: "I want to assure the O.J.C. directors that we do not consider this a complete victory for us, but rather a victory for both sides in that we both yielded."

ZALE DEFEATS BECKETT

Youngstown, O., May 9 (AP)—World middleweight champion Tony Zale had another "warmup" victory last night and his belt today as he pointed toward his coming title spray with Rocky Graziano at Chicago.

Unblemished by potent right Zale rocked Cliff Beckett of Sudbury to the canvas six times last night and won a technical knockout when the Canadian battler was assisted to his corner in the closing ring in the sixth round owing to a severely cut left eyelid.

MAY MEET IN NEW YORK

Windsor, Ont., May 9 — (CP)— George Panter of Gravenhurst, Ont., of the Amateur Hockey Association, announced last night that the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association would accept an invitation to hold its annual meeting next year in New York.

He spoke at a banquet given by the International Amateur Hockey League. Mr. Panter extended an invitation to the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States to hold its annual meeting next year in Toronto. It was the A.H.A.U.S. president, Tom Lockhart, who originally suggested an interchange of meetings.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE B. CARVER, Sports Editor.

The mad battle which wrestling fans around here have awaited two seasons to see, goes on the mat tonight as the feature British Empire Championship tilt between Highlander Whipper Billy Watson and Challenger John Katan. Both men are reported in sharp conditions and Watson has let it be known that he hopes he won't will be merely a prepping for the match coming up with World Champion Lou Thesz in the near future.

John Katan however will not regard Friday's match in any other light except the one that gives him back the B. E. Title which he once held. Katan has made a splendid it at times harsh campaign during the past year and has beaten every other challenger for the Empire crown. His win over McCready here two weeks ago made a tremendous impression in the wrestling circles even as far away as Australia and the British Isles. Now Katan thinks he can do the same thing to Watson. It should make for one of those terrifically exciting nights before it is all over.

The cocky young sergeant of the RCAF spends a briefly along Front Street. On his breast were the ribbons of overseas service. He chatted with a companion, and did not pay much attention to the veteran sergeant at the Royal Canadian Artillery as he stepped in his path. The khaki-clad veteran's head also gleamed with the colorful insignia of service.

The fair-haired RCAF chap looked up quickly. After all an army Joe had no right blocking his path, especially in such a thoroughfare. There was a look of questioning surprise on the face as he glanced at the soldier. A look which quickly changed to one of delight. Then passersby saw the strange sight of two veterans of the late in the khaki of the army and the other in the blue of the air force embrace each other, and do a reasonable facsimile of a Zulu war dance.

They were the Smith Brothers, dubbed at one time "Trade and Mark" and no relation to the bewhiskered gentry of cough drop fame. And both are box-fighters of more than passing ability with hundreds of bouts pro and amateur tucked beneath their respective belts. The year were born Hubert and Frank, and they are two of the best service sons of Mr. Frank Smith, of Picton, former ...prexy of the late lamented Central Ontario Baseball League.

Hubert, the fair-haired lad, in more ways than one is more familiarly known as "Hub" in both service and pugilistic circles. He was dubbed "Hub" when the box-fighter ripped off his sweatshirt on the beach at which had been inscribed the name "Hubert". When the latter pusher got through with the shirt all that was visible were the letters HUB—and the name stuck. "Hub" is fifteen months older than brother Frank, a fact that entitles him to call Gi me "the kid". He has participated in ... ... he his colorful ring career, 37 of them professional. Of this number he ... ... and drew 2. He fought under the name of Frankie Fisher; Frank won the Golden Gloves championship in the Montreal Forum in 1937 and has also fought in Toronto, New York and Western Quebec. He joined the Army and went overseas in 1944 as a member of the Royal Canadian Artillery, later transferred to the Army Service Corps. Like brother Hub, Frank is still in the service.

But there is another brother in the family, a stalwart army officer, Major Fred Smith who has worn the King's uniform for the past 6 1-2 years. He went overseas in September, 1939 as a member of the 11th unit of the Royal Canadian Artillery.

But the colorful box-fighting days of the brothers Smith are over. As a matter of fact is what they say. But they're razzed and in the pink of condition. That can be seen even. But they've got ideas of fishing with Frank in a tourist resort, cabins etc., somewhere east of Kingston where fish-and-chip lovers can get their favorite food via the city service. And gents, don't try to shortchange the waiters or dare him to "come around the back." It wouldn't be healthy.

Incidentally, "Hub" has developed into one of the best boxing referees in this district and his services are in constant demand. He knows all the angles, and the general knowledge gained through years of ring experience is standing him in good stead. He's a likeable cuss, in fact so is Frank. And what a pair of guys to have around if some plug-ugly takes a fancy to plastering your physog over the landscape. A few more wrestling bouts like that of a week ago and we might be in the market for their services.

Thanks to the efforts of Ken J. Collins, member of the Ontario Baseball Association Executive, the smart little

Barbara Can't Give Freedom Of City Back

London, Ont., May 9.—(CP)—Mayor George A. Wenger was not sure he hadn't pulled an Ottawa on Barbara Ann Scott's Olympic chances. Magistrate Dudley Jeffries started it all at the Police Commission meeting.

"You did give her the freedom of the city?" he asked.

The mayor nodded, smiled and added, "it was a real pleasure too."

"Can she accept that and retain her amateur status?" pursued the magistrate.

"Wait a minute," gulped the mayor. "We can't very well ask her to give it back."

$23,000 FIRE LOSS

Hamilton, May 9 — (CP) — Fire of unknown origin today swept through premises of Hamilton Auto Supply and caused damage estimated at $23,000. Tenants fled from five apartments in an adjacent building.

The blaze, believed to have started in the basement, spread rapidly in the first floor and then raced up the walls to the roof. Oil film on automobile accessories fed the flames and added to the density of the smoke, firemen said.

Purported Strike Against Robinson By Cards Fails to Materialize

By JOE REICHLER

New York, May 9 — (AP) — A purported player strike by the Brooklyn Dodgers against Jackie Robinson, Negro baseball star, failed to materialize today, as the first baseman, was recently asserted by Card owner Sam Breadon, National League president Ford C. Frick said last night.

Frick, after conferring with Eddie Dyer, Redbird manager, declared: "Breadon termed reports of it as 'ridiculous.' Breadon, however, declared that he had been told there was some dissatisfaction among National League players about playing against Robinson and talked to two of his players about it.

"There is absolutely nothing to the story," Breadon said in St. Louis.

Frick, in a telephone conversation with the Associated Press, said that Breadon came to New York last week and informed him that he understood there was a movement among the Cardinals against Robinson, and talked to two of his players about it.

"I didn't have to talk to the players myself, Mr. Breadon said that he talking to them, after he had told me afterward the trouble was smoothed out. I don't know what he said to them, who the ringleaders, if any, were or any other details," Frick said.

Frick, informed of Breadon's and Dyer's statements, said he would stand on his previous words.

Dyer said: "I have no statement for myself and for all my players but if Breadon wants to say him and thinks he can be of value to the club, that's plenty for us right with us. He is an American the same as I am and he is entitled to all the rights and privileges I am.

Frick also said he had received complaints that manager Ben Chapman of the Philadelphia Phillies had showered abusive language at Robinson "just like

All Stars Score

Maybe Jackie Adams has had public relations training, but the chubby gent now in charge of the fortunes of the Detroit Red Wings, and currently is piloting the NHL All Stars in their game tonight against the Toronto Maple Leafs for hockey. In the west where they grow their sport fans rough and tough, and where sports are as important as the weather, some of the big league teams have had a tremendous reception.

The fact that Adams engineered a game for the benefit of 1,000 children in the Chicago area who didn't hurt professional hockey one bit. Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell reports that "one of the nicest features about the hockey loop's interest in the big-leagues have in the young-stars."

"It is just as big a thrill for us to be with you, as it is for you to meet these National Hockey League stars," Frank Selke of the Canadiens told the kids. Turk Broda, Bill Durnan and some of the others went out of their way to similar vein which made everybody out there happy. Police fellows these athletes, and don't think those wide-eyed moppets will for get them.

Toronto, May 9 (CP)—Ontario is in for its biggest lacrosse season since 1944 when they still call it "Canada's national game," with 14 senior clubs in the senior circuit leading to the Mann Cup playoffs. And every player on every club has his eyes slanted at one juicy objective — a ticket to the 1948 Olympic Games.

Clarence (St. Catharines Standard) Browne reports that his city's Athletics, Ontario senior champions, say find many of their "old boys" back to try and oust down both opposition and old waistline. Rumor has it that Bill Fitzgerald, son of the peerless Billy of field lacrosse fame, will be trying on the double blue jersey one more time.

The Athletic aggregation has a slight edge on the six other teams in the loop, having kept in shape all winter by playing in the International Lacrosse League, which includes teams in the Rochester, N. Y. area. But they expected plenty of opposition from Hamilton, Orillia, West York (former Lakeshores), Brampton, Minnie and Owen Sound.

Gained 21st Knockout in 22 Fights at Expense of Regina's Al Alford.

By AL VICKERY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Fort Arthur, May 9 (CP)—The Lakehead was in a fighting mood today as fans thronged the box office for tickets for the second night's card in the three-day Dominion Amateur Boxing championships.

Thair Palaise stirred by the five knockouts which accompanied the 10 bouts on last night's opening draw, boxing enthusiasts today were predicting a close-to-sellout crowd when the cream of Canada's young fighters square off again this evening.

Defending Canadian feather-weight champion Ronnie Lancelle of Ottawa stayed on top of his class in an elimination round yesterday, scoring a technical knockout over Davey McCaig of Fort Frances, Ont.

Among the others scoring victories by the knockout or TKO route were Bill Goulding of Oshawa, who gained his 21st knockout in 22 fights at the expense of Regina's Al Alford.

In the middleweight division Jack Dugan, 160, of Peterborough won a decision over Jimmy Wilson 158 1-2, of Regina.

The heavies and flyweight are scheduled to make their initial appearance tonight, together with winners of the first night's bouts and others who drew byes in the first draw.

SWELLING RICE THREATENS SHIP

San Francisco, May 8 — (AP) — A cargo of 1,000 tons of rice, swelling steadily in her watersoaked holds, threatened today to burst the seams of the fire-scarred Swedish freighter Frit.

Tugs pulled the 1,976-ton ship from the San Francisco Bay shoreon to which she drifted Tuesday night with an engine room fire spreading to her cabins and superstructure. She was towed to a dock.

Olympic Committee Will Meet in June To Consider Status

Stockholm, May 9 — (AP) — If the International Olympic Committee takes up the question of amateur status of Canada's Barbara Ann Scott, world figure skating champion, at the meeting she won't be considered until the committee meets in London in June, 1948.

This was the expressed opinion today of Sigfrid Edstrom, committee president, when asked to comment on the acceptance by Miss Scott of a new automobile from hometown Ottawa citizens in appreciation of her recent championship.

Declaring he lacked details on the report, Edstrom said he could not say definitely that the case would come up, and that if it did the committee didn't intend to meet until June.

"But I'm not sure at all. But question will be of any import whatsoever," he added.

"It's impossible for me personally to judge whether she has committed any violation of amateur rules."

He also noted that Canada has two representatives on the Olympic committee.

Miss Scott has said she will return the car.

Steel Shortage Forces Layoff

Detroit, May 9 — (CP) — Chrysler Corporation will lay off 7,000 on Saturday because of shortages of steel, it was announced last night. The layoff will extend until May 20.

A large part of the shortage was attributed to the seven-day strike by the Canadian Steel Company, near Chicago, which ended Wednesday.

In Pontiac, Mich., 7,000 employes today of General Motors Fisher body division and Pontiac Motor division will remain idle until Monday because of the same strike, officials said.

Receive Warning Tel Aviv Public Building Mined

Jerusalem, May 9 — (AP) — Officials received a telephoned warning Thursday that the public information building in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv had been mined and immediately ordered it evacuated.

Meanwhile, gangsters Thursday fired four Tel Aviv textile stores causing damage estimated at several thousand dollars.

An unconfirmed report from the city said the raiders were men of the Jewish terrorist organization Irgun Zvai Leumi, incensed by non-payment of protection money.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Alan G. Cunningham, high commissioner for Palestine, flew to Acre in northern Palestine for a personal investigation at Acre prison from which 216 Arab and Jewish prisoners made a mass getaway last Sunday, helped by terrorists.

Twenty-nine Jewish terrorists and 168 Arabs who got out of the jail were still at large.

Sports Roundup

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 9 — (CP) — Our turf adviser today, gives you his choice for the Preakness Saturday . . . In a couple of words; it's Jet Pilot or Faultless . . . "It's got to be the Pilot if it comes up mud," he warns. "But if the track is fast and dry, Faultless is the one." . . . He then explained that Jet Pilot won last Saturday's Kentucky Derby in the mud while Faultless, who finished third, would perform even better on a dry track . . . He didn't say anything about Phalanx . . . After all, Phalanx only finished second by a close head in the Derby.

Prediction

That clears the way for our own choice which we give you without charge; Jet Pilot, wet or dry . . . This starting decision arrived at because the Preak is 1-1/16 of a mile shorter than the Derby, and because the Pilot has shown he can stay with either Faultless or Phalanx.

Difference of Opinion

Just to give the full picture, we might add that the other two-thirds of the department which writes this column disagrees with us . . . Alan Harvey stands by Phalanx, which he saw run in the Wood Memorial at Jamaica . . . Al Calletti remains unconvinced . . . Cornish Knight, the three-year-old owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto.

Triple Crown

With Phalanx, Jet Pilot, Faultless and Cornish Knight standing discussing the American triple crown of the Derby, the Preak and the Belmont (Belmont, Long York Daily Mirror) Parker mentions Britain's triple crown—the Derby, the St. Leger Stakes and the Two Thousand Guineas . . . Researcher Parker says the first horse to win all three was West Australian . . . Some horses have won it since then with the last being Bahram, the Aga Khan's entry and one of the greatest British-bred sires in . . . First horse to win the American triple was the Canadian-owned Sir Barton in 1919 . . . Only seven other six horses have won the three-year honors: Gallant Fox (1930); Omaha (1935); War Admiral (1937); Whirlaway (1941); Count Fleet (1943) and Assault (1946).

$23,000 TO REPAIR WINDOWS

Toronto, May 8 — (CP) — Faced with an increasing toll of property destruction in Toronto schools by juvenile vandals at night, property committee of the Toronto Board of Education last night decided to turn the whole problem over to the police department. The Board paid $23,000 to repair broken windows last year and figures the damage will be higher this year.

"SMALL-MOUTHED BLACK BASS" by Shelley Lagier

From 10,000 eggs—two survivors! In her lifetime, the female Black Bass lays 10,000 eggs. Under normal conditions, only two of these will produce mature fish. Pre-season fishing further reduces their chance of survival. We must uphold the conservation laws in order to preserve our game fish.

• "The male guards the eggs and young fry until they are able to fend for themselves. For the protection of these species, the closed season ought to be strictly enforced, as the guardian male strikes at everything that comes near his nest. If he is caught the whole brood of young will be destroyed by its enemies."

CHAPTER 11

"I haven't eaten since I left home," Pat admitted. "I couldn't have swallowed a bite. Do you reckon Cherry will want to see me, Gay? Or will I just upset her, I was so crazy when Jim Hilde from the Roanoke Gazette called me at four o'clock in the morning and told me what had happened to Cherry. I just dressed and got in my car and started drivin'. I didn't even remember I should stop to eat. I just drove and mind my own business."

Hyacinthe stood in the doorway.

"Did I heah you all say somethin' about Mistah Pat bein' hongry, Miss Gay?" the old colored woman beamed on the weary young man in the big chair.

"I reckon I am hungry, thanks Hyacinthe. How have you been?"

"Yes fine, mistah Pat, I am fine. Now I'se gwine shuffle 'round and fix you a big feed. It won't take me no time a'tall."

When Hyacinthe's fat form had disappeared toward the kitchen Gay sighed.

"It's been a terrible shock to Cherry, Pat. She's a wreck. But she's under the care of a wonderful doctor and he says if she stays in bed a few days she'll be all right. She's asleep now. I gave her an extra sleeping pill. Poor darling."

"How do you think she'll feel about my coming?" Pat asked uncomfortably. "Maybe she just hop all over me for interferin'!"

"I don't think so," Gay shook her red head. "I rather believe this experience has taken a little of the wind out of Miss Cherry's sails. She's a pretty nice girl. Do you know Pat, this is an awful thing to say maybe, but I think a shock like this is just what Cherry needed. Something to wake her up before she makes a mess out of her life."

Pat said thoughtfully: "You might be right, if it has any permanent effect on her."

Cherry is just a fresh brat," Gay told him. "She's been showing off. For one thing she's always been told she was beautiful. She's too conceited about her looks, and too sure of herself. But underneath it all, Cherry has some very good qualities."

"She's lucky," Gay took hold of his coat. "Here take your coat off and sit down, and I'll have Hyacinthe fix you something to eat while we talk. I know you're starved. You take care of a wonderful doctor and he says if she stays in bed a few days she'll be all right. She's asleep now. I gave her an extra sleeping pill. Poor darling."

"How do you think she'll feel about my coming?" Pat asked uncomfortably. "Maybe she just hop all over me for interferin'!"

Britain Trying to Regain Position as World's Biggest Carrier of Goods by Sea

By JACK SMITH

London, May 8. (Reuters)—Britain, having fallen behind the United States in the list of great mercantile powers, is trying to regain her position as the world's biggest carrier of passenger and goods by sea, noted.

Along with foreign commitments the target figure for deliveries from her shipyards in 1947 is 1,350,000 gross tons. The effect of the fuel crisis and the shortage of steel and timber will inevitably be reflected in the volume of tonnage completed, but the exigent of the reduction in output will join the now sadly-depleted merchant fleet of the United Kingdom, which represents only 24 per cent of the total world deadweight tonnage.

While this addition will be infinitesimal compared with the difference between United States tonnage of 50,359,000 and Great Britain's tonnage of 24,009,000, no true picture can be gained of thes mercantile listing at the end of the current year until the United States finally decides on its back-to-peacetime merchant navy strength.

But even accounting for the government's recent decision to allow the maximum amount of its pre-war dollar reserves—$100,000,000—to be spent on the purchase of 143 of the 329 ships now on charter hire have from the United States, it will, in the opinion of experts, still be many years before Britain regains her pre-war supremacy of the sea.

France Bestows Highest Decoration On Churchill

Token of Nation's Gratitude For Wartime Leadership

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, May 10 (CP).—In a colorful ceremony in the "Cour d'Honneur" of the hilsorie Hotel des Invalides, Winston Churchill today was decorated with France's highest military decoration, the Medaille Militaire, as a token of France's gratitude and admiration for his wartime leadership and unwavering support of the republic.

It was the kind of show Churchill loves and he moved slowly through it, relishing every minute.

Several thousand cheering, admiring Frenchmen jammed the cloisters around the courtyard where two squadrons of white-turbanned Spahi cavalrymen with flowing desert cloaks and flashing sabres were drawn up along with a battalion of French infantry and two companies of Chasseurs", the equivalent of Canadian rifle regiments.

Just before 11 a.m., Churchill, carrying a cane, stomped past replumed Republic guards at the gateway and walked slowly in the square, looking very much the belligerent bulldog wartime leader of Britain.

Escorted By Premier

Escorted by Premier Ramadier and a group of French and British officials and senior officers, he walked slowly around the huge square reviewing troops, as bands trumpeted stirring French Army tunes.

The crowd clamored "Vive Churchill" and gave him boundless victory signs.

He stood stiffly at attention in the centre of the square for the climax of the ceremony when the medal was pinned on by the soldier, himself a holder of the decoration.

Another burst of cheering echoed around the courtyard as Ramadier pinned on the medal with the same medal four young French fliers flashed past Churchill.

Churchill, by now smiling delight, walked to the side of the square and French troops smartly paraded past as he took the salute.

Then he drove through the crowded streets, up the Champs Elysees to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier to place a wreath.

It was a big day for Churchill and for France.

Malady Like Influenza Fatal To 15 Babies

Montreal, May 10. (CP)—A strange disease, likened by doctors to influenza, killed 15 foundlings and has infected 100 in Nunnery, and affected 17 other babies living in the area, it was disclosed today.

Dr. Arthur Chabot, provincial government district medical health officer, and Dr. Daniel Longpre, in charge of foundlings at the big institution, told of the disease which struck suddenly about a month ago at three wards.

Vomiting, profuse diarrhea and dehydration were the principal symptoms, they said, and with the exception of one 18-months-old baby, all the victims were one year old or younger. The disease struck hardest at deficient children.

Cases were reported over a three-week period, but there has been none for 10 days and the doctors said they believe the disease has run its course.

Dr. Chabot said it had been suggested the spell of hot weather might have brought on the epidemic, but neither he nor Dr. Longpre would express a personal opinion on the cause.

Dr. Chabot said from tests at the provincial laboratory, "we established a virus of the influenza type that it must be some gastro-intestinal form of influenza."

Serum was injected into the infants but the effect of the incubation and the latest drugs were used.

Average illness of the infants was a week, while the longest case lasted ten days.

"We have no idea where it originated," said Dr. Chabot. "Anybody who has a cold is not moved from the wards and the nurses take extreme precautions when handling the children."

Plucky Cashier Saves Payroll, Two Arrested

Toronto, May 10.—(CP) — Two brothers, Alex Preece, 32 and John Preece, 20, were arrested by Toronto police late last night and charged with attempted robbery and the theft of an automobile.

Their arrests came after an extensive police search for two men who attempted to grab the payroll of the A. Stein and Company jewellery aftermath and who were thwarted by Charlotte Godley, a plucky cashier at the plant.

Miss Godley met them at the box of pay envelopes and dropped behind a heavy door when confronted by the two armed men. They fired two shots over her head and fled from the plant to escape in a stolen auto. The car had been taken from the city hall parking lot about an hour before the robbery attempt.

The holdup attempt was obviously made by men familiar with the plant routine. They came at a time when employees were usually paid and gained admittance by asking for a member of the staff. Miss Godley was the one offered a hall where employees were lined up to receive their pay envelopes.

One quick was fired in the floor to emphasize their "This is a holdup" statement. When the gun was discharged Miss Godley ducked behind the door gripping the box containing the money as very big coin could reach for it.

As they turned to run from the building, Arthur Harvey, an employee tripped one of the bandits and Miss Godley ran to the door with the same medal four young French fliers flashed past Churchill.

Churchill, by now smiling delight, walked to the side of the square and French troops smartly paraded past as he took the salute.

Then he drove through the crowded streets, up the Champs Elysees to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier to place a wreath.

It was a big day for Churchill and for France.

14-Year Boy Hunted by Police In Arden Killing

Kingston, May 10 (CP)—A 14-year-old boy is being hunted by police in the small village of Arden of the body of a youth, the head punctured by a 22-calibre rifle bullet, discovered by children in a cedar grove at Arden, 50 miles northwest here.

The boy and the fatally shot Fred Desjardins, 17, of Big Island, Marfe, Ont., escaped last April 27 from the St. John's Training School in Toronto after leaving dummies in their beds.

The body was discovered slaying of Desjardins, whose body was found amid foot-prints identified during an April 27 break-in at an Arden store, was somewhat clearer this afternoon as Provincial Police made by police through fingerprints of those in charge of the Ontario Provincial Police criminal investigation branch.

The khaki-clad body of the youth was found, fully dressed in khaki, by the grandfather of Whitelock, a district farmer. Police later found shoes in a nearby swamp and also a sleeping bag and 22-calibre rifle, believed part of the loot from the Arden break-in.

Correspondent Impressed by Special Privileges Enjoyed by Soviet Heads

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 10 (CP). The overwhelming power wielded in the Soviet Union by Premier Stalin and the small circle which controls the affairs of 190,000,000 Russians in the 16 Soviet republics is one of the most striking impressions obtained after a trip to Russia which I completed a month in Moscow.

The 14-member Politburo — political bureau of the government and party of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics—works in the big executive building behind the Kremlin, rampart-like wall, main clock-tower gate and is the most powerful dictatorship in the world.

Other lasting impressions of the Soviet Union's need and for consumer goods, the relative poverty of the ordinary Russian I saw, the special privileges enjoyed by the ruling and influential classes.

I was struck by evidence everywhere of the war's devastation. Russians made in the war, sacrifices which does not yet seem properly appreciated in the west.

URANIUM DEPOSIT IN SAXONY BEING MINED BY SOVIET

Information Leaking Thru Sealed Frontier Between Bohemia And Occupied Zone

By JAMES M. LONG

Prague, May 10 (AP)— The best available information leaking through the sealed frontier between northern Bohemia and the Soviet-occupied zone of German Saxony indicates emphatically that the Russians are intensively mining uranium deposits in the famous Joachimstal uranium ore district.

Residents of the Karlsbad Spa district near Joachimstal say the extent of mining activity reported would suggest that the newly-created Soviet zone in the border might be even larger than the original mines. It was there Professor Pierre and Madame Marie Currie got their first uranium ore for their research and the war the deposit was the largest known.

Technically, such reports cannot be substantiated on the Czech side of the frontier. But they dovetail closely with news reports which have come previously from Germany.

Stories of the Russian mining activity—and these are widely known in the border towns through the boundless network of rumor from persons who have visited or had business on permit basis of the frontier, and from others who have talked with Russians in the zone—are that the Red Army used the Spa Hotels for a time as a rest resort for officers.

Miners Brought In

There is reported to be many miners being done exclusively by Russian miners brought in specially, and they are guarded. They say the actual sites of the deposits are fenced off with barbed wire and are closely guarded.

The reported extent of activity has stirred speculation that perhaps the prerequisite conditions in the Ursla or Siberia of Russian uranium deposits may be in existence; that perhaps this extension of the Joachimstal deposit may be the only uranium source available to Soviet scientists and their German satellite aides.

On the Czech side of the frontier the original Joachimstal mines have been worked out. During the war the Germans mined those mines for all the ore then they were taken over by the Czech government.

Deposits Depleted

In response to questions by The Associated Press the Czech government said its present uranium output is limited but limital was small, below pre-war output, because many deposits had been destroyed by the Germans and repairs were not yet completed.

The government said the whole output was taken over during the war, in the production of uranium and uranium oxide—the latter used mainly for use at Spas and sanatoriums.

'Near Normal' Weather Promised for Weekend, Seeding 3 Weeks Late

(By The Canadian Press)

The curbing band of unseasonal cold that has held back growing farmers almost three weeks in their spring seeding plans appeared to be relaxing somewhat as the weatherman promised "near normal" temperatures for the week-end.

In Ontario, Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy reported crop losses to farmers may total between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000, due to the tardiness of spring, but he added that with good weather in the next few weeks, some of the losses could be recovered.

But the unseasonable cold was a boom to residents along the St. John River in New Brunswick where floods threatened extensive prospective damage. The steady rise of the river level was halted slightly by cold temperatures that steadied the flow of creeks feeding the main stream.

Flood conditions existed in the Ste. Anne De Bellevue area of Quebec and a number of summer homes were threatened by swollen rivers.

More than a dozen freighters were held in Lake Erie in the largest ice flog of the season drifting toward the southern terminus of the Welland Canal. The ice had cost shipping companies "thousands of dollars" in delay and loss of schedule.

The Lake Erie ice floe contributed to the low temperatures in the Niagara Peninsula but farmers there optimistically claimed fruit trees had not been damaged and they were confident the crops would be good . . . if they ever get warm weather soon.

In the Windsor and Leamington area, the early vegetable crop in Canada—tomato growers planned to lay their sets during the coming week. Early vegetables like radishes, spinach and green onions were about a week later than in most years.

Snow fell as late as Friday in Brantford where temperatures for the season, were lower than they had been since 1911. Other parts of Ontario had what they called "ideal" but the weather was almost promised, would be their last look at snow for this season.

INDIAN LEADERS CLAIM TOO MUCH CENTRALIZATION

Urge More Autonomy for Agents, Local Chiefs and Tribal Councils

Ottawa, May 10.—(CP)—Canada's Indian leaders, and particularly those in Saskatchewan, believe there is too much centralization of Indian affairs in Ottawa, far removed from the reservations, and that the Indian man's bureaucracy made the Red Man feel "Lo-st, down and caused him to lose his initiative.

That was what a four-man Indian delegation — including two chiefs — told the union of Saskatchewan Indians told the joint parliamentary committee on Indian affairs today. They want more autonomy for Indian agents, local chiefs and tribal councils and said the Indians should have a freer hand in the handling of their trust fund incomes as well.

Chief Joe Dreaver of the Moosomin Reservation, asked why many Indians had abandoned raising cattle, said they had not a permit before they could sell them. In fact, he said, it was difficult to dispose of almost everything Indians grow.

The delegation also told committee members the Indians should be the basic language in schools but Indian language ages should not be discriminated that the Indian Department if provided enough funds for what is expected to do and that there should be a Saskatchewan Indian agent for each province to deal specifically with Indian affairs.

Delegates Divided

On the question of liquor for Indians, the delegation was divided. John Tootoosis of the Poundmaker Reservation said privileges of the union said while can can't always handle liquor as well as white but perhaps it would be better that the Indians have it than not. Chief Dreaver advanced. Chief Dreaver thought the Indian would soon learn the proper use of liquor if allowed to purchase it legally.

Rev. Allan Cuthand, a Cree-speaking educated Anglican minister and teacher said he thought the question the Indian shouldn't have liquor. But the question had to come up let the tribesmen vote. Let everyone vote on it along with their women.

The matter of settlement of Indian veterans on reservations under the Veterans' Land Act was precipitated lengthy questioning.

Under the V.L.A. an Indian veteran cannot get his $2,300 settlement grant unless he settles on a reservation.

In defence of the Indian stand Mr. Todhunter said the Indian veteran already was communistic holder in the reservation in common with the rest of the band before he went to war. Yet now the government is asking him to turn him back on this very same land with no individual rights of personal ownership.

In another plain talking to the committee the union president said:

"You should abolish this allotment matter . . . the Indians were promised, 'as long as the white men . . . let the white man be a gentleman and give them the $2,300 grant without the means settlement provision."

London, May 10 — (Reuters) — Sir Holman Stephens, recorder of the City of London, known around Guildhall as "Holy Stephens" because of his piety, died yesterday aged 82.

BUYERS' STRIKE BY HOUSEWIVES STARTS IN WEST

Will Continue for Month and is Protest Against Rising Food Prices

Winnipeg, May 10 — (CP) — Housewives launched a one-day began a month-long buyers' strike in protest against rising food prices and looked to their eastern sisters to join them in making the campaign Dominion-wide.

Almost primarily at large members and wholesalers, leaders in the movement predicted that the strike will result in greatly-curtailed store sales of items which have been placed under the ban. Among these are meat, butter, bread, cereals, sirloin, side bacon, round steak, stroin, side bacon, canned pears, raisins, butter, chocolate, lemons and oranges.

Mrs. Annie Ross of Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba Housewives' Association said last night that plans for the buyers' strike have been carefully organized throughout the west. Queries reaching the Winnipeg office from eastern points, including Kingston and Windsor, indicate Eastern Canada is also sympathetic.

In Winnipeg full impetus of the strike is expected to be felt this afternoon, when protesting housewives will station themselves outside stores and distribute pamphlets outlining the rising price of food.

In Regina a parade of consumers has been planned while at Calgary and Edmonton distribution of pamphlets is expected to highlight the opening day's activities.

"We feel that this strike will enable the growing discontent over high prices to find a definite form," Mrs. Ross said. "Our object is not to accept temporary reductions in prices but to get a permanent low enough to meet the average pocket book."

Delegates Meet To Select Bishop For Toronto

Toronto, May 10 (CP)— As delegates of the Toronto Diocese prepared to meet here Sunday to elect a new Bishop of Toronto to succeed the late Rt. Rev. Derwyn Bishop Derwyn T. Owen, eight prominent Anglican clergymen were announced as the official candidates.

Four of the eight are in the Toronto diocese: Rt. Rev. A. L. Beverley, Suffragan Bishop of Toronto; Dean T. W. Wright of James Cathedral; Canon F. H. Wallman of Hamilton and Archdeacon Principal Ramsay Armitage of Wycliffe College and Rt. Gilbert Hepburn of Peterboro.

Bishop George F. Kingston of Halifax, Bishop W. L. Wright of Algoma and Very Rev. R. H. Waterman of Hamilton are also considered possible successors to Archbishop Owen, who was called from outside the diocese in 1932 when he was Bishop of Niagara.

Since no nominations precede the election and any Anglican priest qualified to vote may be the high position, names of the eight candidates will be known until the first ballot is cast.

BUSINESS BETTER OFF THAN BEFORE WAR SAYS McCANN

Revenue Minister Asks Opposition Parties To Withdraw 2 Motions Of Non-Confidence

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL ...
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 10 (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann said yesterday in the Commons that business, even under existing rates of taxation, generally was doing better than before the war and, in some cases, "much better" than in the war years.

Speaking during a sitting that partly was devoted to the budget debate and partly to the remarks of some of the government's emergency control bills, Dr. McCann said the 1947-48 budget had contained "no immediate gifts" for business, although the excess profits tax would be removed at the end of the year.

"Business men may complain but they should try to remember that under existing conditions it has been going very well," he said.

The corporation tax may be high and the excess profits tax high, but the total remains the same after paying corporation taxes and providing for excess profits, more than before the enterprises have been showing substantial profits after doing for better than before the war, and in some cases very much better than during the war years. Their statements prove what I have said.

"Unfortunately we must not remember that the government has to take the long view and consider in the long run nothing could be more disastrous than to encourage it to have an unbalanced budget."

Debate Interrupted

The debate was interrupted at the dinner recess to permit passage of some of the emergency control bills which the departments wished to have passed before May 15, the deadline set by the ratification of such legislation.

The bills passed dealt with giving the powers of the Canadian Wheat Board until 1950 to allow it to fulfill a 600,000,000-bushel, four year wheat contract with the United Kingdom.

Given third reading was a bill to give the government power over the custodian of every property declared enemy by the Act, and the classification of trading with the enemy.

Minister Howe announced that veterans have been granted "full priority" in the purchase of new housing with the elimination of a requirement that their house be 50 per cent completed before they could apply for priority.

Passengers were all taken out along catwalks lining the tunnel.

Russia Heads U.N. Drive to Make Holy Land Independent

Proposals Appear Due To Draw Fire of U.S., Britain

By JOHN A. PARRIS, Jr.

Lake Success, N. Y., May 10 — (AP) — Russia spearheaded a drive in the United Nations today aimed at giving Palestine full independence possibly within six months.

Continuing debate on the Holy Land issue, the 53-member political committee was faced with a Soviet proposal that a provisional United Nations inquiry committee submit a plan for "establishing without delay the independent state of Palestine."

Should the Russian proposal be included in the inquiry group's terms of reference, the commission would specifically be instructed to submit a plan to the next regular session of the assembly for action in September.

If the assembly then approved the plan Palestine would be declared an independent state, provided that Great Britain, which holds the Holy Land under a League of Nations mandate, accepted the decision.

Most delegates agreed that it would probably be a long, hard road to peace between United States and Britain. They went on to give the British military commission board instructions and terms of reference.

Appearing before the committee to state the Arab delegation's position was an independent state immediately, Henry Katan, Palestine lawyer, yesterday declared that continuation of the British mandate threatens peace in Palestine and the security of the Middle East.

The Jewish agency countered with a demand for free immigration that would build up a Jewish home in the Holy Land first.

Desperate Bid Made to Turn Back Communists

Nanking, May 10 (AP)— The battle for Taiyuan, capital of the north China province of Shansi, one the border of Inner Mongolia, government unleashing 100 warplanes in desperate bid to turn back the Communists.

By government acknowledgement the Communists pressed over nearer Taiyuan, captured Hsiyang, 30 miles southeast, 25 miles to the southwest, and cut the road between the two cities at several points.

Beside the rolling drive from the southeast government forces as last were reported about 35 miles away, Taiyuan, where they outnumbered the defenders two to one.

Hsiyang itself was pictured in Chinese press accounts as packed with refugees from the countryside who fled destitute before the advancing Communist forces.

Eastward in Shansi province, government defenders of the Tungkwan railway junction city of Anyang sent out a hurry-up call for help against besieging Communists.

The government's Central News Agency declared the Communists before Anyang were using poison gas, an allegation frequently made by them but proved by either side. Central headquarters regarded the report lightly.

Inventor of Turbo-Jet Engine Wonders Whether it Will be Curse or Blessing

By JACK GRAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, May 10 —(CP)— Air Commodore Frank Whittle, the Englishman who, by applying the invention of the turbo-jet engine to flight, has made possible the swift, silent flight of modern aircraft, spent yesterday in a business conference with a group of Toronto engineers.

Since no nominations precede the election and any Anglican priest qualified to vote may be the high position, names of the eight candidates will be known until the first ballot is cast.

"I am convinced," he told the Engineering Institute of Canada yesterday at its annual meeting, "that engineers and scientists cannot be blamed for the way their products are so often misused.

"They make the discoveries, design the machines but they have very little say in how they are to be used. I can say with complete honesty that I had always thought of myself as one to serve the causes of peace rather than the purposes of war . . .

"I have no regrets in omens, but the fact that the first use of the jet has been to drop the destroy flying bombs gave me bitter disappointment. I am apart altogether from atomic power. Personally I think that its application may be a curse-or a blessing to mankind.

"The inventor said he believed the jet engine will be in use in the air by the beginning of next years. Even now airplane design is changing. Propellers, powered by engines, are disappearing. Instead of aircraft is frozen and though propellers are still necessary with piston-driven power, the new "ships" on the drawing board are all jet-propelled.

Marital Nagging Said Inevitable

London, May 10 (CP). — Ninety-men out of 100 have "troublesome" wives, said 77-year-old Magistrate A. Bond.

"But 99 out of 100 wives have troublesome husbands."

Declining to define "troublesome" he said: "Troublesome is part and parcel of the marriage state. It is inevitable, and cannot be helped.

"Poets, film artists and persons idealize marriage out of all proportion. I am a realist, and I try to look at things objectively.

"A nagging wife is a bad influence, and a nagging husband is the abomination to the Lord."

Mayor Refused Owners Request To Shoot to Kill

Shanghai, May 10 (AP) — Rice shop owners demanded permission today "to shoot to kill" if mobs storm their shops, Mayor K. C. Wu refused.

Wu told chairman Chu Ching-Hwa of the Shanghai rice dealers' Guild the police would provide greater protection if the Guild reopened shops, now closed and barricaded during rioting by the hungry Chinese.

Rice riots continued on a smaller scale, and some shops reopened but business in the economic situation was no better and unrest was high.

The demonstrations are aimed mainly at frozen wages and high living costs.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, May 10 — (CP)—Synopsis: An area of low pressure centred over Southern Michigan dominates the weather in this area. Rain has fallen in most of Ontario and is clear from the western end of Lake Superior and from James Bay to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. In the prairie and western section, temperatures throughout Ontario were below seasonal values. Under the fine clear skies today, temperatures will be above seasonal values. The high pressure area is moving eastward slowly and Sunday promises to be clear again and still warmer. A fresh outburst of polar air is now moving southward over the James Bay region causing a sharp temperature drop and some flurries. This cold air will swing eastward over Ontario tonight and not affect other sections of the province.

COOL WEATHER RETARDING GROWTH OF TOMATO PLANTS

Green house owners and others engaged in the tomato plant growing business today viewed with more or less concern the cool, "backwardness" of the season due to unfavorable weather. Many plants have been transplanted but cool days and cooler nights are retarding growth to a marked degree. Some seedlings have been lost through the cold weather, but thus far no major damage has been reported.

'Bouncer' Holway Given Club Bag By His Friends

(By Observer)

A group of twenty-five friends largred in on Harold "Bouncer" Holway and Friday evening and gave him the surprise of his life, a golf quarter set. The group of good chaps was representative of almost every branch of sport in the city and district, even from the furthermost Dominion of the Canadian Empire, Jack Gallup who has made a great success of Coca Cola in New Zealand. From Owen Sound and Toronto — from the Gulf and from the East they came to show "Bouncer" that all were sorry he was leaving the district of Belleville and wished him the best of luck.

There was a tailor, butchers and bakers, golf instructors of the brewing industry, a cheese buyer, insurance and bond salesman, journalism, law and an "unclivine" parson, all of them got a firm grip of the hand and wish "Bouncer" all the best in his new avocation.

The tailor, who was in tip top form, welcomed the guests at the sumptuous repast prepared by Mrs. Holway. The meal on one half of the gang when he said all were glad to see "Bouncer" in part. Then the unclvil servant got on his feet, and putting on his spectacles read from just what he thought of "Bouncer" — all in all a wonderful time was spent and came the highlight of the evening, when a handsome golf bag was presented to Mr. Holway.

In reply the recipient said although he was sorry to leave Belleville he appreciated, he was glad he had accepted the opportunity which presented itself which meant a better job and a secure future.

Cards and all that goes with 'em were enjoyed until the wee small hours — everybody present vouching it as one of the best evenings they had ever spent.

Chambers Granted New Trial By Court of Appeal

Toronto May 10 (CP)—The Court of Appeal this yesterday granted a new trial to Sidney George Chambers, sentenced to death for murder of his mother-in-law Marion Rusnak of St. Catharines, and for the manslaughter of Irene Constance Chambers attempted suicide after his arrest for the murder charge. Chambers' common child three days before Christmas, it was not necessarily proved he did it.

"In our opinion there was evidence from the inadmissible sufficient to support the conviction," the Appeal Court judgment stated.

"There was, however, other evidence that in our opinion was not properly admitted and that was of such a character that it may well have affected the result of the trial."

The possibility that a manslaughter charge might have been brought in, in connection with the child's death was also pointed out by the court.

"The death resulted from acts such as the appellant described might appear incredible to the jury, but they were not necessarily to act upon the evidence, but that they should have been so instructed," the judgment said. "It is for the jury, not this court, any more than it is the function of the trial judge to usurp the power of the jury. We have no option in the circumstances but to allow the appeal, to set aside the conviction and to order a new trial."

CORRESPONDENT

I was dismayed at the atmosphere of fear in which many Russians live and work and at the intrusion of the secret police and radio exert on the Russian mind, by the ever-present threat of liquidation. The first-line Soviet citizens get scarcely a chance to express their viewpoint.

But it was the influence of the politburo that underlined reactions. Through a network of trusted communists, they control the Soviet Union and in foreign capitals it makes and directs every phase of Soviet policy.

Politburo debates on policy are thought to be conducted by give-and-take but Stalin in the final analysis is the dominant figure. He is the man who makes the big decisions.

Foreign leaders are always talking about "Democracy" and the word is used through the press, newspapers and magazines. But it is democracy which seems to have little room in the relationship inside the Kremlin walls—if at all.

Russia probably is less classconscious than other states, but in Moscow there is plenty of evidence of privileges for leaders and for the Communist Party members.

There is no middle class. The upper class commands the use of the most outstanding of the year. clothing, and theatre tickets. Its privileges put them far above the ordinary population.

Yet Moscow, I heard few complaints from those who enjoyed no such privileges. They set their government upon a pedestal, voicing almost adoration for the man who has made it what it is today.

Indeed, most Russians believe that under the Soviet Regime they eventually will achieve the highest level in the world. Russians are not misinformed but their voices cannot be raised. Fear is a powerful weapon in controlling the actions of people. Liquidations, jobs, members of the family, all are at stake.

The Russians themselves are a wonderfully likeable, determined people—hard-working people but a Canadian in Moscow is left with many questions in his mind about the regime.

Little Spring Grain Sown

Toronto, May 10 — (CP) — Except in Northumberland and Prince Edward counties where 20-30 per cent of spring grains have been sown, most Ontario farmers still are waiting for the state of the soil which will enable them to go ahead with spring seeding, it was learned today at Agriculture said today in its monthly crop report.

"At May 1 only two per cent of the oats and barley were sown and one per cent of the corn acreage and three per cent of the fall wheat," the report said. "Last year seeding was practically completed by May 1 in all areas except Northern Ontario and a few southern counties.

"The delay in seeding does not necessarily spell light yields, the report continued, as in 1941 and 1944 when years of late seeding but "very good" crops were harvested. On the other hand, if the season was "very late" and yields were poor.

In North Simcoe smothering by snow, followed by subsequent severe frosts, killed an estimated 25-40 percent of fall wheat acreage.

This year farmers have in increase acreages of sugar beets, corn, potatoes, soybeans, dry beans and field peas, the report said. Production of these crops is expected to be about the same as last year, while the planted in potatoes may decline slightly.

Russia Accepts Certain American Proposals on Korea

London, May 10 (AP)—Moscow radio said today Russia has accepted certain American proposals for establishment of representatives concerning the formation of a provisional government for Korea.

The broadcast said the acceptance was contained in a letter from Foreign Minister Molotov to Secretary Marshall, which had hinted earlier that unless Russia specifically agreed to the creation of Korean political elements on the question the United States would boycott a scheduled May 20 meeting of the joint United States-Russian commission in Seoul.

It was the fourth in a series of letters between the two diplomats concerning the future of Korea, which has been split into Russian forces in the north and American forces in the south. The United Nations assembly Korean independence broke down a year ago when Russia refused to allow Korean groups and parties were to be consulted.

The principal American proposal to which Molotov now has agreed is that Korea be set up by "mutual agreement" of the two commanders, that no political party or individual be excluded from airing views and that the term of the Russians previously had refused to hear the views of anti-fascist organizations in the American zone.

Capital Closeups

By H. DENT HODGSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 10 — (CP) — The casual observer, during visit to the Peace Tower one evening this week might have seen a sight to give real Canadian pride.

Atop the tower, blazing in a rugged northern wind, were the familiar old red duster. But a second flag was flying with it, and the sunlight strangely reminiscent of something else. In the fly, where the star-and-stripes stands out, was a spot of white.

Blacked on the white, by white clouds, the red ensign looked for a moment like the unofficial but commended last year by the parliamentary flag committee, which there a great deal of fuss, urged that the Dominion's national flag for ceremonial purposes be the Maple Leaf — in a bordered background of white with maple leaf out-of-arms in the fly.

If the casual observer got such a thrill — and he might — run into pint-sized, stocky Sir Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice and senior member of the Liberal government, in the hotel room here.

Philosophical about the limiting effect of the cost about humidity, Eugene will tell-you, as you mount the stairs to his apartment, that he has been raising and lowering the Parliament building flag for years.

He handles the same official duties as the rest of the other Dominion government buildings, so it's not surprising that he should attend to a little lax about hitting the ceremonies on the Peace Tower roof.

For fifty-seven buildings involving the task getting $1 daily. Recently, his pay was raised to $1.50. It takes him about three hours every morning and two each night and, in the winter, he lives not for the Public Works Department.

Educational Notes

As a measure to promote educational publicity and to assist in the stimulation of community interest in education and to give the public correct information regarding education, both Belleville and Throughout the district, the Belleville Teachers' Council each week will contribute a column to appear in the Ontario Intelligencer under the heading "Educational Notes."

The Belleville Teachers' Council is an organization representing teachers of the four public schools and the Bellefield Collegiate and Vocational School.

"The Birth of the Kindergarten was most fortunate for Elementary Schools."

The work and mission of the Kindergarten is organization. The program is divided into routine and play periods. The routines develop good habits and an attitude of responsibility. The play periods ensure an interest in their environment and in the company of other children.

All normal children like to play. Both organized and self-directed play in the Kindergarten develop character and personality. He learns to co-operate by sharing common possessions in play and respecting the work of others. He thus develops an understanding of the rights of others.

Many children coming to school for the first time have not yet learned to use their hands. Hand activity in the Kindergarten as stringing beads sewing, cutting modelling and coloring is a means of developing skill with the fingers thereby preparing the child for work in Grade 1.

The songs of childhood grip the attention of the small child and makes him alert. Music is a real incentive for learning to read.

The Kindergarten is the normal, natural, most opportune place for speech correction and the prevention of speech defects.

Many speech defects as stuttering, lisping, and baby talk are corrected in the Kindergarten by imitation. A willingness to talk and a willingness to listen is developed in the Morning Circle where the children are encouraged to converse freely with each other.

The story period is one of the most enjoyable and the possibility of dramatizing the story is most stimulating. Little children are good actors. They love to imitate. Anything that requires action is a delight to them. Dramatization helps them to enter into the spirit of the story. It makes the printed page speak to them and instils a desire within the child to read.

What can we do to Help the Child to the purpose of preparing children to live in a democratic society." The child cannot learn to live with people—he must grow socially if he is one day to become a well adjusted adult.

In the elementary school the child learns to co-operate with others in work and play. We want to teach him to enjoy others and to behave as they others will enjoy him. Working in a group around a table on an art project, helping one another with word difficulties in the reading circle, keeping the classroom neat and tidy, and playing group games are all co-operative social experiences.

We wish pupils to gain an appreciation of other people of all groups to recognize the value of others' contributions regardless of their cultural background race or creed. We are planning the Jewish child in the classroom for information about his synagogue and also his special holidays. The boy from the farm gets an opportunity to make his contribution when we study about baby chicks. In a social studies discussion on "Building a Home" the only plumber's son in the class gets in his contribution gained.

A real concern for others' welfare will be developed in pupils from earliest school days. Each should learn to handle literary books carefully and to keep them clean. If a child becomes ill in school one of the little friends accompany him home. Under proper direction pupils can learn to feel a concern rather than brusque contempt for any class member who has error and has been reprimanded.

Very gradually during childhood, children should be given certain freedom in making decisions and choosing activities and they should learn that responsibility accompanies freedom. We want each to learn to play his part in society. This feeling of responsibility is accomplished in school by encouraging pupils to volunteer for monitor duties to assist with decorating and displaying their work.

It requires patience and optimism to steer the primary child along his course of social education. It is worth the effort if we can keep him feeling secure, confident and happy during the educational process and see him later as a grown individual possessing the art of human understanding.

Small Rural Church Is Vital Need

The leading editorial in a recent issue of the Canadian Churchman draws attention to the importance of the small rural church, making a strong plea to both people not to lose sight of its great purpose and the fact that they have a fundamental part to play in God's work upon earth. It is an opinion with which great numbers will agree, the many who know with certainty how God is present in the small and quiet places as well as in the great cathedrals, says an editorial in the Canadian Churchman Journal. There is inspiration, a big, congregation worshipping together, the music of a great choir and a great organ. It is true inspiration and there is no doubt but that God is in the midst.

In another way, but quite as truly, quite as moving, there is inspiration in the smaller houses of God. Many of them in Canada were built by devout pioneers and for many years the life of the community has found its inspiration there, the spiritual centre of the life of the people. No spiritual person would dare to try to estimate the influence on the life of Canada and indeed of the world of the humble rural Canadians have gone, of the little rural churches where the many Canadians have worshipped.

Circumstances of life have led many of the communities, some to be cities, maybe to other countries, but that return wherever they can to worship there again.

But unfortunately, circumstances have taken only some away from the rural districts remains the sturdy foundation of Canadian life in general and of the church continues to play its all-important part in moulding and guiding that life. Some of those who left for worship in the rural churches are his direct descendant of the pioneers who erected those beautiful and dear places. Some are newcomers from other places, some from the city turning to rural life, and some are coming from other countries, but the church in the city is vital to them all as it was to the early pioneers and still beloved by them.

It is true that modern transportation facilities makes it possible for a considerable number of the resident of rural communities to reach larger churches, but nothing can take the place actually of the active, vigorous church within the community itself, the shining church spire pointing the upward way, and the clear call of the church bell reminding all of man's first duty, to love God and to learn to study His will and how to perform it. It is the church in the living church in their midst is an inspiration to any community. Modern thought bring new problems, new responsibilities, but none that supplant the truth and the grace of God, and true worship is the true church brings guidance to modern life and our daughters just as it did to those devout pioneers who gave generously and which transforms life and all its problems.

* * *

There is a special quality about the small church in a rural setting that makes it a precious possession in any community. Beautiful, generally at great sacrifice, it remains as a constant witness that is worthy of great sacrifice to maintain it, for, the small church in town and in the people play a part in the work of God on Earth that only He can estimate.

Seek Nesting Spot Whooping Crane

Northfield, Minn., May 9 (AP) —The majestic whooping crane, storklike bird of the marshes, now nearly extinct, has taken on the wing northward to its secret nesting grounds in Canada.

Despite a disappointing last year by a Minnesota zoologist thousands of miles in Canada by airplane in an intensive surveying assistance on the ground by Royal Canadian Mounted Police and other observers the "whooping" crane kept its nesting place a secret.

But Dr. Olin Sewall Pettingill Jr., associate professor of zoology at Carleton College, Northfield, leader of the extensive search last year, said the long-necked bird with its weird voice did establish a home somewhere in the Far North last year.

Observers of the cranes recently at Arasmas National Wildlife Refuge near Austwell, Texas, where the birds winter annually, revealed that a flock of three among birds—hatched in 1946—among the 23 at wintering grounds.

Dr. Pettingill believes that the six birds are all that remain of the species which could possibly say once "darkened the sky" in their migration.

This spring's search for the well-hidden nesting grounds which zoologists say must be found in order to give the whooping cranes a chance for a comeback is twofold.

Robert Allen, representing the National Audubon Society and the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, heads one searching party. He left Regina last weekend.

In the other will be Dr. Pettingill and Edward E. Zinn of Portland, Maine, who will start early in June by flying to Great Slave Lake in Northwest Territory to begin their hunt.

The big birds, which stand more than four feet in height and have a wingspread of seven feet, take off from Arasmas in mid-April for their annual flight.

Fred Bard, director of the Saskatchewan Museum, said in Regina Thursday that he expects to join the search for the stately "whooper" which has white plumage, a brick-red head and black-tipped wings.

The post-war peak was reached in March 1946, when the figure hit 2,700,000 and then started down again.

Child Development In The Primary Grade Crowds Curriculum

One of the most fascinating and exciting experiences in teaching is child art. There is a spontaneity and freshness about it that only the child can produce. When a teacher really appreciates this delightful images of his imagination is true creative art, which can contribute so much to his teaching and personality.

Anything that interests the child can be used as a spring board for the art program—vital experiences of everyday things are the first to appear on paper. This is interesting to note the child's typical ways of working at various age levels. They are somewhat similar but not always true representation. The 6 year old is not afraid to re-make Nature to suit his own taste.

An interesting story of a child concept is that a little boy was painting a cow. The teacher never realized his painting was correct until she saw him on the grass and looked up at the cow. He paints things as he sees and feels them.

It is too much to hope for that this truth, an art, undictated, unrestricted, and uninhibited may be directed toward a creative and expressive life full of beauty and love and understanding instead of fear, hatred and ward
